15,000 head back to school next week

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic Staff

Newton's 30 public school principals will be standing in the doorways of their schools Thursday, Sept. 9, as an estimated 15,381 students will begin the 1976-77 school year.

The kindergarteners entirely new to school will number 945, down 101 from last September. The total school enrollment is down 461 students from last year.

Of the 852 classroom teachers, only the elementary teachers will meet all of their students Thursday, as the junior and senior high schools have staggered schedules for the opening one to three days.

The floors are polished, the walls are washed, and the windows are clean. All that was left for custodian David McLeod at Bigelow Junior High School to do this week was take out some broken chairs which were cluttering up storage compartments. (Williams photo)

The only system-wide change in school assignments will be for special education students who attended Peabody School last year. Special classrooms have been built in other schools for those students.

All elementary school students will report Thursday at 8:45 a.m. until 1 p.m. The regular weekly schedule is Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 8:45 a.m. to 3 p.m., and 8:45 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday.

At Newton North High School the normal 8:15 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. schedule is in effect right away, but only sophomores will report for school Thursday.

Newton South sophomores report Thursday at 8 a.m. and will be dismissed at 1:40 p.m., which is the same schedule for all students on Friday. There will be a picnic for sophomores Thursday behind Cutler house at 6 p.m.

The normal day at South begins at 8 a.m. every day and ends at 2:35 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, with students getting out at 12:45 p.m. on Tuesday and Friday. Those two days the school is open until 3:30 p.m.

At Day Junior High seventh graders will report Thursday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. with a break for lunch. On Friday eighth graders will report from 9-11 a.m. and ninth graders will report from 12:30-2:30 p.m.

Meadowbrook seventh graders are in the school the first day from 8:50-11:20 a.m., and eighth and ninth graders report Friday from 8:50-10:20 a.m. All students report Monday from 8:50-11:20 a.m., with the full schedule beginning Tuesday.

Weeks Junior High School seventh and eighth graders will report Thursday from 8:10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and the whole school will have the same hours on Friday.

Bigelow Junior High School seventh graders are to report at 8:25 a.m. Thursday and will be dismissed at 2:45 p.m. Students in grades eighth and nine report the same hours on Friday.

Warren Junior High School seventh graders will report at 9 a.m. Thursday and will be dismissed at noon. Eighth and ninth graders are also to report Thursday from 1-2:20 p.m.

Teachers' tea

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink will meet with the 42 professional staff new to the school system at a tea set for 8:30 a.m. at Day Junior High School on Tuesday, Sept. 7.

The superintendent will make his annual address to all teachers Wednesday at 9 a.m. in the Day Junior High School auditorium.

The School Committee was to have acted on the new appointments Wednesday night, but the nine members have previously approved the appointment of Thomas Egan of Needham to head the budget and accounting department.

All tenured teachers who were threatened by loss of jobs have been placed in jobs in the system, according to Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Hope Danielson.

She said all the people who worked at the Newton Junior College were placed in the secondary schools or found jobs elsewhere.

Mrs. Danielson also said most of the nontenured teachers not rehired in April have been given jobs in the system.

Fleet of buses ready for students

A full fleet of 30 school buses is ready to leave from Needham Street next Thursday to begin carrying students to nine public schools in Newton and the private schools here.

This year each bus will be equipped with a two-way radio as ordered in the contract that the company was awarded.

Bill Pike, manager of the Garden City Division of the Metropolitan Coach Service, said each bus has been fully cleaned and repaired.

In some cases entire rows of seats have been replaced, partly as a result of the $14,000 worth of vandalism done to the buses last year, Pike said.

Ten new buses are on order with Ward Company bodies which are assembled with heavy, close rivets for greater safety. Garden City now has 35 Ward bodies dating back to 1972, with five of those buses on standby for breakdowns.

Newton's buses are also equipped with seats with high backs to prevent whiplash.

Pike is working with Lt. Charles Feeley of the Community Safety Division of the Police Department to plan the required emergency drills from school buses.

Newton Metco program secure

The largest Metco program in the state will continue as planned last year, but only after a summer of boycotted meetings and uncertainties about funding of the program.

The Metco funding crisis which had shaken the city during the summer was resolved within the last 10 days when Governor Michael Dukakis gave $150,000 more to the state program, which was then dispersed to the largest Metco participating towns.

Newton's 350 Metco students will be bused voluntarily from Boston on the first day of school next Thursday.

The state Board of Education gave tentative approval to the Newton program Tuesday on the condition that the $47,000 in additional funding Newton will receive will go to services for the children.

School Committee chairman Alvin Mandell had previously given assurances that he would go along with any restoration of services recommended by the superintendent Wednesday night.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said Wednesday that he would recom-

Chief restrained from initiating dismissal of officer outside limit

A Middlesex Superior Court judge has restrained Police Chief William F. Quinn from beginning dismissal actions against one Newton officer living further than 10 miles from the Newton city line.

Newton City Solicitor Howard Levine said Tuesday that Chief Quinn is willing to apply the restraining order obtained by Officer James Burke to all officers and will postpone enforcement of the residency law until at least after a court hearing Sept. 7.

In March Chief Quinn issued an order to all officers stating that they must reside within 10 miles of the city limits by Sept. 1 or face dismissal action based on a state residency law at least four years old.

Judge Robert Prince granted the temporary restraining order against Chief Quinn after an argument by police union attorneys Joseph McParland and Gerald McAuliffe who said no decision should be made until the state Appeals Court hears a similar Boston case.

Police union President Thomas Fleming said Tuesday night that the Boston case involving the same dispute, measuring of the 10-mile limit, is scheduled to be heard in October.

Last Wednesday night the police union met and appropriated $1000 for legal costs to contest the impending dismissal against eight officers.

Chief Quinn said that number has been lowered to six because two officers have shown proof that they are making efforts to move closer to Newton.

Officer Fleming said if the 10 miles are measured from the city line of Newton to the town the officer resides in, instead of his or her front door, only two officers would be outside the limit.

Fleming also said that the chief's directive of March 9 said he would grant a delay of the restriction if any officer shows "legitimate intent" to move within the limit, and he claims this should include good reasons for not moving.

The president said one officer who faces dismissal has lived outside the limit for 10 years, and the chief has known where he lives.

Fleming said, "I am happy the restraining order was issued, but I would be more happy if an injunction were issued."

He also said the union members voted to join the Police Officers Legislative Organization for $300. Started by the Boston police union, this is a new lobbying group of two officers that will be on Beacon Hill full time.

City will purchase trash trucks

A decision has been made to purchase, not lease, the city's new fleet of trash collection vehicles, but a question remains over which ones will be bought.

The bid opening on the contract for the sale or lease of vehicles was held last week. The city's original plan to switch to two-man collection trucks received a setback when the bids on the two-man trucks came in more than $5000 higher per vehicle than anticipated.

Commissioner Larson Wednesday, however, had not ruled out the two-man Shu-Pak side loaders he originally estimated would cost $45,000 apiece.

He said he is in the process of checking the Shu-Pak bids, which came in in excess of $50,000 per vehicle.

The trucks he has in mind have a capacity of 37 cubic yards. The city currently uses trucks with a capacity of 16 cubic yards.

The larger trucks are also part of the plan to cut the number of routes from 17 to 10.

International Harvester offered the 37 cubic yard vehicle at a cost of $51,611 per vehicle. It also offered a 25 cubic yard packer truck at a cost of $39,308 per vehicle.

Mack Trucks of Allston offered the 37 cubic yard vehicle at a cost of $54,756 apiece for the 12 required.

Both firms also indicated it would take several months for the vehicles to be delivered.

Larson said Wednesday there is no way to tell now when the new trucks and reduced routes would be in action. He said plans will remain "up in the air" until a decision is made on whether or not to buy the two-man vehicles.

Novitiate campaign extends its reach

BY PRISCILLA LEITH
GRAPHIC CORRESPONDENT

The campaign to convert the St. Joseph Novitiate tract into a city park remains in full swing.

Elected officials have now been pulled into the meetings and discussions with community groups.

Attending a Ward 8 Democratic Committee presentation by the Conservators' open space committee on Tuesday night were Sen. Jack Backman, Rep. David Mofenson, and Ald. Terry Morris.

Backman called the park proposal "an exciting and important idea" which ties in with his own hope of creating a Charles River Conservancy to manage land all along the river.

He favors public ownership of all 60 acres, but the amount purchased would depend on the seller and a more extensive study of the situation, he said.

Backman says he would work hard to obtain the 50 percent federal and 25 percent state reimbursement for which Newton is eligible if city funds are spent to purchase the Novitiate land.

Ward 8 Democrats are enthusiastic about the park idea, but they took no formal vote because they want to look at the whole picture of open land in the ward, according to Chairwoman Fay Cohen.

Residents at the meeting this week were particularly concerned about a forthcoming plan to build apartments on the Murley Farm land, she said.

The committee also felt that Newton has not done enough in the past to obtain federal and state funds which are available to reimburse us for up to 75 percent of the purchase price of open space, Ms. Cohen said.

Public tours of the Novitiate land, led by the open space committee, are scheduled for two Saturdays in September, according to Joan Lerner, co-chairwoman of the committee.

This week the Conservators will be

Bridge still closed

A trial closing of the bridge on Commonwealth Avenue in Auburndale at Rowe Street has been extended for another 60 days.

A section of the Commonwealth Avenue carriage lane in Auburndale was closed in July after a fatal accident escalated neighborhood requests that something be done about this scene of numerous accidents.

A barricade was set up at Robinhood Road and the 45-day trial began. It ended Aug. 25, but the bridge remains "temporarily" closed due to a second trial.

According to Traffic Planner David Tannozzini, a barricade has now been established at Arapahoe Road in the carriage lane. The impact of this barrier will be studied for 60 days. It is one block north of the Washington Street and Commonwealth Avenue intersection.

The Traffic Commission, Tannozzini said, is inviting opinion on the closing. At the end of the 60-day trial, the Commission is expected to make a recommendation to the aldermanic Street Traffic Committee on whether or not the bridge should remain closed, and, if so, which method of rerouting traffic on Commonwealth Avenue is preferable.

On June 29, Robert Mancuso, 21, of 10 Dana Rd., West Newton, was killed when the motorcycle he was riding failed to neogotiate a turn on the bridge and struck a tree.

Earlier in June, Ward 4 Ald. Carol Ann Shea and Ald. Terry Morris, chairman of State could lose EPA funds if it does not act promptly

Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) expressed concern this week that Massachusetts may lose more than $150 million in Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) funds if it doesn't act soon to increase its participation in the federal water treatment program.

According to EPA officials, between $150 million and $200 million of the nearly $290 million earmarked for Massachusetts for planning and building water pollution treatment facilities will go to other states if Massachusetts does not act to "significantly increase its planning and participation" by Sept. 30, 1977.

"Not only will we stand to lose important dollars, we will lose an opportunity to provide more than 7000 jobs," Mofenson said.

"We need water treatment facilities and we need the jobs that come with them. According to EPA figures, only 26 percent of our rivers are rated 'fishable, swimmable,' as compared to 51 percent for the entire New England region," he continued.

Mofenson also noted that employment estimates start with at least 4,000 jobs directly involved in treatment plant construction and range up to 12,000 jobs if indirect employment is also included.

The 1972 Federal Clean Water Act was designed to give states $18 billion through mid-1977 to clean up waterways. i The $574 million given Massachusetts in 1973 must be matched by 15 percent on the state level and 10 percent on the local level.

It is to be allocated in three phases: evaluation of water treatment needs, planning and designing the appropriate system and building the actual facility.

Mofenson said he was disappointed that, according to EPA reports, Massachusetts has "the worst record in New England for obligating its share of the money."

It has used less than 50 percent of its share while states like Vermont and New Hampshire have used over 60 percent and Rhode Island 66 percent.

Mofenson said he was "encouraged" by Sec. of Environmental Affair's Evelyn Murphy's statement that she has made meeting the 1977 deadline a "top priority," but he is still concerned that the rate of planning is too slow to prevent the federal monies from going to other states.

Backman and Mofenson work to maintain elderly services

Sen. Jack Backman and Rep. Mofenson said this week that they will work for a plan to regionalize the delivery of human services to senior citizens that will not mean a cutback in services.

After a 4 ½ hour public hearing led by these legislators, cochairmen of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, they issued a joint statement that said the services developed over the past 20 years by the 277 Councils on Aging will not be overlooked.

Sen. Backman and Rep. Mofenson stated, "We have found that the state plan as put forth by the Department of Elder Affairs (DEA) unfortunately does not include the utilization of the local Councils on Aging in the cities and towns where the services are to be rendered. We must make certain that there is local community participation in these needed programs for our senior citizens.

"The Councils on Aging who represent the elderly throughout the Commonwealth have the first hand experience and knowledge of the needs of their elderly community. Therefore, the state plan should include viable roles for our Local Councils on Aging"' said the statement from Backman and Mofenson.

The hearing included testimony which protested the department's failure to utilize the experience of Councils on Aging in the state plan of the DEA; the elimination of services for many elderly who were previously receiving such services; the creation of a large regional bureaucracy with little or no local input or local participation; the proposed elimination of certain programs now funded by local planning agencies and local Councils on Aging; the extra costs incurred by the use of middlemen in social service contracting; the lack of funding for non-Title XX elderly, and the quality and cost of food services and the need for expansion of the program.

Following the testimony at the hearing, the Human Services Committee will analyze the Administration's procedures which have developed Home Care Corporations. Also to be considered will be a revision of the DEA structure that would include the direct utilization and input of Councils on Aging.

Pines calls for intensified efforts to find alternate fuels

Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton), concerned with energy costs to Massachusetts businesses, call this week for intensified efforts to investigate and put to use alternative energy sources.

Pines stated: "It is clear that this state's economy cannot fully recover until we end our virtual total dependence on outrageously price foreign fuel."

"The increasing cost of foreign fuel has adversely affected the competitive advantage of Massachusetts businesses. We can no longer afford to be at the mercy of capricious price decisions made by foreign governments," Pines said.

"As a member of the Mass. Offshore Oil Drilling Committee, Pines is working to promote local oil exploration as a viable option to our dependence upon the OPEC nations. Presently, the committee is busy reviewing the environmental impact studies which must be submitted to the federal government before the drilling sites can be leased.

Last year, Rep. Pines was the only Massachusetts legislator to attend the hearing of the U.S. Dept. of the Interior's Bureau of Land Management concerning the proposed oil and gas leasing on the Ourter Continental Shelf.

Speaking at the hearing in Trenton, N.J., Pines stressed the need for greater input from this state in the formation of off-shore petroleum policies.

"To achieve energy independence I support offshore oil drilling and for ecological reasons encourage immediate development of solar heating and cooling. Solar energy is inexhaustible and non-polluting. We must commit ourselves to learning to effectively harness this natural resource. The result will be inexpensive, clean and abundant energy," she said.

Last week, the House of Representatives approved a bill which creates corporate tax incentives for the use of alternative energy sources.

The proposed legislation, now in the Senate Ways and Means Committee, enables corporations to deduct the installation cost of solar or wind-powered climate control or water heating units when determining their net taxable income.

"This legislation mandates the type of governmental encouragement necessary to develop alternative energy sources. Alternative energy sources, especially solar energy, will engender an industry providing hundreds of new jobs. Any loss in revenue resulting from the new tax incentives will be more than balanced by new taxes from the many who are newly employed, " Pines said.

The Federal Energy Research and Development Administration will soon fund a Solar Energy Research Institute. The New England Council has submitted a bid for the grant, and if successful, the institute will be initially located at the MIT campus. It will eventually relocate in Westborough .

Pines said she feels the selection of the Massachusetts site is critical because "in a five-year period Massachusetts would receive $50 million in jobs and services. We could combine our abundant technological skills with our ability to transform this knowledge into marketable products.

"The institute would make Massachusetts the solar energy capital of our country," Pines said.

There are reasonable alternatives to the outrageous prices of imported fuel, she noted. "Massachusetts cannot afford to lose businesses because of high energy costs. We must begin immediately to utilize alternative energy sources and make Massachusetts a competitive state in which to operate a business," she said.

Holiday delays trash collection

Trash collection will be delayed one day next week because of Labor Day, Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson announced this week.

Trash usually picked up on Monday will be picked up on Tuesday, and the rest of the trash will be collected one day later than usual, with Friday collection being done on Saturday.

Larson said recyclables will be picked up as usual on each day but Saturday, and asks residents with Friday collection to hold recyclables until Friday, Sept. 17.

CETA has 36 short-term jobs

Newton Area CETA has announced that 36 new short-term jobs, professional and paraprofessional, in State agencies are now available. Unemployed low-income residents of Newton may be eligible.

While Newton Area CETA expects to put major emphasis on job training during the coming year, batches of short-term jobs are expected to surface periodically.

These short-term public service jobs include 14 social workers, three social service technicians, three planning assistants, two food stamp agents, two library assistants, one vocational instructor, one junior vocational rehabilitation counselor, and positions in several other job categories.

The public service jobs are funded by state allocation and are with state agencies throughout metropolitan Boston. Sample locations are Brookline, Cambridge, Boston and Waltham.

Eligibility for CETA programs is limited by law to persons represented in the following social-economic categories: special and recently discharged veterans, welfare recipients, recently discharged general relief recipients, handicapped persons, individuals over 45, female am nd male heads of households, high school dropouts under 22, persons of limited English-speaking ability, and minority group members.

Unemployment for 30 days or more and low-income status are also requisite. Technically, low-income families fall belo w the Bureau of Labor Statistics guidelines defining that group. Local CETA offices have complete eligibility information.

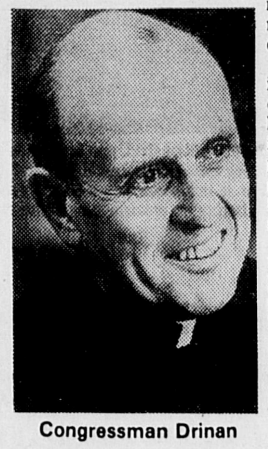

The west suburban office of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act is located at 90 Bridge St., Newton. For more details visit CETA or call 965-5750.

Drinan announces bid for reelection

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Newton) officially announced his candidacy for the U.S. House of Representatives in the 4th Congressional District this week.

"I would like to announce my candidacy to serve for a fourth term in the Congress of the United States, so that I may continue the many legislative initiatives which I have undertaken on behalf of the Fourth Congressional District of Massachusetts," he stated.

"Six years ago, an unprecedented caucus of some 2,000 people gathered together and asked me to run for this office. It was the sense of the caucus that people wanted a change — they wanted someone to go up against the establishment and help end the war in Vietnam; to redirect our efforts toward the goals of peace and prosperity. The people confirmed this judgment at the polls.

"They sent me to Washington to fight for these things, and we won that fight.

"A few years later, the country was plunged into a different crisis — the tangled skein of corrupt compaign practices, abuse of power, and politics of secrecy we now lump together as "Watergate."

"Throughout this time, people from the district wrote me hundreds of letters of support for my early bill for Nixon's impeachment. I was honored to serve on the Judiciary Committe during this historic constitutioal test, and to express the sense of our people that no man stands above the law. We won that fight too.

"Now these emotional moral battles are behind us, and some people ask what Drinan is fighting for these days. And I tell them there is an older, more basic fight still going on in this country today. I am speaking of the fight for economic justice for all Americans.

"I am speaking of the gross inequities in our tax laws. Of the lack of jobs. Of the unfair costs of energy. Of the bitter irony that sees the cost of living rising but the quality of life diminishing.

"This is what concerns the nearly half-million people I represent and these are my concerns as well.

"Right now, unemployment in this country stands at 7.8 per cent. And I'm happy to report, however, that unemployment in this District declined over 25 per cent last year — from 10.7 per cent to 7.1 per cent, which is significantly lower than the national average.

"I've worked as a liason between several communities here in the district and the federal bureaucracy in Washington, to make sure we get federal monies for desperately needed public-service and private-industrial projects.

"We secured federal grants totaling over $3 million for new industrial parks in Gardner and Fitchburg and Small Business Administration loans over $4.46 million last year along for businesses throughout the district.

"For too long we have suffered the politics of stagnation and denial. For too long, too many powerful people have tried to convince us that we cannot provide everyone with a job, that we cannot provide a clean and healthy environment, that we cannot conserve energy without halting economic growth, that we cannot provide decent health care to all our people.

"The people of my district know of my commitment to fight for progress, justice and reform in our economy and in our government. I believe my constituents share these objectives with me, and will support me in this fight. And I know that, once again, we will win," he said.

Cost-of-living clause causes $300,000 school surplus

The School Committee was to have heard good news Wednesday night when the new budget director, James Egan, was to tell of a $304,497 surplus in the professional salares account.

Egan said this week that the surplus results from a lower cost-of-living increase nationwide than the School Committee had included in its budget for teachers.

Teachers were entitled this September to an increase of up to 7 percent, but the national index went up 5.4 percent' Egan said.

Contracts with other school employees stipulated that cost-of-living increases be based on the Greater Boston index which rose 7.5 percent in the past 12 months, so there was no surplus in other personnel accounts.

Besides the Metco program, the School Committee was also expected to have acted on a request from the city that the School Department be responsible of for paying its own workers' compensation claims.

Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Hope Danielson said she had planned to ask the Committee for $24,000, based on an estimate by Budget Director Egan.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said Wednesday morning that the agenda also included requests for temporary appointment in the Division of Program for one year to compensate for the resignation of Geoffrey Pierson.

Pierson, district curriculum coordinator for the south side, left this summer to become assistant superintendent in the Lexington public school system.

Superintendent Fink said he had planned to recommend that Science Coordinator Robert Kilburn take Pierson's job for one year while reorganization of the division is studied.

An executive session was scheduled to act on grievances from custodians and teachers.

Mofenson asks people to speak out on credit

David J. Mofenson (D-Newton), chairman of the Special Legislative Commission on Privacy, wants to protect consumers from credit investigator errors.

"As the role of credit, credit seekers, credit grantors and credit investigators grows in our society," the state representative said, "possibilities of credit probe mistakes also increase and with them, sometimes devestating consequences for individuals."

The Mass. Legislative Privacy Commission is currently seeking answers to such questions as: how far should credit investigators go in checking out credit applications and what kind of safeguards should there be to protect credit applicants from mistakes, errors in judgment and false information included in credit investigations.

The commission is considering to what extent, if any, the private sector, including credit reporting agencies, should be covered by the 1975 Fair Information Practices Act, which now applies only to state agencies.

"One of the problems of people who have been adversely affected by unfair information-gathering practices," Mofenson said, "is their fear that if they come forward with their stories, they will only make matters worse.

"This in turn leads to a false conclusion that there really are no abuses of individual rights of privacy in such areas as consumer credit and other investigative reports, because no one complains.

"We don't want people to suffer silently, we want to help; but we don't want to legislate in a vacuum. Maybe certain legislation is inappropriate at this time, maybe industry self-regulation is sufficient. We won't have a clear idea until people have had an opportunity to know their rights, to recognize the limits of the current law and come forth with their stories."

Mofenson said he hoped people who have suffered because of inaccurate, incomplete or otherwise erroneous investigative reports would write or call his office at the State House: 727-1321.

Arbitrator rules in favor of custodian in grievance

School custodian James M. Blake, Sr., is entitled to be head custodian at Newton North High School this fall as a result of a decision reached by arbitrator agreed on by the custodian's union and the School Department.

Blake, who has 10 more years seniority than the current senior custodian, Robert T. Daly, according to a union spokesman, appealed through the grievance process when he was not given the job last year.

The School Committee was expected to have acted last night on the settlement.

According to custodian attorney Alan J. McDonald, Arbitrator Harry Prucell found that the School Committee should pay all the back pay that Blake would have earned as senior custodian at Newton North, above what he earned at the old F.A. Day.

Custodian union President Ernest Peltier said this would mean the School Committee would have to pay Blake the overtime hours that Daly worked last year based on the pay Blake would be entitled to at North.

Last year Blake earned $14,755 at Day Junior High and Daly earned $14,502 at North.

Assistant Director of Personnel Thomas P. O'Conor said the School Committee may appeal the decision to Superior Court' or grant Blake the job and additional pay, an amount not determined as of Tuesday.

If Blake is given the Newton North job, Daly will be eligible to request assignment to any custodial assignments that become available.

Before going to the arbitrator, the custodian's grievance was turned down by the Personnel Department, the superintendent, and the School Committee.

New regulations govern Beaconwood Rd. housing

Tenants living in Beaconwood public housing will be governed by new regulations this fall, but they aren't expected to vary much from the old Newton Housing Authority rules, a spokesman said Tuesday.

Steven Buchbinder, chairman of the Housing Services Commission that assumed the old NHA's responsibilities for tenant services on July 1, says the new regulations are mandated by the state Department of Community Affairstor any state-funded

At its regular meeting last month the HSC began reviewing a set of proposed procedures for tenants sent by DCA. Discussions will continue at the next session on September 8.

The DCA proposals are geared more to large Boston highrise projects than to Newton's garden apartments, Buchbinder said.

He considers the DCA proposals too complicated for Newton, and tenants appear to agree with that assessment.

At meetings held on the DCA proposals to date, tenants have said they do not want the option offered of forming a local tenants' organization, Buchbinder said.

Instead, they prefer to continue dealing directly with either Executive Director Frank Quinn or the Housing Services Commission, he said.

Given the choice of a five-person panel or a hearing officer to hear unresolved disputes, the tenants also agreed they want to continue with the single officer, Buchbinder said.

Tenants are always welcome to attend the monthly meetings of the HSC and participate directly in discussions, and one has been doing so recently.

The final regulations adopted by the HSC will eventually go to tenants for ratification.

HSC also plans to adopt them for Newton's other, federally-funded public housing projects, Buchbinder said.

Curve ball explained by museum exhibit

Luis Tiant, Ferguson Jenkins, and Rick Wise of the Red Sox are featured in a refurbished curve ball exhibit at Boston's Museum of Science.

Displayed during the past two baseball seasons, the reopened display includes a recording by Tiant, explaining in Spanish how he throws a curve ball; one by Wise giving his explanation in English; and a video tape showing Ferguson Jenkins's pitch in slow motion. The color video was produced by Channel 38 (WSBK-TV).

Another part of the walk-around exhibit explores the aerodynamic principles of the baseball phenomenon. "The ball curves !ecause of the pressure difference created as the ball spins through the air," the exhibit states, suggesting that visitors activate a wind tunnel to duplicate the effect of the ball's movement.

The exhibit, which will remain through the World Series, is on the basement level of the west wing.

Half right

Former Governor Francis W. Sargent voiced the opinion in an interview the other day that either he or Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson could defeat Governor Michael S. Dukakis if an election were held today.

Sargent expressed surprise at the extent to which Dukakis's popularity has eroded in the past 20 months.

Ex-Governor Sargent is at least half-right. The polls indicate clearly that the Dukakis political stock has dropped so low, Richardson definitely would topple him at the present time in Democratic Massachusetts.

While Sargent would be a slight favorite to win over Dukakis because of Dukakis's high 40 per cent unfavorability rating, Sargent is far from a political powerhouse. His standing with the voters is not much better than that of Dukakis.

When Michael Dukakis won election to the Governorship in the 1974 Democratic sweep, doubt was expressed by some political observers, that any Republican ever again would carry Massachusetts in a statewide contest.

But Dukakis, popularity has gone steadily downward during the months he has been Governor. We can't recall any Governor in modern time who has lost as much public support in a span of 20 months as has Dukakis.

It all began when Dukakis, after promising in his 1974 campaign that there would be no new state taxes if he were elected Governor, sponsored two big tax programs in 1975. His credibility has never been the same.

While his own popularity plummeted, Dukakis was able to persuade many voters that he inherited a monstrous financial mess from Sargent whom he succeeded.

Unless Dukakis can achieve a political comeback in the next year and a half, improve his standing with the voters and lower his unfavorability rating, he almost certainly will be defeated for Democratic renomination in the 1978 Democratic Primary.

As recently as 1964, the defeat of a sitting Governor in a Democratic primary tore the Democratic party asunder and left it in a shambles, opening the way for the election of a Republican governor.

But Massachusetts is much more heavily Democratic today than it was 12 years ago and seems on its way to becoming a one-party state.

Dukakis is hurt by some of the jokes being made about him, his faults and failings.

State House politicians are still chuckling about a comment by former Republican State Committeeman Edward F. King, now a columnist, that if Governor Dukakis had been made manager of the Red Sox when Darrell Johnson was fired, he would have set up a panel to recommend the pitchers who would be used but then would have disregarded the suggestions of the panel.

Michael S. Dukakis is a decent, honest person. But politically, he seems to be his own worst enemy. He certainly has a scarcity of knowledge on how to win friends and influence people.

Ex-Governor Sargent seems to be a political realist about almost everything except himself. Sarge caused a clicking of Republican eyebrows and expressions of GOP displeasure when he predicted that Jimmy Carter will carry Massachusetts next November.

Sargent is a realist on almost everything except his own political prospects.

The Sunbelt has changed our politics

Commentary by Gus Tyler, national columnist

NEW YORK — A strange alchemy is at work in both the Republican and Democratic Parties. The magic ingredient is The South.

The rise of the Sunbelt as an economic and electoral power is not only shifting the balance of politics in the country but is also changing the make-up and the character of the Republican and Democratic Party — in totally unexpected ways.

The South was the backbone of Reagan's strength at the convention. Every Southern (and southwestern) state went for Reagan with the sole exception of Florida.

The South was also the proving ground for Jimmy Carter. It was in Dixie that the former Governor of Georgia was able to form an anti-Wallace coalition that ultimately turned into a pro-Carter alliance.

In both party conventions the South played a decisive role, although quite differently at each of the conclaves. In the GOP, the South was a force for conservatism; in the Democratic Party, the South came to swim in the Democratic Party mainstream, as embodied in the Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy, Johnson tradition.

The curious and opposite roles played by the South in the evolution of the Parties are products of the new Southland that has been emerging since the end of World War II. This once rural' sparsely populated area of the country has been turning urban and has been gaining in population more rapidly than the older declining areas of the Northeast. Growth in population has meant growth in influence. Citification has brought new classes into being.

Out of the new South came the beginnings of a two-party system that allowed Republican Eisenhower to carry Virginia, Florida, Texas and Tennessee in 1952. "The Eisenhower Republicans in the South," note Jack Bass and Walter De Vries in their recent book on Southern politics, "often included leadership from the professional and business elite and a reform element that perceived the need to develop a two-party system and to challenge entrenched Democratic stateshouses and courthouse organizations that generally were unresponsive to the needs of a changing society."

But then came Goldwater with his declaration that "we're not going to get the Negro vote in 1964 and 1968 so we ought to go hunting where the ducks are." As a result of this Southern strategy, say Bass and De Vries, "the GOP increasingly attracted the most reactionary elements of the region." These were the people who gave Reagan his victories.

The conservative drift to the GOP in the South drained many right-wingers away from the Democratic Party. Simultaneously, Blacks and unionized workers who were now voting in greater numbers, stayed with the Democratic Party, intent on bringing their state organizations into line with the national party.

It is this new Southern Democratic Party with which Jimmy Carter is identified. As their leader, he brought them into the mainstream of Democratic politics in America, so that the classic war of Dixie Democrats against their Northern colleagues was absent at the convention.

As a consequence, the Democratic platform — as liberal as any ever adopted — was carried unanimously. And the Republican platform — more conservative than any ever adopted — was carried unanimously.

The rise of the South has had opposite effects on each party, making the GOP more consistently conservative and making the Democrats more homogeneously liberal.

How the U.S. reacts to murder

Analysis by

John D. Lofton, Jr.

Watching my country react to the premeditated, savage, brutal murder of two of our men in uniform at the hands of Communist North Korean thugs, I do not know whether to laugh or cry.

By now, the facts of what happened are well known. On August 18, inside a joint United Nations-North Korean patrolled area at Panmunjom, a party of nine South Koreans, two U.S. officers and four U.S. MPs entered this region to prune a 40-foot poplar tree blocking the view of a U.N. observation post in the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

At this point, a North Korean lieutenant and seven of his men approached Capt. Arthur Bonifas, 33, of Newburgh, N.Y., and Lt. Mark Barrett, 24, of Columbia, S.C. He asked them what was going on.

They explained their party was there to trim the tree.

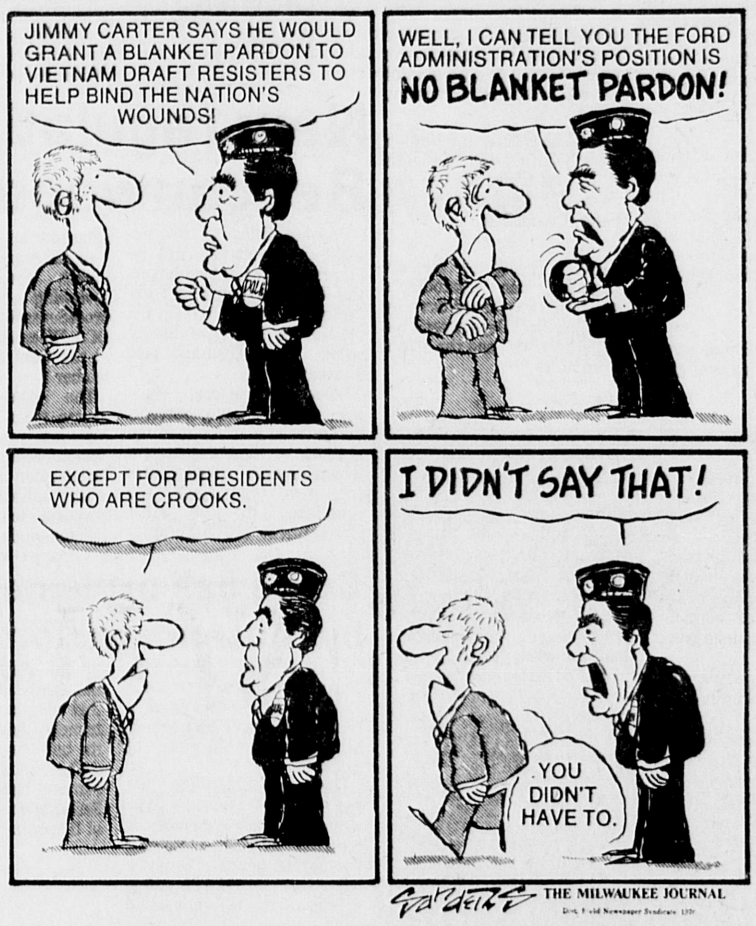

"Good" the North Korean replied, and he sat down to watch.

Then, without warning, the North Korean lieutenant leaped to his feet and demanded that the tree-trimming be halted. When the Americans refused, a North Korean guard ran across his side of the DMZ's "Bridge of No Return" and returned with a truckload of reinforcements.

What occurred next is detailed in a report from U.S. Ambassador W. Tapley Bennett Jr. to the head of the U.N. Security Council, Isao Abe of Japan:

"One North Korean officer took off his watch, wrapped it in a handkerchief and placed it in his pocket. Another of the officers rolled up his sleeves. The U.N. Command senior officer was busy with the tree-pruning detail and did not see this. Immediately thereafter, the North Korean officer approached the U.N. Command officer and, crying 'Kill,' struck him, knocking him to the ground."

As Newsweek magazine reports it, as Capt. Bonifas and Lt. Barrett lay on the ground, "their North Korean attackers picked up axes that had been dropped by the terrified tree-trimmers and methodically crushed the skulls of the Americans with the blunt sides of the blades. The rest of the allied party escaped from the brawl with lesser injuries."

From the GOP Convention in Kansas City, White House press secretary Ron Nessen quoted President Ford as saying: "Responsibility for the consequences of these murders rests with the North Korean government."

Nessen was unable to say what these consequences might be.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said that what the North Koreans had done was "an act of murder" and they would be held "responsible for all consequences." Kissinger demanded "some explanations and reparation," some gestures or actions to make amends for the killings, but what he didn't say.

The State Dept. itself issued a statement viewing the murders "with gravity and concern"' warning that such actions "cannot be tolerated." How would this U.S. intolerance manifest itself? Foggy Bottom didn't say.

The New York Times reports that in Seoul, South Korea, the day after the murder of the two U.S. officers, "high-ranking American embassy officials continued their vacations at sunny ocean beaches ...," presumably also concerned over the gravity of the situation but not enough to come in out of the surf.

Finally, the U.S. Government swung into action.

Kissinger, CIA Director George Bush and our top military brass held a top-level strategy meeting at which it was agreed that something decisive must be done. Ford okayed the plan.

So, two days after the murders, under the cover of 26 helicopter-gunships, several F-4 Phantoms and F-111 jet fighters, and three B-52s flown in from Guam, a 300-man U.S.-South Korean "quick reaction" force invaded the DMZ and — are you ready — cut down the controversial poplar tree!

In a warning that must have had America's adversaries around the world quaking in their respective boots, a Washington Star eight-column front page headline screamed: "U.S. Cuts Down Korea Tree in a Show of Force."

One wonders what it must have been like in that National Security Council meeting when the agreed-upon course of action was to cut down a tree. I mean, the whole thing was fraught with danger. Should an environmental impact statement be filed? Should the Sierra Club be notified before or after the cutting? Decisions, decisions, decisions.

A recent Time magazine essay poohpoohed any analogies between what's happening in America today and what caused the decline and fall of Rome. It made the point that Bicentennial America "has not shrunk from the challenge of events," whereas Rome did.

Well, I'm not so sure, not so sure at all. In my judgment, this country failed in a most cowardly way to respond to the challenge of events in Korea.

And this failure comes on the top of others in recent days.

The secretary of the army, in effect, has voided West Point's Honor Code saying that, as a "once-only solution," the 202 cadets accused of cheating will be allowed to re-enter the academy if certain conditions are met.

An Air Force survey, leaked to the Associated Press, shows that almost one-fourth of all recruits — 23 per cent — would evacuate a base rather than fight; 28 per cent weren't sure. Thirty-seven per cent said they would not have enlisted had a war been going on; 15 per cent said they would not die for their country while 26 per cent weren't sure.

These are not hopeful signs.

Are nuclear plants really that safe??????

By Henry J. Taylor, international columnist

There is an amazing nuclear production plant near Aikin, S.C., that runs for 27 miles along the Savannah River. Scientists there explain that a nuclear power plant catastrophe can occur within one-thousandth of a second and independent difficulties can provide a cascading effect.

The Atomic Energy Commission officially calls the danger from nuclear power plants "infinitesimally small." But is it?

The AEC licenses them under Title 10, Part 20, of the code of Federal Regulations. It contains 60 safety standards. But a Gallup Poll reveals that 40 per cent believe stricter safeguards are essential.

In fact, the AEC itself has unsuccessfully asked Congress for millions to hire more guaards, install new alarms, get more fencing, get tamperproof shipping cases and develop ways to track stolen nuclear materials.

Moreover, the AEC itself found in its Brookhaven National Laboratory study that a major reactor accident could cause at least $7 billion in damage.

Accidents do happen. We of the public have been just plain lucky!

I have reported on my visit — the first ever permitted — to the amazing nuclear production plant near Aikin, S.C., that runs for 27 miles along the Savanah River. Scientists there explain that a nuclear power plant catastrophe can occur within one-thousandth of a second and independent difficulties can provide a cascading effect.

Uranium-235 is the plant's fuel. When a critical mass is collected in one place, it can undergo a violent spontaneous chain reaction. Most accidents are unpublicized, but warnings come from the Windscale Works' No. 1 pile in Englnad, the SL-1 reactor near Idaho Falls, Idaho, the malfunctions within the Enrico Ferme Power Plant, 30 miles from Detoit, etc.

In addition, reactors are planned to operate at least 20 years with only periodic changes of the fuel rods inserted into the core. Switchming these can take a year and cost $4 million.

As these rods age they develop small pinholes. The rods' radioactivity leaks through these pinholes into the water which moderates the reactor. The radioactivity-contaminated water accumulates within the reactor housing. This is metered into the cooling water that is being returned to the river or ocean.

In simple truth, nobody — the AEC, Savanah River nuclear scientists, nuclear plant designers or anyone else — knows how reactors will operate as they age.

As one result, our insurance industry, which covers hazards of every sort, refused to adequately insure the utilities against the nuclear power risk.

They have underwritten less than $200 million in nuclear plant insurance. They do not have sufficient confidence in a nuclear plant's safety, the AEC "infinitesimally small" statement notwithstanding.

The fact is that, hardly known to our public, the utilities of our country must depend on the government's Price-Anderson Act. This Act was sponsored by former Senator from New Mexico Clifford anderson, who had large uranium interests, and it is most certainly a mighty unique piece of legislation, to say the leaast. By the Act the liabilityy off a nuclear power reactor is limited to $560 million!

Actually, our nuclear power plants could not exist if the amazing Price-Anderson Act did not coexist with them.

Meanwhile, we are additionally lucky not yet to be the victims of a makeshift atom bomb — or its blackmail.

This potential is only now being discussed by our public, but I first heard it privately discussed, with intense alarm, inside the General Accountiing Office, Congress' investigative arm.

The GAO finds that the AEC and the nuclear power industry cannot account for thousands of pounds of nuclear material makable into atomic bombs. This material yields that result by skillful people possessing reasonably simple, widely available instructions.

The GAO tells me that an informed, dedicated band of bomb makers can easily fashion an effective explosion. They would need only about 40 pounds of enriched U-235 uranium or 12 pounds of platonium.

Moreover, the GAO has gotten reports of alarming neglect in some nuclear power plants. It investigated these and discovered weak fences, inefficient patrols, too few automatic detection systems, no real plan should the lethal nuclear material be stolen, etc.

In fact, the GAO finds large loads of enriched uranium "subject to hijacking or other diversion attempts."

We of the public are right in worrying about the simplest and plainest thing on earth — the atom. The GAO finding of the footloose way the AEC and some of our nuclear industry handle atomic materials is a roaring disgrace.

It is further proof that there always seems to be one more place at the Mad Hatter's Tea Party.

Rampant ragweed

(Editor's note: Following is a copy of a letter sent to Mayor Theodore Mann.): Dear Mayor Mann:

I am again appealing to you to do something about the weeds, including ragweed, which are growing along the border of Cypress Street between the intersection with Parker Street and the Bowen School.

As I reminded you in our telephone conversation, we first requested early in June that these weeds be cut about Aug. 1, and that the cutting be done at the latest before the beginning of the ragweed season Aug. 15. Since Aug. 1, I have been making daily telephone calls to various departments of the city, including your office. Yet now, at the end of August, the weeds still stand.

I am still ill, my children are still sneezing and many other residents of this neighborhood are similarly affected.

You told me over the telephone that the weeds had been sprayed with a chemical defoliant Aug. 20 "in response to my husband's urgent concern." Certainly we never requested that the city use chemicals to do an incomplete job at greater risk than simple weed-cutting. One week later, the weeds are uglier, but they are still pollentating and I need more medication than ever. We do not want the weeds sprayed; we want them cut.

Apparently it is going to be necessary for my financial losses to exceed my tax bills before the city will do anything. I am currently spending $1 to $1.50 per day on prescription medication.

I have been given to understand more than once that the Forestry Dept. is simply unwilling to cut the weeds because the department head does not believe that it would do me any good.

He told me that last year; he told my husband the same thing this month. My doctor, a board-certified internist, says that cutting the weeds is the only solution. What are the medical qualifications of the Forestry Dept.?

While City Hall sits on the problem, time goes on and the matter becomes more urgent for me. I have never before come across a city where the mayor seemed to be unable to force a department to do a task that was so clearly urgent, or, for that matter, any task.

I don't want sympathy, I don't want explanations. Neither will stop my allergy symptoms and those of my neighbors. What I do ask, for about the hundredth time, is that the weeds along Cypress Street be cut, immediately, along the whole length of the street, and that in ensuing year they be cut automatically and without all this time-wasting between July 25 and Aug. 7.

Name witheld by request.

Blight

(Editor's note; The following letter was sent to the Recreation Dept. with a copy to the Newton Graphic) Dear Sir:

When is a playground not a playground? When it is tennis courts!

It is forever shocking to arrive at the Angier School tennis courts early in the morning to see the litter that is scattered about. Beer cans, broken bottles, papers, cigarette butts all combine to create disenchantment with those who lack respect for playgrounds planned for the benefit of all citizens in the community.

No doubt this experience is encountered in other areas of the city. Yes, we are willing to pitch in and help clean up, but the conditions that prevail would require hours of work.

Why can't this problem be the responsibility of all the citizens of Newton to explore with their families what can be done to put an end to this blight?

Omission

To the Editor:

The articleregarding land use in the Aug. 19 issue misquoted my comments by omission.

I refer to your quote "we will take steps to see to it that the Building Department doesn't overlook anything."

I enclose a copy of the text which was distributed to the Land Use Committee and from which I stated:

"We will take such appropriate action as is necessary to assure that the Building Department does not inadvertently overlook anything required."

The omission of the word "inadvertently" substantially changes the intent of the statement.

There was no intention to intimate that the Building Department could or would intentionally overlook antything required, but there is a multitude of code references applicable in this particular case in point not normally associated with a simple group residence.

I trust in the future your quotations will be more accurate.

Lawrence Green,
Chestnut Hill

Officers thanked

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Police Chief William F. Quinn with a copy to the Netwton Graphic) Dear Chief Quinn:

I would like to express my sincere appreciation and through you commend Officers Richard Murphy and Charles Doucette who recently answered an emergency call at my home.

My father-in-law had taken ill and my young son was home. Officer Murphy in particular was extraordinarily kind and attentive to both of them.

He called me and indicated that my father-in-law should go to the hospital. When my father-in-law refused to go, Officer Murphy called me again and suggested I come home, which I did, and I, of course, brought my father-in-law to the hospital.

Today when it is fashionable in some circles to downgrade the police and other law enforcement officers' I felt the need to indicate to you and through you, to the officers that not all of the public is unappreciative of your efforts.

I sincerely tha feel that the Newton Police Department is the finest department in the United States, and that is one of the substantial reasons why I shall continue to live in Newton regardless of the increase in taxes.

I would appreciate your expressing my sentiments to the officers involved and, if possible, to place this letter of commendation in their files.

Green light

To the Editor:

Men and women of good will are pleased that Newton's Metco program has the green light and that educational opportunity is assured for its several hundred participating students.

We are indebted to those who worked together to achieve positive results.

We salute our state officials, our legislative representatives on Beacon Hill and our own city officials with special note for Mayor Mann's untiring efforts in keeping avenues of dialogue and negotiation open so that agreement could be reached.

Good work

To the Editor:

As the summer season draws to a close, we would like to take this opportunity to thank the staff of the Gath Pool at Albermale.

Because of their patience and ever-present smiles, many children and adults who were afraid of water at the beginning of their lessons ended up jumping from the diving board, and for the most part are now unafraid swimmers.

Newton is indeed very vfortunate to have such an outstanding Recreation Department with everyone giving 100 percent.

Again, thank you to the excellent staff at Gath Pool and Albermarle Playground.

Restrictions lifted from unused Brandeis scholarship fund

A major gift to Brandeis University, refused almost 20 years ago because it was earmarked to aid Jewish students only, has now been accepted following a recent Illinois court decision which has removed the religious restriction, underscoring a Brandeis policy of opportunity for all.

Brandeis officials this week said the gift, valued at nearly $200,000, will be used as a scholarship fund honoring the memory of Martha and Alex Braun of Chicago. The scholarships have been designated to help needy Brandeis students of high scholastic standard. When Mrs. Braun died in 1955, her will provided for a gift to Brandeis upon the death of three other beneficiaries. According to her request, the money would eventually go for scholarships to Jewish students.

In 1958, then Brandeis President Abram L. Sachar and the University's Board of Trustees elected to turn down the offer if it ultimately came with religious preference or was discriminatory and restrictive in nature.

Upon the death of the three life beneficiaries, the principal of Mrs. Braun's estate became available to Brandeis. The university then sought to remove the religious restriction in the will through petition to court. The Chancery Division of the Circuit Court of Cook County recently ruled in Brandeis' favor.

Funds from the Braun estate, all directed to the endowed scholarship program, are now being received by the university.

Commenting on the gift's disposition last week, Chancellor Sachar emphasized that Mrs. Braun's "wishes were understandable and well motivated."

"Martha Braun was a refugee from Nazi Germany and she and many members of her family suffered greatly during the Holocaust of World War II. Because of this, I believe her intention was merely to help as many Jewish students in this country as she could. But we simply were unable to take advantage of her kindness under this kind of restriction," he explained.

Nurses discuss continuing education

The Massachusetts Nurses Association (MNA), which has called for mandatory continuing education of all nurses, will meet Sept. 13 to discuss its stand.

A free open meeting for all registered nurses will be held at Simmons College in Boston on Monday, Sept. 13, at 7 p.m.

The MNA, representing the largest group of health care professionals in the state, earlier this year called for mandatory continuing education for all nurses seeking to renew their licenses to practice in the Commonwealth.

This action followed several years of study of the need to guarantee that all persons licensed to provide professional health care maintain their competence to practice.

One purpose of the Simmons College meetings will be to provide information about continuing education to nurses in the area and to encourage an exchange of ideas on the issue, particularly as it effects nurses in Boston.

For further information, registered nurses may call MNA headquarters in Boston, 741-9090.

Program helps inmates survive outside prison

The One to One Program sponsored by Volunteers in Correction, Inc., matches a volunteer (male or female) with a Concord inmate who is close to release at the Massachusetts Correction Institute. The purpose of the program is to develop a meaningful inter-personal relationship between the two people and to assist the inmates's reintegration into his community.

One to One is the extension of a highly successful pilot program that proved the effectiveness of over 100 volunteers in helping offenders make the difficult transition from prison to society.

In One to One, a volunteer from the community and a Concord inmate agree to meet with each other for a period of one year, starting several months before the inmate's release date. These meetings take place one evening a week.

The volunteer is not concerned with the past acts of the offender, but rather concentrates on helping him towards a responsible future. Their relationship is based on the fact that the volunteer cares and respects the offender for the person he is and the growth he can achieve.

This personal commitment is usually new to the inmate, and it can provide that added incentive and positive influence which can make the difference between success on the outside and reimprisonment.

In addition, the volunteer brings a wealth of life experiences to offer the offender as he confronts the obstacles of daily life after his release.

Volunteers are needed who can honestly say that for one year they will be willing to befriend an ex-offender.

One to One provides training and supervision.

For more information a call 369-1200, or write to One to One Program, Box 00, Concord, 01742.

Norwood Security Services Inc. seven years old and still growing

NORWOOD — Norwood Security Services, Inc., enters its seventh year of dependable, courteous service.

Established in Norwood in 1970 by Robert W. McGrath, Norwood Security Services is the only full service detective agency in the local area to serve clients 24 hours a day.

Norwood Security is located at 525 Providence Highway.

The company's work force has grown from two to over 100 employees, and is still growing. Madlyn McGrath is in charge of personnel.

Employees include many students working their way through college, local retired people and part-timers. Mrs. McGrath always looks for and accepts applications from dependable, neat and clean applicants. Security work is a good part-time job that helps augments pay checks and provides extra income, she said.

Norwood Security has a direct supervision program with trained supervisors on the road checking every job and every shift. This department is headed by Richard McGrath.

Uniformed security guards from Norwood Security have served at many local business and private properties.

Uniformed armed guards in marked cruisers are involved in money transfers, moving valuables, night deposits and escort service, at local banks, apartment complexes, auctions and other places.

All armed guards participate in the firearm training program set up by Richard McGrath and Officer Robert Lawrie, of the Norwood Police Department, a graduate of the FBI's firearms training program.

Robert W. McGrath is a licensed private detective and is a member in good standing of the World Association of Detectives, the Massachusetts Associated Licensed Detective Agency, the American Society for Industrial Security, the Norwood Chamber of Commerce and Norwood Kiwanis

Kiwanis Home Show to have old radio contest

A unique variety of products and services will be offered at the Newton Kiwanis Home Show this fall. Included will be home and apartment appliances, woodcrafted toys and decorator items, and communications media.

Newton's radio station, WNTN, will feature an old radio contest at its booth.

The old radio need not be in working order, and there will be two prizes for the oldest radio brought in, and the runner-up.

The radios will be displayed at the booth as they are brought into the show. Doing the judging will be a professional expert from a local radio service firm.

Jeff Stoughton, sales manager, confirmed that there will be some broadcasting and direct telephone reports from the show itself, and well-known Newton disc jockeys Gary Clancy, Rob Wolf, Glen Shields, and other radio personalities will be present.

At the booth free records will be given away to show-comers, and there will be registration for valuable prizes to be given by the radio station.

ICS plans seminars here Sept. 14-17

ICS Training for Business and Industry will conduct a three- day modern management seminar Sept. 14-16, at the Holiday Inn, 399 Grove St., Newton. ICS will also hold a one-day Think Metric seminar Sept. 17 at the same location.

Booth space is rapidly being reserved for the Home Show, which will be held Oct. 1, 2, and 3 at the West Newton Armory. For further information, please contact Judy Chernin, show coordinator, at 332-8708.

The management seminar is a special three-day condensed version of ICS' modern management program. The second day's session includes "How to Motivate and Coordinate" and "Employee Relations." The final day covers the topics "How to Control Costs and Simplify Work" and "How to Train and Communicate Effectively."

The management seminars are designed for beginning supervisors, experienced managers and staff employees in line for managerial promotion. The Think Metric seminar is suitable for any and all employees. For additional information, write or call Harry Johnson, ICS Training for Business and Industry, Scranton, Pa. 18515, 961- 5031.

Safely participating in daredevil sports

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Transcript staff writer

There are on this earth those rare people who can successfully take a simple idea and translate it into a concept from which everyone can benefit. Such a man is C.R. "Sam" Weihe, Jr. of Needham. Weihe came from Pennsylvania to Massachusetts 22 years ago as a salesman of dishwashers and dishwasher parts.

On his rounds he began to see things wrong with the dishwashers. After attempting to improve the appliances he found he was incurring the wrath of some major companies. Undismayed Weihe founded his own company in Newton, Adamation, Inc. Today, as chairman of the board, he is still selling.

What makes Weihe unique is that on his sales trips he doesn't wine and dine customers at expensive restaurants or hotels. Instead he invites out the prospective customer's whole family for a try at land sailing on a device he invented.

He got the idea for a land sail boat after seeing an ice boat along Route 128. He examined the boat and says it seemed "logical to put the wheel on in place of a runner." Weihe also discovered that by steering the boat from the back as opposed to steering it from the front, it became more maneuverable.

The boat, which operates with the thrust of the wind, can be operated on "spaces as limited as tennis courts." Suddenly Weihe opened up a whole new area for participation in sports once unavailable to those who could not sail because of "fear of drowning" or a physical handicap.

Weihe says that land sailing is not really a new idea, pointing out that there was land sailing going on on the flats of the Netherlands at the turn of the century and it was even popular in the Mojave desert.

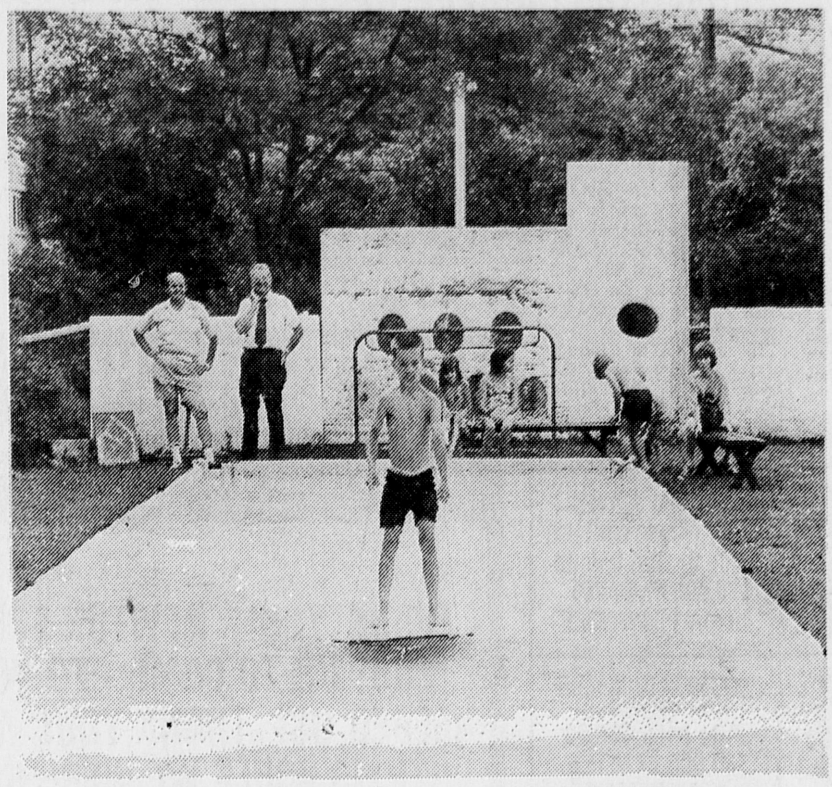

Land sailing is a far cry from the three masted schooner, a tall ship, on which Weihe spent two years sailing to Europe upon graduating from Pennsylvania State Nautical School.

The one time sailor was launched on the inventing portion of his career after taking his daughter to the Needham High School hill to teach her to ski. That was 17 years ago. As the lessons progressed, Weihe tired of climbing the hill and devised a miniature ski tow set on the hill.

Smiling as he recalled the incident, Weihe said that no sooner had he finished the ski tow "why, 30 kids literally came out of the woods" to use the "lift." He was approached by the Park and Recreation Commissioner to build a ski tow that the town could use and as a result "thousands have learned to ski" on that hill. Weihe then formed the Norfolk Ski Tow Company to try and sell the idea.

That was the beginning of Weihe's inventions to simplify the so-called "daring" sports such as sailing, hang-gliding, water skiing or snow skiing. He sees his inventions as an opportunity to help people participate in these sports, learn them more easily while enjoying recreational activities without "risking their necks or getting involved in very expensive equipment."

Risking your neck might be some people's view of a sport such as hang-gliding which is pursued by thousands. Some fly from Wellfleet to Truro like the mythical Icarus. The exciting sport began on the West coast roughly six years ago and is usually "reserved for the daredevils who have the courage to walk on high cliffs or dunes or steep mountains." There are many who do not have that kind of courage and for those people Weihe invented a device through which people can learn to fly without getting "hundreds of feet off the ground."

Above a youngster surfs on a mini-pond which can be installed in minutes anywhere. The surf is pulled manually.

Surfing is another "daredevil" sport and Weihe pointed out that "kids learning to ride a surfboard in the water may have consumed thousands of dollars of gasoline." So to conserve energy, he invented a surfing tow which is manually pulled.

Conservation however, was not the only catalyst for the idea. Weihe had promised his grandchildren he would teach them to water ski. Taking them to the lake part of the national seashore in Cape Cod he found a sign prohibiting internal combustion. Well, a promise is a promise and Weihe had to find a way to teach his grandchildren how to water ski. That is when he put together the manually operated surf tow. Not only did his grandchildren benefit, but the surf tow provided youngsters with a great deal of fun at the recent carnival in Norwood on behalf of Muscular Dystrophy.

Weihe says that he works on his inventions on a group basis and "no particular one gets priority...they are all moved around from time to time on the front burner."

He himself is an intrepid soul making it all the more interesting that he is sensitive to those who do not possess his kind of daring...the kind of boldness which led Weihe to becoming a pilot.

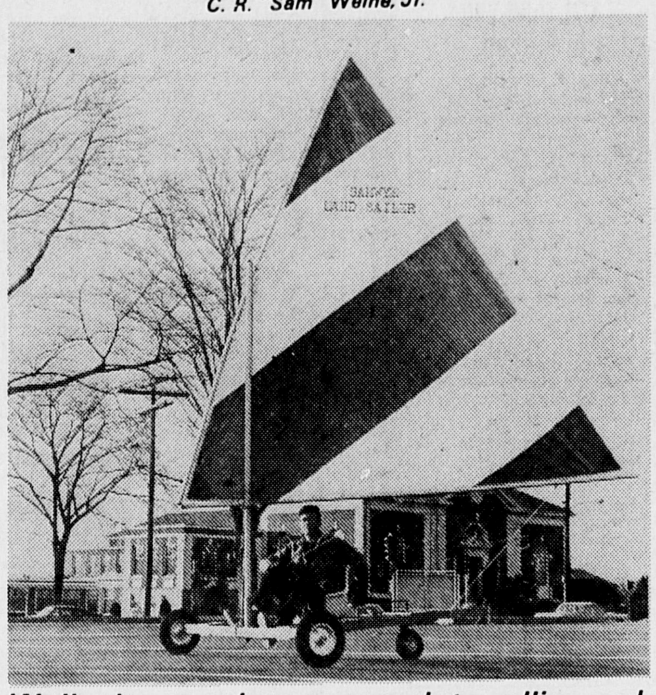

Just six years ago, he opened a factory in Maine and in the course of driving back and forth "found it difficult to stay awake." He decided it would be "safer to learn to fly" and began to take flying lessons with the intention of flying only to Maine.

Within two months Weihe owned his own plane and was extending flights to Philadelphia, New York and even Colorado. He now has almost 2,000 flying hours and an instrument rating which allows him to fly on instruments in inclement weather. This aerial commuter loves flying and says there "isn't a week I don't have at a trip somewhere . . . generally within a 500 mile distance."

Along on those trips he packs one of his inventions which have created some "interesting conversation" and some interesting opportunities for the once spectator sportsman.

C. R. "Sam" Weihe, Jr.

Weihe has a unique approach to selling and often, instead of wining and dining prospective customers invites them and their families out for a try at land sailing on a device he invented which can be operated in a space as limited as a tennis court.

900 Newton children pass lead poisoning test

More than 1300 children ages one to five were tested for lead poisoning in Newton and Wellesley during the past school year.

A cooperative effort of Newton-Wellesley Hospital, Newton Health Department and Wellesley Board of Health, the lead program held screenings at neighborhood schools thoughout the two communities.

The Newton program tested 900 children at 14 screenings held from last October through May. There were 10 children with levels high enough to warrant retesting, but no medical treatment was required.

Wellesley's program tested 411 children with two requiring retesting. However, neither needed medical treatment.

Details of the Newton lead program for the 1976-77 school year will be announced at a later date. i

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program provided volunteer assistance to the lead program.

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — One proposal which may face the New Hampshire Legislature in its 1977 session is a request from the state Liquor Commission tm j$w $k'3,4348'3.5 lled liquor stores.

Gov. Meldrim Thomson and the Executive Council tabled the request at its meeting last week.

Commissioner Costas Tentas said he may ask the legislature to allow use of credit cards as a trial run in 25 to 30 Massachusetts border liquor outlets, not all of the 69 liquor stores.

Hayes also questioned why one bank had been selected to coordinate use of the credit cards.

Frank J. Manning, president of the Legislative Council for Older Americans, will address a gathering of senior citizens Thursday, Sept. 9, at 7:30 p.m. in St. Joseph's Hall, 519 Main St., Waltham.

Troubleshooters Gregory T. Ricks (far left) of Newton, special assistant to the president for community development at Northeastern University, discusses the curriculum offered by the school to its multi-ethnic student population during a week-long administrative conference held at the Northeastern faculty center recently. The workshop is designed to pinpoint Madison Park High School's troubles and solve them before the academic year begins. Northeastern has been paired with Madison Park as part of Judge W. Arthur Garrity's desegregation ruling.

School opens—

New principals at Emerson and Lincoln-Eliot schools are not new to the school system, and are not new faces to all of the children.

Joseph Utka, whose job as director of federal projects was cut from the school budget, will be head of the Emerson School in Upper Falls where he headed the Title I program.

Cameron Larson will leave the Emerson School to head the Lincoln-Eliot School in Nonantum which he has had association with because it also receives Title I funding.

Buildings ready

Director of Support Services Roy Cornelius said last week that the schedule is tight for getting the 30 school buildings ready for the opening day, with contractors at Angier and Oak Hill causing him most of his worries.

Painting at those schools may be done to the wire, but he thought the schools would be ready.

Construction of the playing fields at Newton North High School will begin during the first week of school. Students are reminded that there will be no student parking at the school like there has been in the past.

Faculty at the school will be asked to join car pools and take public buses when possible. Some faculty parking will be provided in Newtonville parking lots.

Remodeling of the old F.A. Day Junior High School into the Education Center for the School Department fell two weeks behind schedule because of the steel strike.

Public Works Director Gene Larson said Wednesday he was planning to inspect the building that day and possibly accept the completed work of the contractor.

If the building is accepted, the School Department personnel will put the finishing touches on it and the administration will begin moving on Oct. 1.

The move from the three current buildings, the Stearns School, the old Peirce School, and a Newton Junior College building, is expected to take about a month.

selling "Novitiate Park" buttons in front of local supermarkets. Proceeds go to meet expenses of the campaign, Ms. Lerner said.

Later this month the Conservators take their Novitiate slides, nature talk and open space pitch to the Ward 8 Republican Committee, the Newton Highlands Neighborhood Area Council, and the Newton Recreation Commission.

The one hour walking tours of the land will start at 10 a.m. from the Novitiate driveway area on both September 11 and 18.

Parking is available along the Novitiate roads or on the city-owned infirmary land next door on Winchester Street, Ms. Lerner said.

Metco—

mend the additional $47,000 be used to restore a psychologist, tutorial services, books and supplies, in-service staff training, and the Hale Reservation program.

Superintendent Fink said he considered these "absolutely essential services" for the Metco students, although he could see that some School Committee members may disagree with the Hale Reservation program.

Asked how he felt knowing that the 350 students would be returning next week, Fink simply said, "I'm delighted."

He related some concern from the parents of the Metco children who had called during the summer to ask how much the children were really wanted here.

The total Newton Metco budget will be $657,702 as the superintendent had planned to recommend Wednesday night.

The total includes $191,597 for transportation and bus monitors, $137,419 for the salaries of seven professionals and one secretary, $72,567 for other direct costs such as tutoring, books and supplies, and fringe benefits for employees, and $256,119 for the indirect costs of classroom instruction.

Metco staff suit

The additional funding from the state will only rehire one of the four Metco personnel who failed to get a preliminary injunction in Suffolk Superior Court last week that would have prevented the School Committee to lay them off.

City Solicitor Howard Levine said he filed to two motions to dismiss the suit because it failed to join the state in the action and falied to name the School Committee as individuals.

Juan Lovelace, the pshychologist in the suit, is in the superintendent's new budget to be rehired, but social workers Lesley Christian and Jewell Bell and counselor Charlayne Murrell are not included in the budget.

Solicitor Levine plans to argue the case again in Superior Court next Tuesday.

Boycotted meetings

School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell was pleased with the state funding of the program here.

Mandell and three other members of the conservative majority refused to attend two meetings on Metco in July because Paul Ash, one of the crucial members in their voting block, was out of the country.

In June the Committee voted 5-4 to approve a Metco budget that would have cut $82,000 in direct services to the Metco children here, which was the amount of the shortfall in state funding from what was anticipated.

State Secretary of Education Paul Parks and officials in the Bureau of Equal Educational Opportunity wanted Newton to accept the lower appropriation without cutting as many services, which would have meant Newton would receive less in reimbursement for indirect costs.

The School Commitee members, backed by the superintendent and some aldermen, argued that the state should fully fund the program as it was intended when Metco began 10 years ago.

Governor Dukakis last week dipped into his $4 million emergency account and got approval from the House and Senate Ways and Means committees to give Metco $150,000, which would bring the state budget up to $5.9 million.

This was what Newton legislators and the State Department of Education had orginally asked for.

Other communities with more than 100 Metco pupils will receive some of the $150,000 extra in state funding.

When the State Board of Education met Tuesday, it approved the Metco budgets as submitted by 39 communities, gave tentative approval to Newton's budget, and did not approve budgets for Framingham or the Minuteman Regional Technical School district.

Soterios Zoulus of the Educational Information Services bureau in the state Department of Education said the Board of Education also heard a positive report on the value of the state Metco program and the acheivements of the students.

Mrs. Goldwyn to head Wellesley College PR

Newton resident Shirley H. Goldwyn has joined the staff at Wellesley College as manager of press relations.

Mrs. Goldwyn was the editor of the Newton School Department's "Inside View" for the past two years before the publication was discontinued.

She was public information director at Newton College of the Sacred Heart until 1974, and had also worked as a reporter for the Newton Graphic and the Boston Herald Traveler.

She received the B.A. degree from Ohio University.

A member of Women in Communications and the New England Women's Press Association, Mrs. Goldwyn is also a member of the Advisory Committee of the Newton Youth Commission and the Newton League of Women Voters.

Wellesley is a 2000-student women's liberal arts college.

this year which states that each school student, whether or not a regular bus rider, must practice emergency evacuation from a school bus twice a year.

Students will use the front and back doors during these drills and will not be required to exit from the four emergency windows in each bus, Pike said.

A special bus will be making the rounds to each school to begin the drills with kindergarten children.

School officials met this summer on the problem of bus riders jumping from the back of buses in the middle of traffic when the bus is stopped at a favorite intersection.

School Committee member Honora Kaplan will report to the School Committee the recommendations of her subcommittee on a bus pass system that would make bus riding safer for all students.

Pike said that he is willing to use any pass system that may be needed to insure the safety of the children.

It may slow down drivers if they occasionally have to check passes, but Pike said, "We'd take any amount of time, go to any expense for safety."

Buses will pick up all students at stops 1 ½ miles from the following schools: Newton North and South high schools, Bigelow, Warren, Weeks, and Meadowbrook junior highs. All Day Junior High School students live close enough to walk to school.

All elementary school students live close enough to walk by the School Department standards, but for safety reasons some bus service is provided for Spaulding, Countryside, and Burr schools throughout the year, and some Underwood School students are bused in the winter.

Under state law the School Deparment also provides bus service for any Newton child attending any Newton private school that is more than 1 ½ miles from the student's home.

Those buses will begin service on Sept. 9, and will run the same routes as last year, but there will be no buses for Solomon Schechter School which has moved out of town.

James Cameron, assistant director of Support Services who coordinates the busing program, said it is his understanding that each principal sent out each school's bus schedule to each student.

If a student has any question about the bus schedules the principal's office should be contacted.

In preparation for carrying the 3000 students for a cost of about $308,000, Cameron said, "Metropolitan has been very cooperative to insure safety, and Lt. Feeley and his office has worked very hard, also."

the aldermanic City Planning Committee, had requested the bridge be closed because of frequent neighborhood complaints and traffic mishaps.

The Traffic Commission took no action at its June 22 meeting, but did vote in favor of a trial closing after the accident that took Mancuso's life.

Morris said Tuesday he has heard no further neighborhood comment since the closing was initiated.

He said he will continue to pursue a permanent closing at the end of the trial periods.

Footloose and fancy free with Fall hosiery

"I hate cha 'cause ya feet's too big!" was the lament of the forties and at that time even poor Greta Garbo was ridiculed because she had larger than average feet-size 9.

Today big feet are nothing new–many youngsters at the age of eleven and twelve are wearing larger shoe sizes than their parents. As far as the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers is concerned, clothing those feet is big business!

From nursery school through college, students can dress their feet and legs this fall in a variety of hosiery styles that combine fashion and fun with functional practicality.

As a matter of fact, the ankle is more than holding its own in the fashion picture as a place to express one's individuality...just ask any student from elementary school on up and you're bound to find that socks rate high among accessories.

The younger set are "striping it rich" this fall, and the rugby stripe is very important. The alternating bands of two rich colors, topped with white to correspond to the collar of the classic rugby shirt, are seen on socks of every size, fiber combination and weight. Similarly, scarf stripes–wide swaths of bright colors and, in some cases, intricate patterns, coordinate with mufflers, and sometimes gloves as well, for a great put-together look on the coldest winter days.

Sport socks, some with terry cushion-foot construction for comfort while running and jumping, come with colors to match those of favorite sport teams. One of the newest socks offers a side pocket–you've heard of putting money into a sock–or "socking it away", well, now you can and whether knitted or sewn on, the pocket provides hidden storage for spare change or small items. The new pockets also appear in soft, solid color knee-highs.

Since nearly everyone has adopted the sweater as the most popular item in a sportswear collection, the best sweater looks have been translated for both boys' and girls' feet. Bulky acrylic yarns in as many as five colors copy the big, bold patterns of heavy ski sweaters.

Cuffs, at either the knee or the ankle, have returned. Even the triple-roll bobby socks are back (shades of Frank Sinatra days!). However, for children who balk at wearing something different from the crowd, these cuffs can be worn unrolled as well.

Hosiery is more than just fashion–its primary objective is to keep feet comfortable throughout long days of school and play–especially for growing feet. Proper fit is most important to prevent later foot problems. The tube sock, which got its start in sports socks for adults, offers an extremely practical answer. Now available in a number of styles from colorful prints for toddlers to rugby stripes, these socks are made without heel pockets, allowing each foot to make its own perfect fit without cramping toes or leaving uncomfortable extra material to deal with.

For women, color, pattern, texture–hosiery, whether evening sheer or playtime rugged, is in the fashion spotlight for fall. Manufacturers have created an array of fashion hosiery for fall to tempt any woman, timid or bold, away from basic beige.

With so many designers turning to menswear haberdashery looks for inspiration, women will be able to choose panty hose with pinstripe, herringbone, diamond, chevron and fine rib patterns to complement and emphasize tailored ready-to-wear. These pantyhose come both in basic brown, beige and taupe and in fashion colors of gray, wine, teal, green, russet, navy and black.

The one-color look is the way to go. In either tinted sheers or heavier opaques, color is important to tie together shoe and hem or to create the effect of boots when it's too warm for leather.

For casual dressing, two-toned opaque pantyhose in solid patterns of ribs and squares or tights in shimmery space-dyed nylon or sweater-look acrylics offer new fashion answers and provide the perfect starting point for the layered leg.

The sock was the hosiery item first liberated with color, pattern and texture, and today its variations are essential components of the layered look. Fall's layered leg fills sturdy shoes and boots with any combination of anklet, knee high, leg warmer, thigh-high and textured or apaque tight.

With lots of cold weather in the offing, leg warmers will be most popular. Knitted tubes running from ankle to mid-thigh-and thigh-high socks are other important components of the layered leg. In plain ribs, with contrast color cuffs or in intricate multi-color patterns in bold brights or subtle earth tones, they provide fashionable warmth over pants, pantyhose or tights or teamed up with coordinating anklets and knee-highs.

Men have always delighted in gazing at and praising beautiful gams, and hosiery does more than simply beautify the legs and feet. It also helps a woman feel elegant and well dressed through such pretty lingerie luxuries as pantyhose with lace or satin panties, lace waistbands and designer-elegant hose. Newest of all are the combination panty and pantyhose garments. These all-in-one styles replace two garments with one by combining sheer or lightweight support legs with cotton, polyester or nylon panties. They reduce bulk for a slimmer look and eliminate lines, especially under pants.

We wouldn't dream of leaving men's hosiery out of the picture! Basic black, navy or brown over-the-calf nylon socks remain an important part of a man's hosiery wardrobe. The casual acrylic crew is a proven winner in every color of the rainbow. Patterns, from subtle overall designs and sophisticated clocks to bright, bold sweater looks are fun-fashions and active feet need the comfort built into special sports socks, including cushioned soles, moisture and odor control as well as the great fit of unshaped tubes.

So kick up your feet, everyone, get ready to celebrate National Hosiery week, September 12-18 and they expect a banner year for the hosiery industry. During 1975, the industry produced nearly 2.7 billion pairs of hosiery, or more than 12 pairs for every man, woman and child in the country!

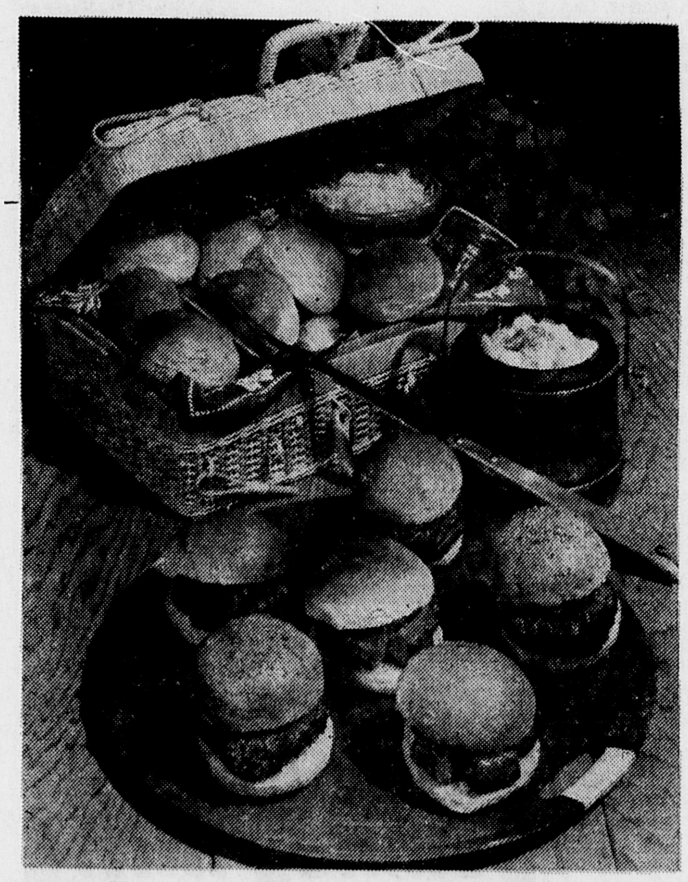

The menswear haberdashery feeling finds expression in pantyhose with sheer pinstripe or opaque herringbone patterns in colors to coordinate with Fall ready-to-wear and shoes.

Across the kitchen counter

Celebrate Labor Day with a cookout or a picnic. Homemade barbecue buns make good picnic sandwiches as well as an accompaniment for hamburgers, hot dogs, fried chicken and luncheon salads.

Well, how was your summer? Perhaps you're wondering where it all went...and why you didn't take better advantage of those lovely hot days and balmy evenings, and here it is Labor day, the finale.

Don't be sad, make the most of it by planning a picnic. The advice given us has always been try to stay home on this holiday and forego dreary lines of traffic, short tempers and the like. Plan either a backyard cookout or head for a corner of a nearby field or the edge of a lake and make the most of your improvised outdoor dining room.

With food costs taking a bigger bite out of the family budget, why not treat the family to homemade sesame flavored barbecue buns. They're perfect for picnics and all kinds of feasts, a natural accompaniment for fried chicken, hot dogs, hamburgers–you name it! They're made the Rapidmix method which eliminates the need to dissolve yeast. The dough may be made up and frozen until you are ready to use it–up to four weeks later. You mix and knead the dough, then shape it right away without letting it rise, cover and put in the freezer. Also, after buns are frozen, they may be stored in plastic bags in the freezer. Before baking the dough must be allowed to thaw and rise until double in bulk. Remember, buns bake in about half the time required for baking loaves of bread.

If you're grilling out of doors, here are three great sauces which can be used all year 'round for basting steaks and chops on the outdoor grill or roasts in the oven. The Sweet 'N' Sour Sauce is a Polynesian-type blend of pineapple and green pepper which makes an excellent basting sauce for grilled fish, roast pork or spareribs. The Zesty barbecue Sauce is recommended for flank steak, lamb cubes or pork. Taste of Honey Sauce is excellent on beef kabobs, spareribs or pork chops. All three sauces store well in the refrigerator. Keep a batch of each on hand for impromptu barbecues.

Labor Day is truly an unusual holiday when you realize it doesn't honor any special historical event or pay tribute to any one person. You could say that Labor Day exists to remind us that this beautiful country's strength exists because of the dedicated work of a great many men and women. So have a very pleasant Labor Day! You've earned it!

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Ma. 01026.

Question: Have you heard of a Spinach Custard? Some friends of ours were talking about this, saying it was unusual and suggested I write to your column for the recipe. I really would appreciate your locating the recipe.

Mrs. A. C., Westwood

Answer: Unusual and delicious–here it is!

SPINACH CUSTARD

3 pounds chopped fresh spinach
3 eggs, well beaten
½ teaspoon nutmeg
2 cups milk
1 small onion, grated
Salt and pepper to taste

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cook the spinach in just the water that clings to its leaves after washing and drain it well. Add remaining ingredients to the spinach and beat together until frothy, using a wooden spoon. Grease a loaf pan and pour mixture in. Place the pan in a shallow baking pan filled with hot water that comes about halfway up the sides of the loaf pan. Bake until custard is set, about 50 minutes. Serves 6-8.

Question: A friend and I were raving the other day about some unusual cookies called Cheesecake Cookies served at a luncheon. Unfortunately, the hostess couldn't give us the recipe because they were a gift from another guest who refused to divulge this "secret" recipe. Can you help? Many thanks!

E.G.O. and F.S.A., Roslindale

Answer: NEVER could understand why anyone would hoard a recipe when there's so much pleasure in sharing. Here is your recipe–enjoy!

Our thanks to Mrs. E. T., who writes: "When I make a bread pudding, I like to make a large recipe because then I have delicious cold pudding the next day when my family has already enjoyed the pudding warm with ice cream. So I am enclosing my Famous Bread Pudding for your readers, they're sure to love it!"

Question: I ruined about 2 pounds of scallops the other night because I really didn't know how to prepare them. My husband tells me that the better restaurants serve them with bacon; a recipe that includes bacon would be appreciated.

Mrs. J. H., Dedham

Answer: Scallops are expensive and should have special attention. Here is a delightful recipe, and your husband's correct, bacon does add zest.

3 tablespoons sesame seeds

Fry bacon slowly until crisp; drain, reserving bacon fat. Rinse scallops thoroughly in cold running water; pat dry with paper towels. Dip scallops in mixture of egg and salt; roll in sesame seeds. Saute in 2 to 3 tablespoons hot bacon fat until just tender, 5 to 7 minutes. Turn frequently to brown evenly. Add parsley, lemon peel and juice; toss lightly and cook 1 to 2 minutes. To serve, crumble bacon and sprinkle over scallops; garnish with lemon wedges. Serves 5.

TRAVEL TRAILS

By JOSEPHINE ARRIA

In 1969, 12 million Americans traveled abroad and experts predict that by 1980 the figure will be 50 million . . . That's enough to fill all those 747's — not to mention the lunar Hilton and those planetary package tours . . . Money may be a little tight but the travel industry was not affected by the economic dip as much as many other sectors of the economy . . . All signs indicate that it takes more than a recession to dampen the enthusiasm of the American traveler . . . The world of travel has changed and there's a massive program underway to put the average American into orbit — right here on earth! . . .

Open house set at Temple Shalom

Temple Shalom of Newton will hold an open house and coffee hour for area residents interested in temple affiliation Sept. 8, from 7:45 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The reception will be held in the Temple Social Hall, at 175 Temple St., West Newton, and will feature inspection tours of the sanctuary, school building, library and other facilities.

Prospective members will meet with Sidney Glazier, temple president; Rabbi Murray I. Rothman, and officers and trustees of the Temple, and with the presidents of the Brotherhood, Sisterhood and other Temple auxiliary groups.

"We are holding this open house in advance of the High Holy Days because of the number of inquiries the temple receives concerning membership. This gives us the opportunity to have interested people see the Temple facilities and to speak to our temple leadership," Glazier noted.

Temple Shalom, a reform congregation, was founded in 1950. It has an approximate membership of 700 families, and each year welcomes several new families as members.

Lawrence L. Suttenberg

Suttenberg to head regional Jewish seminary campaign

Lawrence L. Suttenberg of 5 Montrose St., Newton, has been named chairman of the 1976 New England Campaign for the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, it was announced by Dr. Gerson D. Cohen, chancellor of the seminary.

Active with civic, education, and religious organizations, Suttenberg, a trustee of the institution, is also a member of the seminary's Board of Overseers, a member of its Executive Board, and chairman of its Finance Committee.

The fall activities will come to a climax at the Jewish Theological Seminary's 12th Annual New England National Community Service Awards Dinner scheduled for Sunday evening, Dec. 5, at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston.

At this function, National Community Service Awards will be presented to several New Englanders whose outstanding efforts, on behalf of the community at large and the seminary in particular, will be recognized.

Suttenberg, a partner in the national accounting firm of Ernst & Ernst, himself a recipient of the award, will serve as dinner chairman. Along with his wife, he is the donor of the seminary's Lawrence L. and Anne Suttenberg Scholarship Fund.

The Jewish Theological Seminary of America in New York City is the academic, spiritual and cultural center of the Conservative Judaism. It trains rabbis, cantors, teachers and Jewish communal professionals; maintains and provides staffing for several scholarly institutes, here and abroad; and is the sponsor of many cultural and public service programs.

Episcopal bishop to be consecrated at Boston College

The Rev. John B. Coburn, bishop-elect of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts, will be consecrated on Saturday, Oct. 2, at 11 a. m. in Mchugh Forum, Boston College, Newton.

This locale was chosen partly because of its ecumenical significance, but also because the Rev. Dr. Coburn hopes that anyone wishing to attend will be able to do so.

Leaders of twelve churches and the president of the Massachusetts Council of Churches have been invited. They will receive and welcome the new bishop during the Kiss of Peace in the service.

No tickets are necessary.

Top grades
The beef we serve you at the S&S Livestock Co. is right at the head of its class. Heavy cuts of the best USDA grades...corn-fed and fresh, never frozen, for great flavor. We double check it to our own exacting specifications and age it to tender perfection.
So when that sizzling platter arrives, looking juicy and delicious, we can guarantee that it will taste that way, too. It's a lot of trouble that most restaurants skip, but we know that the grades you give us depend on the grades we give you. And we want both to be tops. Give us a test tonight.

Cruising in New England

By RICH MULLIN

Now that the parade of international Tall Ships has departed New England, it's only natural that they have left you with a yearning for the sea. And from Connecticut to Maine, passenger ships are ready to weigh anchor and give all landlubbers a chance to get their "sea legs."

The 400 passenger "Yankee Clipper" leaves Steamboat Landing, Haddam, CT. on the bank of the Connecticut River for daily cruises. Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays there is a day-long trip to Greenport, Long Island leaving at 9 a.m. and returning at 6 p.m. with three hours in Greenport. Fridays, Saturdays, Sundays and Mondays, on the same schedule, the ship goes to Sag Harbor. In addition, Sunday through Thursday nites, there is a two-hour evening cruise on the river from 7-9.

In Essex, Connecticut two riverboats, the "Dolly Madison" and "Sunshine" depart from the town dock at the foot of Main Street every day. Two-hour cruises leave at 10 a.m., 2 and 4 p.m.; four-hour cruises at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

To make sure of a place, call before 8 a.m. the day you plan to come. Along with the "Yankee Clipper", the two riverboats link up with a steam train ride on the way. Connections can be arranged with prior notice.

A small coal-fired steamer, "Sabino", cruises the Mystic River and outer harbor daily from Dunton Wharf on the grounds of Mystic Seaport and Museum, Mystic, Conn. Trips leave every hour on the half-hour from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. For approximately one-half hour you will cruise up and down the river viewing the Seaport.

The 49-passenger "Viking Princess" and 41-passenger "Odin" sail daily from Goat Island Marina in Newport, Rhode Island for one-hour cruises of the coastline and Narraganset Bay.

Numerous excursion boats in Boston Harbor offer harbor and other varied cruises. Bay State-Spray Lines, at Long Wharf (adjacent to the New England Aquarium), runs sightseeing trips to George's Island weekdays at 10 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m. (All weekend cruises are narrated by Edward Rowe Snow and leave at 10 a.m., 2 and 4:30 p.m.

From George's Island a free shuttle boat takes you to Grape, Bumpkin, Lovell's and Gallop's Island. All the islands make up a park area and include a tour of Fort Warren on George's Island, a nature trail and beach on Lovell's; and overnight camp sites on Grape, Bumpkin and Lovell's. Picnicking and fishing round out the recreation activities.

Bay State also offers a half-hour harbor cruise thru the inner harbor by "Old Ironsides", the Old North Church, Bunker Hill, the site of the Boston Tea Party and

If you're heading to the Northern New England states, you'll find Vermont ferries plying the waters of Lake Champlain with crossings at Charlotte, Grand Isle and Burlington. The trips run daily except Sunday and passengers can disembark at the New York ports of Essex, Cumberland Head Plattsburgh) and Port Kent.

With the single exception of five years during the American Revolution, the Fort Ticonderoga Ferry has been in service since 1759, making it one of the oldest of its kind in the country. The large "Fort Ticonderoga" operates six-minute crossings of Lake Champlain daily. This makes for a scenic short cut between Vermont's Green Mountains and New York's Adirondacks.

Leaving from Portland, Maine twice daily, the "M/S Bolero" and the "M/S Prince of Fundy" sails to Nova Scotia for a 10-hour crossing with plenty of dining, dancing, gift shops, lounges or just plain relaxing. The Prince of Fundy Line Cruises depart from the Lion Ferry Dock, and there are one-way and round-trip motorists' packages with extended 3- or 5-day trips.

Also in Portland, Maine the Casco Bay Lines offer vacationers tours of Portland Harbor and the bay area daily and nightly. The cruises run from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

We make this in our shop out back.

Frankly, it's under-priced. We can't ever charge enough to be fully repaid for all the handwork we put in our Essex Hutch.

Takes a skilled cabinetmaker one solid week to turn out ONE! It's of solid 1" & 2" pine. We cut our own special dentil moldings for it. Use a unique stain (ours alone), then give it a deep, 5-coat hand-rubbed finish. We even finish the ship-lapped back. Also shown are a few of the many giftwares we offer: distinctive glasswares, lamps, hand-dipped candles, dinnerwares. Taking the scenic route to Maine? Weekending in Rockport? Gloucester? We're right on the way. Come see us.

Wanted: Tradition-minded people with excellent taste & high standards.

We address ourselves to you because our stores are tailored to you. Everything we offer is Traditional with a capital "E", for Early American. Everything, from furniture, lamps & pewter to paints, hardware & stains, including a few really select Bicentennial mementos.

As for taste, we don't claim to be arbiters. We let history do that. This Chippendale Wing Chair, for instance, has been popular for a mere 200 years.

We also share your high regard for quality. As shown by this chair's hand-woven crewel upholstery. The solid mahogany legs; the hardwood frame. We've offered it for 20 of its 200 years. And it has always had a following, despite its cost ($294.).

The same high standards are evident in all our wares. Whether you buy a $500. hutch (we'll ship it home for you) or a $6.50 pewter letter opener, you can expect it to last. Because we want you to come back. And, just as importantly, we want your children to come back

Renee's ordeal may have paid off

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — She merely wanted to make her point, Renee Richards said all along. She kept saying it over and over again.

That was her only reason for subjecting herself to all the trauma, all the anxiety, all the harsh glare of publicity that came with her appearance in a big time tennis tournament. That's what she said.

Now that the world's most celebrated transsexual since Christine Jorgensen has made her point, I'm curious whether she's going to zip up her racket, retreat to the background and be content with playing in the small clubs forevermore. I doubt it seriously.

Renee Richards, I believe, was sincere when she gave all her reasons for coming from California to play in the Tennis

MILTON RICHMAN

Week Open at South Orange, N.J., last week. She said that as a transsexual she felt had a perfect right to compete as a woman, and she did that, going along fine until she simply gave out and was beaten by 17-yearold Lea Antonoplis in the semifinals.

What Renee Richards did last week was a great ordeal for her. Everywhere she went, people stared at her in curiosity. If you don't think something like that can churn up your insides, ask some of those individuals who make their living appearing in circus sideshows. Renee Richards didn't have to be told people were talking about her. She knew it. She also knew they were making jokes about her and when the matches were over and she was all by herself, how do you imagine she felt about that?

To compound everything else, Renee Richards could hardly make a move without being surrounded by news reporters, radio reporters and television reporters. Reporters surrounding you everywhere you go can wear down even strong men, and if you doubt it, ask Hank Aaron or Roger Maris.

For all this, Renee Richards, an amateur, didn't get a penny.

"Renee didn't even ask for expenses," says Gene Scott, who promoted the Tennis Week Open.

So in the end, all Renee Richards actually got was the satisfaction of being accepted as a woman, which is all she said she wanted in the beginning. Now that she has that satisfaction, you'd assume maybe she'd be happy to go back to her successful practice as an ophthalmologist and play in some of the small clubs near her Newport Beach, Calif., home. Don't assume that at all.

There are a number of small clubs not too far from where she lives like the Lido Isle Tennis Club in Newport Harbor, the Santiago Tennis and Swim Club near Santa Ana and the Victoria Tennis Club outside San Bernardino, and maybe Renee Richards will show up at one or two of them, but I have a hunch she'll enter every possible tournament she can, or at least try to.

Whether she admits it or not, she seems to like the publicity and all the controversy she has generated. She already has an agent and there's a book about her life in the works.

Renee Richards has proved her point but I can easily understand why she isn't interested in taking a chromosome test. By refusing to do so, she continues to keep public curiosity alive. Is she or isn't she? Nothing intrigues people so much as curiosity about sex, and the only thing that intrigues them more, it seems, is sex and athletics. Renee Richards is in an ideal position now to capitalize commercially on her sex change in many ways. The lecture circuit is only one of them. If her book goes over well, why not a movie?

Tennis, skiing grow among teens

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey by Boy's Life Magazine shows the fastest-growing sports among its male teen-age readers are tennis and skiing.

Skiing zoomed 50 per cent and tennis 23 per cent over a similar survey in 1973. But tennis ranks only eighth on the list of sports to play or do and skiing is 25th.

Camping and biking led with 94 per cent, followed by: swimming (87 per cent), fishing (82 per cent), football (74 per cent), basketball (72 per cent), baseball (71 per cent), tennis (49 per cent), shooting and bowling, (42 per cent each).

The Open House program will feature an exhibition by members of the TENNIS-NOW Junior Teams, a talk by Ferdi Taygan (1974 U.S. Junior Champion and 1976 U.S. Intercollegiate Doubles Champion), the opportunity to hit with Ferdi, free video-taping, free ball-machine use, refreshments, and a question-and-answer period about the TENNIS-NOW Junior Development Program, conducted by Arnie Brown and members of the TENNIS-NOW teaching staff.

The Sunday Open House for more advanced juniors will be held from 2-5 p.m. at the Fessenden School tennis courts, Crafts Street, West Newton; in case of rain, it will be moved indoors to TENNIS-NOW.

The Sunday program includes an exhibition match between Ferdi Taygan and a top-ranking New England junior, a talk by Ferdi, free video-taping and court use, a tennis skills contest with prizes, refreshments, and a question-and-answer session with Arnie and the pro staff.

All interested parents and their juniors are invited. To reserve a place for either Open House - and to obtain information about the 1976-77 TENNIS-NOW Junior Development Program - please call the TENNIS-NOW office at 924-6363 and 924-6366, or stop by at TENNIS-NOW.

Dodgers recall outfielder

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday recalled outfielder John Hale from their Albuquerque club of the Pacific Coast League and placed catcher Ellie Rodriguez on a 15-day disabled list.

Hale, previously scheduled to rejoin the Dodgers on Sept. 7 after the minor league season, met the team in Montreal for Tuesday night's game against the Expos. The 23-year-old Hale hit .322 with 12 home runs in 103 games with Albuquerque.

Also promoted from Albuquerque are pitcher Dennis Lewallyn and catcher Sergio Robles, who will join the Dodgers in Montreal Wednesday night.

Flames ask Swede to camp

ATLANTA (UPI) — One of the top young hockey players in Sweden has accepted an invitation to attend the Atlanta Flames' training camp this fall, the NHL team announced Tuesday.

Kent Nilsson, 20, the leading scorer in the Elite Division of Swedish hockey last year, will try out with the Flames when they open their training camp in suburban Cobb County Sept. 16. Nilsson, who is 5-10 and 175 pounds, was picked by Atlanta in the May amateur draft.

Playing with the Djurgardens of Stockholm team last season, Nilsson had 28 goals and 26 assists in 36 games.

ELDERLY'S NEEDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Elderly Americans need education programs and the nation's community colleges are uniquely qualified to meet their needs, a National Institute of Education report shows.

The institute report notes that elders are looking for meaningful use of their time, while community colleges have resources and are looking for both financial and philosophical reasons to serve new groups.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Phillies bow for fifth straight time

The only thing Danny Ozark wants to kick nowadays is a losing streak.

His Philadelphia Phillies dropped their fifth straight game Tuesday night, a 3-2 decision to the Houston Astros, as shades of 1964 seem to be surfacing at the expense of Ozark's frontrunners.

But the big difference is that the 1964 collapse, a 10-game losing streak, came during the final two weeks of the season and it cost the Phils a pennant. This 1976 slump is one month earlier and those five defeats have hardly dented Philadelphia's first-place margin over the Pittsburgh Pirates — 10½ games.

"I could have come in here tonight and kicked over a table or two but I don't think it does any gosh dang good," Ozark explained. "I know what the players are going through trying not to get tight and I'm not going to say anything at all."

The Phils carried a 2-1 lead into the eighth inning only to see the Astros stage a two-run rally against ace reliever Tug McGraw to win their sixth game in a row.

Enos Cabell led off the eighth with his fourth single of the night and Phillies' second baseman Dave Cash booted a slow ground ball by Cesar Cedeno. Bob Watson tied the game with a single to left, and after a ground out and an intentional walk, Jose Cruz hit into a run-scoring fielder's choice.

J.R. Richard posted his 16th victory by limiting Philadelphia to seven hits.

In other games, Pittsburgh blanked San Diego 3-0, Los Angeles tripped Montreal 5-1, Cincinnati dropped St. Louis 6-5, New York downed San Francisco 6-2 and Atlanta topped Chicago 5-3.

In the American League, Minnesota and Milwaukee split a doubleheader with the Twins winning the first game 4-0 and the Brewers taking the nightcap 6-3, Texas whipped Boston 8-3, Baltimore nipped Kansas City 4-3, Cleveland beat Chicago 4-2, California trimmed California 6-3 and New York edged Oakland 2-1.

Pirates 3, Padres 0

Dave Parker drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly and Jerry Reuss scattered four hits to hand Randy Jones his 10th in 30 decisions. Jones gave up five hits, two walks and one run in seven innings.

Dodgers 5, Expos 1

Bill Russell doubled home two runs in the first inning to send Doug Rau off to his sixth lifetime victory over the Expos in seven decisions. Knuckleballing reliever Charlie Hough hurled the last two innings and picked up his 11th save.

Reds 6, Cardinals 5

Ken Griffey lashed two-run single off reliever Al Hrabosky to cap a five-run seventh inning and give Pedro Borbon his fourth win in six decisions. Cesar Geronimo also knocked in two runs with a double to start the Reds' barrage.

Mets 6, Giants 2

Roy Staiger, Bud Harrelson and Leo Foster contributed runscoring singles in a four-run, eighth-inning rally to help relief pitcher Skip Lockwood even his record at 7-7. Gary Matthews hit the only homer of the game, his 16th for the Giants.

Braves 5, Cubs 3

Ken Henderson knocked in two runs with a ground-rule double to highlight a three-run, sixth-inning outburst to help Frank LaCorte post his second win in nine decisions. Rick Monday hit a two-run homer to power the Chicago attack.

Clippers name Wilson coach

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Clippers of the Southern Hockey League named Larry Wilson Tuesday as general manager-coach for the upcoming season.

Wilson, coach of Richmond the last four American Hockey League seasons, replaces Terry Reardon, who was assigned to "off-ice" management of the team after the Clippers switched from the AHL to the SHL earlier this month.

Prior to the stint with the Richmond Wildcats, who also will be playing in the Southern Hockey League this season, Wilson coached the Providence Reds in 1971-72, winning a league title in 1971. He also had two championship years with the International League Dayton Gems before joining Providence.

MILEAGE DATA

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — Those who believe the automobiles of the good old days did much better on mileage than the current crop of cars don't know what they're talking about, according to Leslie Henry, curator of the Henry Ford Museum at Dearborn, Mich.

Henry recently tooled some of the museum pieces around the grounds and found their milesper-gallon statistics much poorer than today's cars. For instance, a 1911 Chalmers, 1920 Pierce-Arrow and a 1922 Lincoln V-8 each registered 10 miles to the gallon, while a 1916 Packard Twin Six got only 8 mph.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Palmer a 'shoo-in' for Cy Young Award

Jim Palmer, on the verge of becoming a 20-game winner for the sixth time in the last seven years, also is a "shoo-in" for the American League's Cy Young Award.

That, at least, is the opinion of Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver and Orioles second baseman Bobby Grich who dismiss the credentials of Mark Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers and Ed Figueroa of the New York Yankees as "no competition."

Palmer, enjoying the strongest finish of his career with a 13-4 record since June 15, raised his season mark to 19-11 Tuesday night when he beat the Kansas City Royals 4-3 with the help of Dyar Miller's lateinning relief. Palmer, who won Cy Young Awards in 1973 and 1975 would be the first AL pitcher to win three should he be chosen by the Baseball Writers Association again this year.

"He's a shoo-in for it," said Weaver. "He definitely should win it. I can't say how he's going to do in the last month of the season but right now he deserves it."

"I don't see any competition," said Grich, rapidly becoming the Orioles' team spokesman. "He has all the credentials and, with due respect to other candidates, is the right man."

Palmer, the AL's leading winner, allowed single runs in the first and seventh innings before yielding three straight singles which brought in Miller with two out in the eighth. Miller retired Hal McRae for the final out of the inning.

Ken Singleton led the Orioles' attack with a pair of runscoring singles as Marty Pattin suffered his 11th setback against six victories for Kansas City.

N.A.A. Lions to host Uniondale on Saturday

The N.A.A. Lions will play host to the Uniondale Badgers of New York this weekend.

The visitors will arrive Friday afternoon and be treated to a social that evening. New York's 25 players and 10 cheerleaders will be taken on a tour of the U.S.S. Constitution and the Old Concord Bridge.

Game time is set for 3 p.m. this Saturday and will be a re-enactment of last years 12-6 thriller won by the Badgers at Hofstra University.

Its to early for both teams in determining a favorite. The Lions were to have played the Saugus Bucaneers this Tuesday at Saugus.

The Lions have been operating thus far with a brand new coaching staff. Nick Pasquarosa is still Head Coach, but is aided this year by Carl Pockwinse, Dick Levine and Bob Kinsella.

Any boy who still wishes to play on the A, B and Super C team should report this week to Newton Highlands Playground, or call Sally Pasquarosa at 244-0637.

Newton East LL wins District 11 tourney

Home run hitter David Segal and ace righthander Victor Otero led the Newton East Little League All-Stars to victory Monday night capturing the Little League District 11 Post-Season Tournament title with a 3-2 come-from-behind win over Warrendale Little League. The game, played at Fletcher Field in Franklin, was the second extra-inning game between the two clubs in as many weeks.

It appeared that Warrendale would have no problem holding on to the 2-0 lead that they had maintained since the first inning, but in the last of the sixth inning, Newton East finally jumped on the Warrendale pitcher for two runs. Shortstop Jerry Marcus connected for a single and center fielder David Segal sent a fastball soaring over the 230-foot mark in rightfield to tie the score.

The game was won by Newton East in the bottom of the eighth inning. With one out, Jerry Marcus walked.

Warrendale, knowing the long-ball hitting ability of the next batter David Segal, intentionally walked him. Jeff Caster then delivered a timely hit loading the bases. Louis Marcus became the third player to walk in the inning, forcing home brother Jerry and making the final score 3-2.

Victor Otero, the pitcher, came up with a brilliant performance as he allowed only four hits. He struck out six and walked one going the distance.

Connors seeks major victory

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors struck the first ball in center court today to launch the $416,600 U.S. Open tennis championship which he hopes will end 12 days hence in his first major tournament victory in two years.

The top-seeded Connors has swelled his bank balance in special "challenge matches" during the last 20 months, but he has not won a major title since he succeeded here in 1974, a year which also saw him win at Wimbledon and in Australia.

Connors, a left-hander who has now made his peace — until this year he refused to play in Davis Cup competition for his country and would not join the Association of Tennis Professionals — with players and officials, had won 20 straight matches before being upset by Raul Ramirez in the quarterfinals of last week's U.S. professional championships at Brookline, Mass. During that run, he twice beat Ramirez and Wojtek Fibak to win tournaments at Washington, North Conway, N.H., and Indianapolis.

Veteran Bob Hewitt, still a class doubles player but a lightweight in singles, faced Connors in the opening match on the Stadium Court

Six men robbed by trio invited to rooming house

Six men living in a rooming house on Rte. 9 in Newton Upper Falls were robbed of more than $210 by three persons who were invited to the house by two Of the roomers.

Police received a call at 1:30 p.m. Sunday from Brian Colihin and Patrick Burn of 1137 Boylston St., Upper Falls, who said they had just been robbed by some people they had met in the Boston Combat Zone.

A man and two women in a yellow Volkswagen station wagon agreed to follow them back to the house.

In the house the man, then armed with a gun, ordered the two roomers to turn over all the money in the house.

Colihin and Burn handed over $200 and were tied up with their belts and forced into the bathroom.

The two women, one armed with a knife, joined in the confrontation of four more roomers who were robbed and constrained as they returned to the home.

Keith Kautcher was robbed of $18 and tied up in the bathroom, as was Jeff Lowe, who was robbed of $3.

Anthony Gerazi and John Baker later entered the home and were forced into the cellar and told to stay there for 15 minutes.

Police investigating the robbery found that the car stopped at the Weston exit of the Massachusetts Turnpike Sunday at 10:30 a.m. because no one in the car had money for the toll.

The driver filled out a slip for nonpayment and worte down the New Jersey license plate number. Police are investigating.

Orr rejoins Team Canada

MONTREAL (UPI) — Superstar defenseman Bobby Orr has rejoined the Team Canada lineup after a two-day rest confident his sore knee will not keep him out of the Canada Cup hockey tournament opening Thursday.

Orr, who became the most honored player in NHL history during 10 seasons with the Boston Bruins, skipped practice Sunday and sat out Team Canada's 7-4 exhibition game win over Czechoslovakia Monday.

The 29-year old defenseman now with the Chicago Black Hawks was back on the ice again Tuesday, however, and said there was nothing seriously wrong with his much-operated on knee.

"My knee just felt a little irritated and sore," said Orr.

While Orr played his shift in Team Canada's scrimmage Tuesday he didn't go all out.

But, he added, "I'm confident that I will be fully prepared for the first game on Thursday night. I'm confident I'll be there and I'm looking forward to being named a member of the team."

Rockettes may sign

NEW YORK (UPI) — Radio City Music Hall — and its world famous 46-member Rockettes chorus line — will apparently remain a part of New York's entertainment attractions for a least another year.

The Hall's musicians Tuesday night ratified a new contract only hours before a midnight deadline set by management, which promised to close the 44-year-old city landmark next week if all union contracts were not settled.

The Rockettes ratified their contract Monday night and two other unions, representing 60 stagehands and two wardrobe attendants, were expected to do the same by week's end.

State mediator Vincent McDonnell said that with the ratification by the musicians, "we will be in postion to say the threat of closing the Music Hall is behind us and we will have another year to see if management can turn the corner and keep the Hall open."

The theater has suffered declining revenues since attendance began to drop in 1972. Last year, management says, it lost $1.3 million.

Challengers tennis playoff

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (UPI) — Columbia University Tennis Coach Butch Seewagen of Riverdale, N.Y., Tuesday beat Eric Friedler of Evanston, Ill. 4-6, 6-0, 6-0 to earn the right to represent the East in the National Challengers Championship match.

The playoff was necessary because Seewagen had tied Friedler with 44 bonus points on the Eastern Division of the sixweek summer Challengers Circuit, a proving ground for aspiring tennis talent.

Accra II heads Del Mar field

DEL MAR, Calif. (UPI) — Accra II heads a field of seven fillies and mares Thursday in the $11,000 Del Mar Rotary Club Purse at Del Mar.

Also entered in the 1 1-16 mile turf test are Nashua Tryst, Why More Worry, His Boy's Pia, Fine Value, Squint and Tres Blanc.

Four-year-old Accra II easily won her first start on the turf at Santa Anita in April but was disappointing in four efforts at Hollywood Park. However, she is expected to be the betting favorite.

NFL players table contract offer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Pro football management's latest contract proposal has been tabled by National Football League player representatives and the players' group has called for continued bargaining.

Failure of the player representatives to take a stand on the contract, which was understood to include limits on the size of team squads, probably meant the owners would have to establish squad size at a meeting scheduled in New York today.

There was a report that one of the points called for a squad limit of 43 with four players permitted on a taxi squad, while owners expected to set a 40-player squad limit.

NFL Players Association Executive Director Ed Garvey said the vote to table the proposal called for clarificaion of various points in the agreement.

"What we do will have to be discussed with players around the league," Garvey said. "The representatives felt we needed to continue bargaining."

The vote, which neither Garvey nor NFLPA President Dick Anderson of the Miami Dolphins would announce, came Tuesday night during a 10-hour meeting. The representatives discussed and voted individually on more than 30 articles in the proposed agreement.

Anderson, who negotiated the proposal with Dan Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers and with the participation of NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, said he "favored the proposal. I thought it was something the players could live with and deal with."

"I'm disappointed," he added. "I feel it was the best offer we're going to get. Now we'll have to go further and continue to negotiate."

The executive commission of the association approved the proposal and submitted it to the player representatives.

Garvey said one of the player representatives in the meeting said it was the job of the negotiators to "get the best possible offer they can get and if the representatives want to take it, they can."

Terms of the proposal and bones of contention between the players and management were not released.

Various points known to be included in the contract proposal were minimum salaries, preseason play, the application of the Rozelle Rule, moving expenses, pensions and medical insurance.

Garvey said there was no discussion in the meeting of a possible strike nor was any date set for future negotiations.

The players have not had a contract since 1974 and played without a contract for the last two seasons. There was a brief strike during training camp preceding the '74 season.

Siderowf out to join immortals

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dick Siderowf, the British Amateur champion from Westport, Conn., was sweating profusely when his first round match in the U.S. Amateur was over — and it wasn't just because of the heat.

"It was pretty hot but that wasn't the problem for me," he said. "I just played awful and I don't know how to explain it."

A suave stockbroker, Siderowf picked off the British Amateur crown for the second time in his career at St. Andrews in June.

He was extended to the final hole Tuesday before turning back Mike Barge of Fargo, N.D., 1-up as the 76th U.S. Amateur got under way at the Bel-Air Country Club in 90-degree temperatures.

That allowed him to escape the same fate as Vinny Giles, the 1972 U.S. Amateur and 1975 British Amateur king who came here as one of the favorites. The 33-year-old Giles, of Richmond, Va., was ousted by Don Reese on the 20th hole when Reese sank a seven-foot birdie putt.

"To beat such a great player as Vinny," said the beaming Reese, "is almost like winning the tournament."

"I played real well but he just won it on the 20th," said Giles.

Siderowf two-putted from 15 feet on the 18th hole and won his match when Barge failed to make a four-footer. But the winner scrambled in with a 12-over-par 82.

"That was a long four-footer for him," Siderowf said of Barge's putt. "But I don't know about my chances. I thought they were good when I came here but I didn't hit a fairway all day. I don't look at myself as the man to beat now or yesterday, though.

"There are simply too many good, young college players entered."

Siderowf is one of only 14 men who have won the British Amateur twice and he's attempting to try to join the immortal Bobby Jones and three others as the only players to pocket both major amateur titles the same year.

Reese, a Grosse Ile, Mich., product who helped Troy (Ala.) State win the NCAA Division II team title this year, tuned up for his Giles match by playing 18 holes in the morning at the Riviera Country Club.

"I like to play to warm up," he explained. "I'm not going to worry about any letdown now. I feel super about winning. I hope I can win this tournament."

Gary Cowan, a former two-time U.S. Amateur champ from Canada, didn't lose a hole in romping past David Richards of Chambersburg, Pa., 7 and 6.

Cowan won the U.S. Am for the second time in 1971 and then decided not to play in the event for four years because he wanted to spend more free time with his family and at his insurance business.

"This was the last year of my five-year exemption," said Cowan. "That's not a bad reason for deciding to play this year, huh?"

Ed Tutwiler of Indianapolis, at 57 the oldest player in the 200-man field, beat 20-year-old San Diego State junior Matt Ellison of Ventura, Calif., 4 and 3 while Doug Clarke, 17, La Jolla, Calif., winner of the Trans-Mississippi Amateur a month ago at Pebble Beach, Calif., got past Randall Mahar of Beaverton, Ore., 3 and 2.

Former San Francisco 49ers' quarterback John Brodie beat Aldo Butera of Danbury, Conn., with a par on the 23rd hole and then said, "This is a lot like football because you have to pay attention or you're in trouble."

CAR CORNER

by John Borelli, Mast. Tech. No. 3428

No one actually pours gasoline into his radiator but a car's cooling system can be responsible for reducing gasoline mileage So can other car parts that have no connection, you might think, to actual fuel consumption Since the condition of the cooling system effects engine performance, abnormalities in cooling temperatures curtail gasoline mileage A faulty thermostat, causing an engine to run too cool, creates a condition where more gas is needed to maintain power Have your radiator checked thoroughly

If you are interested in doing business with an established company whose integrity is well known throughout the area then NEWTON CAR RADIO, 873 Walnut Street (corner of Beacon St. at Four Corners), Newton 332-2487 is the place you are looking for We sell and service the finest names in car radios, stereos, tape players and the increasingly popular CB Radios. Home owners are ahead

Ken Fischer cleared away stacks of home listings from his desk at a suburban Tampa, Fla., real estate office and leaned back in his chair.

"Frankly," he said, "the only way to stay ahead of housing prices is to own. The problem is coming up with the initial investment."

The nation's real estate and home development industries — bogged down by the recent recession — is showing a steady recovery as more and more persons seek to invest in homes.

In many areas, older homes are being snapped up as soon as they go on the market. New homes are selling with equal elan.

Florida is back on its way to a real estate boom, Atlanta is slowly rebuilding its real estate market and sales are strong in such areas as Chicago, New York, Boston, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Rural real estate sales also seem to be picking up.

Bob Swift, real estate editor for the Miami Herald, said real estate advertising volume has been "a lot better than I expected so far this year ... The advertising volume isn't as good as two years ago, but it's bouncing back sooner than I thought it would."

Several Miami-area realtors also said there was no lack of buyers and that most homes seldom remained on the market more than four to six weeks.

Central Florida home sales were picking up after a serious slump. Sales in the $30,000 range have leveled off, according to a spokesman for developers. The spokesman said sales are picking up best in the $35,000 to $50,000 range and are coming up strong in the $45,000 to $60,000 range.

Most buyers, the spokesman said, are "older, established families who've been married five to seven years ...

"Young people are priced out of the market right now."

Atlanta still suffers the lingering effects of recession, according to Atlanta Constitution business editor DeWitt Rogers, but business is picking up somewhat.

Hutch Jordan of Fourteen West Realty Co. in Atlanta's Morningside area says the slump appears to be ending there. Most of the homes listed by Fourteen West are 20 to 60 years old and they are selling well.

"Our houses here sell in a week or two from the date they're listed," he said. But he added that suburban realtors have houses on the market much longer.

Jordan says most buyers are established younger couples — lawyers, government workers and other professionals.

"A lot of them have been looking for a long time," he said.

In the Chicago area, older homes offered for sale are moving well and new developments surveyed report steady sales.

"Mortgage assumptions and contract sales are in big demand," said one suburban Mount Prospect, Ill., realtor-lawyer. "A lot of young people really want to get a home and build equity but they can't come up with the initial down payment.

"There's a lot of interest in renting with an option (to buy). Listings for rent-options seldom last more than a week.

"The outright sales of older homes also are going particularly well, though most are being purchased by older couples," he said. "A lot of them have been saving for a long time. Others already had homes and are moving up or relocating."

In the Los Angeles area, realtors are enthusiastic.

Dale Townsend of the Los Angeles Times classified advertising department says ad volume is slightly down because houses "are selling so fast developers can't keep listings."

A spokesman for the San Francisco Board of Retailers reports sales of existing homes up sharply and prices climbing fast.

Maine once attracted the biggies

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — You need a program to tell the players. The Pacific Power and Light Co. is really on the Atlantic and the Idaho Power Co. is in Maine.

Those utilities are among a handful of large, out-of-state companies which incorporated here when Maine business laws were lenient during the industrial boom of the late 1800s and early 1900s. The number of small foreign firms incorporated in Maine cannot be counted.

A getaway plan you can get away with.

Getting away from it all is great.
Until you get the bill.
And then you're right back at it again.
Well, maybe you've got it all backwards.
The smart thing to do is to invest steadily in your getaway plan before you go.
And the safest way to do it is by joining your Payroll Savings Plan at work. Before you even notice, your U.S. Savings Bonds have started to pile up.
So when you're ready to leave it all behind, check your Bonds.
One look and you'll be amazed at what you can get away with.

Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption

Take stock in America.

It's a fact. The faster we go in our cars, the faster we take life. It's a horrible waste. Speed drains precious energy resources, too. All in the name of saving time.

The point is this. The 55 mph speed limit offers a chance to stop some of this waste if we want to take it to heart.

9400 fewer people lost their lives on our highways during 1975 than in 1973, when speed limits were above 55.

We are saving some gas, too. But nowhere near the eight and a half million gallons a day we could save if everybody slowed down

Too many people are still taking the 55 mph speed limit too lightly. And overlooking one other fact. Besides saving lives and gas, it's the law, too.

55 MPH. IT'S NOT JUST A GOOD IDEA. IT'S THE LAW.

Watching for war in the Sinai, a look at U.N. monitors

MITLA PASS, Sinai (UPI) — Greg Burris was leaning back in a chair and smoking a cigarette when the first squawk came over the monitor box at the American watch station.

The 20-year-old college dropout from Garland, Tex., squashed out his cigarette, picked up a pair of binoculars and looked down from his hilltop post at the yellow sands of Mitla Pass.

It was only a jeepload of U.N. soldiers traveling east from Checkpoint Mike. Burris shook his headful of shoulder-length hair and sat back again.

The first anniversary of the Israeli-Egyptian peace agreement today was just another day for the 170 American men and women monitoring the accord from seven surveillance posts in the barren Sinai Desert.

"It was exciting at first but it didn't take long to get over that," Burris said. "I used to be relieved every time we had a false alarm but now its nothing more than routine."

Burris, who joined the U.N. Sinai Field Mission two months ago after dropping out of Richland Junior College in Dallas, said he tries not to think about what would happen if war breaks out again in the Sinai.

"It's entered everybody's mind," he said. "There's always a chance of war. But you've got to put it in the back of your mind. You can't let it worry you."

Burris, wearing the U.S. mission's bright orange jacket over a pair of red swim trunks, said he likes his work at the Mitla West watch station, nicknamed Caddo Mountain after a peak back in Texas.

"I really enjoy it," he said, stretching out his sandaled feet. "It's got problems like anything else. But it isn't rough as I was told it would be."

Burris earns $1,400 a month tax free plus a 20 per cent bonus if he sticks it out for 18 months. He works 60 hours a week but he gets a week off every 21 days.

He lives in a carpeted, motelstyle room, down to a bottleopener in the bathroom, at Buffer City, an air-conditioned base camp put up by the builders of the Holiday Inn chain.

He can buy quality Scotch at $2 a bottle in the PX, attend free movies, play tennis on two lighted courts and hustle his buddies on a pair of pool tables.

But boredom remains a big problem for all but the 10 women, mostly in their 20s and 30s.

Ann Donner, a divorcee from Quinlas, Tex., left her job in the classified department of the Terrell (Tex.) Tribune to run the laundry at Buffer City.

"I think I'll stay forever," she said, sitting on a comfortable sofa in the main lounge. "This is the first time I've ever been out of the country and I'll never be the same again."

She laughed when asked about the male-female ratio.

"There's certainly a lot of them," she said. "They treat us like queen bees. I'll be spoiled when I get back home."

The U.S. surveillance system, provided for under the peace agreement worked out by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, has the job of warning Israel and Egypt of each other's movements through the strategic Giddi and Mitla passes.

Mission director Nick Thorne, a one-time Marine lieutenant colonel with a swashbuckling mustache and a penchant for giant cigars, said the United States has a plan to pull out the 170 civilian workers in case of war.

"The chances of being caught off guard are much less now than before," he said, noting the mission's sophisticated electronic sensors developed during the Indochina War.

He said each of the watch posts has two shotguns and a pair of semiautomatic rifles in case of trouble.

Sketch made of Hammond Castle thieves

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (UPI) — Police are hoping "good sets" of prints and composite sketches will enable them to track down thieves who stole more than 50 medieval art treasures from Hammond Castle over the weekend.

Police said Tuesday they were preparing sketches of a man and a woman who toured the castle museum last week and asked a lot of questions about security.

Thieves stole a Seventh Century tapestry, paintings, sculptures, 15th Century metal works, books of Gregorian chants and 17th Century Italian manuscripts from the 56-room castle.

Police Tuesday questioned museum caretaker Russ Woodward.

"We're covering all bases. Everybody is a suspect," said Gloucester Det. Jerry Gouliart. "As it looks right now, it looks like a pro job. They (the thieves) were very selective."

"We also have good sets of fingerprints from areas where large paintings and tapestries were taken down from the walls of the museum and these are going to be compared with FBI and state police files," said police Lt. John Cronin, in charge in the investigation.

Officials have declined to give an official estimate of the value of the stolen items. Museum curator Naomi Kline said she hoped to finish an inventory of the castle's art objects by Wednesday.

One of the stolen paintings, "Madonna of Divine Love" which was painted by the Italian master Raphael in the late 15th Century, was valued at $50,000.

The castle, surrounded by a moat and with a drawbridge, was built by the radio and electronics inventor John Hays Hammond Jr. more than 50 years ago. The castle houses a $10,000 pipe organ Hammond built himself and is frequently used for organ recitals.

Police theorized the thieves or an accomplice attending a recital Saturday night could have hidden in one of many of the castle's dark rooms.

Everyone has a story about Judge Hugh Bownes

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Just about anyone who has ever seen New Hampshire's only federal judge in action has a favorite story about Hugh Bownes.

Like the time Bownes sat patiently in his U.S. District Court listening to a 15 minute, overly-complicated argument from a young lawyer. Bownes leaned forward, fixed the attorney with a steely gaze, and said: "What you mean is..." — reducing the argument to one brief sentence.

Not all the stories bring a smile to Bownes, 56, a native of New York City, who has weathered several political storms over rulings that outraged the more conservative elements in New Hampshire politics.

Among the rulings were decisions backing the right to cover the state motto "Live Free or Die" on license plates and supporting recognition of a homosexual students organization at the University of New Hampshire.

The judge also drew fire earlier this year for saying prayer in public schools approved by the New Hampshire Legislature was "patently unconstitutional."

But Bownes does not see himself as an "activist" judge.

"I find the term 'activist' elusive," he said in an interview published in the September issue of Yankee Magazine. "For example, no one is more conservative or careful to follow precedent than (Boston federal) Judge (W. Arthur) Garrity. He got stuck with the (busing) case — few judges would have taken the time to write the decision he wrote."

"I admire particularly the way he has stood up as a man and a human being under the stress that he is continually subjected to," Bownes said.

"We had word that workers from surrounding towns planned to invade the campus. If it had not been for Kent State, there would have been no restriction at all," he said.

Lie detector tests taken

Battle in R.I. over federal bench

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Businessman Richard F. Chipperfield's challenge to presidential nominee Herbert F. DeSimone, who is being considered for the federal bench, is part of a continuing financial clash between the two men.

Results were expected today on lie detector tests taken by Chipperfield and three associates who last week accused DeSimone of extortion in testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee in Washington.

The tests by Raymond S. August Inc., a Boston polygraph outfit, will be made public because the four participants signed waivers.

They are seeking to block confirmation of President Ford's nomination of DeSimone to the U.S. District Court in Providence.

The appointment also was opposed by the American Bar Association, the second time in a decade the ABA has taken such action against a presidential judicial appointee.

A vote is expected after the Labor Day congressional recess. Any delay beyond the planned Oct. 2 congressional adjournment would nullify the appointment.

Chipperfield testified last week he was threatened through an intermediary with bodily injury in 1975 if he did not repay a $35,000 loan from American Bank and Trust Co. of North Providence. DeSimone was the attorney for the bank.

The intermediary, John R. McGarry of Providence, was one of those to take the tests.

State police last week told the committee it had found no evidence of an extortion attempt by DeSimone. However, George Bibbey of Providence, a private investigator hired by Chipperfield, said Tuesday the committee refused to hear tapes proving the allegations.

Subsequent to the alleged extortion attempt, DeSimone was hired by Posi-Seal International Inc. to defend the company in a $461.37 million lawsuit brought by Chipperfield and Stanton Saunders of Pawcatuck, Conn., Chipperfield said Tuesday.

Chipperfield's lawsuit, now pending in U.S. District Court, alleges the current principals of Posi-Seal took the company illegally from him through a 1971 reorganization. He lost the first round of litigation in a March 15, 1972 decision by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York.

Chipperfield founded Posi-Seal in 1966 and masterminded its unique type of hydraulic valve into a multimillion dollar product.

Chipperfield was urged to press his case and his charges initially were aired by John R. Assalone Jr. of Coventry, a home builder and self-styled "citizen's advocate" who said he was a Posi-Seal stockholder at one time.

A new restaurant comes to Faneuil Hall

The Magic Pan Creperie has opend its second fine restaurant in Boston in the historic Quincy Market Building at the Faneuil Hall Marketplace behind City Hall.

Famous for its 21 varieties of entree and dessert crepes, the original Magic Pan began in San Francisco in 1965, and was so named because of the unique patented rotating wheel that makes lacy-thin crepes upside down on a pan that serve as wrappings for delicious fillings.

The new Quincy Market Buildings restaurant has opened on the 150th anniversary of this historic building and the beginning of the revitilization of the old Faneuil Hall Marketplace.

Once a thriving food mart in the 19th centruy, and the architectural pride of Boston, the Market and its adjacent structures fell into disrepair in the 1950's. Now with care and meticulous restoration the market will once again be a vibrant site for restaurants, sidewalk cafes, boutiques and food stores on three levels inside the building, and outdoors under the weatherproof glass canopies.

In keeping with the rich architectural heritage of the Quincy Market building, the decor of the new Magic Pan is set within exposed granite and brick with beamed ceilings, handsome European antiques and lithographs. The informal atmosphere is enhanced with fresh flowers on every table, an abundance of plants and trees, polished wood floors and colorful fabrics.

Entree selections include Crepe St. Jacques — scallops, shrimp and sliced mushrooms in a bechamel sauce with Gruyere cheese; Beef Bourguignon — tender cubes of beef simmered in a hearty wine sauce; Chicken Elegante — richly flavored creamed chicken in crepes, topped with Parmesan cheese; and Steak Kebab and mushroom crepe — steak chunks marinated in white wine on a skewer, with bacon, onion, tomato, muchrooms, and green peppers, served with a crisp spinach salad.

There are also crepes which embrace deliciously prepared vegetables, such as soufleed spinach sprinkled with Parmesan cheese, or Crepes Ratatouille, a blend of zucchini, tomatoes, eggplant and other garden vegetables carefully seasoned and simmered, and then folded in a crepe.

Each day the Magic Pan prepares fresh batches of homemade soups, and mouth-watering dessert crepes that envelope ice cream and fresh fruits.

Some favorite desserts — each a special taste experience — are Strawberry Supreme — fresh strawberries and brown sugar with sour cream or fresh whipped cream; Crepes Beignet - crepes delicately crisped and twisted, served in a basket with a cup of hot brandied chocolate sauce to dip in; and Crepe a la Mode - ice cold vanilla ice cream, wrapped in a hot crepe and served with bittersweet chocolate shavings on top.

Cocktails and table wines are available, and there are accommodations for private parties.

The restaurant is open Monday-Saturday from 11:30 a.m.-midnight, and on Sunday for brucnh from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and dinner from 3-10 p.m.

John Lehman, manager of the new Magic Pan in the historic Quincy Market Building at Faneuil Hall Marketplace, has selected a few crepes from the menu and adapted the recipes for use at home.

Your first festive crepe dinner menu includes Shrimp Gourmet Crepes and Crepes Ratatouille accompanied by a crisp, green salad and a dry white wine. For dessert: Strawberry Crepes Supreme. The recipes follow.

BASIC CREPE RECIPE

1 cup all-purpose flour
1½ cups milk
3 eggs
Pinch of salt
½ cup oil or melted butter
(for frying the crepes)

Sift the flour and salt together into a mixing bowl. Add eggs and mix together thoroughly (the mixture will form a thick paste). Add milk gradually and beat thoroughly until the mixture is smooth. The batter will have the consistency of heavy cream. Let batter stand for 2 hours before using.

Brush a hot crepe pan with the butter or oil. Pour in approximately 1½ to 2 tablespoons of batter, depending upon the size of the pan. Tip the pan to coat it with a thin layer of batter. When the crepe is golden brown (about 1 minute) turn it and brown the other side. Continue cooking crepes, adding oil or butter to the pan when needed. Makes 12 to 14 crepes, 6 to 6½ inches in diameter.

Note: You do not need a special crepe pan, though they are nice to have. Any 8-inch slope-sided skillet will do, and teflon coating aids in easy turning. Crepes may be frozen for later use by placing a piece of waxed paper in between each.

SHRIMP GOURMET CREPES

1 cup finely diced onion
½ cup butter
1 cup flour
4 cups milk
½ cup sherry
1 lb. cooked shrimp
12 cooked crepes

Saute the onion in butter until soft. Stir in flour and cook until golden. Slowly add the milk, stirring constantly. Cook until sauce is smooth and thick. Stir in sherry. Stir in shrimp. Place ¾ cup of shrimp mixture in center of each crepe. Fold sides over center to enclose filling. Arrange rolled crepes in baking dish and spoon remaining shrimp mixture over the middle of the rolled crepes. Heat under 400 degree F. broiler for a minute or two and serve. Six servings (two crepes per serving).

RATATOUILLE CREPES

¼ cup olive oil
1 large onion, slices
1 green pepper, cubed
1 eggplant, peeled, cubed
2 small zucchini, cut into ½ -inch slices
1 can (1 lb. 12 oz.) tomatoes
Salt and pepper
1 large clove garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
¼ teaspoon oregano leaves
6 cooked crepes

Saute the onion slices in the olive oil until they are transparent. Add the eggplant and green peppers and cook for five minutes. Next add the tomatoes, zucchini, garlic, parsley and oregano. Add salt and pepper to taste. Simmer about 20 minutes uncovered. Spoon mixture onto center of six crepes. Fold side over center to enclose filling. Place on oven-proof dish and heat under 400 degree broiler for a minute or two and serve. Six servings.

STRAWBERRY CREPE SUPREME

6 cups sliced fresh strawberries (reserve 6 whole berries for garnish)
¾ cup brown sugar
1 cup sour cream or whipped cream
Powdered sugar
½ cup brown sugar
6 cooked crepes

For best results, slice the berries no more than an hour or two ahead of serving time. It is important not to bruise the berries or allow them to go mushy. Toss the sliced strawberries very gently with ¾ cup brown sugar. At serving time, place 1 cup of sliced, sweetened berries in center of each crepe. Top each serving with 2 tablespoons of sour cream or whipped cream. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon brown sugar (per serving) over cream. Fold sides of crepe over center to enclose filling. Sprinkle a little powdered sugar over the filled crepes. Top each crepe with 1 tablespoon sour or whhipped cream. Sprinkle 1 teaspoon brown sugar over each serving and top with a whole strawberry. Six servings.

This railroad is offering commuters vans if they will quit taking the train

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Southern Pacific Railroad is offering its commuter passengers 1,000 free vans if they will quit taking the train.

The project would cost the railroad $6 million to get out of the commuter business.

The railroad, which claims it is losing $9 million a year on the commuter run between San Francisco and San Jose, handed out kits explaining its idea to the regular 8,000 commuters this week.

SP said it would buy up to 1,000 new eight-passenger vans and turn them over to the commuters. Each regular SP commuter would then become one-eighth owner of a van. The eight people who get a van would have to share fuel, maintenance and insurance expenses.

"Commuters using vanpools would pay less than they do now for rail fares and save even more in future years," explained SP vice president Alan D. DeMoss. "They would also save both time and money because vanpools can provide door-to-door service "

Busing – issue in 9th District race

BOSTON (UPI) — South Boston probation officer Robert "Peaches" Flynn counts on diehard anti-busing sentiment gripping the Boston dominated Ninth Congressional District to help oust his neighbor the congressman in the state's September primary.

But the odds and traditions of the district virtually assure two-term Democrat J. Joseph Moakley of a third 24-month tour in Congress.

Moakley is expected to easily deflect the Sept. 14 challenge by Flynn, 37, as well as the assault of three minor challengers in November.

The relationship between congressmen from the prodominantly Irish district and the voters in the three-decker houses along tree-lined streets traditionally has been a close one. Moakley's home phone number is in the telephone book.

And the tight knit neighborhood where nick names are common, likes its politicians familiar. Voters returned John W. McCormack to Washington without interruption for 45 years.

After a two-year interlude in which McCormack's 1970 retirement left political succession clouded, Moakley has emerged as the power to be reckoned with.

The 49-year-old ex-state senator wrestled Louise Day Hicks and lost in 1970. But he returned two years later to successfully campaign as an independent against Mrs. Hicks, ending her congressional career after one term.

Moakley's campaign manager in that race, Patrick Henry McCarthy, 30, served three years as an assistant before leaving to tackle nine-term Democrat James A. Burke in the neighboring Eleventh Congressional District.

Some observers see that primary race as the strongest challenge to an incumbent among Massachusetts 12 congressional districts.

Although Moakley appears certain of victory, he campaigns as always, looking back over his shoulder. He "never really stopped campaigning," says campaign manager Jim O'Leary.

The district includes 13 of Boston's 22 wards and stretches into seven suburban towns to which many of the district's whites have fled to escape a court-ordered school busing plan.

Moakley opposes busing and federal financial assistance for abortions, but his Democratic primary opponent uses the issues nonetheless. Flynn wants a constitutional amendment to end school busing for school desegregation.

"'Motion's' Moakley...has just gone through the motions for us," Flynn argues. "He hasn't done the right thing by the city of Boston or the suburbs."

"I'd vote my constituency," Flynn says.

Moakley opposes busing but walks a narrow line to continue support in the black neighborhoods and the more liberal suburbs included in his diverse district.

"I've done what I can do on it (busing)," Moakley says. His campaign manager agrees.

"I think the time has passed when a candidate can get up and say 'I'm antibusing' and just get elected on that basis," O'Leary says.

Despite Moakley's hopes that the anti-busing candidate will stumble, he does face more of a contest this year than two years ago. In 1974, Moakley had no primary opposition and he defeated a candiate from the U.S. Labor party by almost nine-to-one.

In addition to facing Flynn in September, Moakley must overcome opposition in November from Republican Robert G. Cunningham, 25, who unsuccessfully campaigned for Westwood selectman; James MacWarren of Boston, campaigning on the Socialist Workers ticket; and Joseph M. O'Loughlin, of West Roxbury, a former state representative campaigning as an independent.

R.I. schools set to open next week

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — School bells ring classrooms open across Rhode Island next Wednesday with the threat of teacher strikes considerably diminshed from a year ago.

With the opening of school one week away, eight of 39 communities have not finalized contracts. Three are in various stages of ratification and three have serious deadlocks.

"We're hoping for no strikes but we're closely watching two districts, Westerly and Ponaganset (the Foster-Glocester regional school system). We expect the others will be settled before schools open," Ronald L. DiOrio, president of the Rhode Island Education Association, said Tuesday a His group represents teachers in all of the unsettled districts.

Last year, strikes in 13 communities disrupted education for more than 70,000 public school studecood 'kout affecting 4,500 students at Rhode Island Junior College.

Fourteen teachers — eight from Pawtucket and six from Woonsocket — were jailed in contempt of court last September for repeated defiance of back-to-work orders.

"The disruptions last year had a salutary effect and stimulated school committees and teachers' organizations to come to agreement and solve their differences earlier this year," said Dr. William P. Robinson, associate state commissioner of education.

"Many of the new contracts signed last year are multi-year contracts and didn't run out this year. Nobody likes strikes," Robinson said. "They're bad for kids, as are make-up days."

Tear gas clouds thoughts of peaceful busing in Louisville

Hopes for a peaceful resumption of school busing in Louisville, Ky., vanished in clouds of tear gas Tuesday night.

An antibusing protest erupted on the eve of the second year of a busing desegregation program.

But Dayton, Ohio, officials moved a public awareness program on busing into high gear hoping to avert similar problems when schools there open Thursday and Cleveland officials prepared an appeal of a school desegregation order.

Today, some 20,000 black and white children, 2,000 more than last year, were bused to better mix their races in the Louisville-Jefferson County area's 165 schools.

Tuesday night, police fired tear gas to disperse antibusing protesters among the 1,000 persons who marched along Preston Highway near Southern High School. Police said the gas was used only after about 200 persons set bonfires along the highway and refused to disperse after the march.

The crowd retreated to a shopping center across the highway from the school, the scene of similar violence last year.

Some demonstrators picked up canisters and tossed them back at the policemen.

Six persons were taken into police custody. Two were later released without charge.

There were 638 arrests between Sept. 4, 1975, beginning the fall term, and Jan. 1, 1976 in connection with antibusing demonstrations in Louisville, mainly in an area south of the city limits.

Ohio's first court-ordered busing desegregation plan begins Thursday in the 41,000-student Dayton school system. About 13,000 students — most of them in the elementary grades — will be bused.

A citywide, school-sponsored system of visits by volunteers to the homes of students, was designed to answer the questions before school starts on a staggered basis Thursday and Friday. Today, parents were encouraged to visit the schools their children will attend to meet teachers and administrators.

Over the last four days, a "rumor-control" center has answered about 1,000 telephone inquiries a day.

The court-ordered busing plan is aimed at making each school reflect a systemwide racial division of 48 per cent black and 52 per cent white.

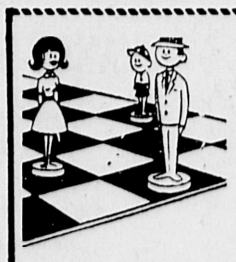

The Cleveland school board Tuesday authorized an appeal of a desegregation order leveled against the system by a federal judge.

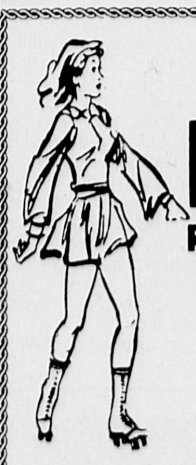

The court, ruling on a suit by the NAACP Tuesday, found the city and state school boards guilty of illegally fostering school segregation. Both boards denied the allegation and charged the ruling would end the concept of community schools.

Scientists think volcano may erupt

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (UPI) — Smoke and steam spouted thousands of feet into the murky skies above La Soufriere volcano today, increasing scientific speculation the volcano will erupt within the next three days.

French volcanologist Haroun Tazieff, leading a team of scientists studying the simmering mountain, found "impressive billowing steam laden with gray ash" spraying from fissures near the 4,900-foot summit.

Colleague John Tomblyn, director of the Seismic Research Unit at the University of the West Indies, said the column of steam was jetting 6,000 feet into the air during the night.

"The prediction is that there will be a major eruption in three or four days," Tazieff said. "It could take several forms. We just don't know."

Both Tazieff and Tomblyn were among five scientists slightly injured when the summit of La Soufriere exploded Monday in a shower of ash and stones.

Arts in Parks plans encore

The Arts in the Parks program, deemed a success by many who participated at playgrounds this summer, has a new fall program planed with a wide variety of activities.

Brochures outlining the courses are now availbale available at the libraries, City Hall, the Recreation Department, and from the schools.

Morning courses offered and their instructors are dramatic literature, Andrew Golov; sketching, Dora Hsiung; macrame, Louise Landy; creative needlework, Judy Posner; weaving, Renee Marcou; needlepoint, Bette Feinstein; and dance exercise for physical fitness, Amy Morris.

Other artists who were well-received during the summer will be back to give small workshops in fame-making and embroidery on clothing, and the Taylor sisters will teach folk dancing for all levels of expertise on Sunday evenings.

A Community Concert Band composed of musicians of all ages will be lead by Thomas Leonard of the School Department.

Offered for the first time will be four Saturday workshops for children of age eight and older. These include bati"Monstrously k, Wonderfrul Bread Sculpture," and two sessions in film animation by Yvonne Anderson of the Yellow Ball Workshop.

Registration begins Sept. 10 and some courses begin as early as Sept. 13. Registration fees, which vary with the course, must be paid with the registration which should be sent to the Recreation Department, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale, 02166.

For a brochure describing all the courses in detail send a self-addressed stamped envelope to the Recreation Department.

Free courses on energy conservation this fall

BOSTON (UPI) — Massachusetts residents this fall will be able to take a free course on energy conservation at any of 87 high schools across the state — and it could save them some money.

The announcement was made by Consumer Affairs Secretary Christine Sullivan and Gov. Michael S. Dukakis at the governor's weekly cabinet meeting Tuesday.

The governor said the course could help homeowners save an average of $138 a year on their fuel bills by teaching them how and where to apply insulation, caulking and weather stripping to their homes.

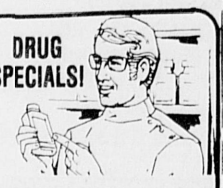

Financial support for the program will be a $215,000 grant from the Federal Energy Administration, the first of its kind awarded by the FEA.

The courses will be taught by industrial arts or science teachers who first will attend a regional training session of Project Conserve, a state energy program begun earlier this year.

On a related matter, the cabinet also discussed plans by the Department of Public Utilities to reform the state's electric rate structure and conserve electric power.

The plans, outlined by Public Utilities Commissioner Harold J. Keohane, called for peak load pricing, a system in which the price of power varies according to the time of day. The price is highest at periods of peak demand and lowest when demand is low.

McGrath and DeNucci square off for primary

A. Joseph DeNucci

Richard McGrath

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

The main bout of the Democratic primary election is a rematch between State Rep. Richard McGrath and his opponent of two years ago, Joseph DeNucci.

McGrath beat DeNucci by four votes in the 1974 primary and went on to beat Republican William Matthews to become state representative from the 16th District.

Although DeNucci supported McGrath in the 1974 general election, the four-vote loss caused hard feelings that have persisted through two years and at times seem to have replaced any difference in substance between the two men.

The McGrath-DeNucci contest has caused strange splits in the Democratic party here.

McGrath, elected an alderman in the tide of liberalism that swept into the Board a few years ago, has lost the support of many of his liberal colleagues.

Ald. David Cohen, who is very active in party politics, and Ald. Terry Morris have publicly endorsed DeNucci, and State Rep. David Mofenson has declared his support of DeNucci.

The difference in personal style between the two men may be the deciding factor, not the difference in what they believe.

McGrath is somewhat flamboyant in appearance and speech, and is given to shouting when he is aroused by an issue. DeNucci in public is soft-spoken and reserved.

McGrath's recent involvement with payroll records removed from City Hall files has hurt his image and cut into the support of many who agree with his intent but dislike his somewhat headlong approach.

DeNucci, a member of Newton's Youth Commission, has been involved with young people for a long time. As a legislative aide at the State House, he filed several bills to improve the lot of youth under the care of the state.

One of DeNucci's major issues in this election is financial. He would work for "sensible priorities" in the state budget, he says, and criticizes McGrath for wanting to increase paid legislative staff and the salaries of legislators.

He would work for the graduated income tax and for a reduction in age for tax abatements.

DeNucci says he would support regional recycling and resource recovery facilities but is opposed to the banning of nonreturnable bottles because he feels it would add to unemployment.

DeNucci supports the Metco program, but would vote to assure full state funding of all mandatory school programs. He believes that "if we keep rejecting voluntary programs, the state might interfere." He is opposed to any forced busing.

DeNucci says he will be a full-time legislator.

McGrath, after being a state representative for two years, says one of his priorities in the next two years would be to make changes in the rules of the House. He does not like the dispensing of committee chairmanships to those representatives who follow the leadership's orders in voting.

This week McGrath and five other Democratic representatives announced that they will not accept campaign

Tax rate hike less than $7

The Finance Committee last night (Thursday) was to decide not whether there will be an increase in taxes but how much it will be.

The city administration has asked the Board of Aldermen to approve the use of $1.2 million from surplus funds to adjust the tax rate for fiscal year 1976-77.

If the Finance Committee and the full Board go along with this recommendation, the tax rate will increase $7.20 over last year's $15 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation.

But many aldermen, including Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small, want to use more and have a smaller increase. Small said this week he would suggest that Mayor Theodore Mann and the Board of Assessors use $1.5 or $1.6 million so the tax increase then would be $6.40 or less.

Small and Finance Committee vice-chairman Richard Bullwinkle both have asked for figures on money expected to come into the city that is not listed in the mayor's presentation.

For example, Small said, there will be at least $100,000 and possibly $400,000 returned to the city by the School Department. Also not calculated into the appropriation request is the $1 million less the city will have to pay out next year as the result of retiring a three-year bond.

In addition, there will probably be an extension of the federal revenue-sharing act that may mean $1 million or more to Newton in the next fiscal year.

Besides the practical aspect of keeping the tax increase as low as possible, some aldermen do not want to allow the mayor to accumulate a large surplus for next year, when he will very likely be running for his third term as mayor.

For fiscal 1973-74, which was an 18-month transitional fiscal year to get onto the state fiscal cycle of July-June, Mayor Mann achieved a $5 reduction in the tax rate.

The mayor was reelected in 1973, and the tax rate increased $15.80 the following year.

The Finance Committee cannot increase the amount to be used from surplus, but can only recommend by resolution to the mayor and the Board of Assessors that a higher figure be used.

The tax rate cannot be set officially until after the Board of Aldermen votes Sept. 20 and the state approves whatever figure the Board of Assessors submits.

Tax bills must be mailed by Oct. 1.

Light turnout predicted for election Tuesday

A ballot without too many attractions isn't expected to tempt many voters to go to the polls next Tuesday.

There are no nominees to be decided on the Republican ballot and the Democratic ballot will feature the United States Senate race and nominees for county commissioner, with the exception of the 16th Middlesex District.

In that race Democratic voters will chose between Richard J. McGrath, the incumbent, and challenger A. Joseph DeNucci.

Voters in the 19th Middlesex District will have the opportunity to nominate Howard Passman to the Republican ticket by write-in for state representative.

Passman, a resident of Newton Centre, is a declared candidate for the office, but because he changed parties less than one year before the deadline for filing nomination papers, he was ineligible for the Republican ballot except by write-in.

Passman needs 150 write-in votes in order to appear on the ballot in the November election. He said last week he is hoping to receive 1000 write-ins.

He would then oppose State Rep. Lois Pines, a Democrat, in November.

Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Newton Election Commission, predicted a voter turnout of 20 to 30 per cent.

In the Democratic primary, incumbent

Metco budget and pool rental approved

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic Staff

The School Committee gave unanimous approval to the revised Metco budget at its special meeting Wednesday, Sept. 1, and approved the funding for rental of pool space for the high school swim teams.

The Metco budget of $657,702 was approved which will restore two of the four positions cut previously when the state lowered its offer of funding to the city.

In a prepared speech Mayor Theodore Mann lauded the efforts of Newton's five state legislators who worked hard to convince the governor to give the state program for 3000 students $150,000 more.

Newton received $47,000 more for its 350 students who are bused here voluntarily.

The restored program here includes seven professional staff, one secretary, the Hale Reservation outdoor education program, and tutorial and curriculum development services.

The Metco bus contract was approved for $165,651 with the Bob Charles Transportation Company of Brookline, who was the low bidder.

The bid was $5,333 less than last year's contract, and the surplus transportation money was returned to the state. The bus program also has eight monitors at a cost of $25,920.

School Committee member Honora Kaplan also thanked the governor, the legislators, and the mayor for the work in saving the program.

Some Metco personnel not rehired after last year have filed suit against the School Committee to have their jobs restored, but it is not known when the case will be heard in Middlesex Superior Court.

The Committee also unanimously voted to set $3000 aside in a new account to rent swimming pool space in the Boston College and Waltham Boy's Club from Oct. 1 to Oct. 29.

The Division of Support Services received an option to renew the rental of the pools until Jan. 1 if the construction work on the Newton North pool is not completed.

The Newton North and Newton South swim teams will use the Gath Pool in September from 2-5 p.m. The other pools will be rented from 6:30 to 8 a.m.

The money will come from the regular program instruction salary account. The estimated cost of $2,430 through the end of October will increase $85 per day for each additional day.

Appointment power was given to Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink to hire two people for a tentative

Take your best shot

In an effort to encourage people to come and tour the Novitiate land, the Newton Conservators and the Newton Graphic are co-sponsoring a photo contest.

The Conservators will be having two tours of the land, Saturday, Sept. 11 at 10 a.m. and Saturday, Sept. 18, at 10 a.m.

We invite you to take one of the tours and take your camera along to capture the beauty of this 60-acre tract the Conservators would like to see become a city park.

What we're looking for is the "best picture" of the Novitiate land. Photos, black and white or color, should be sumbmitted to the Newton Graphic, 1178 Walnut St., Newton Highlands, no later than Oct. 1 at 5 p.m.

The contest is open to people of any age, but not to professional photographers.

Joan Lerner of the Newton Conservators stressed the point that the current owners of the Novitiate land have agreed to the two organized tours, but do not want people on the land, which is private property, at other times.

We ask that people wishing to enter the Fire destroys Nonantum home

A fire destroyed the rear half of a three-story wooden frame Nonantum house early Monday morning.

Fast action by police officers saved anyone from being injured in the fire at 384 Watertown St. which housed the Century Auto Parts on the first floor.

Fire Chief Frederick Perkins estimated the damage to be about $50,000.

Officers Charles Seeley, John Greenwood, and Leo N. Adkins called in the fire at 12:08 a.m. when they saw a red glow from behind the building . They had passed the building five minutes before and there was nothing unusual, they said.

Officer Seeley awakened residents in adjacent buildings while Officers Adkins

Nahanton Woods 'held;' more talk Monday

A switch from denial to "hold" by the Land Use Committee leaves the Nahanton Woods condominium project still a topic of discussion.

The changed recommendation was reported at Tuesday night's meeting of the Board of Aldermen, and Nahanton Woods will probably be gone over again at next Monday's meeting of the Land Use Committee in conjunction with a discussion of the major parcels zoning amendment in preparation by the Planning Department.

The reason for the decision to hold the matter rather than deny the petitions for zone change and permissive use to build is that, under the new state zoning enabling act, the adverse vote by the Planning Board would prevent resubmission of the petitions for two years.

According to Land Use Committee Chairman Eliot Cohen, there is not an overwhelming desire of the Board of Aldermen to kill the proposal, but rather to ensure that proper zoning safeguards are instituted before permission to build is granted.

The major parcels proposal has been under consideration for several years, but a final ordinance has never been written. The intent of the change in the zoning regulations is to assure the preservation of open space and to give the Board some control over the preservation of certain natural features such as hills and ponds.

The Nahanton Woods proposal would include the donation of 24 of the 28 acres

Superintendent Fink deplores 'code words'

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink told a packed auditorium of teachers that he deplores the use of "code" words to hide honest feelings about voluntary metropolitan programs and the basic education movement.

In his annual speech to the teachers at Day Junior High School the superintendent quoted liberally from national and local publications to show the extremes of educational philosophy and expectations.

After he finished his speech Fink quipped that he would then start on the one he had written for last year.

The teachers walked out then to protest the lack of a contract, but, as Newton Teachers Association President Richard Cochran noted from the podium, there is less tension between the staff and administration this year.

Superintendent Fink began his speech by saying it was his personal view and is open to challenges "without fear of rancor."

He noted that school committees in the city had maintained the educational climate that has attracted a top quality staff.

The code words he warned against were "neighborhood schools," "metropolitanism," "back to basics," and "social engineer," the latter of which is a term which he has previously used to describe himself.

He said some of his mail and phone calls had recently have been "downright hostile, because I favor voluntary collaborative programs that will educate together children from different social, racial, and economic backgrounds."

These people therefore assumed he favored "the dissolution of the neighborhood school" and that he is "hastening the establishment of a metropolitan school district that will destroy the autonomy of the Newton Public Schools.

"This is nonsense," he said.

A social engineer is viewed as being a "manipulator of people and institutions," he said, and he admits that he is one who is "helping to bring into existence the kind of society in which children can live and learn together . . .(and) respect each other's rights."

He connects the fear of social engineers to the spreading fear of metropolitanism which he sees as being caused by the disorder from the compulsory busing in Boston.

Superintendent Fink, who during his seven years in Newton has been active in the planning of the Educational

Mofenson seeks fourth term

David Mofenson is completing his third term as a Newton State Representative in the 18th Middlesex district.

During that time, he has advanced from the State Administration Committee to the Judiciary Committee to become House chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs. He also serves in other legislative positions including chairman of the Special Legislative Commission on Privacy.

Mofenson is now seeking reelection to a fourth term. In a recent interview, he shared some of his views, reflecting on the six years he has served in the legislature.

Q: In the aftermath of Watergate, with public distrust in politics and politicians at an all time high, what makes you want to run for reelection?

A: "For six years, I've been working hard on a number of issues and I'd like to see the reforms I have fought for through to conclusion. In some of these areas, we are just beginning to make substantial progress. There are many new things I'd like to do, especially in government reform and human services. The people of Newton need sober, effective and intelligent voices on Beacon Hill and I still feel I have something to offer."

Q: You are the first Newton representative to be made House chairman of a committee in more than 50 years. What does being chairman mean to you and what does it mean for the people in Newton?

A: "It means a great deal. It means being able to exert a far greater influence on the legislative process than I could as just an individual representative. As House Chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, I have a great opportunity to shape hundreds of bills relating to the elderly, the young, the mentally ill and others who are in need of human services.

"In our committee, I am in a position lo strongly influence whether a particular bill will advance or be defeated and this is an extraordinary power in the democratic process. But aside from the committee, my chairmanship permits me to exercise influence in other areas as well. My voice is strongly considered by the Democratic leadership. I take part in leadership decisions and this in turn heightens my ability to accomplish far more than I would have been able to do otherwise. All the advocacy in the world doesn't amount to anything if you don't have lhe power to put your point across.

"I'm now better able to make my case for the reforms I have long worked to achieve. The people in Newton have someone in the legislature who can do more for constituents — not just in terms of substantial legislation but in helping individuals get relief from their problems with the various parts of the government bureaucracy."

Q: What is your legislative agends for 1977?

A: "I would like to continue to work toward the streamlining of state government. I want to see the long needed jury reform bill become law. I want to help restore some medical cuts. Anti-trust legislation and privacy safeguards are also priorities. But much of what we are able to do depends on our making state government more efficient in its delivery of services. I would like to explore ways of seriously undertaking civil service reform and reducing the number of state employees through attrition.

David Mofenson

"I am intrigued by the possibilities for sunset laws imposed on the state level. That is, we provide automatic shut-off dates for programs and agencies, and they would go out of business at such time unless they were specifically reauthorized by the legislature.

"We must remember that just passing laws is not the answer to many of our problems. Sometimes we need better regulation or enforcement of laws already on the books. Sometimes we need to repeal or amend old laws that aren't working. In short, my legislative agenda for 1977 will depend on what we are able to accomplish in the remaining months of the 1976 session."

Sonya Hamlin to speak on state ERA question

Representatives of Newton's League of Women Voters and Committee to Ratify the Massachusetts State Equal Rights Amendment met last week to make plans for "An Evening with Sonya Hamlin."

The event will feature the noted television personality speaking about the Massachusetts State Equal Rights Amendment at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 21 at Day Junior High School, Minot Place, Newtonville. Community leaders will be invited to attend the free event. Campaign items, including bumper stickers, buttons and T-shirts, will be available.

Newton planning committee members are co-coordinators Joan Portnoy of Adena Road and Sheila Schulman of Shorncliffe Road; media chairman; William Ramsey of Dedham Street, Bonnie Carter of Paul Street, Alice Kreider of Grove Street, and Ann Petter of Cherry Street.

In November the Massachusetts State Equal Rights Amendment will be referendum question number one. If approved by a majority of Massachusetts voters, the amendment will add one sentence to Article One of the Commonwealth's Constitution: "Equality under the law shall not be denied or abridged because of sex, race, color, creed or national origin."

Pines seeking third rep term

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) is seeking reelection in the 19th Middlesex District.

She has served two terms as the district's representative and when first elected, gave up her position as tax counsel and executive of a Boston corporation.

"When I first ran for office four years ago, I made several promises to the people of Newton," Pines said. "I pledged I would be a full-time representative of their interests, and that I would devote all my energies to making the governmental process work for them. After two productive terms. I am proud to say I have fulfilled my promises."

Rep. Pines, a member of the Committee on Taxation, considers her acheivements to be in the areas of fiscal responsibility, consumer advocacy, women's rights and public health and safety.

Pines cited the passage of her county tax reform law during her first term which, she said, has saved the Newton taxpayers $2 million "and will continue to save many millions more in the future."

She also mentioned an "active role" in securing passage of legislation to help elderly homeowners retain their homes by offering deferred tax payments and allowing the deduction of social security payments before a determination of eligibility.

Recently, the Arab Boycott Law, originally submitted by Pines, was signed into law.

Rep. Pines also noted her work in reform of the unemployment compensation system, her support of acceptance in $51 million in federal highway funds that the governor considered rejecting, opposition to a curfew at Logan Airport, support for off-shore petroleum exploration, establishment of solar energy research facilities, and her support for repealing Blue Laws.

Pines is also a sponsor of the "bottle bill," to ban non-returnable bottles in the state. She was instrumental in securing signatures for a referendum on the question this fall.

She was also, in the area of consumer rights, a sponsor of the Student Record Law, permitting students and parents access to public school records; and Tenant's Security Deposit Protection, Condominium and Homeowners' Protection, Patient's Bill of Rights, mandatory drug price posting, and easy-to-read insurance policies are among her other proposals to broaden consumer protection.

One of 14 women in the House of Representatives, she has been a leader in advancing women's rights, including Women's Right to Credit Law, Women's Right to full Insurance Coverage, Divorce Reform Law, Flexible Hours Law and Jury Reform Law. Her child care and dependent care tax deduction laws also assist 200,000 working women in he state.

She is also a sponsor of the Equal Rights Amendment.

In the area of public health and safety, she initiated the Smoking Rights Law, the Automatic Smoke Detector and Fire Warning Law and the School Bus Safety Law.

Rep. Pines, a former alderman-at-large in Ward 5, said her motto is "politics is action."

"My experience on Beacon Hill has been satisfying. There have been frustrations and disappointments. They have not, however, deterred me.

"I have been successful because I have been willing and able to work full-time as a state representative, a statement few of my collegues can make.

"We have accomplished much, but there is more to do."

Passman runs in 19th district

Howard U. Passman has announced his candidacy for state representative in the 19th Middlesex District, which includes Newton Centre, Chestnut Hill and Waban.

"I don't believe the incumbent has earned the right to automatic reelection on the basis of her record in behalf of Newton as well as the Commonwealth," the candidate said.

"We are witnessing an exodus of jobs to the north and this narrows our tax base. Yet, our spending habits have become increasingly burdensome to the taxpayers.

"We have all worked hard for the social, economic and medical programs now in effect, only to find that instead of helping those for whom they were intended, they are of benefit only to special interest groups, " he went on to say.

"Obviously, something is wrong.

"Maybe what's wrong is the Massachusetts Legislature and its apparent disregard for the taxpayers. The only way that we can hope for a change is to work for a strong two party system, because without a loyal opposition, it is you, the taxpayers, who are the real losers.

Howard Passman

"We must move in new directions. The old ways are not working. The voters must demand a change. Mere words won't do it, but an election day vote will."

Passman is an alumnus of the University of Maine and Kansas State University. He served with the First Infantry Division.

He is a member of Realty Lodge A.F. & A.M., Ward 8 Republican Committee and Ward 8 representative to the Newton Republican City Committee.

He is a member of the B'nai B'rith, Jewish Community Center, the New England Aquarium, Temple Beth Avodah and the Ripon Society.

Passman is the 32nd degree mason and pack master of Cub Scout Pack No. 270.

He and his wife, Barbara Jean, and two children, Scott, and Andrea, live at 89 Dorcar Rd., Newton Centre.

The candidate said he feels "it is time to put my skills in leadership, management and my knowledge of business to work for the people of Massachusetts."

He said he believes the issues confronting the state are "too important" to be bantered about by politicans, but should be solved by a man whose managerial skill will let him deal knowledgeably and honestly with the tough problems facing the people of the Commonwealth."

Passman is in computer sales and marketing.

"I will fight for tax reform," he continued. "I will fight to keep jobs. I will fight to bring jobs back to Massachusetts. I will work against the special interest groups who are depriving the needy of their benefits."

'State of the city'

Mayor emphasizes role of state in Newton affairs

The interrelationship of cities with each other and with the state was one of the themes of Mayor Theodore Mann's "state of the city" report to the Board of Aldermen Tuesday night.

In a 22-page address, the mayor remarked, "We can't have a healthy Newton without a healthy Boston." He went on to say that he was pleased that the recent problems with Metco funding have been resolved and the program will continue.

He pointed out, however, the cities and towns must continue to try to improve the "legislative climate" at the state level so that the legislature will not impose costly programs on municipalities without adequate funding.

"For it is very apparent that even as we, in the municipal department and in the School Department, struggle to keep our budgets at zero growth, we are thwarted by shortfalls because of commitments imposed on us by the state government"' the mayor said.

Another state mandate resulted in the court-ordered revaluation of Newton real estate, Mann said, which, witkout the two-year delay just granted, would have imposed severe hardships on some citizens.

Mann said he has asked City Solicitor Howard Levine to assist in preparing legislation to correct "the gross inequities" that revaluation will cause, and indicated that while the Board of Assessors "will work diligently to lessen the financial impact," the legislature must "update statutory provisions dealing with abatements needed for relief."

Turning to Newton's own municipal problems and accomplishments, Mann said the city is in excellent financial condition with a Moody rating of AAA, and an audit of the city's books by an outside firm of public accountants gave the city a "clean bill of health."

He complimented the Purchasing, Personnel and Accounting departments for their achievements in saving money and reducing costs of government.

Reviewing the schools, Mann commented that the closing of Newton Junior College has resulted in "substantial cost savings" to NKEWTON TAXPAYERS .

Further savings in the school area, the mayor said, will come from the sale or reuse of surplus school buildings and from a contract just signed for the site completion at Newton North High School, which will cost less than $400,000 less than expected.

The mayor remarked on the "notable strides" made by the Human Services Department in its programs for the elderly and listed acromplishments of the Recreation Department in providing facilities and activities for residents of all ages.

The mayor mentioned almost every department head and department of city government in laudatory terms, and especially thanked the 400 citizens serving voluntarily on boards, committees and commissions.

The mayor pointed to "several significant accomplisments" over the past year: occupancy of the first low-income family housing, the Norumbega land acquisition, the beginning of the community development housing rehabilitation program, and improvement in service at a lower assessment from the MBTA, among others.

In conclusion, the mayor said, "It becomes apparent that despite financial pressures and cutbacks we have succeeded in maintaining high standards in the delivery of municipal services.

"We are fulfilling our commitment to good government by accounting for our tax dollars and by doing our best to make every dollar count in public service for our citizens. This is an accomplishment in which all of us share and in which all can take pride . . . "

The mayor cautioned against complacency. "We should look ahead to the future as one for opportunities for genuine progress and achievement, for there is a firm foundation on which to build and move ahead with the times."

The speech was received with mixed reaction from the aldermen, mostly along predictable partisan lines. .

Correction

The Newton Graphic regrets any inconvenience caused by an error in the listing of the Weeks Junior High School opening schedule last week.

Eighth graders are to report to school Friday, Sept. 10, at 8:10 a.m., not that time on Thursday as reported.

Land Use items settled

In a relatively brief meeting of the Board of Aldermen Tuesday night, the Board handled mostly Land Use Committee matters.

Denied by the entire Board was a petition by the Newton YMCA to build a six-court tennis building on its property in Newton Corner.

The Board approved a petition for permissive use from the Eastern Squash Club to build another floor over the Charles River Skating Rink on Wells Avenue and to convert one of the rinks to squash courts.

Boston College was given permission to use a residence (the so-called Hovey House) at 258 Hammond St., Chestnut Hill, for faculty offices and seminar rooms.

Denials were voted for petitions from George Belair asking for a change of zone and permissive use to expand parking at at a retail food store at the corner of California and Bridge streets, principally beacuse of complaints from neighbotrs and lack of adequate parking.

Approved was a more stringent control of townhouse regulations.

Absent for the entire meeting were Carol Ann Shea and Robert Stiller.

School Department move delayed 2 months

The School Department's move into the the old F.A. Day Junior High School has been delayed another two months because the contractor had not passed last Wednesday's inspection by Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson.

Commissi Larson said there hadsome change oner orders made by the city and there would be no penalty for the delay.

The School Department has pushed the moving date ahead to Dec. 1, to insure the date will not be changed again.

Larson said he expects this week that the building will be ready for the city to accept by the end of the week.

Not ready for the last inspection were the fire alarm system, the elevator, the ceiling in the media resource center, and the general lack of cleaning.

Director of Support Services Roy Cornelius said one of the change orders by the School Department was a separate electrical panel for the computer center, instead of one combined with the air conditioning system.

$21,000 gone from Nonantum man's safe

More than $21,000 in currency and coins was stolen from safe in the basement of a Nonantum home this weekend.

Gerald Antonellis of 20 Jasset St., Newton, reported to police at 9:20 p.m. Sunday that a Mosler floor safe was pried open.

Missing from the safe was $20,000 in currency of $100, $20, and $10 demoninations, 30 to 40 silver dollars, three coffee cans full of quarters valued at about $500, and a man's wallet with $900 in it.

Also missing were two gold pieces of $5 and $10 demoninations, assorted men's and women's jewelry, and bankbooks.

Thieves used a one-inch pry bar to force the safe after entering throught the rear door of the house which was known to be secure at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Officers win injunction on 10-mile limit

Six Newton police officers who live more than 10 miles from the city limits are assured of their jobs for at least another month.

Middlesex County Superior Court Justice James Lynch ordered an injunction against Police Chief William Quinn that will stop him from taking any action aain st the officers, according to City Solicitor Howard Levine.

Judge Lynch told Levine and police union lawyers Joseph McParland and Gerald McAuliffe that he sat on the bench when the Boston police union had protes ted the 10-mile limit ruling, Levine said.

The judge ordered the injunction when Levine refused to agree to an injunction' and the judge said he would report the case to the state Appeals Court on Sept. 21.

Judge Lynch told Levine that the Newton police would be a companion case with the Boston case in Supreme Judicial Court, which is expected to be heard in October.

Thieves change locks after robbing store

A Chestnut Hill pharmacist arrived at his store early Tuesday morning and found himself locked out because the locks had been changed.

Thieves who apparently had a strong background in locks had robbed the drug cabinet during the night and relocked the steel grating and front door of the store.

Police received a call from Murray Snyder, the owner of Manet-Lake Street Pharmacy, 17 Commonwealth Ave., at 6:30 a.m., Tuesday, who said he couldn't get into his store. The drug store had closed at 8:30 p.m. Labor Day.

Det. William Fitzsimmons reported that thieves cut the padlocks on the front grating, removed the lock from the front door, and shut off the burglar alarm before taking an unknown quantity of drugs from the drug cabinet.

Police found the keys to the drug cabinet in the cabinet drawer, and thieves relocked the front of the store to make it look unentered.

Fence cut for $800 in tools

The Meade-McGrath Company was robbed of $800 worth of tools sometime over the weekend, police reported.

A five foot by three foot hole was cut in a chain-link fence at the Burton Avenue location in Newton sometime between 4 p.m. Friday and 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Thieves then forced a lock on a garage door and took auto mechanic tools marked with "SK."

Pot and greenery

While straight Americans continue to be uptight about legalizing or even decriminalizing the use of marijuana, they've ignored a passel of other greenery which legally can be - and is being - smoked in the country. Some of it is dangerous indeed.

Cigarettes imported from India often contain a tobacco that has as much as ten times the nicotine as in American cigarettes and they don't necessarily carry the surgeon general's warning, either. Others contain jimsonweed, highly poisonous in large amounts and hallucinatory in small. Jimsonweed is also used in making tea and one sipper who had used LSD reported that his jimson high was much worse than anything LSD produced.

Ironically, the various teas and smoking mixtures are most widely found in health food stores which became popular after publicity that chemical additives, artificial fertilizers, bug sprays and similar unnatural mixtures were polluting food to the detriment of the consumer. While certainly there was truth in the charge, the easy availability of some of the herbs and the fact that dangers in their use are not made known, isn't exactly a public service.

The United States Food and Drug Administration has banned the sale of teas made from sassafras if the essential oil safrole has not been removed as it is a suspected carcinogen. But the FDA says the teas are not food, so generally they do not come under its authority and the Drug Enforcement Administration doesn't characterize them as drugs or narcotics, either.

The decision apparently must be up to the would-be consumer to be sure the product he buys is no more lethal than pot.

So Howe is convicted

Rep. Allan Howe of Utah has been convicted by a city court and his conviction has been upheld by an appeals court of soliciting sex. Was the whole publicity-ridden incident worth it or should some laws be changed?

Howe violated a Salt Lake City ordinance. The complainants were two decoy prostitutes, hired by the police department to nail sex solicitors. Charges of entrapment and unconstitutionality of the ordinance were denied by the appeals court. It can well be argued that the fact the women indicated they were prostitutes when they weren't had nothing to do with the offense for which Howe was charged and convicted.

Yet prostitution and sex solicitation come under the heading of "victimless crimes." Is it really worth the hiring of decoys, prosecution, court proceedings and all the other costs involved to shake a naughty-naughty finger at Howe or others like him? At least the Salt Lake City ordinance implicates the man as well as the prostitute.

The appeals court judge gave Howe a suspended sentence of 30 days and said he could find no provision in the ordinance for imposing a fine, although Howe would have to pay court costs.

There may well be a tie between an individual's private morality and his public ethics. But who gets hurt in victimless crimes? Howe's wife, for instance, is sticking by him so far and she, after all, is the only really justified complainant. It is no business of anyone else what Howe's private sexual habits may be.

Carter called 'Southern fried McGovern'

By Gus Tyler

NEW YORK — A smart-tongued Republican wag has depicted Jimmy Carter as "southern fried McGovern."

That may be an apt label. And it may be just what the country wants: McGovern seasoned in batter and cooked over a high heat.

What was good in McGovern was nutritious for the nation. The meat of his candidacy was wholesome.

McGovern wanted, above all else, a more equitable distribution of wealth — with the poor not so poor and the rich not so rich. Most people would agree with him.

But the way he served out the idea left the dish looking embarrassingly raw: something about giving everybody a thousand dollars (including Rockefeller and J. Paul Getty) and then getting back from the well-to-do while the unwell-to-do held on to their gift from Uncle Sam.

McGovern wanted to put an end to the war in Vietnam — as did just about everybody else in the country. But his recipe was awfully untasty. He made no effort to render the settlement palatable. He just seemed to be saying that we ought to turn tail and run — back home.

McGovern wanted to do what he could to push the cause of the vulnerables: racial minorities, youth, women, draft dodgers.

Most Americans go along with the idea that these elements in our midst should not be the objects of social ostracism.

But at the 1972 convention the voices of these dissident "minorities" appeared to be the Democratic majority, screeching stridently in a countercultural cacaphony.

The meat of McGovern — greater economic equity, peace in the world, human rights — was good fare. But it was unseasoned and uncooked.

In the Southern-fried style of Jimmy Carter these essential ideas may prove to be delicious as well as nutritive.

Carter is not likely to get into a discourse on income redistribution with a flat formula for resolving the problem in a jiffy. But he is likely to appeal to the populist feeling that "money, like manure, stinks when it's all in one place but is just great when it's spread around."

Carter is likely to preach peace — both in secular and theologic tones. But his innate feel for the realistic makes him toughminded enough to know that weakness can invite war. He will seek power to prolong peace. Carter respects human rights, including the rights of those who, at the moment, may be unpopular to many Americans. But he did not allow the Democratic convention to become a circus, parading freaks.

While women, black youth, and draft evaders had their moments at the Democratic convention, they were gracing instead of disgracing the convention. They were outspoken without being outlandish.

Much of the platform this year is like the McGovern platform of 1972, with some significant differences, especially in regard to foreign policy. But the greatest difference between the candidate of four years ago and the candidate of today is a difference in style.

Carter is a chef who knows how to cook for the American taste. - .

Baby — you've got a long way to go

Commentary by Virginia Payette

Ms. Gloria and Ms. Betty won't like it, but the "you've-come-a-long-way-baby" folks are pep-talking job equality in — of all places — a magazine for women who don't mind being "sexual objects."

Yep, the very kind you find under hair driers. The kind that hint (brace yourselves, Lady Libbers) that when it comes to climbing corporate ladders, a little powder and paint won't hurt.

Brains help, of course. And professional training. But being young and ambitious and handy with the glamour-goos is, according to Glamour magazine's promotional blurb, why career gals are "moving up — faster!"

Then they rattle off a string of statistics that makes anyone who's been keeping tabs on the plight of women in the labor market wonder where all this good news came from.

Most of the data in my files show women are still as underpaid and underemployed as ever. In some areas, even more so..

But then you realize that the statistics have been chosen carefully — very carefully — to accent the positive. And you begin to wonder if maybe the ladies' movement hasn't been missing the boat in its grim determination to tell it like it is.

Not that it isn't as bad as they say. And not that they haven't won some pretty impressive victories. Don't forget, they brought the U.S. government to its knees and got an order ending sex discrimination on the job.

Trouble is, it takes more than a federal law to change things. It takes money — lots of it — to see that women are given an equal chance in the business jungle. And money is what the government and corporate training programs have been short of lately.

So maybe the women's movement should bite the bullet and tell it like it really is: that women who haven't made it by their 40th birthday aren't ever going to. That it's better to concentrate on psyching up the young ones for the battle.

This is a bitter pill for those of us who are over the hill. But sentiment has no place in business (an old boss's tale) and the truth is the future belongs to the kids between 18 and 35. The uppity-er they are, the better.

They're the ones who are going to crash through the wall of male prejudice and the masculine fear that their machismo (whatever that is) is threatened by any woman who earns equal pay for equal work.

The fact is, the magazine proclaims, women really are making gains.

Nearly 41 per cent of all professional jobs in the United States are held by women. Since 1962, the number of lady lawyers has more than tripled to 25,000 ... the number of women doctors has increased two and a half times to 34,000 ... and the male-dominated professions of accounting and engineering are getting more women than ever before.

They're making headway in industry, too. More than six million women are earning executive salaries in top management ... they're on the boards of more than 200 corporations ... half a million head up their own businesses ... and 61 per cent under 30 expect to make work their career, juggling husbands and children on the side.

This new independence has given them the confidence to demand — and get — concessions bosses wouldn't have heard of in the old days. Things like husbands and wives working for the same company ... getting promoted together ... even transferred together. Some wives — not many, but a few — even take their babies to the job with them.

Granted, the men still earn more. Even though a woman is the chief support for one out of every eight families these days and four out of 10 are single and support themselves.

Last year the median income of working women was just about half that paid to men — a setback from nearly 64 per cent in 1955.

But, like the Horatio Alger stories that led a generation of men to Strive and Win, success stories of women who've made it will improve the figures. You'll be seeing more of these stories, and more women rattling the door to the Executive Suite.

A Carter position?

When the smoke clears on abortion

Commentary by John D. Lofton, Jr.

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's official position paper on abortion — issued by his presidential campaign headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., on letterhead stationery — says he "personally" disapproves of abortion. It notes: "Abortion should never be considered just one of a number of equally acceptable methods of contraception."

But four years ago, when he was governor of the Peach State, Carter wrote the foreward to a book which advocates abortion as precisely this: just another form of birth control.

Called to my attention by the August 23 issue of the hard-hitting pro-life "Lifeletter" published by The Ad Hoc Committee in Defense of Life (Box 574, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10016), the book is titled "Women in Need," (Macmillan) and it is authored by Dr. Robert Hatcher and James Trussell Jr.

Dr. Hatcher is the director of Emory University's Family Planning Program and he is on the national board of Planned Parenthood. Mr. Trussell is a professor of economics and a faculty associate at Princeton University's Office of Population Research.

In his foreward message, Carter observes how until quite recently it was not possible to discuss openly "the contraceptive needs of couples." Now, he writes approvingly, "abortion and sterilization have joined contraception as important concerns for lawmakers, for the medical and religious communities, and, of course, for individual couples."

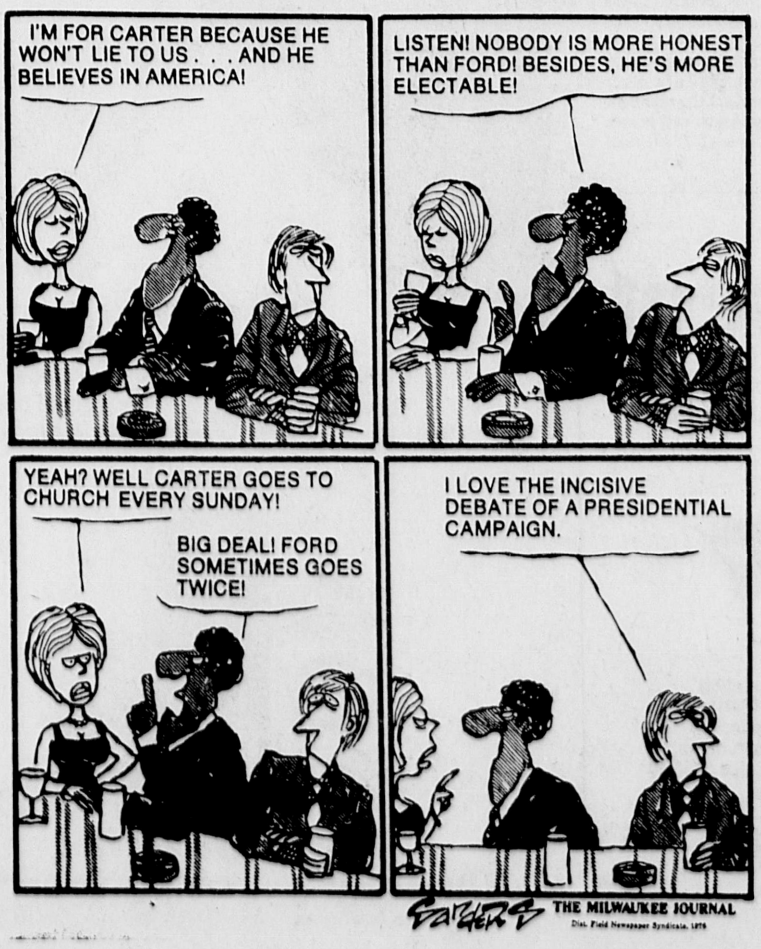

Referring to the chapters in the Hatcher-Trussell book, each of which concludes with a series of suggestions for the reader "who wants to accept a more active role in making sex education, contraceptives, abortion and sterilization more freely available in our society," Carter says the book "makes a plea to our citizens." He concludes: "I join them in making this plea to the American public."

Authors Hatcher and Trussell say they wrote their book to explore "the one problem which America has definitely not solved: the epidemic of unwanted babies."

Their plea for abortion — which Jimmy Carter joins in making — is positively rabid.

"Freedom from compulsory pregnancy," as they euphemistically call abortion, is "a basic human right." Furthermore' they say, the government should provide contraceptives to "each and every sexually active man and woman." The authors write:

"Abortion is certainly the most manifestly unavailable method of birth control. No woman should be forced to undergo a compulsory pregnancy. We think that each woman has the basic right to decide with her physician to terminate her pregnancy if she does not want to bear a child. Ultimately, only the availability of safe, legal abortion can guarantee this right."

To hear Hatcher and Trussell tell it, the lack of widespread availability of abortion-on-demand may mean the end of the Republic, as we have known it. The "medically unsophisticated" suffer from restrictive abortion laws, they say, not realizing "the great financial savings of having abortions performed as early in pregnancy as possible."

Couples in small towns suffer from these laws; men suffer from the expense of having to travel "hither and yon" looking for states with less restrictive abortion laws; children suffer because they may be "unwanted"; and yes, "mainly, we all suffer because we see the job being done miserably by society" — "the job" being the lack of availability of abortion-on-demand.

Hatcher and Trussell say nonrestrictive abortion laws would allow abortion to evolve from a crisis procedure to one "more or less routine" where women could get off the "wild merry-go-round of phone calls, visits to referral agencies, visits to physicians, and long waiting periods and uncertainty."

In fact, say the authors, drooling at the mere thought of such an ideal society, with no antiabortion laws, women "would find an atmosphere which would encourage thinking about the option of abortion before a situation arises in which they need one."

This is the plea in which Jimmy Carter joined Dr. Robert Hatcher and James Trussell Jr. in making to the American public.

Commenting on the upcoming debates between Carter and President Ford, Carter's press secretary Jody Powell says: "A face-to-face debate kind of smokes you out."

Indeed it does. Perhaps Ford will ask Carter about where he really stands on abortion. And if he stands where he stands now why did he write what he wrote four years ago?

The auestion is an interesting one, but the answer should prove even more fascinating.

Capital punishment

To the Editor:

For over 20 years I wrote letters to newspapers to present arguments for the abolition of capital punishment. At least two were published in the Newton Graphic. I would like to set the record straight as to my present position.

In 1972 the Supreme Court ruled that capital punishment was "crel and unusual punishment" and a violation of the 8th Amendment. This year, it resconsidered and changed the rules.

I have also reconsidered.

Thursday, July 14, 1966, a 24-year-old casual laborer and seaman, Richard Speck, entered a Chicago townhouse and murdered eight student nurses.

He was apprehended, tried and convicted, and sentenced to death. This was changed to eight consecutive sentences of 50 to 150 years each.

He is automatically eligible for a parole hearing, according to a neaspaper, Sept. 15. I don't suppose they will turn this man loose, but who can be sure?

If he were to be freed, that would mean he had served an average of 15 months for each young woman whose throat he had cut. This is only one aspect of a system that doesn't seem to make sense.

There have been many instances that verify the fact life imprisonment rarely means what it says. If that is so, then it is not inaccurate to say that without the death penalty, it is possible to get away with murder.

That should not be.

Sidney Zecher,
Chestnut Hill

Battle won

To the Editor:

Gov. Dukakis is to be commended for his recent stand on restoring funds for the Metco program.

It must also be noted that in Newton, Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Supt. Aaron Fink, State Sen. Jack Backman and local state representatives worked diligenty to restore funds for this important program.

In spite of the fact that two Newton School Committee meetings were convened during the summer to support the efforts of Mayor Mann and others, only a few School Committee members attended.

The majority of the members on the School Committee have made it clear for many months that they do not wish Metco to exist in Newton.

All of the citizens of Newton who believe that opportunities must be provided for children to experience first-hand a multi-cultural, multi-racial society are grateful to those among us who fought this battle during the last year.

Servitude

To the Editor:

Congratulations School Committee members Mandell, Ash, Delicata, LeConti and Prince.

Gov. Dukakis restored this year's Metco budget and it appears the Newton shortfall will be eliminated. However, I urge you to guard against any ongoing or future state attempts to put Newton in a position of involuntary servitude.

This program like any state program was created through the voter demand on a statewide basis. If this demand requires program reductions, it is fair and proper to so do.

Attempts by the state and other organizations to force local communities like Newton to make up these reductions is a violation of freedom of choice.

The equitable alternative to program reductions would be the creation of locally financed, independently operated voluntary programs.

Forcing the state to honor its commitments was proper and we should seek to remove and in the future protect Newton from being placed in positions of involuntary servitude to our state or federal government.

Robert A. Norcross Jr.,
Newtonville

Real heroes

To the Editor:

The Metco crisis is over in Newton and who but the Mayor has the last word? Being the great moralist he is, he reads his statement for TV and the written media as a reminder that the moral of the story is that the state must fulfill its responsibility of full funding of all of its programs.

This, therefore, makes it appear as if, in some way, the mayor was responsible for the favorable outcome of the crisis.

This couldn't be further from the truth. Newton citizens who attended School Commitee meetings and followed the problem in the media know that the mayor wanted the majority School Committee members to submit to Metco requests without any challenge. He constantly attacked these members in the local media and even attempted to use a few tricks of his own to get them to comply.

Our state representatives, who because of an upcoming election are now falling all over teach other claiming credit for the increase in Metco funds, also urged our School Committee members to capitulate to the threats and demands of the Metco organization. In this they were abetted by Ald. Ricmond, White, Saklad and their ilk, who overstepped their authority and forgot that their responsibilities to the Newton citizens are their first priorities.

Make no mistake about the true heroes of this Metco crisis. They are the five courageous School Committee members, Mandell, Prince, Ash, LeConti and Delicata. They knew they were right and held their ground in spite of unbelievable harassment from do-gooder aldermen, the mayor, the media and even those who once claimed to have supported them. They held to their commitment to the citizens of Newton. They made our state representatives do their jobs. They showed us what can be accomplished if we insist that Newon receive its fair share.

Finally, they are sitting back quietly and watching everyone take the credit for what they had accomplished.

A few more thoughts about the reactions of certain people. To Joan Saklad: a reminder that Mandell, whom she discredited, showed her the true meaning of the Voice organization.

To Bob Stiller: a very special thank you for your brilliant questioning of Fuller and Parks who had difficulty supplying answers.

reorganization of the Division of Program.

To replace Geoffrey Pierson who resigned in the summer, Fink will name Robert Kilburn, the current coordinator of science, to be temporary south side curriculum coordinator. An acting science consultant will be named to fill in the science department staff.

John Cullinane, director of pupil personnel services and special education, will have an administrative assistant on his staff to replace Gerald Peterson. Peterson was supervisor of special education last year and requested to be reassigned to the classroom.

Superintendent Fink said he will study the division and may suggest reorganization for next year.

The Committee also approved a request of the superintendent to have three decision-making positions removed from the Civil Service list.

These would be the director of budget and accounting, the supervisor of custodians, and the supervisor of attendance.

If the Board of Aldermen approve the request also, it will go to the state legislature before the names are removed from the list.

Currently Fink has to request a waiver from the Civil Service Commission to appoint his chosen people to these positions, unless they are certified teachers.

The Committee also heard a request from the city to have the School Department pay for its own Workmen's Compensation which was previously covered in a city-wide account.

The Committee agreed to fund the compensation temporarily until further information is supplied.

Leonard feels the role of the conductor is to deal with students on a group basis. He explains, "The conductor should relate to the people he is conducting. They should grow to appreciate music and have an enjoyable experience with the media. The conductor should attempt to bring out the expectations of the composer when he wrote the music."

Leonard is finishing a master of arts in childhood curriculum and development at Boston University. He has appeared as a guest conductor at the New England Music Camp.

Dor the fall season of 1976, with the Cultural Arts Program, he will be conducting a Newton Community Concert Band. The Community Band will be offered to the general public. For more information, call the Newton Recreation Department at 969-3171.

YEARLY GROWTH

MANILA, The Philippines UPI) — The Philippines has chalked up some $[illegible] million in earnings from tourism during the past 10 years, according to a central bank report. This represents an average yearly growth rate of 21.7 per cent.

The earnings from tourism accounted for 3.2 per cent of total foreign exchange earnings of the country, the report said.

David Long is Libertarian cadidate for state senate

David E. Long of Brookline has announced his candidacy for the State Senate from the Newton-Brookline district. e is a member of the Libertarian party.

He opposes Democratic incumbent Jack Backman.

Long has a B.A. from St. John's College (MD.) and has done graduate work in accounting and finance. He has been a resident of Massachusetts for nearly ten years. He is employed as a computer analyst and is 31 years old.

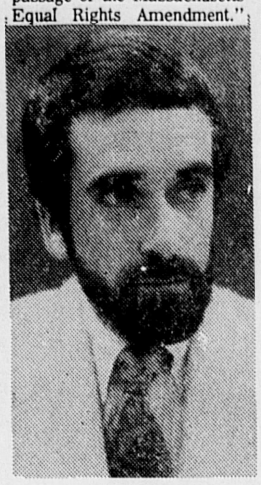

Long's announcement includes the following positions:

"As your State Senator I will do all in my power to reduce levels of state spending, taxing and regulating. The most obvious method of reducing our tax burden — and the one most ignored by most of our state legislators — is to reduce state spending. I am committed to reducing state spending across the board.

"I will work for an amendment to our state constitution mandating balanced budgets and zero-based budgeting for all state agencies; abolition of all state agencies which have been "captured" by the very groups they were supposed to regulate; reduction and gradual elimination of the corporate income tax; elimination of the myriad of taxes on essential goods and services; and equalization of environmental standards among governmental bodies, corporations, and private individuals (Why should the towns of Wellesley, Waltham and Watertown be permitted to grossly pollute the Charles River at the same time that large corporations are forced to spend millions on pollution control devices?).

"I will introduce or vote in favor of repeal of laws regulating adult consensual sexual behavior; decriminalization of such "soft drugs" as marijuana; examination of alternative methods of alleviating the problems of "hard drug" addiction; abolition of involuntary commitment laws, which permit incarceration of many persons who have broken no laws and harmed no one; and repeal of mandatory motorcycle helmet laws.

"I support immediate passage of the Massachusetts Equal Rights Amendment."

David Long

Long believes that schools should be funded and administered at the local level and "would curtail state funding of and state interference with local boards."

He also favors passage of enabling legislation permitting trial of the so-called voucher plan education, under which parents would receive a flat-rate allowance per child, which could be used in payment at any accredited school — public, private or parochial.

"I believe that the fundamental principle of our judicial system should be restitution to the victims of crime, and secondarily, punishment of criminals. "I am opposed to existing and pending legislation regulating firearms (particularly including the recent Bartley-Fox bill).

"Our prison furlough system is a shambles and must be thoroughly overhauled. Persons who commit violent crimes should under no circumstances be eligible for furloughs."

The Libertarian party was founded in 1971. It is organized nationwide and was the only new party to receive an electoral vote in the 1972 Presidential race. Its philosophy is based on the rights of an individual to life, liberty and property. Its platform calls for a free market economy, a strict respect for civil liberties and a noninterventionist foreign policy. Its 1976 Presidential candidate, Roger L. MacBride, is expected to be on the ballot in 40 states this November.

Backman headquarters opens

State Sen. Jack Backman's Brookline headquarters will open with a wine and cheese party Sunday ,Sept. 12, from 5 to 7 p.m.

Smoke detectors help avoid fires

Fires kill an average of 32 people each day in the United States and cost an average of $20.40 per person.

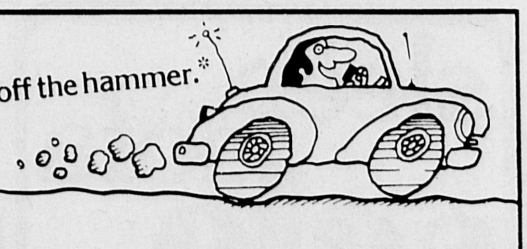

"Many of these deaths can be avoided by the installation of smoke detector units in the home and regular home fire drills," Chief Frederick Perkins of the Newton Fire Dept. said this week.

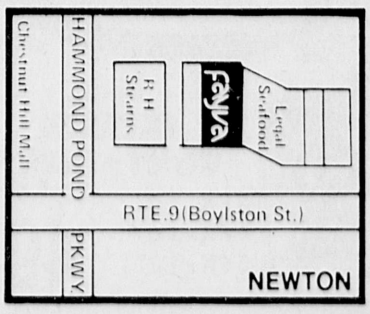

Information is available at Fire fire headquarters, 244-0030.

Perkins also said he wanted to remind parents that baby sitters should be carefully selected and attention to should be paid to picking someone who appears capable of handling emergencies.

"Be sure that before you leave the house you and the baby sitter take a tour and note exits from each room," Perkins suggested.

"Have the telephone number of the police and fire departments and you doctor available," Perkins said, "and leave a number where you can be reached. If the babysitter is going to do any cooking, explain the operation of your stove."

Traditional good looks suit many young men this Fall and Winter. This tan/Brown/Beige tweed jacket by Calvin. Alternates, herringbone and barleycorn striptes. Worn with gray flannel slacks and a white shirt.

Back to school means farewell to rugged jeans

With a new school year on the way, most youngsters have retired their patched and re-patched jeans to the back of the closet and it's up to Mom to persuade the boys to dress in something fresh and crisp.

Most mothers are grateful for "boy-proof" fabrics in "Dacron" polyester because it means no more hours spent ironing trousers and shirts or expensive trips to the drycleaner to keep junior's clothes looking neat.

In the past two years, there has been a new freedom as to what is worn both in and out of the classrooms. To go with jeans and slacks, for example, there are T-shirts emblazoned with pictures, slogans and zany sayings.

For dressier wear or cooler weather, there are the shawl collar sweaters that come in single and double-breasted versions, regular and turtleneck sweaters in updated patterns and colors as well as versatile shirt-jackets that can double as either warm over-shirts or outerwear.

For school, there are coordinated mix-and-match components and the very favorite leisure suit; easy matching or unmatched pieces that make boys happy because they're so casual and mothers happy because their offspring makes a neat appearance.

For dressed up times, the dashing, traditional three-piece suit, in a textured woven fabric with the new polished look that's a snap to keep that way.

If Johnny has always hated to wear a sweater, he'll change his mind this fall. It's the year of the sweater for young boys, just as it has been for men and women, and clothing manufacturers are offering a full curriculum of styles for back-to-school.

All too often boys have been known for peeling off their sweaters and forgetting them somewhere, because they're "too hot". One remedy for that problem is a lightweight pullover with narrow ribbed turtleneck and cuffs that looks like a sweater but is really a knitted shirt. In a plaid or solid cotton-polyester blend, it's right for cool early fall days.

The look is layered and that calls for some bulky-wrap sweaters over shirts or vests over shirts. Indian and geometric prints and lots of bold striping are the order of the day. Separates work nicely because colors and textures blend to give a very coordinated, casual look without being "cookie-cutter" look-alike styling.

Dress shirts are available in crisp stripes and plaids with the classic American flannel shirt becoming a best seller. Flannel manufacturers have been caught short this year because of the heavy European demand for this warm fabric. The young man will wear the flannel shirt over a turtleneck or with a neckscarf. The scarf adds fashion.

Leather jacket, this season, run in the brown family everywhere from the tawny golds to the deep oxblood reds. Many will feature short-waisted European styling, close to the body fit, special zipper treatment and pocket detailing.

In suits, the traditional vested version, worn with solid shirt and solid knit tie, has never looked more current. Continental styling blends with tweed and herringbone for the country gentlemen look. And equally well with the reversible vest model (that matches either jacket or pants) for the city look.

Following are some of the new fall-winter fashions for young men:

Tartan-plaid slacks with a coordinate-color jacket that's as easy as a shirt. Add a solid navy or black turtleneck and it's a neat look. A top-stitched jacket will go with all his slacks and jeans, and the pants are of easy-care, natural-look woven fabric.

The leisure suit for young men, such as the navy suit with sharply detailed patch-pocketed jacket and straight-legged pants suit of double-knit "Dacron" polyester.

Jump suits for young boys has been gaining new popularity, especially when the fabric is in striped denim or corduroy.

A snappy ecru tweed-look Fortrel and cotton knit shirt with two-button placket and collar is accepted with a plaid yoke and cuffs. The shirt doubles up with green cotton tie-dyed jeans with slightly flared bottoms and western style patch pockets.

A cotton knit long-sleeve pullover has a V-neck treatment with a striped crewneck bib inset and striped sleeves. A variety of Jersey shirts with smart racing stripes on the collar and up the front, pair off with navy or brown corduroy slacks.

Smartly styled with built-in protection against cold and snow is Mighty-Mac's handsome "Chevboy" coat. Its nylon outershell is insulated with 100 percent punched polyester and its generous hood zips open to form a collar. The "Lance Sargent" chevrons give the coat an added fashion touch. Other features a glove ring and most of all, the jacket is washable.

Today, boys have a considerable say in the choice of their clothes–and mothers are grateful because sensible wardrobes have been the end results.

Food and Fashion

by Ruth Lenson

Across the kitchen counter

For four excitement-filled days, the 100 happiest cooks around were guests of Pillsbury's 27th Bake-Off held here in Boston at the Statler-Hilton Hotel.

The all expense paid trip involved a busy schedule of sightseeing, a clambake festive dinner at the Aquarium, a formal dinner and food exhibit at the Museum of Fine Arts, dinner at Anthony's Pier 4 Restaurant. For many there was another famous landmark that had to be visited . . . Filene's Basement, and there were some lively discussions about "great finds" discovered there.

On Monday, it was Bake-Off time, with 100 General Electric ovens and work tables lined up in three aisles of the hotel's Grand Ballroom. Many of the cooks had been to previous Bake-Offs (some as often as 6 times) and calmly handled light bulbs popping all around as photographers captured the moment. There was also the confusion of television cameras, their cables, as well as constant questioning of the contestents by the media. On one occassion a woman had to dump her ingredients three times because she turned to answer questions and then couldn't recall whether the baking powder and salt had been added to the bowl's contents.

Would not being a $25,000 prize winner be a big disappointment to these people? Amazingly enough, the response was always the same, "No." Tiny Mrs. Marjorie Johnson, of Robbinsdale, Minnesota bubbled, "Oh no! I already consider myself a winner . . . I've been able to travel to Boston for the first time, and the Pillsbury people have given me the time of my life! If I won the top prize, I wouldn't be able to enter again, and to be perfectly frank, I've already begun testing new recipes for the 28th Bake–Off!"

There was a lesson in budgeting from tall, friendly Barbara Balejko, of Titusville, Florida (who later won $2,000 for her Lemon Delight Pound Cake). I'm a real good shopper, and that's why I can feed a family of five (and my dog who eats only my food) for $40 a week," she said proudly. "All my neighbors ask me to shop for them or come with me, because I show them how to really stretch the dollar!" Barbara's method lies in reading food ads on Thursday morning and making out a careful grocery list for shopping at all the food stores within a 2 mile radius. "When I see a bargain, I buy it, and my freezer can't hold another toothpick. I waste nothing . . . if I have a roast beef for dinner, the next day I cube the leftover beef and fresh vegetables and put it all into a large skillet; thicken it with gravy and serve it over rice or potatoes. I never buy junk food! Before a holiday like Thanksgiving or Christmas, I buy turkeys on sale and freeze them. Barbara was delighted to win the $2,000 and said that her entire winnings would go towards paying off her doctor's bills incurred because of recent major surgery.

The lucky winners laughed and wept with happiness on hearing their names called by television celebrity host, Bob Barker. Following the elaborate award program, there was much hugging and kissing by contestents, the signing of autographs and promises by new found friends to "keep in touch" as they parted for the trip back home.

No, there are no losers in the Pillsbury contest. All contestents had enjoyed the past 6 months of expectation and had finally realized the great thrill of competition. It was now time to look forward to the 28th Pillsbury Bake-Off.

Following are a few of the winning recipes. (All 100 recipes will appear in a cookbook form within a month.)

WHOLE WHEAT RAISIN LOAF
$25,000 Winner
Mrs. Edward F. Smith, Harahan, La.

2 cups milk
¾ cup water
¼ cup cooking oil
3 to 3¾ cups all purpose or unbleached flour (Pillsbury)
½ cup sugar
3 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
4 cups Pillsbury's Best Whole Wheat Flour
1 cup rolled oats
1 cup raisins

In medium saucepan, heat first three ingredients until very warm (120 to 130 deg.). (Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup; level off.) In large bowl, combine warm liquid, 2 cups all purpose flour, sugar, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and yeast. Beat for 4 minutes at medium speed. By hand, stir in whole wheat flour, oats, raisins and remaining all purpose flour. On well floured surface, knead dough until smooth and elastic, about 5 minutes. Place in greased bowl. Cover; let rise in warm place 20-30 minutes. Grease 2 9x5 or 8x4 inch loaf pans. Punch down dough; divide and shape into 2 loaves. Place in greased pans. Brush with oil or melted margarine. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubles in size, 30-45 minutes until deep golden brown and loaf sounds hollow when lightly tapped. If loaf becomes too brown, loosely cover with foil last 10 minutes of baking. Immediately remove from pans. If desired, brush with oil or margarine and sprinkle with sugar. Makes 2 loaves.

CRESCENT CARAMEL SWIRL
$25,000 Winner
Mrs. Bert Groves, San Antonio, Texas

½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup chopped nuts
1 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons water
2 cans (8 oz. ea.) Pillsbury Refrigerated Quick Crescent Dinner Rolls

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. (350 F. for colored fluted tube pan). In small saucepan, melt butter. Do not use pan with removeable bottom. Coat bottom and sides of 12-cup fluted tube pan with 2 tbs. of the melted butter; sprinkle pan with 3 tablespoons of the nuts. Add remaining nuts, brown sugar and water to butter; heat to boiling, stirring occasionally. Remove crescents from cans in rolled sections; do not unroll. Cut each section into four slices. Arrange 8 slices in prepared pan, separating each pinwheel slightly to allow sauce to penetrate. Spoon half the caramel sauce over dough. Repeat with remaining dough, toppong slices in pan; pour remaining caramel sauce over dough. Bake 25 to 30 minutes (30-35 minutes for colored fluted tube pan) until deep golden brown. Cool for 3 minutes; turn onto serving platter or waxed paper. 10-inch ring coffee cake. Generic Term: refrigerated crescent dinner rolls.

LEMON DELIGHT POUND CAKE
$2,000 Winner
Mrs. Barbara A. Balejko

2½ cups Pillsbury's Best All Purpose or Unbleached Flour
1½ cups sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup apricot nectar or orange juice
¾ cup cooking oil
2 teaspoons lemon extract
4 eggs
Glaze:
1½ cups powdered sugar
½ cup lemon juice

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Generously grease (using 1 tablespoon solid shortening) and flour 12-cup fluted tube pan (non-stick finish pan, too). (Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup; level off.) In large bowl, combine all except Glaze ingredients; beat for 3 minutes at medium speed. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 40-50 minutes until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Remove cake from oven. Prick deeply every inch with fork. Blend Glaze ingredients until smooth. Spoon half of Glaze over hot cake in pan. Let stand 10 minutes; invert onto serving plate. Spoon remaining Glaze over cake. (If using Pillsbury's Best Self Rising Flour, omit baking powder and salt.)

The $25,000 BAKE-OFF winner was Mrs. Edward F. (Lenora) Smith, above, an unemployed bookkeeper from Harahan, La., with "Whole Wheat Raisin Loaf," which uses four cups of whole wheat flour.

SEILER'S CLAM OR QUAHOG CHOWDER

(An original old recipe from a well-known Boston caterer.)

1 quart clams or quahogs, shucked, reserve juice
1¾ quarts potatoes, diced or sliced thin
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup onion minced
½ cup flour
2 quarts milk
1½ teaspoons sugar
Salt and pepper to taste

Drain clams or quahogs and reserve juice. Cut off and discard black part of clam necks. Split remaining part of necks, chop with side pieces and simmer lightly in a little bit of water. Reserve juice. Cut bellies in half. If using quahogs, chop and simmer 5 minutes, reserving juice. Boil potatoes in clam juice until just done. Melt butter; add onion and saute until soft but not brown. Add flour, hot clam juice and scalded milk. Combine all ingredients and let come to a slow simmer for 5 minutes. Reduce heat to low. Do not overheat. Add a few broken Pilot crackers on top. May be frozen if there is any left over. (Recipe donated by Irving Seiler.)

BLUEBERRY STREUSEL MUFFINS

2 cups sifted all purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar
1 egg
1 cup commercial sour cream
one-third cup milk
¼ cup salad oil
1½ cups blueberries

STREUSEL TOPPING:

½ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
¼ cup flour, unsifted
1 teaspoon cinnamon
3 tablespoons margarine

Oven temp. 425. Greased muffin tins. Sift first 5 ingredients and set aside. Beat egg until thick. Add sour cream and milk. Beat to combine. Stir in oil. Add all at once to sifted flour mixture. Stir only to blend and fold in berries. Turn into greased tins, filling ¾ full. Sprinkle streusel over batter and bake for 15 to 20 minutes. To make streusel, mix the 3 dry ingredients. Then with pastry cutter, cut in butter until particles are fine and mixture crumbly. (Apple pieces may be used in place of blueberries.)

Question: First, I would like to thank you for that marvelous Promenade Onion Cheese bread that was in this column recently. I would like to make my own biscuit mix because I feel that the commercial product used in the recipe is quite over-priced. Can you help me? Thank you again for the very best onion quick bread I've ever eaten!

Mrs. M. R., Westwood

Answer: I quite agree with you, the Promenade restaurant was most generous in sharing their prize recipe. Here is your Master Biscuit Mix:

HOMEMADE MASTER BISCUIT MIX

5 pounds sifted all purpose flour
¾ cup double acting baking powder
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon cream of tartar
½ cup sugar
2 pounds shortening which does not require refrigeration

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, cream of tartar and sugar. Then sift 3 times more. Add shortening and chop in until mix has the consistency of corn meal. Store in covered containers at room temperature. Add necessary liquids when ready to bake. Makes approximately 24 cups mix.

TO MAKE BISCUITS:

3 cups mix
two-thirds cup milk

Mix and knead ingredients lightly. Roll ½ inch thick and cut in 2-inch rounds and bake 10 min. on cookie sheet in 400 degree oven.

Question: Years ago I had a very easy to make crumb cake and it was delicious and best of all, didn't require an icing of any sort. I recall there were raisins in it and it was dark. I'll look forward to seeing it in your column.

Mrs. H. C., Dedham

Answer: Old fashioned it is and still a very good coffee cake. I hope this is the recipe you're searching for.

SALLY'S CRUMB CAKE

2½ cups all purpose flour
½ cup shortening
2 cups brown sugar, packed down
2 eggs
¾ cup milk
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup raisins

Put shortening, brown sugar and 2 cups of flour into mixing bowl. On low speed allow mixture to blend until shortening is cut into tiny particles and mixture is crumbly. Remove ¾ cup of this mixture and set aside. (This will be the topping.) To the remaining crumb mixture, add the eggs, ½ cup of the flour, milk, baking powder, cinnamon, salt, vanilla and raisins. Beat at low speed until batter is smooth. Pour into lightly greased 9x11-inch pan; sprinkle the ¾ cup of crumbs over top of batter and bake in 350 degree oven for 45 minutes. Allow to cool in pan. To serve, cut into squares.

Pour medium white sauce over chicken, then drop lots of sesame seeds on the chicken; cover with foil and bake for 1 hour in a 350 degree oven.

WHITE SAUCE

2½ tablespoons flour
2½ tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk

testimonial from a SmokEnder graduate...
Smoking dominated a good many years of my life. I smoked 2 packs a day for 28 years and was sure I could never quit. At the outset I was SmokEnders biggest critic. I am still amazed at how easy it was. Now 15 months later I am still a non-smoker and a grateful graduate. As a professional nurse and health educator of the public, I can now hold my head up and not feel embarrassed by my tobacco habit. It worked for me!

Empty seats outnumber full seats 4 to 1.

That's the way it is during rush hour. Four times as many empty seats in cars as full ones. Think about that while you're sitting in traffic.

Share the ride with a friend. It sure beats driving alone.

Fall art exhibit and sale will include crafts, greens

For just about a quarter of a century the Newton Art Assn. has been holding a fall outdoor exhibit of members' works each year. Art will join crafts on the green in Newton Centre Square, Saturday, Sept. 18 (rain date, Sept. 25).

Small paintings for $25 or less will offer art appreciators a lot of artist effort for bargain prices. Other paintings are for sale, too, so inquire at the information table.

There's plenty of visual enjoyment from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Judges will choose the best art work in two categories fo the new Chester Reed-Carl Stiles Award in the morning. At 2 p.m. prize ribbons will be awarded in honor of Newton Art Assn.'s founder, watercolorist, the late Jame King Bonnar. Public votes will decide the best-liked paintings.

Watch artists at work painting in different media in the Newton Centre park opposite Brigham's and Sage's Market.

Local craftspeople are invited to call 332-6585 if they wish to join the creative day or seek information on the Newton Art Association. Crafts demonstrations are welcome.

Greenery for indoors or outside planting will be alongside a table laden with home-cooked goodies and a gift table, too.

Newton's recycling program will get a boost in an artistic way at a booth where up-to-date information will be available on the status of Newton's program and lans for improvements in pickup and in communications. Organizations may sign up for a new traveling slide show now in the works.

The foster care program at the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Multi-Service Center, an agency which provides counseling and other services to adolescents, needs adults who are interested in being foster parents for one-to-six-month periods.

An orientation program and ongoing training will be provided by the Placement Coordinator and other clinical staff.

If you are interested in being a foster parent, or have any questions regarding the foster care program, contact Shelley Stahl, placement coordinator, at 244-4802.

Newton Football Club Wins Boston Park League Crown

The Newton Football Club, past winners of the Suburban Soccer Twi-League, last Wednesday night became champions of the Boston Parks and Recreation Soccer League by beating the Trinidadian team, Flamingo, 2-1, before a crowd of several hundred at Franklin Field, Dorchester.

Led by player-coach Alf Wilson (an Englishman who teaches at Meadowbrook Junior High), the team, which loosely built around ex-Newton High players, Skip Stearns, Paul Maregni, Tom Brazier and Jake Broderick, took an early lead with a goal by Maregni, from inside the box.

No more goals would be scored until the final second of the game, but the next two hours were to produce what referee Angello Bratfif claimed to be the finest amateur soccer that he had ever officiated in America.

Newton's tough defense of Maregni, Tom Bagley, Bill Murray and sixteen-year-old George Kalimedes was superbly mustered by centre-full Charlie Henne, keeping the fast Flamingo forwards at long range. Even so, Newton goalies Gary McGrath (first half) and Rick Shafer (second half) were forced into spectacular saves before, in the eighteenth minute, Flamingo found a chink in the armor and forced the ball through for the equalizer.

Twenty minutes of overtime produced great attacking moments from both teams but no change in the score. The crowd was then treated to the bonus of twenty minutes of "sudden death" overtime. A gruelling, concentration sapping experience for the players. After eighteen close minutes Newton forward Abdel Berrada from Casablanca, Morocco, beat two men and unleashed a shot that flew inches wide.

Seconds later Brazier and John K. were allowed to get off fine shots at goal and a tired Newton offence realized that the tough Flamingo defence was even tireder. Sixteen-year-old Sal Distefano crossing from the left wing found Stearns heading wide and, seconds later, dropped the ball near Broderick who backheeled it over the defenders and goalie only to see it bounce off the crossbar. But finals like this one rarely end so casually.

A long lob from Wilson in midfield placed former English professional John Chatterton into a tussle with two Flamingo defenders. A high ball over their heads, a follow-through to beat the goalie and Chatterton breasted the ball over the line.

The largely Spanish speaking crowd erupted, and the visiting Newton team found itself the focus of a local carnival, and champions of the Boston Soccer League.

N.A.A. Lions blank Saugus, down Uniondale, N.Y.

The N.A.A. Lions prepared for their League home opener against Methuen this Sunday, by defeating the Saugus Buccaneers 14-0 on Tuesday and the Uniondale Badgers of New York 12-2 on Saturday.

In the Saugus game, halfback Chuck Pepper scored two T.D.'s and rushed for 126 yards in 17 carries. Team-mate Mike Gorski had 56 yards in 10 carries, Larry Chin 34 yards in 3 carries and fullback Bill Penzo 15 yards in 2 carries. Mike Kasten kicked the "Points After Touchdown" after the first touchdown.

In a rematch of last years interstate game, the Lions scored in the third and fourth periods while allowing the visitors an intentional safety.

The Lions were not sharp however as they lost 6 fumbles and had one interception. The key play came in the third period when the Lions had a second and one at their own 44 and quarterback, Joe Deasy, faked into the line and hit halfback Mike Gorski streaking down the right sideline for the touchdown. The point after kick was wide left.

In the fourth quarter, and also the ensuing exchange, the Lions defense forced Uniondale to punt and the Lions return team sent Gorski 30 yards down the right side line to the 25.

Seven plays later Chuck Pepper lunged in from the six. Again the point after kick was wide to the left.

The Badgers picked up their two points late in the fourth, with a first and goal at the five, the result of a long pass completion, the Lions defense held.

However, with a fourth and six at the one, the Lions elected for the safety and a free kick from the 20.

Offensive line man that played well were Scott Freeman, Joe Scroppo, Jeff Kabot, Carl Shishmanian, Mark Fleming, Mike Kasten and Mark Phillips.

Bill Penzo blocked well from the fullback spot. Playing well on defense were Dave Goldman, Scott Hayden, Pete Kanellias, Jim Donlan, Bill Penzo, Rob Steinberg, Mark Fleming and Larry Chin.

The Lions home opener will be against the Methuen Tigers this Sunday at the Newton Highlands Playground. The N.A.A. Tigers will also play Methuen while the "C" Cowboys travel to Dracut.

The Lions captains for the 1976 season are Chuck Pepper, Bill Penzo, Joe Scroppo and Joe Deasy.

Royal weeping as his Longhorns invade BC

BOSTON (UPI) — Darrell Royal is moaning again about his backfield problems as the University of Texas hones its horns for Boston College in one of eight Saturday games to open the New England collegiate football season.

In other matchups, Division II semifinalist New Hampshire plays at Holy Cross, where new coach Neil Wheelwright has installed the Wishbone offense; Massachusetts begins at home in a tough intersectional battle against Toledo; Northeastern entertains C.W. Post; Springfield and new coach Howie Vandersea travel to Cortland State; AIC, with first-year coach Bob Burke, head for Albany State; Central Connecticut is at home against Clarion; and Maine stays home to meet St. Mary's of Halifax, N.S.

Royal, speaking Tuesday from Lubbock, Tex., via a telephone hookup, told New England football writers his Longhorns "haven't scored a touchdown yet in our scrimmages against the defense. I'm very much concerned about the outcome of the B.C. game.

"Considering B.C. was in the top 10 nationally in defense and eight starters are back from last year, I don't know if our offense can move the ball or not."

Texas, which beat the Eagles, 42-19, in their only other meeting two years ago at Boston College, will start little-used Mike Cordara at quarterback. But Royal said he was unsure whether fullback Bill Campbell or his backup Jimmy Walker could play because of injuries. Johnny "Hamlin" Jones, a starting halfback, also is hurt.

Campbell has a bruised toe and Walker a sore shoulder.

The Longhorns also have freshman flash Johnny "Gold Medal" Jones, part of the winning U.S. Olympic relay team, as a reserve back.

The Inside View — By Joe Fitzgerald

Pole is proof baseball takes courage

Baseball, like most American institutions, endures its share of barbs and arrows, sometimes even gracefully, but the one criticism which always cuts to the marrow is the charge that it's a soft, leisurely endeavor played by complacent men who reflect the sport's gentle demeanor. In a bit of commercial men who reflect the sport's gentle demeanor. In a bit of commercial chauvinism, basketball people like to lampoon baseball's utter lack of concern for conditioning, while the football and hockey brethren are wont to pooh-pooh the non-violent nature of our national pastime.

Baseball men, of course, bristle at the suggestion their game is a barrel of laughs.

"Maybe it's not as physically tough as football or hockey," former Red Sox manager Darrell Johnson once responded, "but I'd like to see some of the players in those sports stand up at the plate against a Nolan Ryan. Let him throw that aspirin tablet at them - let him bury it in their ribs just once - and then tell me what they think of baseball's toughness. That kind of pain hurts as much as anything in sports."

But the spectre of the hit batsman is just one side of the story. Potentially more horrifying is the constant threat of a line drive tearing into a pitcher's face.

The most famous such incident probably occurred in 1957 when New York's Gil McDougald drove a fastball into the eye of Herb Score, Cleveland's brilliant young pitching star who was 20-9 the year before.

"I always used to pray on the mound before a game," Score once said. "When some of the players noticed it, they began to kid me. Then came the night I almost lost my eye, and those same players began praying for me, too."

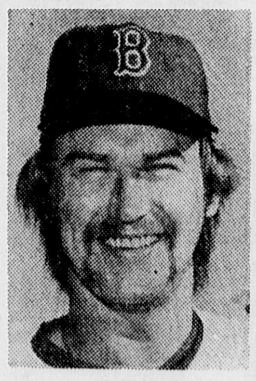

Score never came close to regaining his effectiveness, and his tragedy remains a constant reminder of the hidden dangers in the game.

It's something young Dick Pole often thought about, long before his right cheekbone was shattered by a line drive off the bat of Baltimore's Tony Muser midway through last season.

"Sure a pitcher thinks about that," he says. "One time in Triple-A I was facing a kid named Richie Zisk, a big powerful guy. I tried to jam him with a fastball and he swung at it with all his might. I ducked my head, put my glove up to my ear and stumbled four steps backwards. When I peeked up, there was the damned ball lying on the mound in front of me. I guess his bat just nicked it. So I grabbed it and threw im out. I'm sure I looked foolish, but it was a natural reaction."

But natural reactions aren't always enough, he points out.

"So many times I've seen balls shoot out towards the pitcher. They'll whiz over his head, and later the guy will say, 'Good thing I ducked!' But hell, he didn't duck until the ball was out to center field.

DICK POLE

"Let's face it, the best-fielding pitchers in baseball are still apt to get hit, and there's nothing they can do about it. You're 60 feet away when you begin the pitch, and maybe only 52 or 54 feet away at the end of your follow-through. And your whole body is jerking so much that there's often no way to really see the ball once you release it.

"The head is a small target, and you don't have to move it very much to get it out of the way, but still there's a lot of luck involved.

"Earlier this year Luis (Tiant) was all bent over, right at the end of his motion, when Rod Carew drilled a shot right into his glove! It was a great out. But suppose it had been an inch to the left or right? Tiant never saw the ball until he looked in his glove."

The shot which struck Pole didn't knock him out.

"I knew what had happened," he recalls. "Have you ever been hit in the head, and then started to feel it ring? That's how I felt. I could hear a weird sound coming from in there, but it didn't really hurt because my whole head was numb."

X-rays showed his cheekbone had been crushed, and later his vision was troubled by depth perception, but Pole is a determined, spirited kind of guy, so no one was too surprised when he reported ready for action just 10 weeks later.

But the physical comeback was only half of the battle. There was also a mental war to fight.

"Concentration is 95 per cent of pitching," the 25-year-old redhead explains. "A lot of times you'll see a pitcher get knocked around when he has good stuff. That's because his concentration is off. It's happened to me. I'll have a great fastball and breaking stuff in the bull pen, then go into the game and get shelled because my mind isn't in it.

"So I knew concentration was going to be important to me if I was going to make it back."

Despite his awareness of the problem, he had difficulties.

"When you pitch down and away to someone, especially a lefthander in my case, chances are he'll hit the ball right up the middle. But I'd try to go low and away and I'd miss the plate by a foot. And I'd know why I wasn't thinking of where the ball was going as much as I was worrying about what I'd do if it was hit right at me. That ruined my concentration out there, and I just told myself I'd have to fight it every pitch."

Pole did just that, all winter long down in the Dominican League, where he posted a winning record and impressed everyone. "I told myself if I could see the ball under those lights down there, I had to be okay," he laughs. "By the time this season started, I was fine again. Now when balls are hit up the middle, I don't even think about them."

Unless, that is, he remembers the danger. But he tries not to.

North gridders get season underway next week

By RICH GROSSMAN
Sports Correspondent

Another Newton North football season will get underway next Saturday, September 18, when the Tigers host Framingham North of the Bay State league at 1:30 p.m.

Last year's 15-6 triumph over the Spartans in the opening game started Newton on the way to an 8-2 record overall. The Tigers' Suburban league record was 4-2.

The only two blemishes on the Tigers' record came in losses to: North Quincy (28-0), the runner up in the Division I Super Bowl, and Brookline (7-6) which was lost in a tiebreaker on a cold, rainly Thanksgiving Day.

The Tigers' outstanding performance last year surprised most fans who considered Newton to be in a rebuilding year, with a large crop of underclassmen.

North coaches attributed their fine showing to the superior conditioning of their players who did not tire out in the latter stages of the game as did their opponents.

Head coach Norman Walker and assistants Pat Coleman, Peter Capadalupo, and John Murphy hope to have to players in as good condition this year.

The team has been practicing in morning and afternoon sessions since the end of August and continues right up to the start of school. Included in the team's preseason have been scrimmages with Milton, Walpole, Burlington, and Natick.

"Framingham North should be a key test for the team," commented defensive coordinator Pat Coleman. "Whereas Framingham has many players that are very big, our squad is made up of mostly smaller players. The important question will be if our conditioning and quickness can beat their size."

Personnel

The captains for this year's team ure Mario (Who) Lucetti, a running back and a safety, and quarterback John Riley.

Riley will be fighting it out with another senior, Kevin Hinchey, for the signal calling spot. It is expected that coach Walker will use both Riley, who is the more aggressive of the two and a slightly better rusher and Hinckey, the more poised of the two and the better passer.

Another strong point for the Tigers this year will be their kicking game. Returning is junior Steve Fleming, who handled the kicking and punting last year when punter Ray Valente was sidelined early in the season. Sharing the punting duties this year will be Gene DuBois and backing Fleming up in the kicking will be soccer style kicker Dallas Morgan.

Line coach Peter Capadalupo summed up some of the team's strengths and weaknesses.

"We have talent in some of the specialized positions. We have fine quarterbacks, punters, receiver, running backs, and even an excellent center for special teams (Joe Dalton), but we are as green as spring grass when it comes to our defensive line and linebackers. Our seven starters from last year all graduated. This year's defensive line and backfield is inexperienced but quick. They have tremendous desire and will not quit and are improving rapidly.

"Quickness, conditioning, and kicking—those are our strong points."

The Tigers have several returning running backs with Jim Acheson, Steve Fleming, and Mario Lucetti. Shota Aki, a junior, shows much promise at running back and middle guard. Also looking to be an important factor in the defensive line is senior Al Leone, a tackle.

With Acheson and Bob Manning returning at cornerback spots and Lucetti back at safety the defensive secondary looks sound with only one safety spot to be filled by an untried player.

Head coach Walker commented, "Our offensive backfield is quite experienced and we have a couple of fine quarterbacks. Our offensive line has some new and some old faces, but it is looking strong. Our kicking game looks to be exceptional.

"The defense remains our main problem. We have some experience in the secondary and up front we have some fine raw talent which needs work, but is coming along nicely."

Field & Schedule

With the new athletic fields almost underway it is expected that the football field will be resurfaced sometime during the season. Since both North and South both use the field for five weeks during the season it is impossible to know who will have to move the location for one or more of their home games.

Following next week's game the Tigers will face: Medford, Brockton, Weymouth North, Quincy, North Quincy, Boston Latin, Weymouth South, Waltham, and the annual Thanksgiving Day classic in which the Tigers will host the always tough Wealthy Towners of Brookline.

League champions

Sports scribes needed

The Graphic needs sports correspondents to cover the upcoming fall season at Newton North and Newton South High Schools.

Those wishing to cover boys or girls sports at either high school are asked to call Jim Williams at 329-5000 as soon as possible.

Heinsohn receives B'Nai B'Rith award

The First New England Sportsman Award was presented to Celtics Coach Tom Heinsohn at the opening meeting of the New England B'nai B'rith Sports Lodge, August 19th, at Sidney Hill Country Club.

A capacity crowd of 150 sat in on the proceedings presided over by President Dave Pearlman with Program Chairman Mike Kaye and Vice President Johnny Most.

In leading the Celtics to another in their long string of championships, Heinsohn was honored for also becoming the "winningest active coach in the NBA." A plaque was presented citing Heinsohn's "commitment to practice and support our national ideals of sportsmanship and brotherhood."

In accepting the award, Heinsohn revealed that twenty years ago, as a college senior at Holy Cross, his first function, as a draftee of the team, was an honorary dinner by B'nai B'rith for the Celtics. Now two decades and 13 championships later, he was honored by this same organization.

President Pearlman stated that New England Sports Lodge can be a potent force for good, not only for B'nai B'rith but for the general community as well.

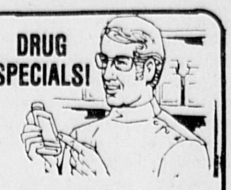

"Sports and interest in sports is the great denominator," he declared, "it brings us all together. Through a powerful and interested lodge, we can serve as a communal band of sports forum; we can take note of those Jews and non-Jews who have distinguished themselves through sports participation."

The B'nai B'rith New England Sports Lodge is planning a reception in honor of the champion Boston Celtics on Order 18th prior to the start of the 1976-77 campaign. Future programs include activities for BBYO, Community, Youth, Hillel and interlodge sports activity.

Community Service Centers expand day care, fall courses

Registration for all fall activities sponsored by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. is now underway, according to Anthony J. Bibbo, ACSW, agency executive director.

Bibbo stated that many of the activities which have become popular traditions of the centers will be continued, and many new offerings will be provided based upon a wide community demand.

The fall brochure, which contains a complete activity listing, has been mailed to all Newton families with children in the Newton public schools. The brochure is available to all by either phoning 969-5906 or visiting 429 Cherry St., West Newton, or 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner.

Day care is being offered at two locations; 85 Crescent ave., Newton Centre, and 75 Vernon St., Newton Corner.

Elaine Grossman, day care director, stated that this program is designed to provide a warm, flexible, and nuturing environment where children can grow and be happy.

The centers are structured to enable each child to maximize his or her potential through noncompetitive and open-ended experiences. Hours of operation are 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., with a hot nutritious lunch included.

In addition, after-school care is available for elementary school children during the hours of 11:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. The center is open during all school vacations from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and is located at 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner.

A child center in West Newton is headed by Susan Werbs and is available 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. This is a preschool program that provides experiences, materials, and physical space to enrich and foster child development. Newton Headstart for preschool children is also included in the brochure.

Programs for elementary school children are diverse and have been scheduled by Bonnie Algeri and G. Michael Gardner, agency branch coordinators.

In response to heavy community demand, an after-school program on Tuesdays and Thursdays is scheduled at the Pomroy House for 7-to 12-year-olds. This activity runs 1 to 6 p.m. and will function 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. during school vacations all five weekdays.

Among other children's activities are Drama, Crewel Embroidery, Sewing, Woodworking, Crafts Classes, Baton School, Ballet and Tap School, and the popular Saturday Camp for 7-to at the Hale Reservation in Westwood will be in operation.

For teens, drop-in centers funded in part by the Newton Recreation Dept. will be in operation weekends throughout the city under the coordination of John Colantonio. In addition, a drop-in at 429 Cherry St., West Newton, will function each weekday afternoon and evening.

Newton Job Bank will continue to function each day under the coordination of Michael Gardner and support of the City of Newton through the Department of Human Services.

Specialities for teenagers in Crafts, Golf School, Cake Decorating, Weight Watching, Baton, and the popular Jazz Dance Workshop headed by Ms. Joanne Patriarca, are being offered as outlined in the brochure.

There are numerous activities scheduled for adults, a sampling includes: Movement nd Dance headed by Barbara Goldfinger, Yoga under the well known Geraldine Hill, Woodworking headed by Alvin Kaplan, Weight Watchers coordinated by Ollie Smith, Golf School headed by Dan Meany (entering its 15 year of popularity), and a number of other specialities such as, International Cooking, Needlepoint, Crafts, and others. neaton...community service...5

The increasingly popular senior citizens' clubs of the Newton Community Service Centers and Rebecca Pomroy House are again scheduled under the coordination of Mrs. John Coleman and assisted by Bonnie Algeri and Gardner. Barbara Ireland and Jane Berk are continuing their leadership of the Newton-Wellesley-We-Retired Seniors Volunteer Program (RSVP).

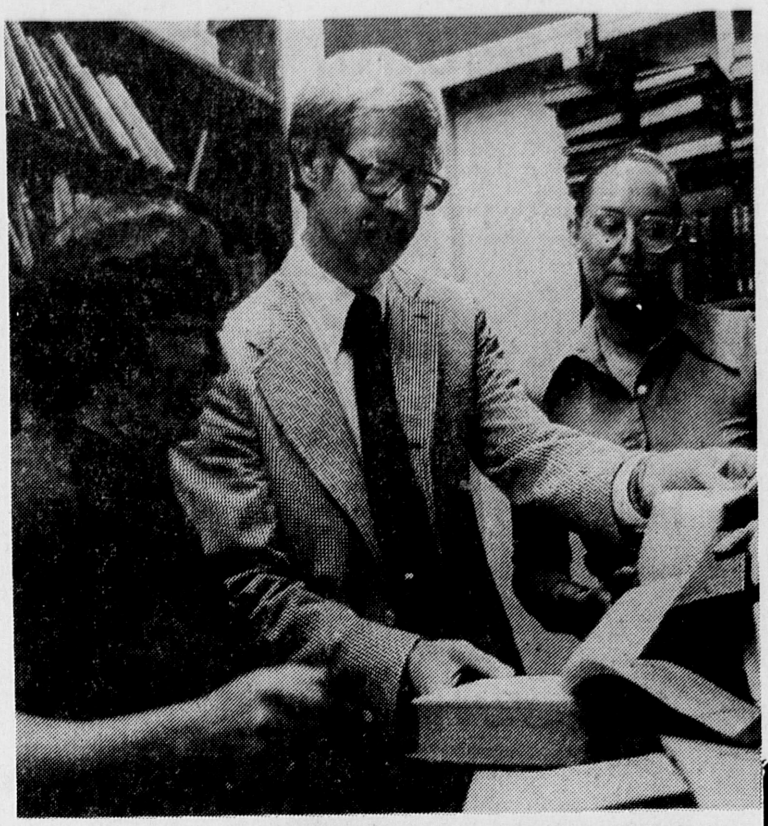

Interested persons are encouraged to apply early in order to avoid disappointment with activities being filled.

Brochure correction

The Newton Community Service Centers wishes to announce that the times and fees for its dance classes for boys and girls, which are held at Pomroy House on Tuesdays starting Oct. 5, were printed incorrectly in the Centers' fall brochure.

The Centers apologize for any inconvenience and those interested in Dance Classes can get a revised flier with the corrected fee by calling 969-5906.

Hospital 'Quarterly' wins citation in national contest

The "Quarterly" magazine published by the Newton-Wellesley Hospital has been judged a citation winner in the 32nd Annual MacEachern Awards Competition sponsored by the Academy of Hospital Public Relations.

There were more than 500 entries from hospitals and hospital associations in the United States and Canada in the 1976 competition.

"Quarterly" received the citation in the category of external magazines and clinical bulletins for general hospitals with fewer than 400 beds. There were a record number of entries submitted in the category this year.

This is the second award presented to "Quarterly" this year. In March the magazine received an award from the New England Hospital Public Relations Association in recognition of special achievement in external periodicals.

Soon to be mailed to area homes, the September issue of "Quarterly" features an article titled "When They are Good, They are Very, Very Good-When They are Bad, They are Horrid." This is a helpful and interesting sampling of mushrooms — which ones to pick and eat and which ones to leave alone.

Dr. Lot B. Page, the hospital's chief of medicine, heads the list of on-call resources in cases of mushroom poisoning for the Boston Poison Center. A photographic interest in mushrooms led to his becoming an expert on their toxicity and he provides the reader with symptoms of mushroom poisoning and advice on how to avoid the dangerous ones.

The article is heavily pictorial which helps in identifying some of the local species.

Particularly timely, the article makes the point that the season for mushrooms in New England is early summer to freezing and September is ideal because "there are no bugs in the woods, it's a nice time to walk and there are lots of mushrooms," he said.

Another timely article, since everyone will soon begin stepping up their social and business activities, is one on fatigue.

The article analyzes the three categories of fatigue, explains their different symptoms, and offers some sensible tips on how to handles fatigue.

Also included in the fall issue of the "Quarterly" is a description complete with cartoons, of a dental education program organized by the hospital's pediatric dentist called "When you Tiptoe through the Two Lips."

"Monitoring the Unborn" discusses fetal heart monitoring, one of several techniques developed fairly recently to reduce the risks of labor to babies, and an explanation is given of the federally funded immunization program for A-New Jersey (swine flu) and A-Victoria (last year's flu strain).

NOT LIKE ARIES

Q. I was born on April 16, 1936 at 3:05 a.m. in Worcester, Mass. So many times I have read my horoscope and it just does not seem that I am a true Aries. However, the date does not seem to indicate that I was born on the cusp of the month. Could you please tell me something about my Stars? J.E.D.

A. As explained in previous articles in this column, the Ascendent, Sign rising in the East at the moment of birth, is very important. The Sun on your date of birth was in Aries as was Venus, but the Sign of Pisces was rising at 3:05 A.M. E.S.T. and the planet Saturn was in Pisces in your First House.

While the position of the Sun shows your possibilities which are excellent, being aided by the very favorable aspect to the planet Jupiter in Sagittarius in your "midheaven", you will first need to learn to understand and master your inner self before you evolve to your full potential.

When I see Saturn in Pisces in the First House, I can think of no better advice than to quote William Shakespeare.... "This above all: to thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day Thou canst not then be false to any man"

Your First House Saturn in aspect to Neptune in your Seventh House suggests that others cannot deceive you if you analyze your own feelings first so that you are not self deceived. Early in life you may be inclined to worry at times and feel depressed or even feel like giving up some hope or wish or sort of "crawl within yourself."

In time you can develop into quite a friendly person interested in others and attract a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Jupiter in your Tenth House in favorable aspect to your Sun indicates as a general rule, employers or superiors think highly of you and are inclined to be of help.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

Under the Golden Dome

By DAVID M. ROSEN

BOSTON (UPI) — An event of major long-term significance went largely unnoticed last week by political and financial analyists and consumer activists.

The event was financing by the Massachusetts Municipal Wholesale Electric Co., a limited public power corporation, of part ownership in several power plants at interest rates four to five per cent below the rate being paid on mortgage bonds by private electric companies.

In it's first financing effort, MMWEC sold $75 million in tax exempt revenue bonds, rated "A-1" by Moody's, at an average rate of 7.234 per cent.

The rate was two per cent less than the rate paid on state bonds last year, and more than five per cent less than the most recent Boston Edison Co. mortgage bond issue.

Edison in 1973 was forced to pay 12½ per cent on $60 million in first mortage bonds. With great difficulty, the company last December sold $23 million in secured 10-year notes at 11¼ per cent, but these were not for plant construction.

The immediate significance of the MMWEC transaction to the residents of the 40 communities with municipal light companies that buy power from MMWEC is clear. They will save about $3.7 million in their electric rates in years to come.

(The $3.7 million figure is five per cent of $75 million. It is the additional amount customers of a private utility probably would have to pay to finance the same amount of construction).

MMWEC officials were delighted by the sale and believe the transaction bodes well for the long-term success of the company, which will sell more bonds in the fall to finance further activities, including construction of its own plant in Chicopee.

But the significance of the MMWEC sale goes beyond the company and its customers.

The transaction documents the findings of a 1974 study by a Massachusetts gubernatorial commission, and similar studies in other states, that significant savings could be realized statewide if public power was expanded through creation of a state power authority.

The reason for the saving is simple. A state authority, like MMWEC but unlike a private utility, can sell tax exempt bonds. Tax exempt bonds, naturally, will sell at a lower interest rate than a taxable bond, especially to wealthy investors.

Moving to tax exempt financing has the effect of providing a government subsidy to power plant construction, and most of that subsidy comes from the federal government.

The subsidy now is being paid to power authorities in virtually every region of the country outside New England and taxpayers here are picking up a large chunk of the tab without receiving any benefits.

It has been estimated that private utilities in New England will have to finance $3.5 billion in new construction in the next 10 years. A savings of five per cent in the financing of these facilities would amount to $175 million.

New center to open soon

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (UPI) — One of Frank Lloyd Wright's last and most spectacular works is to be completed next month when the new Marin Center exhibition hall is dedicated.

The large hall, to which this city hopes to draw some national meetings, is part of the Marin Civic Center, an otherworldly appearing cluster of buildings nestled on an 80-acre tract in the rolling hills north of the Golden Gate bridge.

In combination with several theaters already in the center and fairgrounds outside, managers of the facility believe it will appeal as a one-day change of scenery for conventions meeting in San Francisco.

The Marin Civic Center, most of which was completed in 1971, was the last major commission of Wright, the legendary architect.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Rubber plant trouble—The rubber plant (Ficus) is one of the most popular indoor foliage plants we have. One of the main complaints we get about this item is yellowing, then blackening of the bottom leaves, followed by shedding. Overwatering or poor drainage are the main reasons for shedding and yellowing. It happens often when plants are growing in plastic or ceramic pots. Place pieces of crocks or pebbles in the bottom of the pot for extra drainage. Also use a loose, well drained mixture such as 1 part each of sand, peat and perlite, plus loam. The rubber plant does NOT like direct sun, and will turn black if exposed to sun rays. If you put the plant outdoors, keep it in a shaded spot.

Grow the plant in a light, semi-sunny to shady spot and it will do best. A good rule of thumb is to keep the soil uniformly moist, or slightly on the dry side. It won't harm the plant one bit to keep it slightly dry between waterings.

The most common rubber plant, Ficus elastica decora, has large bod-textured leaves, dark green and glossy. Keep oils and grease off the leaves. If you like the shiny effect, use soap and water, with a little milk added for extra gloss. Heavy doses of commercial "shines" on the leaves can cause brown spots along the edges. Take a sponge and wash the leaves, using plain soap and water or a weak solution of a household detergent. If your rubber plant stretches upward, cut the tip out and root it in a jug of plain tap water. It takes about two months or so for roots to form. You can also propagate the plant by air-layering.

Whitewashing trunks—Does it pay to paint the trunk of your shade trees or fruit trees with white wash? Yes, it's helpful in preventing "Southwest Injury" (winter injury), which is usually on the southwest side of the tree. The white reflects the sun's rays and prevents heating of the bark, thus avoiding splitting. White wash has little or no value in keeping insects or disease down. Painting with pine tar or other sticky material does help to keep out dorers (due to odor of tar) and prevents insects from crawling up.

Green Thumb Clinic—"We set out some blueberry bushes last year. What's a good mulch for them?"

Ans: Try acid peat, oak leafmold, sawdust, wood chips, wood humus from stumps and from beneath pines. Mulch to a depth of 12". We like to see more home owners grow blueberries. They can be grown in large tubs or halves of barrels, or between evergreens in the foundation planting of your home.

Pierce brigade finally saves former President's home

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The home of President Franklin Pierce has been saved from urban renewal and opened to the public, thanks to begging, borrowing and bake sales.

Gifts from Pierce descendants and New Hampshire residents helped furnish the Pierce Manse. The local women's club paid to paper the parlor. And the Pierce Brigade now is looking for a stenciler who might like to do a stenciled border in the kitchen "to gain experience."

The house is a labor of love for the Brigade, founded in 1966 to save the building. It took its name from the army group Pierce headed when he fought in the Mexican War. He was a former U.S. Senator, but wouldn't ask for a commission and entered the war as a private, rapidly rising to brigadier general. He was wounded in action at Contreras.

"I haven't done anything else for five years," Ila Bonnecaze said, recalling the fight to save the house, move it, furnish it and keep it open for the public.

Many visitors don't remember New Hampshire was the birthplace of a president.

Pierce owned the house six years prior to becoming president. It stood two blocks north of the state capitol and was slated to be torn down to make way for an apartment building for the elderly.

It was not architectually distinguished, being one of many houses built here in the plain style popular midway between the Federal and Victorian eras.

But it was a president's home, and local resident Carl Irving Bell decided it should be saved. He formed the Pierce Brigade and led the drive for funds.

Eventually $18,000 gathered from begging and bake sales were matched with $20,000 from the state.

There were anguished and futile battles for federal money. State funds were tied up for years. The brigade finally borrowed $21,500 to get the house moved and have a foundation built beneath it.

The architect who restored the house checked all the details by walking down the street to the home of Miss Alice Dana, 96, who lives in a home built exactly the same, except for the location of the fireplaces.

In the Pierce residence, on one wall is a small painting from Italy, where Pierce took his wife after leaving the White House. They made the trip to distract her from ill health and her grief. Jane Pierce bore three sons but all died.

Robert died when he was 3 days old and Franklin died of typhus when he was 4. It was the death of Benjamin, 11, which prostrated Mrs. Pierce and caused Pierce to be the only president inaugurated with no members of his family present.

The Pierces had been in Massachusetts for a funeral shortly before the inauguration. The railroad car in which they were returning home tumbled down a 20-foot embankment and the top of Benjamin's head was cut off. His mother never recovered from the shock.

Pierce was born in Hillborough in 1804. His father, Benjamin, was a captain in the Revolution and served two terms as governor. Pierce attended Bowdoin College, taught school one winter, studied law and served three terms in the New Hampshire House. He then was elected twice to the U.S. House of Representatives and in 1837 was appointed to the U.S. Senate, where he was the youngest member of that body.

Mrs. Pierce became ill and Franklin retired from the Senate, refused a reappointment and turned down President James Polk's request to serve as attorney general.

He was elected President in 1852, shortly before his 48th birthday, carrying 27 of 31 states. During his four-year tenure in office, which ended in 1857, Pierce's diplomacy resulted in the Gadsden Purchase from Mexico and he opened Japan to trade with the world by sending Commodore Matthew Perry there. But he fell from public favor because he favored a strong union and opposed abolition.

Pierce made a speech at a mass meeting in Concord in 1861 when war broke out, declaring himself for the Union. It was his last public act. He lived the remainder of his life in retirement, dying in 1869 at the age of 64. He was buried in Concord.

An "impossible" dream can become real

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: In regard to your advice to "I'm OK," may I say "BULLFEATHERS!" According to Ann Landers, no one has to go through life with imperfect features unless he wants to.

Why don't you wake up, Dummy? Not everyone can afford the price of beauty. Sure, I'd love to have a gorgeous nose instead of the blob God gave me, but I can't just pop into a plastic surgeon's office, look at some pictures and say, "I'll take this one."

I checked into the price of a nose job last year. It was $400. I haven't got that kind of money to put in my nose, and neither have millions of other people, so I'm — Settling For The Blob

Dear S.F.T.B.: If you wanted a new nose badly enough you wouldn't be settling for the blob. Too many folks say "can't" when the word is 'won't.'" Millions of people have made their "impossible" dreams come true. You can, too.

The judge chooses

Dear Ann Landers: I wish I could tell my story to "Worried In Houston," age 15, who must decide whether to live with her mother or father.

When I was 13, my parents gave me the same choice. : I loved them both equally and couldn't choose. Every time anyone asked me to decide, I began to cry. Then this wonderful judge took me into his office. I knew the awful question would come again — "Mother or father?"

Well, it didn't. Instead he asked if I'd like him to make the decision. I answered' "Yes." He said, "I must know more about you. Would you be willing to talk to a girl who works with me and tell her about yourself?" I said OK.

On three separate visits we talked about school, my friends and what I wanted to be when I grow up. Then she spoke to the judge. He decided I should live with my mother, but I could visit my father whenever I wanted to. The judge gave me his address and phone number and he made me promise to call or write on my 14th birthday (five months away) and tell him how things were going

I now know it was my parents' idea to let the judge decide, but it was the judge's idea to keep in touch with me.

Now I have two homes and four parents. They all came to my graduation (junior high) and sat together. I hope "Worried In Houston" has parents and a judge who care about HER the way mine did. — Lucky In Boston .

Dear Lucky: So do I. Your letter may do more good than you'll ever know. Thanks for sharing.

Westwood FinCom reserves judgment on school salary budgets

By JOAN POWER
Transcript Correspondent

WESTWOOD — The Finance Commission reserved judgment last night on a revised school salary budget which is up considerably from spring estimates due to the newly ratified teachers' contract.

School Committee Chairman Paul Broughton pointed out, however, that no extra monies would be needed to fund the agreement beyond the $150,000. which annual town meeting cut from the school budget pending resolution of employee contracts.

"The salary package is more costly," Broughton noted, "but savings from staff turnover will permit us to cover the cost without further impact on the tax rate. We will need only the $150,0000. which is already available in the town's free cash account."

The two-year agreement, approved yesterday by the Westwood Teachers' Association, calls for a 5.3 per cent adjustment in schedule for the first year, plus horizontal increments, such as step increases, longevity and sabbatical allowances.

When all factors are taken into account, the percentage rise in teacher salaries is 7.2 per cent.

Second year terms feature a 6 per cent schedule adjustment, plus the same horizontal items.

Although the FinCom took no action, pending further study of details by its educational sub-committee, several members questioned the size of the salary hikes as opposed to those approved by voters for other town employees.

Member M. Roy London said at one point "Town meeting took the action it did because of what appeared to be an inequitable situation in regard to other town employees. I think the town would like you to listen to them, too."

Joseph Clancy, who heads the school committee's negotiating team, noted that his group tried to work within the dollar limits desired by voters. He added, however, that it was also necessary to take into account figures which showed Westwood lower in many salary respects than other comparable towns.

FinCom member Samuel Hayes commented that the town had not really appropriated the $150,000. referred to the by the School Committee. "We should keep an open mind on this, however, and get all the facts," he added.

In addition to salary adjustments, the contract reflects other significant changes. Base starting pay for teachers without experience will go from $9,100. to $9,700. Also, beginning moves were taken to render step increases more equitable and a single salary schedule was adopted for the first time. Until now, there have been separate schedules for tenured and non-tenured teachers.

FinCom Chairman Paul Hanlon said the commission will consider the school issue further at is next meeting on September 14th.

Local senatorial hopefuls answer Common Cause questionnaire

Three of four Democratic senatorial candidates for the first Suffolk and Norfolk district, which includes Dedham and Westwood, recently answered a "Common Cause Massachusetts" candidate questionnaire, the citizen lobbying organization announced today.

Senator Arthur J. Lewis Jr., 339 Pond St., Boston, faces three Democratic challengers in the Sept. 14 primary. Seeking to unseat the incumbent Dedham-Westwood senator are John P. Spears, 15 Myrtle St., Boston, Paul McCaffrey, 58 Mt. Vernon St., Boston, and Stephen M. Bingham III, 48 Newfield St., Boston.

Only Bingham failed to respond to the "Common Cause" questionnaire.

Lewis, McCaffrey, and Spears favored "sunset" legislation which would automatically terminate regulatory agencies after a fixed number of years unless evaluated and recreated by the legislature.

Lewis and McCaffrey favored, while Spears wanted more specifics, on amending the public financing law so funds are provided by a dollar check-off on the state tax return.

Lewis and McCaffrey favored, while Spears wanted more specifics, on limited public financing of campaigns for the state legislature.

All three favored disclosure of the occupation, employer and place of employment of large campaign contributors.

McCaffrey and Spears favored, while Lewis opposed, public disclosure of the sources of income and other economic interests, prior to election or appointment and annually thereafter by elected and major appointed state officials, and major elected and appointed local officials.

McCaffrey and Spears stated they will voluntarily disclose this information, while Lewis said he will not.

All three favored prohibiting public officials from representing clients for a fee before non-judicial agencies.

All three also favored:

— levying fines against public officials who violate the open meeting law.

— comprehensive, quarterly reporting of expenditures by lobbyists.

— per diem fines for late-filed lobbying reports.

Both McCaffrey and Spears favored the proposed constitutional amendment which would permit the legislature to adopt a graduated state income tax. Spears added that he supports no specific plan at this time. Lewis answered, "I voted to put this on the ballot so the people could make a decision."

McCaffrey and Spears favored the proposed state Equal Rights Amendment, while Lewis was opposed.

Nota only Dedham Rep. candidate to answer Common Cause

DEDHAM — Planning Board member Richard C. Nota was the only Dedham State representative candidate (13th Norfolk) to answer a "Common Cause Massachusetts" candidate questionnaire, according to the citizen lobbying organization.

No responses were received from Assessor Robert F.X. Casey, Selectmen Chairman Marilyn Morris, and long-time Town meeting member John Vasta, all seeking a Sept. 14 win in the Democratic primary for Dedham's 13th Norfolk House district.

In answer to the "Common Cause" questionnaire, Nota favors:

— "Sunset" legislation which would automatically terminate regulatory agencies after a fixed number of years unless evaluated and recreated by the legislature.

— disclosure of the occupation, employer and place of employment of large campaign contributors.

— public disclosure of the sources of income and other economic interests, prior to election or appointment and annually thereafter, by elected and major appointed state officials. (Opposed similar disclosure for major elected and appointed local officials. Stated he would voluntarily disclose this information, but did not return the disclosure form.)

Also favored:

— levying fines against public officials who violate the open meetings law.

— comprehensive, quarterly reporting of expenditures by lobbyists.

— per diem fines for late-filed lobbying reports.

— the proposed Constitutional Amendment which would permit the legislature to adopt a graduated state income tax.

— the proposed state Equal Rights Amendment.

At the same time, Nota opposed:

— Amending the public financing law so funds are provided by a dollar check-off on the state tax return.

— limited public financing of campaigns for the state legislature.

181 days in dungeon

She kept her sanity by guessing whether it was night or day

PORT MOODY, Canada (UPI) — For 181 days, 13-year-old Abby Drover was entombed, chained and sexually assaulted in a secret underground dungeon, allegedly by a middle-aged neighbor who had helped lead the search for the missing schoolgirl.

Throughout the ordeal, Abby kept her faith in God, and told her kidnaper in a note penciled on pink paper: "I just wish you would be my friend."

Tall, balding Donald Alexander Hay, 43, was charged Tuesday with kidnaping and raping the slim, dark-haired Abby, who was found by chance Monday night when two police officers answered a routine call at his home.

Abby's mother, Mrs. Ruth Drover, who held an emotional bedside reunion with her emaciated daughter at a local hospital, said, "She's got spunk, she'll come back. It was pretty terrible ... she will never forget it but I am sure she can overcome it and push it to the back of her mind."

Abby disappeared March 10 while on her way to school. Reward leaflets flooded the area around Port Moody, a prosperous oil and lumber center about 15 miles north of Vancouver, but an intensive search failed to turn up any trace of her.

Police sources said Hay — who lived only a few doors from the missing girl — had helped in the search. He was well known to the Drover family and had three stepchildren who often played with Abby and her two older sisters.

Police were callled to Hay's shabby, two-story frame home Monday following a complaint of a domestic disturbance. The officers interviewed Hays' wife and checked the premises — including a garage-workshop above the dungeon where Abby was imprisoned — but found nothing suspicious.

They were driving away when another radio call sent them back. They spotted a man climbing out of a shaft leading from the underground cell and heard a "whining" coming from the bottom of the shaft.

It was Abby.

The two officers lifted out the girl — so weak she could hardly walk — and rushed her to a hospital. She was later released and was reported at an undisclosed location with her family in the Port Moody area.

The entrance to the dungeon was concealed by a trapdoor behind two doors of an empty workbench cupboard. The chamber was slimy, foul-smelling, littered with garbage — and soundproof.

The dungeon where 13-year-older was held for six months (UPI)

New cars

Ford Motor Co. announced today the introduction of two all-new mid-size cars, the luxurious Thunderbird (top) a two-door hardtop, and the LTD II (bottom). The LTD II has a lean, sporty front end highlighted by vertically stacked rectangular headlamps flanking a chrome-plated grille. Thunderbird, the famed and prestigious Ford Motor Co. product that created the personal luxury-car market, is now a mid-sized car but retains many of the traditional Thunderbird styling touches. Taxi drivers threaten to strike in Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — The threat of a citywide wildcat strike by taxi drivers loomed today.

Drivers upset over the sanctioning of a new limousine service from Logan International Airport have boycotted the airport since Monday night. The city's 10,000 licensed cabbies were awaiting word from leaders of the boycott whether to extend it to the rest of the city.

Industry representatives Tuesday asked the Massachusetts Port Authority to suspend the license of Regal Limousine Service — which went into effect Monday — pending a court challenge to the licensing expected to be filed today.

They were to meet today with MassPort officials who promised a decision on the suspension request. MassPort spokesman Ron Brinn said suspension was possible.

"The last step in the line (for limousine service licensing) is permission from MassPort and, if that is withdrawn, then they cannot operate at the airport," he said. "They probably can't simply withdraw the permission, but they could suspend it pending litigation or whever."

Felix Tester, treasurer of the Independent Taxi Owners Association, said Tuesday night the airport was the only formal target and, until MassPort's announcement, any decision to work the city would be up to individual cabbies.

"The downtown area will be serviced by those who want to go to work," Tester said. "We'll wait until noon and we'll have to wing it from there."

Meanwhile, thousands of passengers arriving at Logan were forced to find alternative transportation with either limousine services or city buses.

Several hundred cabs parked at the entrance to the Callahan Tunnel near Logan overnight as rumors crackled over dispatch radios there would be a citywide strike today.

While there was no formal strike called, some drivers stopped working, fearing reprisals by militant drivers calling for a strike.

"We're not actually participating in the strike," a dispatcher at Yellow Cab Co., who refused to be identified said. "We think there's going to be violence, so our drivers are going along (with a strike)."

"If there's a risk to the drivers, we'll call 'em in but we're not participating in any strike," said a Boston Cab Co., dispatcher who also declined to give out his name.

MassPort Chairman Dr. James Fay Tuesday rejected the cabbies' request for a special MassPort board meeting to air their grievances, but offered time at the next regular meeting Sept. 16 "to voice their concerns."

Scientists consider Viking discovery

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — One of the first tentative discoveries of the Viking 2 spacecraft on Mars is that the sky over its Utopia landing site appears darker than the bright orange sky over Viking 1's Chryse desert.

Just exactly what this means is not known, but Dr. Alan Binder said it probably indicates there are fewer dust particles in the air over Viking 2 than over the first landing site 4,600 miles away.

The red dust particles scatter sunlight and give the sky color. A perfectly clear sky would be black except at the horizon where there would be enough air mass to give it color.

Binder said the first pictures from Viking 2 were reminiscent of sunset on earth where the sky is dark but the horizon is pinkish-red.

Viking 2 sent back its first pictures from its second electronic eye Tuesday night, confirming that both cameras work to give scientists a three-dimensional view of surrounding Martian terrain.

Geologists were anxious for stereoscopic views of the surface to pick out the best spot for the lander's mechanical arm to start digging into Mars this weekend to gather soil samples for the biology experiments.

The two cameras are 33 inches apart and pictures of the same spot from their different viewing angles give scientists the ability to create three-dimensional views, giving depth to the scene.

Binder said the stereoscopic photography also may help tell more about the nature of the sandy, winding trough in front of the landing craft. He said it is a good candidate for the first closeup evidence of running water on Mars at some earlier age.

"It is very reminiscent of a little stream bed," Binder said.

The three-dimensional view could tell whether there is a slope which water could run down.

In a weather report from Viking 2's base Tuesday, Dr. Seymour Hess said the minimum nighttime temperature measured was minus 114 degrees Fahrenheit with a high at 4 p.m. contributions from the Committee to Reelect a Democratic House.

McGrath described the fund, which has been as large as $100,000, as a pool of money donated by special interests and disbursed at the whim of the House leadership, usually in connection with a pledge to vote for the Speaker.

McGrath would like to reform the state pension system, which he says is being abused by local and state officials, and the civil service system to make tests harder and more relevant to the job.

McGrath has been interested in prison reform and would continue his efforts in that field.

McGrath supports the proposal that state-mandated programs that are not funded should require a two-thirds vote for passage by the House.

He fought hard against the state takeover of the new Numbers Game money, which he says should have gone to the cities and towns.

McGrath favors a state resource recovery system, would work to decriminalize the possession of small amounts of marijuana for personal use, and would like to see a revision of the assessment formula for the MBTA to lessen the cost to Newton.

McGrath is a member of the committes on natural resources and federal financial assistance.

contest take one of the two tours. We do not intend this contest to encourage trespassing on private property.

Photos can be dropped off or mailed to the Newton Graphic office.

The Novitiate land, owned by the Xaverian Brothers, is bordered by Winchester Street, Nahanton Street, the Charles River and the old infirmary land. Tours will take place rain or shine.

People can park in the driveway in front of the main building on Winchester street or in the parking area on the infirmary land for the tours.

A public meeting on the prospects of the city acquiring the land for a park will be held Tuesday, Sept. 21, at 8 p.m. at Meadowbrook Junior High School. Ald. Terry Morris and Ald. Eliot Cohen will speak.

Anyone wishing further information on the contest can contact Newton Graphic Editor Cynthia Black at 965-6300.

Speech—

Collaborative of Greater Boston, quoted local newspapers to back up his argument that the suburbs cannot build walls to close themselves off from major cities.

He received applause from the audience of more than 500 when he criticized Richard Morshead's model of education as inputs and outputs of information.

"Any model that views teachers as passive recipients and transmitters of prepackaged knowlege, usually in the form of mandated curricula, cannot tolerate a staff that participates freely and openly in the determination of appropriate educational goals," he said.

The superintendent came down hard on the extreme philosophies of the basic education movement, but noted after his speech that he meant his comments to be more critical of obfuscation of ideas.

He said, "A lot of evils have been perpetrated under the rubric of 'open education,' as they are now under the umbrella of 'back-to-basics.' They create meaningless comparisons and controversies."

Realizing there is a stronger desire for measuring the success of educators, which he said is as it should be, Fink warned against setting up arbitrary standards.

"In our own insecurity we frequently demand an adherence to arbitrary standards and a degree of precision that just doesn't exist."

Teaching is a tough job when it comes down to discussing such issues as abortion in the classroom, but Fink said by examining issues honestly in the school system and the community will help insure quality education.

Fire—

and Greenwood entered the building on fire and alerted residents, according to police reports.

After most of the residents were thought to have been evacuated, police reentered the building to look for a woman, who one bystander said lived on the third floor.

After a short search it was made known that the woman had recently moved into a nursing home.

Other residents of the building were Russell LaRose, Stephen Elliott and his wife and three-year-old son, and Jeanette Blakely.

Mrs. Blakely was credited with having carried the Elliott child from the building.

Officer Adkins told fire officials that he heard two explosions come from the building, one of which sent debris to a car that was 40 feet away.

Bruce Barr, the owner of Century Auto Parts, also heard an explosion.

After two alarms were sounded almost simultaneously at nearby call boxes, the Fire Dpartment had a total of six pumpers and three ladders at the scene.

Chief Perkins arrived after one of the first fire trucks on the scene described the blaze.

The back half of the building was destroyed and the front sections of the three floors suffered heavy smoke and water damage.

Waltham, Watertown, Wellesley, and Brookline provided mutual aid coverage at Newton stations while the Newton trucks fought the blaze.

Land Use—

on the site to the city for conservation land. 8

The proposal has been strongly opposed by neighbors of the Ward 8 land, who fear not only the increase in traffic but also what effect a zone change there will have on all other open space in the area.

Other major items before the Land Use Committee include a request from Trimount Foundation to use a residence at 40 Old Orchard Rd., Chestnut Hill, as living quarters for young Catholic women.

There may be no need to act on this petition, however, since the foundation has indicated its wish to withdraw the request. There was massive neighborhood opposition to the conversion of the house.

Matters to be heard at a public hearing preceding the working meeting are petitions for permissive use for a fast-food restaurant at Piccadilly II, Newton Centre; permissive use for an auto-repair shop at 14 Hawthorn St., Nonantum; and extension of permissive use for Freeport House, a residence for high school children at 361 Commonwealth Ave., Newton Centre.

A special meeting of the Land Use Committee has been set up for Sept. 22 to work further on the new sign ordinance.

Shakespearean crew opens with 'The Shrew'

The Boston Shakespeare Company announces its 1976-77 season will open Thursday, Sept. 16, with a spectacularly comic production of "The Taming of the Shrew."

"Macbeth" is the second production of the five-show season and will join the first in repertory on Nov. 4.

The season will also include completely new productions of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Merchant of Venice," and "Robin Hood." The latter will be an original adaptation of one of the world's best-loved legends, the company'sfirstnon-Shakespearean offering.

All performances are Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. in the Boston Shakespeare Company Theatre at the corner of Berkeley and Marlborough streets in Back Bay.

Each production, upon opening, will perform in repertory with the previous production.

The company is offering a unique subscription package, for the first time, making all five shows available to the public at a reduced rate.

"The Taming of the Shrew" is the story of Petruchio's searih and battle for a conformable wife, and Kate's determination to remain unconformed. This highly comic and somewhat bawdy relationship is set against the backdrop of the wooing of Kate's beautiful sister, Bianca; as every lover, young and old, throws himself at her feet.

Now in its second year, the Boston Shakespeare Company remains under the guidance of Artistic Director Bill Cain, and Managing Director James Kitendaugh.

The Company's other activities include a summer show for the city of Boston and a show which travels to area schools entitled "An Invitation to the Theatre!"

Cheryl Kaplan

Awaiting members in the wings is the Players' 11th annual Theater Buff Bash Sunday, Sept. 12, from 7:30-10:30 p.m., at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Bertram Krassin, 4 Brandeis Circle, Newton Centre. Chairman of the affair, which will be highlighted by surprise entertainment, is Cheryl Kaplan of Brighton. Donation is $3 per person.

Members, new and old, will receive a complete briefing on "How to Succeed" by play director-choreographer Ellen Kazin of Waltham, and will be introduced to musical director-pianist George Fulginiti of Cambridge. A complete agenda of the forthcoming year's activities will be announced also.

Open auditions for "How to Succeed" will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 14 and 15, 7:30 p.m., at the Rebecca Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton. There are 29 male and female speaking parts including five major female and five major male singing roles. A sizeable cast of singers and dancers is featured, and auditionees are requested to bring sheet music and complete resumes.

The Broadway hit, which ran for 1417 performances and was also the recipient of the Tony Award for the year's best musical and the Drama Critics' Circle Award, is the first musical to be repeated by the Players, having originally mounted the show in May, 1967.

All local residents interested in participating in any phase of the production and in any capacity—house crew, stage crew, props crew, set decor, set construction, lighting and sound crew, make-up or wardrobe—are most cordially invited to attend tryout sessions.

President of the Players, Marcia Massimo of Waban, stressed that an effort will be made to place as many as possible of those attending auditions.

BayBank Norfolk County, new name for old banking tradition

Bay Bank Norfolk County Trust Company is charted to conduct a general commercial banking business in the County of Norfolk. The bank traces its history back over 150 years to the establishment of a predecessor — Dedham National Bank in 1814. This bank, together with five other local banks was consolidated to form Norfolk in December 1934.

The bank commenced business with assets of just over $16,000,000. In the following years Norfolk has steadily grown in size and effectiveness meeting the increasing needs of business and individuals in the community it serves. Through acquisition and expansion Norfolk has grown from the original 6 banks to its present 33 offices located in 21 cities and towns in the county. Meanwhile, total assets have increased to over $415,000,000.

A regional bank such as Norfolk can logically seek to accomplish three fundamental objectives. First provide financial service and support to its customers of such quality and value as to make an important contribution to the success of their businesses and to the conduct of their personal finances.

Secondly, to protect and improve the more than 650 incomes which the staff at Norfolk earns and upon which their families and their future depend. Third, to promote the economic growth of the communities in the Bank's area, and to assist those communities in becoming better places in which to live and do business.

The bank believes it can best accomplish its purposes through a range of financial services, coupled with skillful forward planning and the highest level of customer service. In this manner the Bank already has achieved status among all suburban Boston banks and expects to remain in the forefront by continuing to innovate services and to improve the efficiency and convenience of its established services.

Over the years, Norfolk has been especially proud of its capacity to originate services which fill public needs, and which both the Bank and its customers find worthwhile. Most of these new services and products have sooner or later been copied and offered to the public by others.

Three important firsts at Norfolk in New England are: Norfolk was the first bank to offer a bank-sponsored charge card to be used with merchants, Norfolk was first to offer its customers "Thrift Certificates," and Norfolk was first to offer a Single Statement Bank Plan known as the Norfolk All Purpose Bank Plan. Since originally introduced, other additional features have been added which are also firsts such as — reserve credit, charge plan, "red carpet courtesy card" and interest checking.

Norfolk intends to continue to innovate basic new banking methods and services and is confident that the recently commenced cooperative marketing efforts for common retail products with the other BayBanks will enhance this capability in the future.

Norfolk is one of the twelve banks in Massachusetts of which the majority ownership is held by BayBanks, Inc., a multi-bank holding company. On February 2, 1976 the banks in eastern Massachusetts owned by BayBank changed their names so that the prefix of each bank's name will be BayBank. This will help to identify to the public the common retail products offered by the BayBanks and also offer the ability of qualified customers of these banks to obtain banking services at all BayBanks similar to those that they enjoy at their own bank.

The BayBank Association also provides Norfolk with the ability to undertake substantial financial commitments and is a source of strength not available to an independent bank. BayBank represents the largest aggregation of affiliated branches in the Commonwealth numbering 177 offices.

Norfolk alone, with its 33 branches, is one of the 250 largest commercial banks in the United States and therefore in the top 2 per cent in size. It is the sixth largest commercial bank in Massachusetts and the largest commercial bank in suburban Boston.

State regaining confidence of local businessmen!

By SARA COHEN

While the economy may not be taking giant steps forward, the predominant mood among many local businessmen is one of cautious optimism.

In the eyes of many leading economists, the chief obstacle to a speedy recovery is inflation, and that seems to be winding down. "I think it's safe to call this a period of disinflation," says Burton G. Malkeil, a member of the Council of Economic Advisors. If we take the word of the more optomistc experts, lower labor cost coupled with a demonstrated higher productivity rate, will contribute to reducing inflation to controllable levels, below 6 percent, by early 1977.

In his Economic Development Program for Massachusetts, Governor Dukakis plainly states, "the single most important task facing Massachusetts today is the revitalization of the state's economy." But the administration knows as well as anyone that our high tax rate discourages industries from settling in the Commonwealth. Therefore, it has become a number one priority in the state government to keep business in Massachusetts both happy and here.

One example of the administration's pro-business stance involves a large Norwood firm. Northrup Electronics Corporation applied to the Outdoor Advertising Board, an agency on the office of Environmental Affairs, to erect a double billboard on Rte. 1 near their plant. They had previously made it clear that they were planning to leave the state if their application was not approved. Peter Bronson, acting director of the board denied Northrup's request, but when they brought their appeal before the full board Bronson's ruling was overturned. According to an article in The Phoenix, reliable sources on the board said the office of John Marino, commissioner of Commerce and Development, intervened during the appeal, helping to effect the favorable outcome.

Another Norwood firm, Analog Devices, manufacturer of electronic devices used in precision instruments, has shown confidence in the business climate of Massachusetts with its plans for extensive expansion. Analog Devices employs 875 workers in this state, 515 in Norwood and Westwood alone and anticipates doubling economic growth, does not go acknowledged by the state. At the recent opening of their new Wakefield plant, the Governor presented a citation "to honor Analog Devices' confidence in the economic future of the Commonwealth...and...in recognition of its rapidly growing work force."

Another indication of growth in the area is evidenced in stepped up activity at two Holiday Inns on Rte. 128. Bruce Frase, general manager of the Newton hotel sees "encouraging signs of economic improvement" in longer guest lists. A questionnaire distributed to the hotel's guests showed that 75 percent of the clientele are doing business in the Rte. 128 industrial belt.

Some doomsday prophets predict slow recovery and a high rate unemployment well into next spring. However, many of the businessmen and shopowners in the wide area around the Hub served by Transcript newspapers see things differently. Local businessmen voice optimism about the future and have indicated that they do not feel their communities have been particularly hard hit by the recession.

Richard Burnham, a Needham realtor, says that his "industry is in healthy condition," and profits this year are definitely ahead of inflation. While pointing to a well-balanced market in residential homes, Burnham observed today the shift is mostly of people within the area, whereas 10 years ago, many of his buyers were from out of state.

Needham has always been a preferred mortgage lending area because of its low and stable taxes, but several years ago money was tight. Today, mortgages are easier to get and rates are considerably lower. According to Charles McAllister, senior vice

Hudson Airport Limousines, a popular alternative

According to Massport Transportation Analyst, Joel Bornstein, air passenger traffic at Logan Airport has increased 14 per cent in the last five years. Even more dramatic figures are provided, however, by Massachusetts Limousine Company president, Kenneth Hudson, who says limousine passenger traffic at Logan has increased 25 per cent in the last year alone.

Such figures support Logan International's master plan to curb expansion of parking facilities and encourage alternate ground transportation to and from Logan. And, in a recent survey at Logan, it was found that limousines are, indeed, fast becoming a popular alternative.

Brockton salesman Thomas Michiasczek, says, "for me there is only one reason for using limousines — convenience." He adds, "not having to drive in heavy traffic is reason enough, but being chauffeured in an air conditioned limousine to curbside at my airline is, for me , the ultimate in convenience."

The crowds under the "Limo" signs during peak return trip hours also testifies to limousine popularity on the return trip. But, crowds don't bother Thomas Michiasczek.

"All it takes is a moment to pick up a phone and book a reservation on an incoming limousine," he says, "and you're guaranteed a space on board, just like the airlines."

For Russell Marston, Stoneham executive and bi-weekly limousine traveler, convenience is defined a little differently. "Before, I had to surrender my car to the fate of the parking garage." Today, the family car stays home, "as a backup car for my wife," Marston says without further explanation. He did note that his savings in parking fees more than offset the cost of limousine service.

"Very reasonable," is the phrase used by Mrs. Dorothy W. Maurer, of Wakefield, to describe limousine rates. Mrs. Maurer travels frequently, and uses the Hudson Airporter Limousine Service to and from her community. Hudson Airporters are the largest limousine service in New England, operated by Hudson Bus Lines, Medford, Mass.

One reason for Hudson's success and popularity is Earl Fowler, who trains Hudson chauffeurs and oversees the limousine service. "Not only is experience important," says Fowler, "temperament is equally important." According to Fowler, friendliness is emphasized. Courtesy is a prime concern. And radio dispatchers are required to speak properly when giving directions or making hotel reservations for passengers. "From car cleaners and mechanics to drivers and dispatchers," notes Fowler, "we emphasize the image that you would expect to accompany the word 'limousine'."

"There's no secret to running a business like this," says Kenneth Hudson, President of Hudson Bus Lines. "Run good, clean equipment with conscientious, courteous drivers and people will hear about you. It's as simple as that."

While it may not be "as simple as that," it is obvious that limousines are gaining popularity at Logan. Hudson Airporter Limousines collectively travel over 8,000 miles each day, mostly within the borders of Massachusetts. Hudson also brings limousine service over the border to Nashua, Manchester and Concord, New Hampshire. Jim Crocker, a Manchester, New Hampshire C.P.A., says "The only other limousine service I know is New York City service, and this Hudson service to Logan wins hands down."

Not all travelers are so enthusiastic, though. John Gregory, freelance writer from Dover, New Hampshire, would rather have his car waiting in the airport parking facility under any circumstances. "Money isn't a problem. I don't travel that much. And, I like to drive, traffic or no traffic."

And, of course, as the distance between home or office and Logan grows shorter, taxis become more popular. MTA trains and shuttles to Boston hotels also bear many passengers. But, for the long distance traveler, limousines are becoming a popular choice and familiar sight in many Massachusetts communities.

Classy way to travel or simple convenience, more and more Massachusetts businessmen and vacationers are turning to limousines. Reservations may be made with Hudson Airporter Limousines by dialing 800-732-3320.

president at Baybank Norfolk County Trust, a survey they conducted of 20 leading banks in the area showed that residential mortgage rates ranged from 8¾ to 9¼ percent. This indicates a decrease from the rates which, in 1973, peaked at over 10 percent.

McAllistere also commented on a growing trend in the purchase of automobiles.

Car sales, which plummeted two or three years ago, have soared in recent months. John Balerno, vice president of Norwood Dodge, says that sales there have increased by "35-40 percent" with profits not too far behind. People have found small cars are not large enough and are going for intermediate size models, Balerno added.

Although the building industry may be experiencing the greatest pinch in jobs, Bill Reynolds, a Canton general contractor and highway builder, predicts that things may be improving. "Once the city gets going on the central artery and southwest corridor projects," Reynolds says, "the whole industry, which now suffers 60 percent unemployment, will be in good shape for at least another 10 years."

The southwest corridor, now a transit project on the same right of way that was supposed to be for the highway project, involves rebuilding the trolley line from Back Bay to Forest Hills. The central artery, a $300-500 million highway project, which has $50 million already approved for planning, will be built under the existing road, making new connections to East Boston tunnels.

Continued development in the Transcript communities demonstrates the value and still untapped potential for greater economic growth.

Several suburban projects suggest that more business will be coming into the area soon. Construction is slated to begin in early October for a shopping mall in Norwood near Raytheon on Rte. 1. Some preliminary work has been done at the site, but merchants have yet to commit themselves to moving into the mall.

Coca-Cola purchased the American Can building, in Needham, for more than $4 million, but the company has not disclosed how they plan to utilize the facilities.

The Union Federal Savings & Loan has purchased land at High and Hartford Streets, in Westwood, with plans to open its first Westwood branch bank there. Construction of the building, designed by Edgar Callahan & Associates, of Dover, is scheduled to begin shortly.

Vazza Properties began wors last March on the West Roxbury Housing for the Elderly, a development of the Boston Housing Authority. The two story, 104 unit building should be ready for occupancy by the end of U December. Rents, one official said, will be based on need.

In Newton Lower Falls, a new office building was recently completed on Newton Executive Park, off Rte. 128. The prime tenant, an insurance company has already moved in and rental space is available on the first and second floors.

The unique Business Advisory Committee of Needham has sought to "improve business in the town, both economically and esthetically" according to committee member John Milligan. The committee holds open forum meetings in which residents are encouraged to participate. "If you looked at the town three years ago," says Milligan, "you wouldn't recognize it as the same place today." Business, says Milligan, has improved substantially in the past years

Frank Geishecker, owner of three retail clothing stores, says the consensus in the Walpole mall is that "business is picking up." Geishecker considers Dedham Square, home of two of his stores, "a vibrant business area."

A few years ago, when gas lines were as long as food prices were high and fear was spreading that the country may have been heading for a depression, the business forecast spelled nothing but heading for a depression, the business forecast spelled nothing but gloom. Not everyone, however, was under the same impression.

One optimistic retailer, John McQuillan, owner for 4½ years of Taylor's Stationery store in Needham, challenges the way people responded to the bleak predictions several years ago. "They said times were tough, but we didn't believe it. If you want things to be good, that is up to you." The whole community pulled together, says McQuillan. Businessmen helped each other whenever they could, sending customers to competitors when they were out of stock on a particular item. It was "the esprit de corps," says McQuillan, that helped to make the area an attractive and convenient place to shop. "We had a positive attitude," McQuillan asserts, "and made the times good."

Prudential Metal Supply Corporation, one of world's largest

Six years ago Prudential Metal Supply Corporation moved from its Somerville location to 171 Milton St., Dedham. Recognized as one of the largest suppliers of building materials to the lumber industry in the Northeast, Prudential Metal also claims some of the most modern facilities in this industry in the country.

Prudential Metal was established in 1959 by its current president, Robert Kolikof. From the beginning, the company specialized in metal building items, nails of all sizes and kinds, copper, aluminum, zinc, lead, roofing materials, paneling, kitchen cabinets, plus many of other home improvement items. By the end of 1964, warehouse space at the original Somerville location had already doubled to accommodate the burgeoning business.

The 100,000 feet of warehouse area is arranged in an orderly fashion so that inventory of all sizes, finishes and grades can be seen and reached easily. Each bay has been installed with special racks so that orders can be picked from any skid without disturbing the others. The excellent design of racks also facilitates inventory control.

Prudential Metal Supply Corporation has ten locations throughout the United States which sell nationally recognized brand name building products to lumber companies, home improvement centers and the building trade. The offices and warehouses are located strategically throughout the United States in White Plains. N.Y.; Philadelphia, Pa., Chicago, Ill.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Cleveland, Ohio; Houston, Texas, Los Angeles, Ca.; Baltimore, Md.; and Miami, Florida.

Prudential's large fleet of trucks services the New England area from its Dedham facility with its complete line of building products.

Mr. Kolikof travels to many continents to buy just the right building products for his customers. He has recently returned from one of his many trips to Eastern Europe, Russia, Southeast Asia, Japan and Korea. These specially selected materials go into projects as diverse as pre-fab homes, industrial centers, portable buildings, skyscrapers and housing developments.

Prudential Metal Supply Corporation, which started as a supplier for the building and construction industry, anticipates more than $80 million of sales in 1976.

Another challenge for electric utilities

By Alan R. Davis
Director, Public Information
Boston Edison Company

Boston Edison and investor–owned electric utilities across the state are confronting an issue which could affect all consumers — an effort by a few who support big government to push the state into the business of supplying electric power.

I say push, because Governor Dukakis and the overwhelming majority of state officials oppose the prospect of the state, beset by grave fiscal problems, taking on the responsibility of supplying electricity to the people. In fact, the state legislature soundly defeated the proposal to establish a Massachusetts Power Authority by a vote of 179 to 46.

Undeterred, proponents of public power collected the requisite number of signatures to place the question on the November 1976 ballot, by offering false promises of lower electric rates. As a result, Question No. 4 on the November 2 ballot will ask the voters to determine whom they will entrust the vital function of producing and supplying electricity — the state government or private utilities.

Between now and November 2, we hope to dispel the false impression created by government power advocates that shifting the management of electric power from business to government will somehow lower the price of electricity for the consumer.

Advocates predict great savings. However, a power authority would not be able to purchase fuel oil at lower costs than utilities. Nor would the costs of materials and labor be less expensive to an authority. And, certainly, an authority has little control over inflation.

A recent Study Commission appointed by the Governor concluded that the "most likely" savings — assuming that a government power authority would operate as efficiently as a private business — would be 2 cents on the dollar, but not before 1985. Not a very compelling argument.

If it is in the name of the consumer protection that public power advocates have advanced the power authority concept, they are espousing a cause which would run directly contrary to that aim. Here's why:

RATE INCREASES WILL BE AUTOMATIC

The authority, in order to raise money to operate, would have to sell bonds requiring a specific rate of return to bondholders. If the authority's rates do not generate revenues sufficient to meet that rate of return, it must raise its rates immediately to compensate. Consumers should be made aware that under the proposal, the authority's rate increases would not be subject to review by the DPU or anyone else. The consumer has no court of appeals.

The Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA), the largest power authority in the U.S., has raised its rates 15 times in the past nine years, all without review by a regulatory body. This is consumer protection?

MATTER OF SEMANTICS

One of the primary arguments of government power supporters over the years has been, "if we nationalize the electric power industry, we won't have to suffer high rates while stockholders reap huge profits at out expense."

To demonstrate just how fallacious and self-serving this is, listen to the remarks of a TVA official trying to rebut the criticism of a Congressman who had chastised the authority for its repeated rate increases. This was the published quote:

"It's possible we could stop raising rates if inflation recedes and coal costs come down . . . TVA is a self–financing agency that must earn a profit with which to pay off bondholders and plow some funds back into the system as a way of cutting borrowing needs and borrowing interest costs."

The notion that a government-operated power authority would be profit-free and return those profits to the consumer is a piece of rhetoric that is swallowed all too willingly by people unfamiliar with the facts. Public power proponents know better, but are not about to tell.

EFFECTIVE REGULATION

A genuine form of consumer protection is a viable Department of Public Utilities. The creation of full-time DPU commissioners has given the DPU greater review capacity and credibility than at any time in its existence. Regulators who are both tough and fair are probably the greatest ally of the consumer and investor alike, since they provide the tools and create incentives for efficient management. A state-run power authority would have no such incentives.

SERVICE IS THE KEY

With the politicization of the electric power industry, service to all customers, commercial, industrial and residential, would deteriorate, if the history of government involvement in other operations (MBTA, pension funds, welfare) is any indication. The investor-owned electric utilities in Massachusetts have developed their expertise and professionalism over the last century. The generation and transmission of electricity is a highly-technical, immensely–complex business too vital to entrust to an inexperienced politically-appointed power authority. New England electric utilities boast a reliability factor of 99.98 per cent. Can any state-run agency make that claim?

PROMISES, PROMISES

From time to time, self–declared social engineers have reworked established systems in the name of "reform." When state government assumed control of welfare, for instance, the new process was to have streamlined the flow of money to welfare recipients. Instead, welfare has mushroomed into an uncontrollable bureaucratic nightmare.

The MBTA is another state-run operation which has earned the antipathy of patrons everywhere with its service problems and massive deficits. Massachusetts has had a long and checkered history with special authorities. Some of these operations work better on paper than they do in practice, and when some dedicated people try to manage them in a businesslike manner they are subjected to heavy political pressure.

VOTE YOUR CONSCIENCE

Proponents of public power contend they are merely looking for a direct opinion from the voters on issue We welcome the challenge. The will of the people in rejecting the public power authority proposal is indirectly a compliment to the years of reliable, efficent service provided by the investor-owned companies. It is a mandate of sorts to carry on in this tradition.

The electric industry has been in the eye of the storm of rising prices. Consumer frustration with higher costs is understandable. We are confident, however, that the electric industry will ride out the storm of controversy and win the support of the people it serves. The seven-fold rise in oil prices over the past decade has had a devastating impact on electric utilities because of the enormous quantities of oil required to generate electricity.

Until we can extricate ourselves from the vice-like grip of foreign oil magnates, there is no easy solution to energy costs. A state-operated power authority, much less a few political opportunists, cannot possibly change circumstances that the most resourceful world governments are unable to reverse.

Once established, government agencies grow and grow. There is no turning back. I ask your help in stopping big government from getting bigger. I urge you to vote "NO" on Question No. 4 on the November 2 ballot in the hope that the ill-comceived government power authority idea will be defeated and that we may get on with the task of finding a realistic solution to our energy problems.

Tim, Bob and Richard Armour are three friendly and dependable brothers who run a prompt taxi service. Established in 1962, Bob's Yellow Cab of Norwood now boasts of a 14 cab fleet to serve you in a variety of ways.

Since taxi rates went up in Boston, they have found their service very popular with businessmen and women traveling to and from their offices. Package delivery has also become a popular, time-saving convenience.

The Armours have a station wagon that holds nine passengers, and may be reserved ahead of time for long distance travel, such as Logan Airport. Businesses, clubs and other organizations are urged to take advantage of the opportunity to travel together and split the fare. There is always one flat fee, based on distance and time, and never an additional charge for luggage.

Alm & Silton finds success in the suburbs

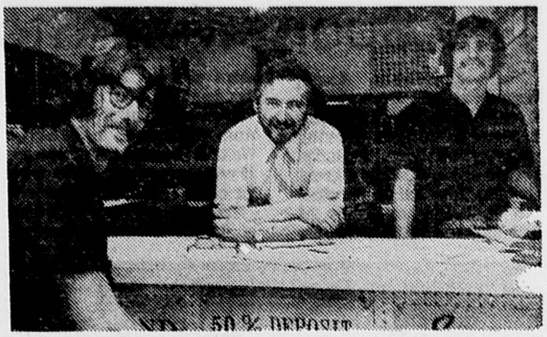

Alm & Silton Insurance Agency, located at 220 Boylston Street in Newton, is in its fifth successful year of business. Sumner Silton and Stowell Alm had individual agencies ad and offices in the same building in Boston when they decided that a merge in the Chestnut Hill area would be geographically advantageous for both of them.

These two very unique individuals run a warm and informal operation, serving clients from the Metropolitan area and as far north as the New Hampshire line.

Alm & Silton service all lines of insurance and are independent agents representing six different companies. Silton is also licensed for the sale of mutual funds and variable annuities.

Stowell Alms took over his fathers business which was established in 1932. Alms is very active in the Concord community and is Captain of the Concord Minutemen.

Al Silton ran two unsuccessful campaigns for the Newton School Committee, but considers his candidacy worthwhile because of the important issues he raised.

The friendly crew at Fasprint invites you to come in for prompt, quality service.

Cramer develops micro-computer center

Cramer Electronics, whose main offices are located at 84 Wells Avenue in Newton, started as a small radio parts store on Cornhill St. in Boston, and today has an inventory in excess of $40 million worth of parts, with $20 million in Newton.

Al Carmer bought the store, originally called Hatry and Young, in the early 50's. Now employing more than 1,400 people in 28 divisions throughout the U.S., Canada, Rome and London, this international giant is the world's largest distributor of broadline electronic components.

Cramer Electronics represents leading manufacturers of quality electronic components, ranging from sophisticated, integrated circuits to very basic tools. They provide warehousing, material handling and inventory control services for all of the industries they sell to.

Mr. Grant, manager of marketing sales, says that sales, which were at $33 million 10 years ago, now exceed $150 million, although the company has suffered from the recession.

Plans for a major international expansion are already underway. Cramer Electronics is taking a strong leadership position in advancing knowledge of the micro-computer industry. One of its most advanced and fascinating developments is the Universe (pronounced muniverse and spelled with the greek letter mu), a complete micro-computer design center. The Cramer Kit is another invention which is used as a learning device for engineers and technicians involved in this field.

The Greek letter "mu" stands for Cramer "mu"niverse.

Some day, a solar power plant in outer space may provide electricity to operate your home.

But what about today?

We don't have to tell you that the cost of the fuel oil needed to generate electricity has skyrocketed.

You just have to look at the fuel adjustment charge on your electric bill. Something has to be done to lower the price of electricity. And something is being done.

Utility companies are actively exploring new sources for electricity.

Will the wind toast your English muffins?

Solar power. Heat from the earth. The wind. Even ocean currents. At Boston Edison, we're in touch with all these developments. But we can't afford to wait for them. The world's supply of fossil fuels is running out, while the demand for electricity is expected to keep increasing.

Nuclear energy: it powers satellites.

Why not dishwashers?

To meet the demand for electricity, Boston Edison is increasing its generating capacity with plants that run on nuclear energy.

Why nuclear power? Because it's clean.

Because it's inexpensive when compared to the rising cost of oil and other fuels.

Because it's safe. A recent government-sponsored study estimates that your chance of injury from a nuclear reactor accident is much less than it is of being killed or injured by a hurricane, lightning, or simply driving your car around town.

And, just as importantly, because nuclear power is available now.

Always at your service.

The Sportswear Store just keeps on growing

The Sportswear Store, located at 136 Howard St., Framingham, known as New England's largest saving center, offers the thrift-minded consumer more than just great savings. Many unique services and a large selection of clothing and fabrics make this store one of Framingham's wonders.

Two identical twin sisters, Ann Isaacson and Betty Weitzler, opened the store over 30 years ago as a discount store for children's snowsuits.

Today, they carry a full line of decorator fabrics, custom slip covers and upholstery material, yarn, needlecraft and macrame supplies, as well as men's, women's and children's clothing. There is even a special section for juniors, called "junior avenue."

The salespeople, eager to help customers with personal problems, such as picking out patterns and fabrics, have well earned their reputation for good service.

The store's custom decorating service goes into homes to take measurements for their upholstery fabrics. Other features include picture framing and clothing altering.

At The Sportswear Store, the words "family" and "business" not only go together, but seem to grow together. The Isaacsons and Weitzlers have always been active in the community and have participated in many civic and charity functions.

Dedham Insurance has been serving the community for 56 years.

Meisters masters of Club Car Restaurant

Eddie and Irving Meister, owners of the Norwood and Hingham Club Cars, have been in the restaurant and liquor business for 41 years.

In 1942 they operated a wholesale distributor for Rheingold and in 1945 ran a night club and show bar pub. They opened the North Station Horse in 1950 and in 1955 opened The Sidecar at South Station.

In addition to running the restaurant, the lounges at both clubs are used for a variety of functions. "We expect to be going into banquets in a bigger way starting next fall," Eddie Meister said. The lounge at Norwood is large enough to hold up to 200 people, although some parties are as small as 10.

What accounts for success in this business, where ownership often changes as fast as a clock ticks. "The most important aspects of a successful business", say the Meisters, "are gimmicks, location, and money."

Irving Meister is the partner in charge of choosing locations and has had more than 20 years in the shopping center. Eddie Meister heads promotions and entertainment along with restaurant theme and accessories. Mr. Simons is the real estate operator and banker.

Fasprint - copies par excellence

Fasprint, of 557 High Street in Dedham, offers quick, dependable service for any type of photo-offset printing.

The owner, Richard Kessel, is just as happy to make one copy while-you-wait, as he is to produce 100,000 copies of ten-part colored forms.

Fasprint has expanded impressively since opening five years ago as a small copy center, and Kessel admits that the growing pains have not yet stopped.

We explain - answer questions - quote premiums cost - make suggestions. No pressure of any kind.
You make your decisions.
There is no such thing as a silly question where insurance is involved. The most elementary query is a serious one.

At Dedham Insurance clients come first

The Dedham Insurance Agency, established in 1920 by William G. Street, now represents seven different companies and serves 10,000 people. Ethel M. Street is the principal owner of the corporation, which has been located, since 1948, in its own building at 394 Washington Street.

Eugene Donaldson, the president, observes a changing attitude in the way people are purchasing insurance. There is a trend toward buying policies with large deductibles, Donaldson says, and "the time is coming rather rapidly when individuals will be insured only for catastrophic losses."

Donaldson feels that people can conduct their lives so they don't need a tremendous amount of insurance. "Some kinds of insurance can be eliminated," Donaldson says, "by better personal or corporate management and a little more caution."

He also observes an effort , on the part of the agencies, especially in southern states, to make policies more readable. "We believe that people should be told what they are buying."

Workingmen's Co-op: a mighty, humble bank

The window display in each Workingmen's Co-operative Bank shows a drawing of a "hippo" with the words "a mighty, humble bank" beneath it. For nearly a century, Workingmen's has served the community and responded sensitively to both individual and community needs.

When the founding charter was written, in 1880, the bank was called Workingmen's savings Fund and Loan Association. Today, the main offices are at 30 Congress St., in Boston, and six branches are located throughout the city, including one in West Roxbury.

Workingmen's knows that banking in Massachusetts has become a competitive business over the past few the years, and has done everything to make available all of latest services, such as free NOW accounts and computer on-line savings systems. There has always been extensive mortgage lending and loans are available for home repair and improvements, as well as college, weddings, cars, bikes.

A full line of savings accounts, individual retirement and Keogh accounts are also available. All monies in a co-operative bank are insured in full, as required under state law.

Long banking hours is a just another feature that means greater convenience for Workingmen's bankers. Every branch is open at least one night a week and most have banking hours on Saturdays.

One community project which the bank is particularly proud to have assisted, is the Parkway Boys Club in West Roxbury. Workingmen's Co-operative was one of several banks to lend money for the club's new building, and they were the bank that took the initiative in making those loans available.

As the economy changes, people's needs change and a bank must be ready to offer its customers the services that suit those needs. This is as true of Workingmen's Co-operative today as it was back in 1880.

Newall knows first impressions count

First impressions are very important in business and Howard Goldberg can help to make those impressions favorable. As owner and president of Newall Company, located at 107 Moody St., Waltham, Goldberg has carried on a family business that began in 1905 and was established as a high quality store for floor and wall coverings in 1933.

Newall offers expertise in putting together package deals that include doing work on walls, windows, and floors. "We'll set the backgrounds and you put in the furniture," suggests Goldberg.

For those who seek the unusual, Goldberg recommends a complete collection of vinyl flooring and carpets which are easily coordinated with window treatments and wall coverings.

Mr. Goldberg serves residential, commercial and industrial customers, and is equally adept at helping you choose an area rug as he is in handling the complete refurbishing job.

Mosher's, located on Center Street since 1924, boasts of being the oldest store in Newton Centre. It is owned and operated by Clifford Mosher, son of the store's founder.

WCVB-TV is pacesetter for television

In the short time it has been on the air, WCVB-TV, located at 5 TV Place, Needham, has clearly established itself as a vigorous programming innovator and pacesetter among commercial television stations in this country. By some accounts, it is in a class of its own.

The genesis of this uncommon broadcasting enterprise was in 1963, when Boston Broadcasters, Inc. accepted an FCC (Federal Communications Commission) invitation to apply for Boston's Channel 5 license. After an historic legal battle that reached the U.S. Supreme Court, the franchise was awarded to BBI, and WCVB-TV went on the air March 19, 1972.

Among the principles on which WCVB-TV was founded are quality locally-produced programming, 'round-th-clock operation, live telecasting, free political time, and outside the realm of programming, local ownership and the integration of stockholders-management i the day-to-day operation of the station.

As quoted in its charter, the station intends "to avoid the error so often associated with television — (that) of regarding the audience as simply an indiscriminate mass of viewers?"

In presenting socially significant programs, WCVB-TV has not abdicated the big audience. For example, recent documentaries on breast cancer and black urban policemen were rated number one in prime time (10:00 P.M.) against network competition.

The cycle of WCVB-TV achievement is hardly complete. Others now are interested in its products. Several series either have been — or soon will be in national syndication.

The award-winning children's series, "Jabberwocky," is being recirculated nationally after a year in syndication (1974-75) when it reached 70 per cent saturation of U.S. markets. A 60-minute documentary-drama on heart disease, "The Frightening Feeling You're Going to Die," has been shown in top ten markets.

National syndication will begin this September for a combination of health care programs under the umbrella title, "Update on Health." Also, "Good Day!" — already carried throughout New England and into Montreal and New Brunswick — is being offered to other parts of the country. Thus far, both shows will be telecast in approximately 75 markets across the U.S. beginning Sept. 6.

For the past two years, WCVB-TV's performance in news and public affairs programming and minority hiring has earned it the number one position among all commercial stations in studies conducted by the National Black Media Coalition, a citizens broadcast action group.

And the Gabriel Awards Committee in 1975 added this statement to a WCVB-TV award citation: "Subperbly commendable service to the community at every level. Imagine what this country would be like if every station did this kind of programming. A vision of what television can be!"

Janet Langhart and John Willis will host on channel 5's "Good Morning" show.

Baker Plumbing Service is now part of the Elman Plumbing Co., according to an announcement by Chester and Murray Elman.

The expanded firm has moved to new offices at 148 Needham Street, Newton Upper Falls, where it has put in a showroom featuring a complete line of fixtures, as well as a selection of decorator faucets, disposals and hot water heaters. Also available are complete Bath & Kitchen remodeling service, Charmglo outdoor gas grills(sales and installation) and Kitchenaid Distributor (sales and service).

The Elman brothers are the sons of Ruby Fliegelman, who, at 82, is one of the oldest active licensed plumbers in Massachusetts. The Elman brothers have been running the firm for 18 years and Chester Elman's son, David, has now joined the firm to coordinate the subcontracting of carpentry, cabinetmaking, tiling and electrical services on remodeling jobs.

The firm serves the western suburbs and also has an office in Randolph.

Shreve, Crump & Low at Chestnut Hill Mall

Shreve, Crump & Low Co. is world renowned for its fine collection of precious gems, jewelry of all sorts, china, porcelain, glassware, furniture, and other superb quality crafts. The company traces its birth back to a small watchmaker's shop that stood on Marlborough Street, in Boston, in the late 1790's.

In February 1974, Shreve, Crump & Low opened a full-line branch store at the Mall at Chestnut Hill. This handsome store is for the convenience of the many customers who live in the suburbs and find parking elsewhere a problem. The evening hours (9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.) are especially attractive to those who wish to shop together.

All the distinction, the quality, and the diversity of items customers have learned to expect are to be found in the newest of Shreve locations. - There is one certified gemologist, David A. Bilger, Jr., to help you with your selections. Mr. Bilger has been at Shreve's since March, 1975, and in the business for 33 years. His background includes watchmaking, handgraving, jewelry repair and sales experience in china, silver and crystal.

The wedding gift registry, the first one in a Boston store, is a service Shreve's provides for the convenience of the bride-to-be and friends who wish to please her with the most suitable gift possible and to avoid duplication.

The bride-to-be selects her china, silver, and crystal and then registers them in the wedding gift registry. Her choices are entered in the registry for the reference of her gift-giving friends and family.

In commemoration of the country's 200th anniversary, Shreve's introduced in 1973 its Bicentennial collection. On America's finest bone china with deeply etched 24-carat gold and cobalt decoration, the Double Eagle is presented. In a limited edition of 5,000, commissioned by the United States Bicentennial Society, each plate is numbered, registered, and certified by the Bank of Virginia.

An important feature of Shreve's silver department is its engraving service. The highly skilled engravers design many unusual monograms on bridal gifts, and inscriptions on trophies and presentation pieces.

The range of prices of silver items is representative of the range of prices throughout the store. A silver key chain will sell for $7.50 or a reproduction of the Mayflower in sterling silver for $30,000.

Shreve, Crump & Low encourages "browsing," perhaps difficult to believe in a store with such a large inventory. Display cases are arranged so that customers can indulge in "just looking" with a maximum of ease. China and crystal are left on open shelves for close inspection and handling. Rooms for individual selection of the store's fine jewelry are provided when privacy is desired.

Richard S. Shreve is the fourth generation of family members to run this famous store. His word is law at Shreve, Crump & Low, based on sound judgment, long experience, professional ability, and the special kind of good taste that is unique with Shreve's.

Richard S. Shreve, president of Shreve, Crump & Low, with David Bilger, manager of the Chestnut Hill Mall Store.

Dedham Bike & Leather sells Puch Mopeds

THE MOPEDS HAVE COME TO DEDHAM

Dedham Bike & Leather Company, located in the oldest wood-frame structure still standing in Dedham at 403 Washington St., Dedham, is heralding the arrival of the Mopeds. Puch Mopeds, the newest rage in transportation, are ideal as a "second car" and operable with a valid driver's license.

Puch Mopeds get 150 miles per gallon, have a speed from 0-25, and are insured under the family home-owner's policy. Puch Mopeds boast quality construction and give you super-economy and are ideal for students, housewives, grand-mothers and businessmen. They can travel in a special rack attached to a car for traveling around during a vacation, business or pleasure trip. Special designed baskets are available to carry your belongings with you and no special dress is required.

Dedham Bike & Leather Company expects an exciting future with the arrival of the Puch Mopeds, if the past is any indication. The gasoline pumps outside are remnants of the first service station in the Square. Inside, decaying brick ovens are still standing from the days when it was a thriving bakery.

Before ten-speed bicycles were dreamed of, the shop made saddles and other leather goods for the U.S. Cavalry. Some of these artifacts still decorate the shop.

Mr. Donovan is a Health and Physical Education Graduate of Boston University and carries on the business that began in 1902 and was run by his father-in-law since 1934.

Donovan recently expanded the shop to twice its original size and specializes in Puch Mopeds and leading brand names of bicycles for all ages.

Luxury Furs and Fashions at Vengrows, the best shopping in town

For over 52 years, Vengrow's, of 1362 Beacon St., Brookline, has adhered to a policy of good service, quality and value in ladies' apparel, despite changing times and skyrocketing prices.

How do they do it?

Well, for one thing, Vengrow's is now too old to change and its personnel are too steeped in its tradition. For example, Paul Vengrow, the senior member, is a master mink cutter and has been cutting, designing and working on furs for over 52 years. This permits Vengrow's to personally handle fur remodeling and repairs in their own shop without having to explain to a third party, who sometimes falls short of the exact needs and intricacies for complete satisfaction.

Thus, the elimination of the middleman permits them to charge less and still be able to guarantee the work with a two year free service policy.

Vengrow's even guarantees their new stock and made to order furs that are sold with a two year free service policy. The amazing part is that this guarantee is unconditional.

Vengrow's cloth department, with its many and varied items is supervised by the well known buyer, Miss Dolores. You'll love her warmth and sincerity and appreciate her expertise in helping you select suitable garments.

Vengrow's prices for their service, quality and values may not befit the times, but they are certainly appreciated by the many customers who enjoy individual attention without pressure, in a friendly atmosphere.

If you have any fur problems or are looking for fur ideas, don't hesitate to see Vengrow's for a direct and honest answer and even a free estimate

Take another look Massachusetts:

By HOWARD N. SMITH
Secretary of Economic Affairs

As Secretary of Economic Affairs, now 18 months into a new Administration, I would like to issue a broad perspective on our progress to date and comment on my sincere sense of optimism regarding the prospects for continued improvement in the Massachusetts economic environment.

I know that in the context of day-to-day business pressures and newspaper reading, it is often difficult to be optimistic about the Massachusetts economy. We have just been through a serious economic downturn, the State and region suffer from complex structural problems, and we all know that there are no quick, easy solutions.

Unfortunately, it is easy to become lost in the forest, to be impatient and to expect too much too soon. I suggest that if we back off and look at what is happening in Massachusetts from an historical perspective of 5 to 15 years, it is clear that something refreshingly new and different is going on. In the last 18 months, Massachusetts has turned an important corner. The Dukakis Administration has succeeded in effecting a substantial change in a relatively short period of time, and there is valid basis for by sense of optimism.

For example, I think that 18 months ago, it was generally agreed that if we were to restore and enhance the confidence of the business and financial communities in Massachusetts as a place in which to locate and expand, the most important single thing that the State could do, and indeed, had to do, was to get its own house in order. The State had to demonstrate that it knew how to hold the line on spending, live within its income, manage its affairs with increasing efficiency, and be more responsive to the legitimate concerns of the economy, reflecting a proper sense of priority and balance with environmental, social and other concerns. It is now appropriate to ask how we are doing with regard to this essential prerequisite to any program for improving the economy.

Since taking office, the disastrous trend of recent years has been reversed as we have moved from period of planning, execution and control. True, we are not yet out of the woods. We acknowledge that we have a long way to go, but we have made an admirable start. Together with the Legislature, and with support from the private sector, we have brought State spending under control and have balanced the budget.

The number of State employees is lower for the first time in living memory. The patronage system, so distasteful to an economic system based on merit, has been eliminated. An archaic debt structure has been reorganized. Welfare caseloads have been reduced. It is no longer possible to voluntarily quit your job in Massachusetts and collect unemployment benefits, and legislation calling for further reforms has been filed. The recommendations of the Governor's Management Task Force have been substiantially accepted, and an intensive implementation effort is underway. The problem of funding the pension plan, long swept under the rug, is under study and will be dealt with.

Finally, the Governor has made economic development the top priority of his Administration, and has formed a Development Cabinet unique in Massachusetts if not in America. Through the Business Contact Program, we have met with thousands of Massachusetts' major employers, and have helped literally hundreds of them with their problems.

I could go on, but surely Massachusetts' most severe critics would acknowledge that, by all historical precedents, the above accomplishments represents a dramatic change in the tone and trend of Massachusetts State government. Not as much or as fast as some would like, perhaps, but an impressive record of performance, given the complex nature of the governmental process and the amount of inertia in the system. This record deserves your careful scrutiny and your support.

With this groundwork behind us, we are now at a time of major opportunity. The adverse trend of recent years, climaxed by the recession, has resulted in a high degree of awareness among government leaders, Executive and Legislative, media and citizenry that Massachusetts has come perilously close to "killing the goose," and that the issue now, simply stated, is "Jobs." The stage is set for a concerted effort by all concerned, public and private, state and local, business and labor, to work together to implement a comprehensive program for the economic revitalization of the Commonwealth. In recent months, the Development Cabinet has prepared such a program with considerable input and assistance from interested parties throughout the public and private sectors. It is an excellent program and it will work, provided we all pull together and make it work. Our biggest obstacle is continued negativism, once justified, perhaps, but now obsolete in the light of current accomplishments. I urge all members of the Massachusetts economic community to acknowledge the substantial turnaround that has already taken place, and our continuing efforts to improve the economic health of our State and all its citizens.

Bullish on Massachusetts

By HUGH J. CROSSLAND

Hugh J. Crossland is a Dedham lawyer who is a Senior Partner in the Chestnut Hill firm of Meyers, Goldstein & Crossland. He specializes in tax, money and business problems.

It's time to be bullish on Massachusetts. Business and industry can find good reason to look confidently towards the future. Of late, and all too often, Massachusetts has been the state of hard knocks. Recently Dun & Bradstreet reported that only New York and California rank lower than Massachusetts as the worst state in the nation to do business, based on taxes, energy costs and a dozen other factors. Earlier Fantus Co. ranked the Bay State as 46th out of the 48 continental states in terms of the attractiveness of its business climate. In the face of such widespread criticism of the Massachusetts economy Governor Michael S. Dukakis just unveiled his long awaited Economic Development Program (EDP).

Economic Development Program. The Governor's EPD is a 70 page document that purports to serve as a blueprint in remedying the state's financial woes and reversing the poor business climate in the Commonwealth. The program goals "are to describe specific economic goals and priorities of the administration and to set an overall direction and framework for the role of state government in the revival of the Massachusetts economy in the years ahead." Although the EDP lacks substantive specificity its fourfold aim is to create more jobs, to raise personal incomes, to attract new industry and to turn the Commonwealth's economy around.

The EDP's plan includes the following highpoints:

—Four tax revisions for business and industry to encourage expansion, to attract new industry and to provide the incentives to create jobs with higher wages.

—Awarding at least $200 million in highway and transit contracts this year and in the future, including extending Route 25 from Wareham to Cape Cod and completing the rapid transit line from Quincy to Braintree.

—Activation of existing state development corporations, including the Community Development Finance Corporation and the Massachusetts Industrial Mortgage Insurance Agency.

—State encouragement of offshore gas and oil exploration and proposals to construct a refinery.

—Development of the high technology and energy related industries, including solar energy.

—Repeal of the antiquated and controversial blue laws so as to allow Sunday business in Massachusetts and to enable state businesses to compete effectively with businesses in the neighboring states.

—Expansion of the Port of Boston to increase domestic and foreign shipping trade.

—Preservation of Logan International Airport as an essential key to Massachusetts' future economic growth.

—Opposition to proposals to establish a flat electric rate for all consumers and a public power authority both of which will be on the November ballot.

—Support for the proposed graduated income tax (the Piro-Kelley bill).

—Reform of the state's welfare program to put people now on public assistance to work.

—Passage of the Governor's proposed reform of the unemployment compensation law.

Some Storm Signals. The Governor and his aides are justifiably enthusiastic about the comprehensive plan spelled out in the EDP. Yet while the administration optimistically pledges to pull the state out of its economic doldrums the Governor seemingly undermines the EDP and his credibility by supporting the graduated income tax referendum and the curfew on Logan Airport.

Both the graduated income tax and the Logan curfew appear to be at odds with the facts. The graduated income tax, the Piro-Kelley "Fair Tax Plan", is a politician's dream and an economist's nightmare. The Massachusetts Fair Share group claims it will decrease the tax of 85 percent of the public earning less than $15,000, thereby making a massive shift in the tax burden from the lower and middle income groups to the highest income earners. While the majority of voters gets a large reduction in income taxes the upper income citizens will get hit with double, triple and even quadruple tax increases. A study done by the First National Bank of Boston shows that the present Massachusetts income tax is a highly progressive tax, being far from regressive, and it compares favorably with the Federal income tax. More important the present tax system is more progressive than the graduated income tax plans in other states. You guessed it! The two states with the steepest graduated income taxes in the country are New York and California.

Turning to the Logan curfew it is recognized that noise is a serious deterrent to a high quality of living which each Massachusetts resident is entitled to. Still the recent Massport study on noise control concedes that shutting down Logan at night could result in the loss of some 12,000 jobs and $25 million worth of business, while it would, at best, reduce the noise level for only 19,000 people. Which is the highest and best good?

Economic Recovery Underway. The timing of the release of the EDP nicely coincides with Massachusetts' economic recovery. The leading indicators of economic activity reported by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston demonstrate both the breadth and the depth of the recovery which started in the second half of 1975.

—More people are employed.

—Unemployment has dropped sharply.

—Construction activity for residences and nonbuilding projects was substantially higher.

—Manufacturing production is above the level a year ago.

—Higher personal incomes have sparked the rise in consumer spending.

Economists expect that the Massachusetts economy will continue to strengthen in the coming months. Continued economic resurgence combined with the implementation of the EDP should make for a bright economic outlook. It's time to stand up and be counted. The politicians and policy makers need your mandate. If you have any doubts about the significance of the issue now and for the foreseeable future consider the gloomy prospects of what will become of the great Bay State. Another New York? Or California?

Donald Taub, vice president of Rust Craft Greeting Cards.

Rustcraft, growing since 1906

DEDHAM — Back in 1906, in a small Kansas City bookstore, a man named Fred Rust published 5,000 Christmas cards – the first to be designed for mailing in an envelope -- and Rust Craft Greeting Cards was born!

Sixty-nine years later, Rust Craft has grown to be one of the largest greeting card manufacturers in the world. Headquartered in Dedham, the main plant presently manufactures more than 200 million cards per year and employs approximately 750 people.

On an international level, Rust Craft wholly owns subsidiaries in England, Canada and France, and has licensees in 17 countries, including Australia, Denmark, Italy, Japan, New Zealand, South Africa, Greece, and Belgium.

Rust Craft also has broadcasting operations, consisting of six television stations and eleven radio stations throughout the United States.

Mr. Donald R. Taub is Vice President of Rust Craft Greeting Cards and President of Rust-Greetings Division. In the latter capacity he is in charge of Domestic Greeting Card Operations.

Taub has been with Rust Craft for twelve years and has held numerous executive positions, among them, Vice President and General Manager of the Barker Greeting Card Division in Ohio, and, also, President of Emkay Candle Co. in Syracuse, New York.

Mr. Taub is also the newly elected President of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

The company and its subsidiaries produce greeting cards for all occasions, including special promotional lines to incorporate new trends, gift wrappings, paper party goods, stationery, candles, posters, display cabinets, plates and plaques, novelties, gift and decorative items and fine art prints.

Propane is cheaper than you think

When Robert Polito, owner of Norwood Bottled Gas, bought the business from Rudolph Peterson in 1950, he had only 150 customers in 20 neighboring towns. Today, his customers number more than 1,200, coming from the same area.

Polito explains how his business got going. In the early '50's, many towns were built as electrical developments, with little or no available gas. Bottled gas, then, was one answer for homes that wanted gas delivery.

Norwood Bottled Gas does business primarily in bottled gas delivery, but it also sells and services many gas appliances, and water-heaters, and installs space heaters for single rooms and basements.

The outdoor gas grill business has been booming, partly because the cost of using a gas grill is about 20 cents an hour, which compares favorably with charcoal, at about $1 an hour. With gas, Polito says, "you only use what you need. People have discovered that this is a convenient and cheap way to cook. Everybody is a potential user."

In the last four or five years, electricity costs have been so high, that prices for gas are in line with electric fuel. Polito suggests that "people have finally found out that propane is one way to help beat inflation."

F.W. Faxon Company, world wide service to libraries

F. W. Faxon Company, located at 15 Southwest Park in Westwood, has offered almost a century of service to libraries throughout the world, both as a library magazine subscription agency and as a publisher of renowned library reference works.

The company originated in 1881 as Soule and Bugbee, a firm who published and sold law books. In 1889, the firm was renamed the Boston Book Company and was reorganized to include a library department. In 1918, the Boston Book Company became the F. W. Faxon company.

Since 1969, Faxon has been an influential member of the Westwood community, owning a modern and spacious facility and employing over 200 people, most of whom reside in Westwood and surrounding towns.

Today the Faxon Company serves over 18,000 libraries in the United States and abroad and is the only fully automated library magazine subscription agency in the world.

This automated subscription processing system, which was introduced in 1958, has been perfected by skilled specialists, using the most innovative techniques to assure fast, accurate service.

College, university, school, public, corporation, and specialized libraries rely on Faxon to place and renew their magazine subscriptions from an international selection of over 80,000 educational, sceintific, medical, technical, and popular titles.

With Faxon, libraries place one order and receive one invoice, rather than the hundreds of orders and invoices when magazines are subscribed to individually.

F. W. Faxon Company has recently appointed six regional representatives to extend its personalized service throughout the United States. All subscription and publishing orders will continue to be processed in the central Faxon Westwood office to assure the most efficient control and service.

William Carter Company now has twelve plants

The William Carter Company is virtually a landmark in the town of Needham.

The Carter label has achieved recognition as one of the most trustworthy guarantees of quality in American business. Succeeding generations have recalled their own childhood and insisted on their youngsters having the label they can trust. It is not surprising, therefore, that millions of mothers have Carter's in mind when they go to the store to purchase clothing for their children.

It all began in William Carter's kitchen in Highlandville (later called Needham Heights) in 1865 where the first Carter's garment was made. The Company has since grown to be one of America's leading apparel enterprises and is continuing to expand.

The present management of the firm is continuing the fine leadership which William Carter began. The Company is now headed by Leo J. Feuer, President. Richard G. Holland is Executive Vice President. Both men are also Directors of the firm.

There has always been strong direct participation in the company by the Carter family. Today, three other descendents of the founder now hold important positions. Manson H. Carter and William H. Carter II are great grandsons of the founder and grandsons of Horace A. Carter. Manson is Vice President, Merchandising, Clerk and a Director; William is Director of Licensing. Dana Carter, a son of Lyndall F. Carter is a Director of the Company.

Carter's now has 12 manufacturing plants and has sales offices in major cities all over the country. Advertisements in leading magazines and on television remind mothers and gift givers of the fact that Carter's represents their best value in children's wear.

Products manufactured by Carters include layette garments and accessories; playwear and swimsuit for infants, toddlers and children to size 6X and underwear and sleepwear.

Electronic Data Corp.

NEWTON — Electronic Data Corporation (an affiliate) was founded in 1959. The use of the trade mark Data Utilities of North America started in New England in 1965. Data Utilities has been a resident of Newton since late 1972, and one of the first in the Newton at 128 Industrial Park.

Although through Electronic Data Corporation Data Utilities had been doing business in Boston since 1959, it was not until the move to Newton that the image of a business service backed up by continuous advice took hold. Because of our computer facility, we are literally able to function as a complete data processing center for any of our clients. Our attractive and comfortable quarters provide us with the unique opportunity of solving problems away from the day-to-day rush and routine.

The emphasis at Data Utilities is people-oriented. Our position has always been that machines are only as good as the people that maintain, teach or run them. Our success is based upon a mutual understanding of problems and their solution.

There is never a dull moment at 189 Wells Avenue. If we aren't working on a wholesaler-distributor problem, it might be a manufacturer of labels or garments. We are also very proud to have helped Mt. Ida develop their business management programs. For that matter, the Data Utilities staff is in continuous contact with many of the students right on our premises teaching them the art of data processing management.

Peter Rapp, President of Electronic Data Corporation is a member of the faculty of Mt. Ida, and we can boast that he received his Certificate in Data Processing in the very early pioneering days of data processing.

John Banjak, chief executive officer, having taught, soldiered and then practiced law in Washington D.C. entered the data processing field through his stint in the early '60s of running a Boston mutual fund. He and Peter Rapp joined their management talents and have been together for 12 years. Banjak lives in Dedham and Rapp, in Randolph.

Unique ideas offered in lighting

Massachusetts Gas and Electric Supply Co., located at 604 Pleasant St., Watertown, is a fascinating adventure of "everything electrical."

Under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Needel, and their staff of 23, they provide unlimited assistance and technical information for their customers.

Their new building which boasts 10,000 square feet of lighting for all types of furniture styles, features table lamps, floor lamps, lead crystal chandeliers as well as the hand-painted, hand-wrought hanging chandeliers.

Gas-lit lanterns, track lighting and a hanging waterfall light are but a few of the samplings offered to homeowners, electrical contractors, condominiums and industrial and commercial accounts.

New lighting ideas for you to see are the masterpiece lamps created by Nightwatch Lamp Company. Each lamp is different and created from genuine antiques. No two lamps are alike and the oilskin lampshades give these lamps the look of yesteryear.

If you like to be different, you might enjoy the light fixture which has a revolving fan for added comfort. The ceiling fan will be a conversationpiece wherever you use it. The pre-inventory sale helps to make everything electrical affordable for everyone.

Unique accents are yours with the new Artisan House Wall Sculptures. These are not electrical and are not included in the pre-inventory sale, but each one is a masterpiece in hand-craftsmanship.

Massachusetts Gas and Electric Supply Co., has long been respected as a supply house with orders shipped locally and nationally on a daily basis. Trained lighting consultants are available by appointment to assist commercial and industrial customers plan their lighting scheme efficiently.

Other electrical products include air conditioners, door bells and chimes, dimmers and controls, fans and blowers, heaters, humidifiers, street lighting, range hoods, stage and studio lamps. There are four additional studio locations in Boston, Lynn, Watertown, New Bedford and Portsmouth, N.H.

John Spirito, owner of Butcher II, and son David, offer you the very best in quality meats and poultry.

Davis Films: That's Entertainment

Mel and Stan Davis had a combined total of 57 years experience in film distributing when they decided to purchase and run theatres in the New England area back in 1969.

Davis Films, located at 938 Park Square in Boston, owns and operates the Needham Cinema, Orpheus Theatre in Foxboro, Parkway Plaza in Chelsea, and four drive-ins in Maine.

When the brothers purchased the Needham Cinema, which Mel considers "one of the most attractive theatres in suburban Boston," they closed it for four months to do a complete remodeling job.

The cinema is built on one floor with perfect stadium vision from all angles and top notch sound and projection. The seats are wide and there's enough legroom so you don't have to get up each time someone walks in from front of you.

Only the best available pictures are selected for the air-conditioned theatre. During the school year, special kiddie matinees are shown on Saturdays, Sundays, and vacation days.

Choose between two films at the newly developed twin cinema complex at Parkway Plaza, or see a first run flick at the Orpheum. If you are in Maine, you will find drive-ins in Kittery, Kennebunk and Brunswick.

Experience fuels West Roxbury Auto School

West Roxbury Auto School, Inc. located at 115 Park St., West Roxbury, was founded in 1965 and is owned by John A. LaCascia. Mr. LaCascia is a member of the Driving School Assoc. of America. He is certified and licensed by the Mass. Registry of Motor Vehicles in the field of driver education and has been involved in this field for many years.

All classroom and driver training programs both at the main auto school office and at the driver education programs conducted at Catholic Memorial High School, West Roxbury and St. Clare High School, Roslindale are staffed by professional and experienced personnel, headed by office manager Mr. Norman Nelson.

The office is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday, and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday.

A student up to age 25 completing a driver education course is eligible to receive a reduction in insurance rates. This reduction could be quite substantial as the rates keep increasing every year.

Also, the West Roxbury Auto School offers a Learner's Permit class for adults in preparation for the taking of a written test given by the Registry of Motor Vehicles prior to learning how to drive. This course is offered by the school as a community service and there is no charge or obligation to the school in any way. The school also provides, as part of this class, free transportation to the nearest Registry office either Boston or Quincy for the taking of the learner's permit test.

Private driving lessons for adults with free pickup and return home and also refresher driving lesssons are an integral part of the school and are offered to the community.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The No. 1 survival skill for today's business manager is the human relations skill — the ability to understand human behavior and to deal with it intelligently, says Karl Albrecht, management consultant.

Albrecht, who heads his own firm, Management Sciences, and conducts seminars for the University of California, San Diego, on management by objectives, says the whole question of workers and managers and their relationship to each other began to change in the 30's and 40's.

But not enough managers and supervisors have recognized the changing attitude of workers, he said.

"Workers are less willing to take abuse from large corporations than were their parents. These employes are not working for the manager. They are working for themselves and their own needs."

Those needs, in addtion to money, Albrecht said, are "social contact with other people and gratification at the job. These are just as important as income in the pocket."

He teaches the concept of objective-oriented management — a form of management he feels has gotten a bad name because of its misuse by many corporations.

"The concept has too often been misapplied and then discarded," Albrecht explained, "usually because it was overbureaucratized. Instead of being a servant it becomes a master, and the resulting forms and reports are more of a handicap than an advantage."

The way Albrecht sees it, most management-by-objective programs are instituted at the top of the organization, and handed down as an edict to be followed by lower-level managers.

"What is seldom done," he said, "is for management to go down to the grass roots and inspect the responses workers have to change."

Any organization which reaches operating equilibrium has a fair amount of inertia, Albrecht said, and resistance to almost any kind of change. "People like routines and patterns, and any major change which disrupts some aspect of that equilibrium needs to be efficiently communicated."

Too often, he said, management fails to recognize that a supervisory job is radically different from a specialty job, and persons promoted to such positions are often thrown into a "sink or swim" situation.

"Successful management is less methods and principles than it is personal relations skills," he said. "Managers must ask themselves what they do that affects their work with others."

An organization must be looked upon as a social system rather than a mechanical apparatus, according to the consultant. "If a person worries about losing his job, his status, or fears his relationships with other workers will be damaged, he will resist change." Objective-oriented management then becomes a decentralized selling job, "to sell all people in the organization on the basis that the changes are worthwhile to them as individuals."

By communicating with the employees, telling them what the firm's goals are and how the workers fit into the scheme of things, Albrecht said, the firm will establish a better working environment and productivity is likely to increase.

Unfortunately, Albrecht said, not all managers are selected because of their skill with people. Traditionally an individual is promoted into management because he has performed well in some specialty.

Newton Co-operative helps women get loans

The Newton Co-operative Bank, whose main office is at 305 Walnut St., Newtonville, is doing its best to help qualified women secure loans and credit as individual borrowers.

Althouth there are laws prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status, a person must meet the requirements of a particular bank for loan approval.

There are two essential requirements for establishing credit worthiness. First, one must have a good credit record. On a first loan, it is not uncommon that a co-signer be required. A co-signer may be a relative or friend who has maintained a good credit standing. If a married woman was co-signer with her husband on a previous loan which was paid promptly, this is evidence of good credit.

The second requirement is the ability to repay the requested loan amount based on a steady source of income. Regular child support and alimony payments qualify as income. Applicants may be required to meet additional standards depending on the type of loan.

Nancy Morrison, consumer loan manager for Newton Co-operative, suggests comparison shopping for the best terms and rates before making a final decision. For an informative booklet entitled, "Counting on Credit," published by the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, stop in at any of the bank's five offices. Branch banks are located in West Newton, Newton Lower Falls, Waban and Chestnut Hill.

What's ahead for business

By LEWIS B. SONGER
Exec. V.P.
Newton-Needham
Chamber of Commerce

The Fall of 1976 is viewed with some optimism by many local business leaders, following a somewhat indifferent summer season. While the national economic course of events may be somewhat altered by the presidential and congressional elections, this area—this region, in fact is somewhat "out of it" in terms of influencing the trends which are all too apparent to behold. The Northeast and New England, particularly, are in trouble.

Earlier this year an important book was published, named "Power Shift", by Kirkpatrick Sale. The author does a masterful job in explaining the rise of the Sunbelt, that area stretching from central California eastward, including the southwest, the southeast and south of Tennessee and North Carolina. The rise of industry, the growth in population, the manifold increase in public and private investment and the rising influence in national political and economic decision-making are sobering to read. One can better understand what has been happening hereabouts when you've read this book.

While the major factors of population loss, coupled with rising welfare and energy costs, are serious, they may not be fatal. This country has grown by an imaginative operation combining resources with entrepreneurial skill, together with sufficient capital and a skilled labor force. These basic factors still exist in the Northeast and in Massachusetts, but we will all have to work a little harder to bring about any economic resurgence.

And while the national picture is cloudy, the state picture seems to be getting better. Earlier this year the media was properly concerned with major stories of the exodus of industrial business from the state. Companies like Digital, Dennison and Raytheon announced expansion plans—but that the expansion would take place in New Hampshire or in Mississippi. Fortunately in this free society, business can expand where it pleases, but it did demonstrate to the elected officials in the state House that we have some problems.

The legislature, in turn, voted down a major business-opposed bill which will allow flat rates, disregarding the loss of jobs and shift of cost to the consumer. The legislature saw the consequences, but those in sympathy with Fair Share collected sufficient signatures to force the issue to the ballot. Not only will the voters, preoccupied with what will ultimately be a close presidential contest, have to decide on flat rates, but a variety of other referenda, including public power, the graduated income tax, E.R.A. and other matters. No one should hazard a guess at this time what the outcome will be on any of these matters.

Governor Dukakis in recent days has taken a more aggressive stance relating to business problems. Not only has he opposed flat rates, but he has come out strongly against the Logan Airport curfew. The economic consequences of that item go far beyond direct job losses at the airport site.

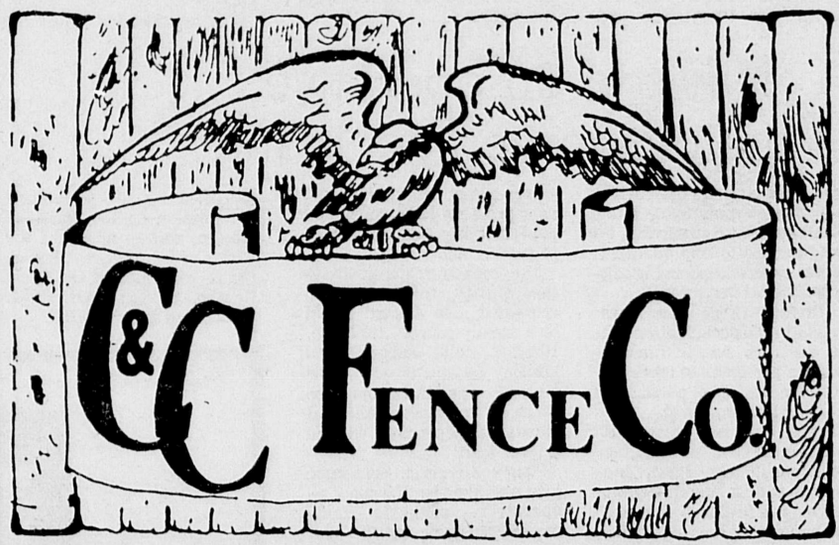

The focus on jobs and transportation is altogether a proper one. Society cannot meet its social needs and costs without the ability to raise money thrugh taxes yet many well-meaning individuals have not absorbed this basic economic fact.

The Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce over the past four or five years has had a central focus on the importance of economic development as it relates to jobs and transportation. The Chamber's leaders recently met with the Secretary and Assistant Secretary of Economic Affairs, the Commissioner of Commerce and Development, the Director of the Division of Employment Security and other state officials with respect to several matters. The Chamber feels that to improve the service of the D.E.S., the jobs function must be physically separated from the claims function. This and other recommendations made during the Greenleigh Project study and report would hopefully result in more job listings with D.E.S. and more employment service for the unemployed.

The Chamber has run manpower development seminars, participates in the Newton area C.E.T.A. consortium and furnishes business leadership for solving these and other community problems. Most business leaders in the Chamber favor maintaining commuter rail over building rapid transit from Needham to Boston and there is strong objection to rapid transit from Route 128 westward into downtown Needham. It welcomes the Coca-Cola Co., which purchased the American Can facility in the industrial center and Massachusetts General Life Insurance Co., which has moved its executive offices from Boston to the new Newton Executive Park, Newton's first redevelopment project.

Such business activity, we feel, is a harbinger of good things ahead.

Nomination goes to DeNucci in 16th district

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Former prizefighter A. Joseph DeNucci knocked State Rep. Richard McGrath out of the running for reelection Tuesday night by a 176-vote margin.

DeNucci beat McGrath in the Democratic primary race for the 16th District, including parts of Auburndale, Newtonville and West Newton.

DeNucci lost to McGrath two years ago by four votes, which diminished to three in a recount.

McGrath indicated Tuesday night after conceding his defeat that he may mount a campaign to regain his seat in the legislature by sticker (write-in) votes in the general election in November.

The preprimary race was characterized by charges of "dirty tricks" from both sides, chief among which was the charge by DeNucci that McGrath had obtained applications for absentee ballots in a questionable manner.

DeNucci's lawyer, Sanford Kowal, was prepared to challenge several absentee ballots sent to a West Newton nursing home in response to applications he suggested had been maneuvered by McGrath's mother from incompetent patients.

The whole question never arose, however, since the total of 123 absentee ballots from the 16th District would not have affected the outcome of the election, and none of the challengeable ballots were sent in to the Election Commission.

Ward 3, precincts 1, 3, and 4, north of Washington Street, was the key to DeNucci's victory. These three precincts were the only ones carried by DeNucci, but their heavy vote put DeNucci out of reach.

As in 1974, McGrath carried five precincts, including liberal and wealthy West Newton Hill, precinct 2 of Ward 3, and the single precinct in Ward 2.

McGrath won by a large number of votes in the Auburndale precincts, especially his home precinct, 4-3.

Wellwishers gathered at American Legion Post 440 in Nonantum to welcome the victor, while at McGrath's home supporters came quietly to express their regret at his loss, and in some cases to hear the results for the first time.

At Post 440 the mood was jubilant as the crowd welcomed DeNucci, who had stopped at City Hall before joining his victory celebration.

DeNucci said he was going back to work at the State House Wednesday morning, although on Wednesday morning a campaign worker, who had not left the party until after 4 a.m., said, "No way did Joe go to work this morning."

DeNucci was given leave of absence from his position as aide at the General Court when he announced his intention to run for office.

State Rep. David Mofenson commented about DeNucci that he has "compassion," and has always shown a desire to listen to good advice and learn about subjects with which he is not familiar.

"He will be a fine representative," Mofenson said.

DeNucci's father, Alexander, sharing his son's joy at winning the primary, said, "I believe Joe will do a good job because his heart's in it. Joe always wanted to do good."

DeNucci, recently turned 37, started out as a pageboy in the State House at age 18, his father said.

Another supporter, Milton Crandall, said, "I don't believe in everything Joe does, but I believe that he'll do a good job."

McGrath Tuesday night was indecisive about any other political aspirations. First he will decide whether a sticker campaign (the machine equivalent of write-in) would be feasible.

Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission, said that while almost all defeated candidates consider that route, it is a "very difficult avenue."

If McGrath lets this election year pass, there is always next year, when the Board of Aldermen is up for election.

McGrath was an alderman from Ward 4 for two terms and served one year as both alderman and state representative.

He enjoyed serving as alderman and did not decide until quite late not to seek that post again and continue to do both jobs.

DeNucci proponents used McGrath's love of municipal politics and other involvement against him, saying that he devoted too much time to Newton issues and not enough to state issues as a state representative.

If he should decide to run again for alderman, he would oppose Carol Ann Shea, whom he supported, Donald Budge, and John Stewart. All of Ward 4's aldermen are serving their first terms.

DeNucci will be opposed in the general election Nov. 2 by George Withington, who was unopposed in the Republican primary. Withington got 330 votes.

In addition to the McGrath-DeNucci race which gave DeNucci the Democratic nomination for state representative in the 16th Middlesex District, 165 Republicans managed to put Howard Passman on the ballot to oppose Lois Pines in the 19th Middlesex District.

Democratic results

Edward Kennedy was the easy victor in Newton for in the U.S. Senate race. He got 8507 votes. Robert Dinsmore came in second with 1143 and Frederick Langone got 623.

Incumbent Congressman Robert Drinan compiled 7739 votes. Incumbent Governor's Councillor Herbert Connolly, running unopposed in the general election, got 5029 votes.

Incumbent State Sen. Jack Backman received 5,951 votes in Newton and 4,113 in Brookline for a total vote of 10,064.

The votes cast in state representative races were 1459 for Peter F. Harrington in the 17th Middlesex District and a total of 1394 for David J. Mofenson in the 18th Middlesex District, including 1184 in Newton and 210 in Needham's Precinct H. Lois Pines got 1331 votes in the 19th Middlesex District.

None had primary opponents. All have opponents in the general election.

Incumbent Clerk of Courts Edward J. Sullivan got 5172 votes in Newton and incumbent Register of Deeds John F. Zamparelli got 4776 votes here.

In the race for Middlesex County Commissioner, the nominees will be incumbents Michael E. McLaughlin and S. Lester Ralph. In Newton S. Lester Ralph got the most votes, 3419, and Joyce Morrissey Beatty, a local resident, came in second with 3207 votes. McLaughlin got 3176 votes here.

Republican results

The Republican nominee for U.S. Senator, Michael S. Robertson, received 1062 votes in Newton.

Drinan's opponent, Arthur D. Mason of Brookline, got 1167 votes.

Aaron D. Spencer received a total of 1867 votes in the Newton-Brookline State

Tax rate to be voted Monday

The Board of Aldermen Monday night will decide whether the tax rate will go up $6 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation or by some other figure up to $7.20.

The Finance Committee last week voted to cut to $400,000 the $900,000 requested by the mayor to be set aside from the next fiscal year's revenue to take care of collective bargaining.

The commitment of $400,000 of revenue, coupled with the use of $1.2 million of available surplus funds in the treasury now, would mean a final tax rate of probably $165, according to Comptroller Lawrence Marino this week.

The mayor commented that in his opinion the reduction of his request to appropriate $900,000 for budget reserve is "cutting it a little too fine."

The Finance Committee at its meeting tended to agree with Chairman Sidney Small that the surplus balance plus anticipated revenue during the next nine months will be sufficient to take care of all foreseeable expenses, and that it is necessary to encumber only $400,000. Ald. Wendell Bauckman cast the only dissenting vote.

Mayor Mann submitted his request in two parts this year. One part was the request for $1.2 million to be used from the $2 million surplus. The other was the request for $900,000 to put into budget reserve.

The Board of Aldermen was thus in effect given the chance to increase the amount of funds used to offset the tax rate, an action it cannot take if a single-figure request is submitted.

Mann explained his decision to submit his request in two parts by saying that he wanted everything "above board" with the aldermen and did not want to be accused of playing politics with the tax rate.

Small raised just that point at the Finance Committee meeting, when he said some of those present might want to allow an excessively large surplus to accumulate for next year to help in their reelection.

He felt that the taxpayers should receive the benefit of everything possible right now, not next year.

Reasons for the large surplus this year as explained by Marino included a turnback to the city of $650,000 from the School Department, when more than $424,000 was received unexpectedly from the state as additional reimbursement for Chapter 766.

In spite of close scrutiny by the Moment of silence in schools considered

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

The School Committee tabled a motion by Robert Cohen that would have ordered the superintendent to make the schools comply with a state law requiring up to a minute of silence for prayer or meditation at the beginning of each school day.

The motion came as a surprise at the end of Monday night's regular meeting at Day Junior High School.

The state law was recently upheld by a three-judge panel in the U.S. Court of Appeals in Boston after being appealed by a group of Framingham parents. Framingham is complying with the law while an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court is being prepared.

The motion to delay compliance with the law was made by Honora Kaplan and seconded by Henry Delicata. It passed by a 6-3 vote with Cohen, Edward Prince, and Michael LeConti opposed.

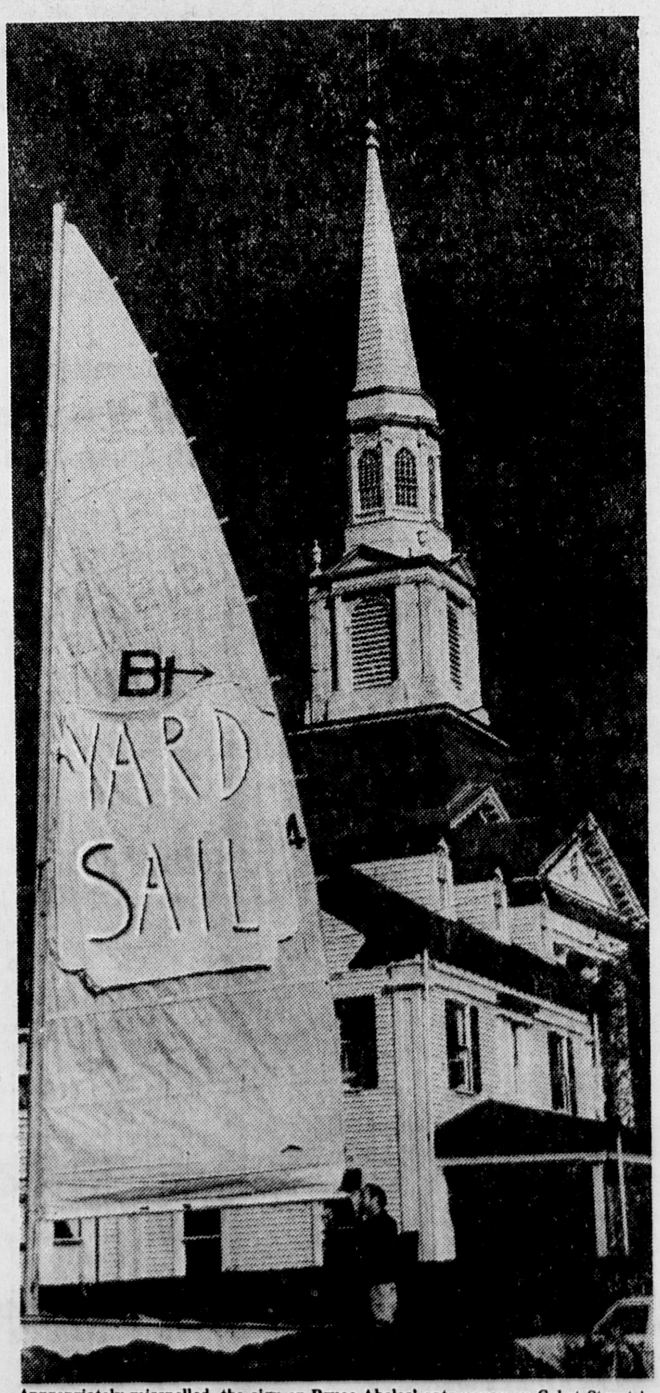

The argument between lawyers Cohen and Kaplan centered around a forthcoming advisory opinion from the State Department of Education on compliance with the law.

Cohen said that no advisory opinion would overrule the court's finding, but Kaplan won five votes for the delay.

A spokeswoman for the legal office in the State Departmnt of Education said the opinion would be completed by next Wednesday. The Committee is set to meet Sept. 27.

Chapter 71, Section 1A, of the General Laws was passed in 1966, amended in 1973, and reads as follows:

"At the commencement of the first class of each day in all grades in all public schools the teacher in charge of the room in which each such class is held shall announce that a period of silence not to exceed one minute in duration shall be observed for meditation or prayer, and during any such period silence shall be maintained and no activities engaged in."

Appropriately misspelled, the sign on Bruce Abeles' catamaran on Cabot Street in Newtonville attracted enough buyers to a two-family yard sale last weekend to sell most (Williams photo) of the goods, including the boat.

Land Use Committee

New hearing on Nahanton Woods?

Nahanton Woods, a 112-unit condominium apartment complex planned for land at Nahanton and Winchester Streets, Ward 8, will be discussed at recess by the Board of Aldermen Monday night, and will probably be assigned for another public hearing on the requested zone change from Residence A to E.

A last-minute change of vote from denial to "hold" at the last Board meeting kept the project alive.

Further discussion at Monday night's Land Use Committee meeting centered principally on the relationship of the zoning change to an ordinance governing major parcels of open space, which some aldermen had expected to be completed by the Planning Department as the answer to the threat of rezoning the city's remaining large unbuilt areas.

Ald. Susan Schur told the committee that the major-parcels proposal was not a comprehensive plan for Ward 8, and that the restrictions built into the petitions for a zone change and permissive use to build by the developer were far greater than any the Board would impose on a developer.

Schur said the committee should vote on the matter, not wait for the ordinance to be written. If the petitions are being held in order eventually to deny them, she said, the committee should go ahead and deny them.

The proposal is to build on 4 of the 28 acres in the parcel; the developer, Oscar Wasserman, would give the city 24 acres for conservation purposes. Some of that land is desired by the Conservation Commission, and is on its list for purchase.

Residents of the area are opposed to the project for a variety of reasons, including increase in traffic and a change in the character of the neighborhood.

Ald. Robert Stiller questioned whether multifamily should continue to be built in the city at all, and said that in Ward 8 the other seven large parcels of open space should be dealt with before building at Nahanton Street should be allowed.

Schur called the proposal "one of the nicer we've seen," and said, "We're keeping taxes up by keeping development out" of the city.

Ald. Matthew Jefferson, who had previously been opposed to the project, charged that the committee was "not looking at the petition on its merits."

"We're saying we don't want it here, but we know this petitioner and we know he'll do what he says he will. He'll do a good job," Jefferson said.

If the Board does not allow the construction, Wasserman or any developer could build 28 single-family houses on the parcel, Wasserman said.

Ald. Ernest Dietz, also opposed to multifamily housing on Nahanton Street, commented that the history of Surveys reveal concern with 'basics'

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

Basic education skills are the most important concern of adults in Newton that took time to answer two surveys that have been circulated in the city.

School Committee member Honora Kaplan found that nearly half of the 835 persons who answered her questionnaire feel that more time should be spent on the basic skills.

Boston College Professor Ronald Nuttall of Newton found that the composition of a readable sentence was rated the highest of skills that should be taught by schools, according to the 319 persons who answered his survey.

Mrs. Kaplan's survey was distributed to about 10,000 homes in Newton by volunteers who had each been given section maps of the city in which to distribute the two-page form.

The respondent could remain anonymous, so she did not compile a precise breakdown of what section of the city answered the questionnaire. But judging by the ones who gave their names, "they clearly came back from throughout the city," she said.

Of those who answered her survey, 69 percent have or will have children in the public schools, 59 percent previously had children in public school, and 9 percent have or expect to have children in private schools.

On the multiple choice question, "How do you feel about the Newton School System?," 19 percent checked very positive, 43 percent positive, 14 percent neutral, 15 percent negative, 5 percent very negative, and 4 percent made no answer.

Asked, "What do you like most about the Newton School System," 23 percent answered teachers, according to the compilation of answers Mrs. Kaplan made for the open-ended question.

Individualized attention to students, choices available to students, and curriculum were most liked by 15, 13, and 12 percent respectively.

Neighborhood elementary schools and their autonomy, and innovation in the system received 8 and 9 percent respectively. Other items received less than 5 percent, with 7 percent not answering or listing "nothing."

The permisiveness, or lack of discipline, and the present School Committee tied for the most disliked quality of the school system, with each being written in by 14 percent of the respondents.

The lack of teaching of basic education skills was the main gripe of 9 percent, with 5 percent complaining "little offered to average children" and another 5 percent answering the "high cost of education."

Less t an 10 percent listed other items as main gripes, and 44 percent did not answer the question.

Exactly 50 percent responded negatively or very negatively when asked about the policies and performance of the present School Comittee. Very positive or positive was the response of 20 percent, and 30 percent were neutral or did not answer.

Basics

Asked, "Do you think the Newton schools spend enough time teaching basics?", 37 percent answered yes, 46 percent answered no' and 16 percent did not answer.

Given various options to check for improving the teaching of basics, 38 percent checked, " Revise total curriculum in the school system."

"Make more remedial teaching available" was checked by 32 percent, 17 percent checked "Set up a magnet school in Newton emphasizing basics" and 21 percent checked "Cut out differences between school curricula."

Options for improving basics by reducing time for other areas of instruction were checked the least in this question' with 16 percent willing to reduce field trips down to 5 percent willing to reduce music and orchestra instruction.

In a section on programs and issues, Metco received the broadest support with 71 percent favorable, and the least controversial topic was bus passes, with 45 percent neutral or not answering.

Mrs. Kaplan asked residents to write in very positive, positive, neutral, negative, or very negative in response to statements on 11 topics. Following is the total percentages for both positive responses and both negative responses, excluding those who wrote neutral or did not answer.

Metco, 71 percent positive, 16 percent negative.

Equal spending for each pupil in every Newton school; 63 percent positive, 20 percent negative.

Required, uniform letter grading system in all elementary schools; 35 percent positive, 42 percent negative.

Required, uniform letter grading system in all junior high schools; 47 percent positive, 26 percent negative.

Continued independence of each school to adapt programs and grading system to the needs of its neighborhood; 59 percent positive, 26 percent negative.

Creation of a metropolitan school system; 16 percent positive, 61 percent negative.

Voluntary programs for Newton and Boston children at no cost to Newton; 61 percent positive, 20 percent negative.

Closing and consolidating schools with low enrollment; 63 percent postive, 18 percent negative.

Zero percent increase budget; 43 percent positive, 38 percent negative.

ID's for busing junior and senior high students; 40 percent positive, 15 percent negative.

School Committee involvement in curriculum; 27 percent positive, 54 percent negative.

Absolute right of each child to attend any junior or senior high school in the city using his or her own transportation; 66 percent positive, 16 percent negative.

In the letter on the front of the survey Mrs. Kaplan notes she is a new member of the School Committee trying to find out what people think.

This week she said one unusual finding not indicated in the compilation of results, which she and her husband did by hand, was liberal answers. As an example she said some who like the present School Committee also favor closing schools with low enrollment.

Details of Nuttall's survery will appear in next week's paper.

Elinore Trowbridge of Newto Highlands will be teaching a course entitled, "Where to Begin as a New Gardner," starting Tuesday, Sept. 21. It is for the novice outdoor gardner and will be taught in her garden. The Horticultural Society sponsors over 40 courses open to the general public.

Mayor Mann proclaims Oct. 11 "Cerebral Palsy Walk-a-thon Day" in ceremonies at his office.

Oct. 7 proclaimed CP Walk-A-Thon Day

Mayor Theodore Mann has officially proclaimed Oct. 11 the official Cerebral Palsy Walk-A-Thon Day for local residents.

Mayor Mann presented the proclamation to Philip Vaglica, chairman of the Newton-Wellesley Walk-A-Thon, during recent ceremonies at Newton City Hall.

Vaglica pointed out that anyone, at anytime, may be stricken with cerebral palsy. "It is a condition that can result from anything that hinders the flow of oxygen to the brain. Many of the causes are unknown. That is why cerebral palsy research must continue at the same time that we are helping those stricken with C.P. to find a useful purpose for their lives."

Cerebral Palsy is not progressive, nor does it mean that a person is retarded. Fully one-third of those with cerebral palsy have normal or better intelligence, making their need to develop themselves as fully as possible even more urgent," Vaglica said.

This Walk-A-Thon Oct. 11 graphically illustrates that although the C.P. person may not be able to walk, inside of everyone of us there is the need to be useful. So we are asking everyone to join with us on October 11th. Using our feet and our energy, let's walk for those who can't," Vaglica said.

There will be two routes for walkers of different age levels. Younger walkers may walk up to 10 miles, and older walkers will follow the 20-mile route which winds into Wellesley. Both routes will begin and end at Cabot Park in Newtonville. Registration forms will soon be available through the schools or may be obtained by calling the Cerebral Palsy of Greater Boston at 969-3214. Further information can be obtained by calling Carol Gregg at 965-2069.

After working in Europe, Shambad came to Boston in 1923 and was associated with one of the largest church-decorating companies. His artistry was included in the churches throughout New England, in private homes, famous restaurants and many famous landmarks. Marriott assessment questioned

The Board of Assessors and the Marriott Hotel both came in for a scolding by Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small last week when he accused the hotel of ' ripping off" the city on taxes.

But he blamed the assessors of cooperating with the hotel by underassessing the hotel's value and granting a request for a tax abatement.

The Marriott's tax bill dropped by $112,000 in the past year.

Joseph Cosgrove, chairman of the assessors, admitted that they assessed the Marriott on the basis of appraisals and statements of income provided by the hotel.

He said that from now on they will insist on "certified" records (from an independent accountant) from all businesses.

Cosgrove explained the reduction in Marriott taxes from $697,000 to $588,000 by the fact that the Marriott had applied for an abatement, and in order to avoid litigation, the abatement had been granted.

Board President Joseph McDonnell responded that if the Marriott felt overtaxed it should and would take the matter to court.

wthe building of the Marriott 10 years ago was fought by Auburndale residents and many others in the city. Small pointed out that the $1 million taxes promised as an appeasement of opposition never materialized, and that the Marriott taxes have gone down as those for homeowners have increased.

According to Cosgrove, the Marriott is valued at $14 million but taxed at $3.7 million because of the need to assess property at an equal rate.

Mrs. Jones resigns as Metco director

Metco Director Katherine Jones resigned the post she has held for 10 years, feeling the program cannot operate effectively with the reduction in two staff positions.

She sent a letter to the superintendent last Thursday and her resignation was approved by the School Committee Monday, to be effective Oct. 16.

In the midst of the Metco crisis this summer Mrs. Jones said she disapproved of running the program here for 350 students with a reduced staff of eight that Superintedent Aaron Fink said was adequate.

The final Metco budget voted Sept. 1 by the School Committee restored to eight the Metco staff that was previously cut to six.

Mrs. Jones was a volunteer director of the program here for two years, then became the paid director. This year her salary was to have been $23,353.

Injunction sought for NCDF project

A Thompsonville man has filed a request for an injunction against Mayor Theodore Mann, the Newton Planning Department, and the state Department of Community Affairs, seeking invalidation of the decision and findings by the city and state that allow housing to be built by the Newton Community Development Foundation.

Lewis Manfredi, 44 Beecher Pl., charges that decisions that call the land off Hamlet Street, Thompsonville, blighted and the construction of 50 units of low- and moderate-income housing not detrimental to the public safety and convenience are based in insufficient evidence.

A hearing will be held Sept. 22 at Middlesex Superior Court, Cambridge.

City Solicitor Howard Levine will defend the city. He pointed out Tuesday that Wayne DiCarlo, lawyer for Manfredi, did not ask that the project be stopped.

According to Alan Schlesinger, executive director of . NCDF, construction has started on the project. The housing is the culmination, and the remnant, of an eight-year-old plan to construct 500 units of housing on 10 scattered sites in Newton.

The Hamlet Street site is the only piece of land left to the foundation, begun in 1968 by a group of clergymen in Newton to fill the need for low- and moderate-income rental housing, of which there was very little.

NCDF finally obtained permission from the state Department of Community Affairs and a financing commitment from the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency, after a series of lawsuits initiated by opponents of the proposal.

Schlesinger said this week that official groundbreaking ceremonies have been planned for Sept. 27, although construction has in fact begun.

At one time the NCDF housing, which is adjacent to the former Chestnut Hill Towers land, was to have served as the Towers' fulfillment of the requirement that new developers allocate 10 percent of their units to lease by the Newton HKOUSING Authority.

After the Towers went bankrupt, the property was foreclosed and sold to Carabetta Enterprises.

The Towers had made a small cash payment to NCDF, according to its agreement; by the time Carabetta came on the scene, NCDF needed no further help financial help, and NCDF was not counted on for Carabetta's 10 percent low-income housing.

HUD 'stalling on Paul St. funds

BY PRISCILLA LEITH
Graphic correspondent

Prospects look bright for elderly housing in Newton Centre, but family units for Lower Falls remain stalled, presumably in Washington.

James Miller, former Chair an of the Newton Housing Authority said last week that he expects word back from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development by Oc 1 on a 43-unit plan for elderly housing on Paul Street.

Miller's update came at the Sept 8 meeting of the Housing Services Commission, whose members were involved in drawing up the original proposal for Newton Centre last winter.

Before the NHA dissolved July 1 and handed its construction activities over to the new Community Development Authority, its own version of the elderly housing building was cut back from 60 to 50 units and then turned down by the Board of Aldermen.

The Board ultimately approved the project at 43 units and sent it back to the architects and to HUD for appropriate revisions.

Charles Thomas, the Authority's sole member and chairman, revealed that he has been lobbying for approval of the Paul Street plans.

There are "favorable vibrations by HUD, but nothing definitive as yet," Thomas told the Planning and Development Board last Thursday night during a briefing on Paul Street.

Thomas has had one helpful letter from Seator Edward Brooke and is now requesting assistance from Rep. Robert Drinan's office, he said.

People attending the informal Board session laid plans for even more vigorous lobbying to try to save the Lower Falls housing project along Washington Street.

Unless HUD Secretary Carla Hills can be persuaded soon to release the HUD Section 8 money for which Lower Falls is said to have top priority, the Planning and Development Board fears the project will be lost completely.

Joel Leighton and Hugh Arcese of the Lower Falls Project Area Committee (LOPAC) plan to contact Secretary Hills and federal legislators to push for the funds.

The Newton League of Women Voters and other civic groups will also be urged to write letters asking HUD to release the money.

The Lower Falls housing, on the drawing boards for about five years, will give first priority to area residents whose homes were taken for the urban renewal project.

Both Thomas and Gerald Early, former Newton Redevelopment Authority Director who now works for the Community Development Authority, believe that HUD's Washington office is withholding the Section 8 funds for political reasons and that they will be released in October.

That may be too late for deadlines the Lower Falls project must meet.

Four-step bus policy passed unanimously by Committee

A new bus pass policy was passed unanimously by the School Committee Monday night which will give the four junior high and two high school principals options for instituting a four-stepprocess.

The first step of the plan will be the same as the current School Committee policy. Buses will pick up any student at the bus stops in the morning and drop them off in the afternoon at the stops that are one and one-half miles from the school.

Step two will begin after the first incident of a student jumping from rear emergency door . At this point each student wishing to ride the bus will be given a pad of 20 paper tickets with the name, bus number, and distance from home to school indicated on it.

All students would be allowed on the bus after the first reported incident, but the passes would be collected on the trips leaving school.

If there is a second incident on the bus run, students living within 1 ½ miles from the school would be excluded from riding the bus home, and those beyond the limit would turn in the paper passes to the bus driver when boarding.

In the event of a third incident on a bus, the students on that bus would turn in a photo identification card to the bus driver upon boarding and collect it when leaving the bus.

The photo IDs would be made when the second step involving the pa per passes begins (after the first incident).

Bus Policy Subcommittee Chairwoman Honora Kaplan thought of this system after several meetings with school principals, bus company personnel, and Division of Suiport Services personnel. :.

Last year the School Committee had photo IDs made for every bus rider, but the passes were never required to be used , pending further study of the problem.

Mrs. Kaplan commented that the new system would not only be more flexible since it could be applied to only effect the riders on one bus, but it will also save about $2000 by not requiring passes for each rider.

School Committee members Paul Ash and Robert Cohen noted separately that the new system is much more effective in solving and preventing the problem and it won't adversely effect as many students not involved in the jumping-off problem.

The program will still allow, for example, a student who lives in Newtonville and works in Auburndale to take a bus leaving Newton North to ride during steps one and two, but exclude the one-day rider who might jump off during steps two , three, and four.

The School Committee also approved setting up an account for Workmen's Compensation with $24,000 and approved a new federal policy for reduced lunch and mil programs.

Held to the meeting of Sept. 27 was discussion of the Personnel Department's report on substitute teachers.

Medicaid abuses

A lot of Americans probably favor some sort of national health insurance aimed primarily at assisting low income families and the elderly to receive adequate medical care and to help those with the catastrophic costs of serious illness.But the Senate subcommittee investigation of Medicaid is not encouraging.

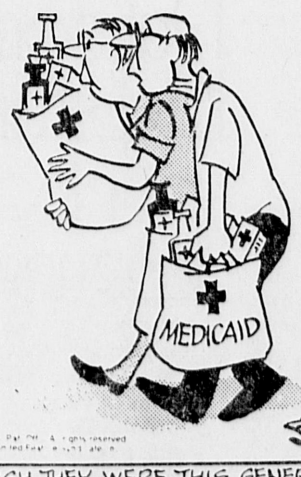

The investigation has gone on for four months and it has come up with the appalling estimate that perhaps half of the $15 billion annual cost of Medicaid is being siphoned away for fraudulent purposes, waste and abuse of the system. The Medicaid office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare puts the amlunt considerably lower but it acknowledges widespread abuse and mismanagement. According to Senator Frank Moss, who headed the subcommittee and posed himself as a needy applicant, an overwhelming amount of Medicaid is either unnecessacy or inadequate. Those who don't need treatment are getting it and those really in need must settle for something less. The "Medicaid mills," largely poorly equipped and unlicensed operations in slum areas, were singled out as the major offenders. The relatively small percentage of physicians picking up high payments from Medicaid also is suspicious. Abuse by applicants apparently is widespread.

Behind it all lies the theory that Uncle Sam is fair game, a reasonable target for cheating and that somehow, as long as the loser is the faceless government, eve)-)rything is okay. This is the same attitude among those who evade income taxes, cheat the postal service and get a bang out of outwitting city hall. In many other countries the attitude is commonplace, partly because of widespread government corruption. In the United States it is unfortunately growing and government, too, may be largely to blame.

HEW is belatedly attempting to search out the abuses and remedy them. President Ford proposes merging Medicaid with other health programs and providing a single fixed block grant to state and local governments. Senate chairmen of relative committees suggest a system of bonuses to encourage efficiency and more widespread participation within the medical profession.

A lot of campaign oratory about welfare abuses is only that, and the amount of cheating is realtively small. But the Medicaid scandal appears to be bigger and certainly bodes ill for any reasonable national health program in the immediate future.

Perspectives

The Editor says

New columnists on the editorial page

By Cynthia Black

Hello again.

This week we're beginning a new editorial page in the Graphic called "Perspectives." Up to this point, we have been using editorial material by syndicated columnists. While we will continue to use their commentaries, we are adding new local columnists too who will be writing on a monthly basis.

I wrote a column, you may remember, three years ago called "Completely Black." I am reviving that column with a new title, so I'll be one of the "new local columnists."

Also appearing on today's editorial page is a column by Lillian Ambrosino of Newton Corner.

Others will appear in succeeding weeks this month.

When I was making notes this summer on things I wanted to write about in my column, I decided I was going to write one co cerning Henry Lasker.

Mr. Lasker was a frequent visitor at our office, and every time he dropped in, he would ask me when I was going to start writing "Completely Black" again.

Mr. Lasker was one of my favorite people. I admired him as an educator and for his deep dedication to music and to his students.

His untimely death this summer meant a genuine loss to this city.

We received notice this week that the North High music department has found an appropriate memorial to Mr. Lasker.

A memorial record album dedicated to him is being produced by the school's music department. All proceeds will be used toward a permanent scholarship fund in his name at the school.

According to the announcement, the stereo record will include musical performances and other events which "will mean much to Mr. Lasker's many students and friends.

"Inspiring remarks by Principal Richard Mechem at the funeral, music by Mr. Lasker's students, some of his own music, performed by professional and amateur groups, will all be included."

Cost of each record will be $7.75 plus 75 cents for postage and handling. Contributors may have the album sent directly to their homes, or they may pick them up at the North High music department office.

Orders for the record will be accepted until Oit. 8. Checks for the record must be included with the order and made payable to Newton North High School. Delivery of the albums will be about Nov. 15.

Liberal view

A definition of the 'new' liberal

By Lillian Ambrosino

The political sophisticate has always found the terms "liberal" and "conservative" disturbing generalizations, easier to use as a sorter of groups than as a definer of politics.

This is very much in mind as I begin this occasional column of "liberal" perceptions. Although I usually consider my political philosophy as left of center, I am increasingly troubled by issues generally associated with a more "conservative" persuasion: What should be the limits of a government's involvement in the affairs of its people? Or, put another way, how much and what kind of government can our pocketbooks and peace of mind tolerate?

This is certainly a change for a confessed liberal, and, I think, it reflects a new type of thought, born of the issues of the '60s and bred by the realities of the '70s.

During the last decade, our nation was forced to face the consequences of its deep and prolonged problems of racial inequality, poverty and militarism. These erupted in full force, and those of conscience could not avoid them.

Thus, the '60s were the true decade of the issue, when the unequivocal stand was the only way to generate a government's admission of past errors and to mobilize its long process of correction. Being on the 'right side' then was relatively uncomplicated. So much needed to be done and the federal government with its powerful and theoretically neutral forces seemed best able to do it.

From this surge of moral outrage came the Voting Rights Act of 1964, the start of medicaid in 1965, programs for deprived young children and their parents, the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) which, among its many accomplishments, sprinkled legal aid throughout the nation and gave the poor a powerful ally in their struggle against an indifferent society.

At their best, these programs provided thousands with vital services, an education in the exercise of political power and pressures, and a hope for the future. At their worst, they fostered graft, inefficiency, duplication and waste. They fostered an attitude that favored the new at the expense of the old, which meant that an innovation would often be given preference over a worthwhile, exciting program.

In the affluence and buoyance of the '60s, most surfeit was forgivable.

Painfully, some liberals came to know better in the '70s. Times are leaner; too many of the programs were disappointing and too many of their costs outweighed the benefits. The parade of medicaid and medicare scandals are only the most recent examples of the abuses of an unshackled government intervention into social affairs.

The new liberal is chastened by this experience, for he and she wants the programs to work.

The clarion is not merely for new programs, but for programs that will achieve their humane goals efficiently and economically.

This liberal is interested in the dream and the reality, and he sees a futile or badly managed program as a blemish—perhaps even a threat—to that dream. For example, seeds of the possible destruction of the medical aid programs when too many doctors refuse medicaid patients to avoid the logjam in paperwork and payments or keep all but emergency patients from hospitals to avoid the high costs.

This has had an effect on the new liberal's choice of candidates. Being on the 'right side,' as Morris Udall learned, is no longer enough. A candidate must now be as specific in his concept of operations as in his articulation of goals.

Jimmy Carter's emphasis on the mechanics of government appealed not only to those with an anti-Washington feeling (which seems to include almost everyone) but also those with a pro-efficient government philosophy.

His recent talk of pruning out obsolete and duplicate programs may have been capitulation to the old liberal; it was music to the ears of the new liberal.

For at least the next few years, the new liberal will be interested in the candidate of action as well as thought. For executive offices, he will want to know the candidate's understanding of management, economics, tax consequences.

For the legislative offices, he will look for candidates with a grasp of social operations, sciences, economics and medicine as well as law.

The new liberal will still be interested in the issues, of course, but the emphasis will be on their realization.

Though he seems to share something with his conservative brethern, the new liberal is still a chip off the old block because his gaze is towards the future. His work is towards a more equal society.

Though the liberal always talks of individual rights, she tends to think in terms of groups. She is still open to new solutions, but she will be far more critical of the mechanics than ever before. And he is particularly wary of the creation of a new department or a new cabinet as an answer to a problem, for he is demanding consolidation and a tighter evaluation of existing programs.

He wants a system of rewards for the programs that seem to be working instead of the perpetual rediscovery of old techniques and strategies.

The new liberal, in short, retains the dream of the old liberal, but it is a dream brought down to earth. Perhaps he, she, I are simply a bit older and wiser in our new ideal of government roles and operations.

Mondale has double standard on equal justice

By John D. Lofton Jr.

WASHINGTON — Since becoming Jimmy Carter's running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale has repeatedly attacked President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon.

In his acceptance speech in New York at the Democrat Convention, Mr. Mondale brought down the house when he pledged to restore government that tells the truth and obeys the law, noting: "We have just lived through the worst political scandal by a president who pardoned the person who did it. The truth and the law are everything in a democracy — it must be and will be the first principle of our administration."

In an interview in Newsweek magazine in July, Mr. Mondale — again criticizing the Nixon pardon — declared "there has to be some decent equality before the law in order to have public trust in it. And I don't think there's ever been a single act in American life which more clearly established that double-standards (exist) than the pardon."

Most recently, on August 26, in an interview with the AFL-CIO and the International Labor Press Association, Mr. Mondale — once again donning sack cloth and ashes — ripped into President Ford's pardoning of Richard Nixon.

"One of the most important aspects of a decent country and of a democracy is this notion of equality before the law," he observed. "Go over to the Supreme Court building and you will see what the words are over the door. It says 'Equal Justice Under Law.' There is no more sacred notion in American life than that those who commit crimes answer to the same law and rest in the same jails as everyone else when they violate them. And one of our chief concerns will be to simply restore government that telis the truth and obeys the law and insists that everybody comply and is responsive on the same terms to the same law.

"Watergate is the classic demonstration of the double-standard .... And I question how you can train young Americans to believe in the law, to have affection for it and to learn respect for it when we set up this standard that says if you're rich and powerful, if you're a big shot, you really can fully expect to avoid the sanctions of the law when you violate it. And I think that's the key point that we are going to make."

Fine. This is at least an arguable and intellectually defensible position. No problem.

But now, along comes Mr. Mondale's running mate, Jimmy Carter. In a speech to the American Legion, Mr. Carter says that if he is elected president, he will grant a "blanket pardon" for "those who have violated Selective Service laws."

Mr. Carter says he's not going to say that those young people who dodged the draft to escape serving in Vietnam are guilty or not guilty. Instead: "I'm just going to say what you did, whether right or wrong, is forgiven.

This must be done' says Mr. Carter, to "heal the wounds of the country." Under President Carter, no Vietnam draft-dodgers will rest in any jails for having broken these laws. Incidentally, the "binding-up-the-wounds" rationale is fascinating, because this is the identical reason why President Ford says he pardoned Nixon — to heal the Watergate wounds and put the issue behind the country.

But back to Mr. Mondale. So, how does he react to his running mate's announcement that during his first week in office he will issue a blanket pardon officially ignoring massive violations of the Selective Service law? Why, he thinks it's just hunky-dory, agreeing that such action is needed to heal the Vietnam war wounds.

Evidently, when Walter Mondale speaks about equal justice under law, what he means is there should be only one double-standard of justice — his — where some individuals, like draft-dodgers, are, more equal than others, like presidents. There's a word for this kind of judicial double doublethink and it is: hypocrisy.

Footnote: Speaking of hypocrisy, although he has said in the past that Vietnam was a "racist war," Jimmy Carter told the Legionnaires that our Vietnam veterans are the "nation's greatest unsung heroes."

Opinions

Heroes?

To the Editor:

I find M. Kahn's letter regarding "real heroes" in the Metco affair althogether unnecessary.

The true core of the Metco crisis was racial, not financial. The only important question was: Will Metco survive or be killed? More learned analysts than I have pondered if, just possibly, the purse string was being manuipulated into a noose by Mandell et. al.

In one sense, the real heroes of the Metco crisis are the people of Newton. Why? All in all, we run a good community. We had the collective good sense to elect officials of the caliber of Mayor Mann and Aldermen Richamond, White and Saklad, all denigrated by M. Kahn.

Through his Metco leadership, Mann has been correctly seen by many people for the first time: he is a bone-deep democrat (with a small "d" of course.")

Outstanding work

To the Editor:

We would like to thank publicly the Recreation Commission staff at Newton Centre Playground for their outstanding work this past summer.

Our particular thanks to Bob Worden, Mike Butts and Steve Pozzi for their dedication to the many young boys who took part in the program.

The baseball practices and games in the mornings and the varied afternoon activities were offered in a fine moral and social atmosphere. We feel that our 11-year-old son had a great summmer under the guidance of these three young men.

aldermanic Public Works Committee, the Street Department budget was nearly $350,000 over what was actually expended, and that amount was turned back.

Among the expenses listed by the mayor as coming up this year was the purchase of the Bigelow House at the old Peabody School Site. The Finance Committee last week voted to recommend an appropriation and transfer totaling nearly $68,000 to complete the purchase.

The city has been buying the historic property under a lease-purchase agreement for a number of years.

Now that the Peabody School has been closed, the city has issued requests for proposals for development of the site, according to recommendations of a committee established to decide the use of surplus municipal buildings.

The Bigelow House is to be sold, with restrictions on what changes can be made in the building, which is listed in the federal register of historic houses. The house is to be used as condominium apartments, and the nearby Peabody School will either be converted or razed, with another building to be built in its place.

Most of the land is to be left open space.

In other action, the Finance Committee discussed at great length the appropriate payment to George Stiglich, who served for about a year as acting treasurer during the time Theodore Scafidi was not serving as city treasurer, as well as holding down his own job as assistant treasurer.

The amount mentioned was $5000, but the discussion was held until the next meeting of the Finance Committee so that the Personnel Department may formulate a compensation policy on employees forced by circumstance to serve as department heads.

Others to be affected by the Personnel Department policy will be Acting City Engineer Philip Jones, who served more than one year, and Acting Building Commissioner Paul Foley, who has served since the ascension of Gene Larson to the post of commissioner of public works.

Contest—

The contest is open to people of any age, but not to professional photographers.

After Oct. 1, the editorial staff of the Graphic and a representative of the Conservators will judge the entries and select a winner. The winning photo and a picture of the winning photographer, will appear on the front page of the Graphic in October.

Joan Lerner of the Newton Conservators stressed the point that the current owners of the Novitiate land have agreed to the organized tours, but do not want people on the land, which is private property, at other times.

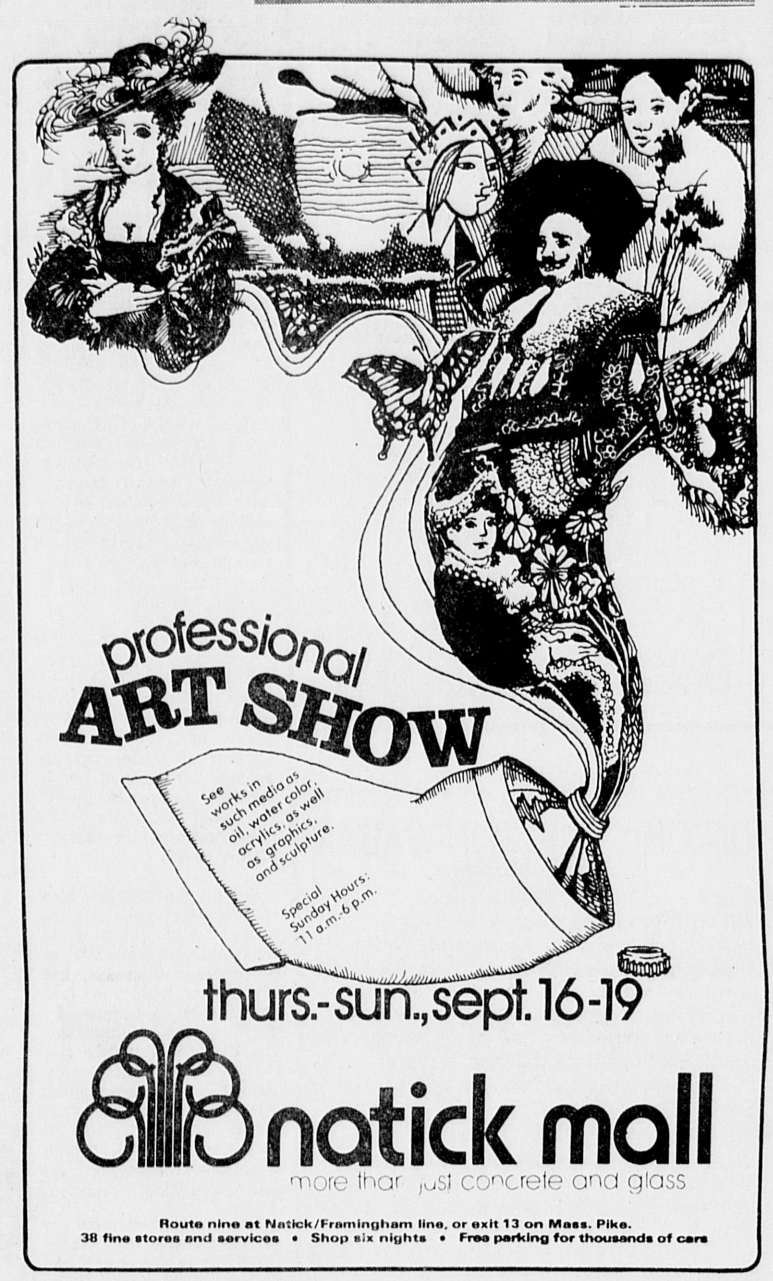

We therefore ask all people wishing to enter the contest to take the tour. We do not intend this contest to encourage trespassing on private property.

Photos can be dropped off or mailed to the Graphic office.

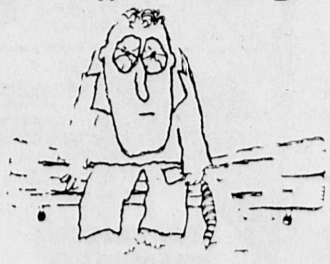

The Novitiate land is bordered by Winchester Street, Nahanton Street, the Charles River and the old infirmary land. The tour will take place rain or shine.

People can park in the driveway in front of the main building on Winchester Street or in the parking area on the infirmary land.

Anyone wishing further information on the contest can contact Newton Graphic Editor Cynthia Black at 965-6300.

Unemployment runs in families

If the head of a household is unemployed, it is more than likely that the spouse is also unemployed, and that the children or other relatives living in the same home are also unable to find work.

According to a recent national Bureau of Labor Statistics study, unemployment and employment seem to be cumulative, said Rep. David J. Mofenson, house chairman of the committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs. In families where heads of households were employed, about 6.5 percent of the spouses were involuntarily unemployed. But where the heads of households were jobless, the unemployment rate among spouses jumped to 19.4 percent. And this pattern seems to repeat itself with other members of the family. When the head of household was employed, about 16 percent of the non-spouse relatives were without work. That compares with 25 percent of unemployed family members when the family head was jobless.

Mofenson noted that the pattern held regardless of whether the head of the household was male or female, black or white.

Whether the problem is tied to different education levels or to regional concentrations of joblessness was not addressed by the study. The hard point, Mofenson said, is that "in having a cumulative impact, unemployment has a particularly pernicious effect on the fabric of the family. This has serious implications which go beyond its impact on what has been the primary economic unit in the United States." According to U.S. Labor Department figures, in the first quarter of 1976, 6.9 million of the 7.9 million unemployed were living as families. Many were unemployed for the first time.

"While the Bureau of Labor Statistics study just illustrates correlation and doesn't make a case for a domino theory of unemployment," Mofenson said, "state and national government officials and social service agencies must do all they can to prevent the development of a culture of unemployment, as dangerous and self-fulfilling as the culture of poverty.

We must find better ways to bring together jobs and jobseekers and to improve job counselling services. This is especially true for unemployed professionals who have been inhibited from seeking help by their pride and by reports of inadequate counselling services."

Taxpayers' Assn. favors cut in surplus funds for tax benefit

"Taxpayers should get every break on the new tax rate that they can, when and while they can," said Lorenz F. Muther, Jr., executive director of the Newton Taxpayers' Association this week. Muther urged the Board of Alderman to accept the recommendations of their Finance Committee to benefit the fiscal '77 tax rate.

"However, we would be very dubious about the aldermen's suggesting anything further for that purpose than what their committee has recommended," he said.

Muther noted that the committee recommended applying $1.2 million from surplus to benefit the rate directly, as Mayor Theodore Mann has recommended, leaving an initial surplus balance remaining of nearly $883,000, "which on the face of it would be more than customary or necessary," Muther stated.

But this year there had been no provision made in the budget for the effect of the year's collective bargaining, so the mayor is also asking the aldermen for $900,000 for that estimated cost, to be raised by the '77 tax rate, Muther said. The Finance Committee has recommended that only $400,000 be so appropriated. The mayor argues that that leaves him with a $500,000 estimated shortfall which would have to be made up from somewhere, Muther reported.

The committee also is recommending that about $59,000 for the Peabody Home project and $30,000 for a design and engineering contract for street safety be paid for from surplus. So, if it should be decided to take $500,000 plus $59,000 plus $30,000, totaling about $589,000 wholly from surplus, about $290,000 would be left, Muther estimated. "Close, but possible," commented Muther. "We have run that low before."

The Finance committee argues that while these and many other obligations are impending now and during the fiscal year, the timing of their actually falling due is such that the normal growth of the surplus account can be used to take care of the situations as they arise, and meantime the '77 tax rate can be set lower than otherwise, Muther said.

With regard to "incipient" aspects, Muther said, the mayor points to the new $135,000 obligation due to the pension increase act of 1976, the cost of the pumper crew still being carried though not in the '77 budget at another $100,000, the cost of carrying more Street Department men for a longer than anticipated period of time for another $150,000, and a notification from Blue Cross-Blue Shield of a coming premium rate increase of about $200'000, let alone county costs. He argues that it is more "responsible" to take these and other incipient costs into more account when setting the '77 tax rate. They will come due at various time in fiscal '77.

Muther interprets the committee opinion to be that there are additional potential income sources which can be reliably anticipated, notably that in all likelihood federal revenue sharing will be extended, that then Newton will pick up its past due quarter's share which so far has not been paid, over a quarter-million dollars, etc. and that while it recommends a "tight" framework, the city can operate within it. Remedial action can be taken if necessary.

Muther also noted political overtones due to next year's municipal election, when some aldermen think a possible overlarge surplus could be used to unduly help the mayor with the election-year tax rate.

"On that, said Muther, "we have a feeling that in an election year some of the aldermen themselves would like to have a healthy surplus around which would help pay more easily for some of the "improved quality of life" or other goodies they are more likely then to propose, and that taxpayers would do well to press for what they can get now."

"On balance, then, this year we recommend that the aldermen accept the reports of their Finance Committee on this subject without further suggested modification," Muther concluded.

A moment's hesitation in the engine when you step on the gas can sometimes be traced directly to the accelerator pump in the carburetor. Remove the air cleaner and, with the engine off, operate the throttle while you peer down the throat of the carburetor. Each time you move the throttle linkage, you should see a fine but vigorous steam of gasoline squirt across the opening. If the stream seems weak, have the carburetor accelerator pump checked, and the stroke adjusted.

Festive Harvest Fair set for Oct. 10 on the Green

It's Harvest Fair time and not too early to think about pumpkins, scarecrows, dancing and music, announces Nancy Goldberg, chairwoman of the 1976 Harvest Fair, sponsored by the Newton Bicentennial Committee and the Newton Recreation Department.

On the Green in Newton Centre and on the Newton Centre Playground, Sunday, Oct. 10, from 1-5 p.m. (rain date, Oct. 17), the second annual fair will offer something of interest for everyone in the family: folk and square dancing with the Garden City Squares; wagon, pony ane fire engine rides for the kids; an appearance by Jeppy the Clown; dried flowers for fall arrangements, craft demonstrations, harvest foods, strolling minstrels and much more.

The Garden Club will again hold a competition in several categories as outlined below:

Homegrown produce to be judged for quality

Class 1, ages 7-10

"Good Enough to Eat": a sculpture of an animal created from vegetables.

Class 2, ages 7-10

"Fruit of the Fields": arrangement of fresh or dried wildflowers and pods done in a hollow squash or pumpkin shell.

Class 3, ages 9-12

"Seed Mosaic": a picture plaque of all natural materials, seeds, shells, etc., dried and-r fresh, glued on a backing 10" x 12".

Class 4, ages 12-17

"Vistor From Oz": a scarecrow able to stand, any size.

Class 5, ages 12-17

"Something Old, Something New": a flower and-or vegetable arrangement using a recycled container.

Class 6, all ages

"Sugar and Spice and Everything Nice": a still-life display of herbs, dried or fresh, and spices and cooking objects arranged in an attractive manner on a table, area size 2' x 3'.

Adults

"Mellow With Time, Like Good Aged Wine": displays by adults (dried apple dolls, corn husk dolls, handmades, sachets).

The Harvest Fair Committee, which includes Mrs. Marie Logan, Mrs. Betsy Riviere, Miss Esther Winslow, Ms. Polly Sullivan. MJRS. Ellen Levine and Barbara Wade, Mrs. Esther Steinberg of the Bicentennial Committee, and Linda Plaut of the Newton Recreation Department, emphasizes that the original purpose of the fair continues to hold true: to bring the community together to celebrate the harvest season in as traditional a way as possible.

For school PTA's and non-profit organizations, this is an opportunity to offer the community some harvest delicacy, to offer a craft demonstration, a fun table or game for the children.

If you are interested in a booth or would like more information, call the Recreation Department at 969-3171. Minstrels, vocal groups, and dance groups are welcome.

Litigation occupies Housing Commission

An executive session on "eminent domain litigation" was the main item of business coming before the Newtn Housing Services Commission last week.

Chairman Steven Buchdinder and other commission members said that they could not comment further on the litigation or reveal what HSC housing project was involved.

Attending the Sept 8 meeting besides Buchbinder were Commissioners Frank Quinn, Henry Wilson and James Miller. Absent were Mimi Tyler, Leo Karas and Donald Ferreri.

The HSC agreed, during its brief public meeting, to stick with the original design plans for the Thurston Road housing project, begun this spring, even if this means seeking a variance from state fire and safety codes.

Quinn, the Director of the Department of Housing Services, has been told by a project contractor, Steve Demos, that the four planned efeiciency (one-room) units above the recreation hall will cost $8,000 more if built to comply with those codes.

That would push the total costs of Thurston Road over the approved limits for the project, the commission fears.

Commissioners rejected going to a communal living layout as an alternative and urged City Planning Director Charles Thomas and architect David Sheffield to explore ways of retaining the original four separate units.

Quinn was authorized by the commission to execute any necessary documents in connection with allocating $83,100 in "modernization funds" for HUD elderly projects.

The funds were earmarked for the Newton Housing Authority, which ceased to exist July 1.

Commission members were unsure which Newton agency shuld handle the funds - the HSC, the Community Development Authority or the Planning and Development Board - so they asked Quinn to straighten it out with other city officials.

The commission unanimously approved revised regulations for tenant selection, grievances, eligibility and lease provisions. Most have already been approved by the tenants.

Quinn and Assistant Director Jennifer Volkert predicted that October promises to be a busy month for Housing Services, with lots of tenants moving in and out of the Newton public housing units.

Tip O'Neill—the latest from the Eighth

BOSTON (UPI) — U.S. House Majority Leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill is the type of rougish Irish politician for which Massachusetts is famous.

His huge frame and bulbous nose have deceived some political foes into thinking he had little power and intelligence. They usually discovered too late why O'Neill has been described as a "man of town, not gown, politics."

His bare-knuckle political philosophy helped when he was among the first to work for the impeachment of former President Richard Nixon, who eventually resigned because of Watergate.

In short, O'Neill appears typecast for a Hollywood movie about politicians in the vein of "The Last Hurrah."

O'Neill, who almost certainly will succeed Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla., as Speaker of the House, is up for reelection again this year to the Eighth Congressional District. That same district gave another Irishman, John F. Kennedy, his start in politics.

It is also the same district to which former Boston Mayor and Massachusetts Governor James Michael Curley (model for "The Last Hurrah") was elected in 1944.

And now that area, where you will find most all nationalities and skin colors, has turned out still another national figure in O'Neill.

What is the magic of such a district, which continuously seems to spawn powerful, savvy politicians? It would boggle the minds of demographic experts.

It's where the hallowed halls of Harvard and the scientific genuises of MIT are located. It also has one of the highest proportion of college students of any congressional district in the nation.

But it has another side. In North Cambridge, Charlestown and East Boston men and women are used to making their livings by the sweat of their brows. It is from here that "Tip" O'Neill grew up. It is here that he still lives.

"He comes home every weekend that he has a chance," says an O'Neill aide. "He lives four houses down from the house he lived in as a child. He's a familiar sight on the streets of North Cambridge. The neighbors know him and he knows all of them by name."

Now 64, he has served in Congress since 1953. He graduated from Boston College in 1936, and went into the insurance business. He is a former member of the Cambridge school committee and Massachusetts House of Representatives where he served as Minority Leader and Speaker.

The only election he ever lost was 41 years ago. He failed by several hundred votes to be elected to the Cambridge City Council.

In his latest congressional race, in 1974, O'Neill received 107,042 of 144,198 votes cast. His only opposition came from the U.S. Labor and Communist Parties.

During a recent trip back to the district he spent a day visiting friends and shaking the hands of the people most likely to vote for him. "I love this. I do it every year whether I have opposition or not," he said.

O'Neill rose to power in Congress by shrewdly getting along with his colleagues. But in 1967 he took the rare step of publicly denouncing the nation's involvement in Vietnam. He has said his decision to early oppose the war was the result of arguments with his children, including Thomas P. O'Neill III, currently lieutenant governor of Massachusetts.

O'Neill's challenger in the Sept. 14 Massachusetts primary election is state Rep. Edward Galotti, D-Belmont. "I don't think we're in an trouble," O'Neill says about the challenge.

Galotti is an opponent of court ordered schoolbusing to achieve racial desegregation and is against legalized abortion. O'Neill, although a Catholic, has said he would not support a constitutional amendment against abortion.

O'Neill's busing stand is less strong, only recently did he say he would vote in favor of a constitutional amendment prohibiting it.

The dovish O'Neill was appointed Majority Whip in 1971 when Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., died in a plane crash.

No quorum, no development meeting

Lack of a quorum forced postponement of the Sept 9 joint meeting of the Newton Community Development Authority and the Newton Planning and Development Board.

Instead of the scheduled session, Board members Margaret Smith, Charles J. Thomas and David Lurensky held an informal meeting and listened to Thomas' report on the Authority's activities.

Thomas is City Planning Director and the sole member and chairman of the Authority.

All regular business on the agenda was postponed until Sept 21 when Chairman Stanley Miller, Vice Chairman Cecil Cadwell, and other regular members of the Board are expected to be able to attend.

A Spaulding and Slye official has been consulting with people in the Moulton Street area regarding trees and plantings on the commerical portion of the Lower Falls renewal project which Spaulding and Slye is developing.

Some trees were apparently cut down unnecessarily, and the neighbors are upset.

Thomas said the landscape plan has to be redrawn.

Lower Falls Project Area Committee representatives Hugh Arcese and Joel Leighton want to see it first.

Thomas is also working on a sign to mark the Massachusetts General Life Insurance office at Route 128 and Route 16.

LOPAC insists that the original sign control agreement be enforced with no sign permitted on top of the building.

Thomas has told Massachusetts General Life that the rooftop sign it wants would violate a proposed sign control ordinance in Newton.

Administrative procedures which Thomas has written up are being sent to all members of the Board and will be discussed at the Sept 21 meeting.

Mason comments on hijack attempts jfourth Congressional District candidate Arthur Mason this week charged that Cong. Robert Drinan (D-Newton) voted against a measure designed to "give this country an effective tool to fight hijackings and acts of terrorists."

The Brookline Republican was referring to the 1974 Anti-hijacking Act, passed by the House by a vote of 361-47.

Drinan, according to his staff, did voted against the measure. He did so, they said, because it contained provisions for imposing a death penalty.

While he favored the legislation, a spokesman said, he is opposed to the death penalty.

"I think the greatest threat to world peace comes from terroist attempts to destabilize particularly sensitive parts of the workd," Msason said. "Such acts of political blackmail cannot be tolerated.

Newton Corner hosts transportation planners

Representatives of the state Central Transportation Planning Staff (CTPS) will attend a general meeting of the Newton Corner Neighborhood Association next week, the association announced.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 22, at Eliot Church. Arrangements for the meeting were made by State Sen. Jack Backman following his meeting with the association members in July, according to the association.

Rev. Herbert Davis, moderator of the association, said: "The CTPS is a cocordinating group of many of the state agencies involved in transportation and traffic planning. Residents of Newton Corner have repeatedly and in many forums expressed their feelings that the primary responsibility for improvements in our area lies with the various state transportation agencies.

"We are very much looking forward to having our citizens interact with the CTPS."

jctps has recently undertaken a limited survey in conjunction with the MBTA of the ridership of the Newton Corner to downtown bus and the parking problems for Newton Corner associated with the bus.

Lion gridders set to open at Littleton Saturday

By GREG SOYKA

Now that "double sessions" have ended, and two scrimmages have been played, Head Coach Kojoyian and the Newton South Football team are anxiously awaiting their first opponent, Littleton High School, this Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Littleton.

This season, the team appears to be solid, strong, and confident. The main reason for this feeling is that eleven starters are returning from last year's two wins, seven loses, and one tie squad. To add to these players, there are many outstanding sophomores and juniors who have displayed a lot of enthusiasm, and more importantly, talent.

Thus far, in the scrimmages the team has looked good. Against an excellent Division I Stoneham team las Wednesday, the Lions showed an excellent offense and a respectable defense. The actual scores were not taken, because of the way the scrimmage was set up.

Then the team met crosstown foes Newton Catholic Saturday in a "game-like" scrimmage. This time the Lion offense was awesome, racking up four touchdowns on as many long drives.

Led by quarterback Mike Cushner, the running backs, Barry Gale, Jim Amicangioli, Greg Jackson, and Richie Filler ran all over the N.C. defense. Their efforts were of course aided by the fine offensive line of Artie Kojoyian, Captain Brian Cooper, Willie McDonald, Paul Cutler, Mark Newhook, Mark Manfredi, and Joe Peltier.

When the offense decided to pass they were very successful. Cushner combined with Doug Jackson and Shawn Daley for big yardage.

Despite the absenses of injured linebacker Mike Hernandez and lineman Tom Osborne, the defensiva unit was successful. Linebacker Charlie "Trowt" Connolly kept players Greg Soyka, Richard Tarantino, Dan Sheehan, and John Forti together enough to hold their opponents to six offensive plays in the first half.

The defensive backfield of Paul Butters, Richard Shone, and Doug Washington was tested all day. The N.C. passing attack was shut down almost completely by these players.

All in all, the Lions show all the potential of having a fine season. The offense is strong, if the defense holds, and the team gets the essential good breaks, the 76 Lions could surprise a lot of people.

Everyone is urged to go watch the season opener, Saturday, at Littleton. If you don't enjoy watching football, come anyway and watch the Newton South cheerleaders in action, it's well worth it.

Directions to Littleton

The Newton South High School football team will travel to Littleton to open up the 1976 grid season Saturday afternoon at 1:30 p.m.

Directions to the Littleton High field are as follows: Take Route 9 to Rt. 128 north. Take Route 2 West exit off 128. Take Rt. 495 north off Rt. 2 heading towards Lowell. Take first exit off 495, Rt. 2A-110, to Ayer-Littleton. Go right to bottom of hill, and then take first left onto Russell St. Follow to high school and field is behind school building.

Newton Packers to meet New York Police Saturday

The Newton Packers Tag Football Team, Eastern Mass. Champions and one of the best hitting teams around will play the New York Police Team on Saturday, September 18, 1976 at 11 a.m. at Boston College.

The Packers sponsored by Georges Restaurant in Newton Corner have been in the Newton League since 1969 and have taken seven (7) league championships and 4 playoff championships. Last year they were undefeated in winning the Eastern Mass. Championship.

This game will be in honor of the Jim Hunt Memorial Fund. Jim was an all pro tackle of the old Boston Patriots for many years. The New York Police team travels the country playing football games for charity events and are rated one of the best power houses in tag football in the east coast. This should be some game!

The Packers are all Newton residents from many walks of life, their coach, Kevin Marden is transportation consultant at Battista Shipping, was a graduate of Boston State and played one year in park league before starting with the Packers.

The two Captains, Dan Donovan and Nick Pasquarosa, Dan is a Detective with the Newton Police and played three years of service ball with the Marines and three years of park league. Nick is in management labor relations with Polaroid. Nick has played eight years of park league baseball and is one of the best all around athletes on the team.

Some of the other players are Terry Morris a Newton Alderman from Holy Cross, Fred Jones, surgeon at Mass. General, Virginia, Rap and Paul Pasquarosa, Rosa Cleaning Company, Bob Hehir, Assistant Manager Rogan Sporting Goods, Bridgewater State, Don Fabrizio, Accountant, Boston College, Brian Keefe, Shipper, Kansas State, Ed Cameron, Computer Programer, Northeastern University, and many more and with their main interest in physical fitness and friendship.

Honorable Theodore D. Mann, Chief William F. Quinn, Captain Walter D. Drew, Chief of Detectives, will all be there to encourage the Packers.

YMCA sponsors heart disease clinic Sept. 18

C. William Kelley, associate executive director for physical education at the Newton — YMCA, announced that the Y will hold its first Cardiovascular and Coronary Heart Disease Screening Program on Saturday, Sept. 18.

This new and very effective medical screening technique is being offered by the New England Cardiovascular Health Institute and is being made available for men and women.

Registrations are now being accepted on a first-come, first-served basis at the Y's Phyeical Department, 276 Church Street, Newton.

This comprehensive program will include a preliminary examination, an exercise stress test, blood analysis to determine serum cholesterol level and glucose intolerance, blood pressure screening, and an evaluation of the remaining risk factors of coronary heart disease.

The exercise stress test allows cardiologists to observe the heart during exercise. An electrocardiogram taken during exercise is much more dependable than a resting electrocardiogram in predicting future coronary disease, or in ruling out suspected coronary artery disease.

Kelley said the "Y" is most fortunate in having Dr. Howard Hartley and Dr. Alan Herd, two experts in the field of exercise stress testing, as clinicians at the upcoming clinic.

Dr. Hartley is an associate professor of medicine and a member of the medical staffs of the Boston City Hospital and Beth Israel Hospital.

Dr. Herd, associate professor of physiology at Harvard Medical School, is an established investigator for the American Heart Association and an author of numerous publications in the fieds of physiology and hypertension.

These doctors and the New England Cardiovascular Health Institute are fast becoming recognized for their superiority in this field of exercise stress testing.

For further information regarding fees and registration, call the Newton YMCA, 244-6050.

School dental program starts

A dental screening program for children in kindergarten and grades 2, 4 and 6 will begin in the Newton elementary schools Sept. 20 and continue throughout the fall.

Sponsored by the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Pediatric Dental Service and the Newton Health Department, the screenings will be conducted by members of the hospital dental service only on the consent of parents.

Forms have been sent to parents of the 4300 eligible children, giving them the opportunity to indicate whether or not their child will take part in the screening.

The form should be returned to the child's teacher by Sept. 17.

Dr. Mark D. Siegal, director of the pediatric dental service, emphasizes that the screenings are not intended to serve as substitutes for thorough examinations by the family dentist. The screenings will attempt to identify teeth with decay and note severe orthodontic problems. After the evaluation, the dental problems will be classified and sent to the parents, along with recommendations for follow-up care.

Parents who cannot afford private dental care may contact the hospital's pediatric dental service, or if eligible for Medicaid, are urged to consult the Department of Human Services at City Hall.

The program will continue two days a week at the elementary schools for about the next three months.

'Temple in the Woods' plans 3-day holiday

As summer draws to a close the Jewish New Year approaches.

The day of the sounding of the ram's horn, Rosh Hashanah, the most solemn of the holy days, will be celebrated the weekend of Sept. 24, 25, and 26.

It is the Jewish belief that there is a book of life in heaven in which every act, word and thought of each human being is written down during the year.

On Rosh Hashanah, this book of life is opened and examined . . . and the fate of each person is decided. Into this awesome book every person's fate is written for the coming year.

At Temple Beth Avodah, 45 Pudding Stone Ln., the changing trees of fall surrounding the "Little Temple in the Woods" provides the backdrop for the coming new year.

Rabbi Robert Miller will deliver the sermon "Chai or Chaim" at worship Friday at 8:15 p.m.

Saturday at 10:30 a.m. the service will recommence, and the Rabbi will speak on the subject, "Challenge and Crisis."

Sunday at 10:30 a.m. will be a creative service, composed by Rabbi Miller and the ritual committee. The temple choir, under the direction of Ruth Boynick, will participate along with guitarists Roger Cohen and Maxwell Stearns.

Rabbi Miller and the congregation extend wishes for a happy, healthy New Year to their many friends in the community. For more information concerning the services call the temple office, 527-0045.

New World Gospel Choir to sing at Myrtle Baptist

The Sisterhood of Lydia of Myrtle Baptist Church will present the New World Gospel Choir Sunday, Sept. 19, at 7 p.m., as their Women's Day project.

The New World Gospel Choir of Newton was organized several years ago under the direction of Samuel Turner, principal of Oak Hill School.

The New World Choir is a nonprofit organization whose goal is to develop an educational scholarship fund.

Also the choir hopes to contribute to mankind a better understanding of the Gospel through the black man's original "soul music."

With musical arrangements by Mrs. Florence Turner, the choir has performed at concerts and benefits throughout the New England area.

The choir, closing the generation gap, has grown from 18 to 30 in membership and features several soloists.

As the choir winds its way through the towns, cities and states of this nation, members sincerely hope their endeavors will inspire others toward bringing peace, harmony and good will into the world in which we live.

The Sisterhood of Lydia invites all to attend. Donation is $2 for adults and $1 children 12 and under. Tickets will be available at the door. Collation will be served. For further information please call 332-5870 or 332-0810.

Central Congregational Church announces autumn programs

Central Congregational Church, on Walnut Street just north of Washington Street in Newtonville, has a fall program to help people "grow happiness."

Every Sunday at 11 a.m., beginning Sunday, Sept. 12, services will be held, followed by a coffee hour.

The learning community at Cetral Church meets at 10 am. every Sunday beginning Sept. 19. There is kindergarten for children three years of age and older. There is a special church school program for children between the first and sixth grades which is centering on the subject "God Creates In Love."

There is a special class for young people of junior high and high school ages where they discuss questions pertinent to them, and there is an adult class taught by the minister.

Central Church emphasizes family education. A family cluster is a place where families stay together and learn together how to communicate with one another and grow as persons. We invite interested members of the Newton community to join one of our clusters.

Central Church sponsors family nights and fun nights, with square dances, potluck suppers, and theater parties.

Adult classes are held Thursdays at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Premier Previews
by Frank DeAmicis

I have some good news to report today. The Backstage Restaurant is now open and ready to please until 3 a.m. seven days a week. After two months of concerted effort redesigning and rebuilding our kitchen, we can now provide the incomparable deli fare and fine service that has made the name Premier famous for 50 years. And you'll find the Backstage is a delirama of delectable deli delights.

We've been told by many patrons that the Backstage is one of the most beautiful and unique rooms in the city. But our dazzling Hollywood setting is only part of the story. Our extensive menu selection rivals that of Jack and Marion's when it was in its prime. Included in our Delirama are a fantastic array of ethnic dishes, your favorite deli treats, overstuffed combination sandwiches, omelettes, blintzes, potato pancakes, steak and eggs, even the famous Reuben sandwich. In addition, we offer the largest variety and finest quality home-made pastry in the Boston area. And our prices fit just about any budget.

If you've longed for a place where you could dine comfortably on hearty old fashioned deli fare 'til the wee hours of the morning, we invite you to visit the Backstage Delirama. We promise to make the two months you've waited worthwhile. The Backstage Restaurant at the Premier II, 299 Harvard Street, Brookline, thanks you for your patience and we look forward to seeing you soon. And, as always, we welcome your comments

Science Museum presents series on new astronomy

The dynamic, turbulent, and sometimes violent nature of our galaxy will be the subject of a free lecture series presented by the Hayden Planetarium of the Museum of Science this fall in cooperation with the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics.

"The Milky Way and Beyond" is a series of seven evening lectures by local astronomers who will describe the new view of the galaxies, including our own, as revealed by both recent ground-based and satellite observations.

The lectures will be given on consecutive Wednesday, evenings at 8 p.m. in the Cahners Theater of the Museum of Science, Science Park, Boston, beginning Oct. 6. Each 45-minute lecture will be followed by a question-and-answer period.

The first lecture on Oct. 6 will be "The Discovery of Our Galaxy" by Charles Whitney, who will provide historical perspective on the early research to define our solar system's place within the Milky Way.

Other topics and speakers are: Oct. 13, "Interacting Galaxies," Alar Toomre of MIT; Oct. 20, "Quasars and Collapsing Clusters," Alan Lightman; Oct. 27, "Radio Galaxies," Dale Dickinson; Nov. 3, "X-ray Galaxies," Paul Gorenstein; Nov. 10, "Gravity Waves and Black Holes," William Press, and "The Discovery of Our Universe,: George Field. The lectures are free and open to the public.

Free tickets to single lectures may be obtained in advance at the museum or by mail. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope two weeks before each lecture. Remaining tickets will be available at the museum on the evening of the lecture.

Parking for the lectures will be available in the museum's garage at a modest fee. The museum is also within walking distance of the North Station railway terminal and within 200 yards of the MBTA's Science Park Station on the Lechmere (Green) Line.

England works on bank degree

John A. England, Jr., 154 Paramenter Rd., Newton, was among those who attended the 32nd annual session of the Graduate School of Banking at the University of Wisconsin in Madison recently.

Attendance at three annual two-week sessions on the Madison campus and the satisfactory completion of extension problems between the resident sessions is required for graduation.

The school is sponsored by the Central States Conference of Bankers Associations from 16 Midwestern states. About 1,450 bankers were enrolled this year from 41 states and Puerto Rico.

Dr. Lot B. Page teaching in Iran

Dr. Lot B. Page, Newton-Wellesley Hospital's chief of medicine, is serving as a visiting professor at the Pahlavi University Medical School in Shiraz, Iran. He will teach there for one semester and return in December.

Dr. Page is a professor of medicine at Tufts University School of Medicine and director of Newton-Wellesley's intern-residency program and of the Tufts teaching program at the hospital.

Mental health volunteer department accredited

The Volunteer Services Department of the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Community Mental Health and Retardation Center has recently received accreditation by the United Community Planning Corporation (Voluntary Action Center).

This indicates that the level of program orientation, clinical and administrative supervision and monthly educational workshops meet the standards needed to maintain quality placements for persons interested in volunteering in adult mental health services.

Several programs are available both in the community and in the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Unit at Medfield State Hospital. Placements vary according to interest, skills and time available.

One-to-one relationships, mental health library cataloging, men's identity group leadership and craft groups are some examples of the present needs for volunteers.

At Medfield, one volunteer may act as a friend by visiting on the wards or taking a patient into the community. In Newton, four programs are actively looking for volunteers: NEWW Center, the rehabilitation-resocialization day center located in the Lutheran Church of the Newtons; STEPS, a social-recreational drop-in center; Alternative Home, a transitional residence for persons preparing to live independently; and a case-aide program.

For further information contact, Irene Freedberg at 969-3360.

multifamily housing is that the buildings are short-lived. "There is no building in Brookline over 50 years old that is still good," Dietz said.

Planning Director Charles Thomas refuted Dietz' statement, and said that deterioration goes in cycles, for houses as well as apartment buildings.

The committee wrangled over interpretation of the new state zoning enabling act and whether it could in fact fail to take action on the request for zoning change without either risking automatic passage of the request for permissive use or causing a two-year denial of the project.

The question of whether failure to act on the request for a zoning change, which had already been denied by the Planning Board, would constitute a denial by the Board and thus prevent the resubmission of the petition for two years was referred to the city solicitor for an opinion by Monday night.

In other action, the Land Use Committee held brief public hearings on four items and acted on them promptly.

Freeport House , a residence for high-school-age youth, was granted a three-year extension of permissive use.

Chow Chow Cup was denied a petition to operate a fast-food Chinese restaurant in Piccadilly II.

Arthur Kelly was denied permission to conduct an auto repair business at 14 Hawthorn St., Nonantum, because of the proximity of Hawthorne Playground and the general traffic congestion in the area.

Colonial Drive and Realty Trust was not allowed to withdraw a petition to have dumpsters at its new apartment building at 613 Watertown St., and the petition was denied.

All these matters need a vote of the full Board.

Mini-bike track reopens

Mini-Bike Tracks

The Newton Recreation Department's three-track mini-bike facility off Winchester Street, Newton Highlands, will reopen Saturday, Sept. 11. Newton boys and girls between 8 and 14 may use this course under the direction of Safety Officer Bob Braceland and Steve Mazzola. It will remain open through Thanksgiving Day each Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

There is a $5 fee for each bike and a $1 fee for each additional rider. These may be obtained at the Recreation Department office, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale, or at the track.

Riders must have helmets and hard-toed shoes, and each bike must have safe brakes, tires, proper muffler and spark arrester. All mini-bikes must be transported to the track in a legally registered vehicle. Bikes cannot be ridden or pushed to the track. Parents and mini-bike riders are urged to use this facility, because it is the only safe and legal public facility for mini-bikes in the city.

There is a $2 fee for each event entered. Players should bring three new tennis balls. There will be no postponements or switches except those due to inclement weather. U.S.L.T.A. Rules will govern play and no player holding a United States Lawn Tennis Association ranking, or who has won any of their sanctioned meets is eligible for this tournament.

The remaining registrations dates at Burr Park in Newton Corner are Thursday, Sept. 9, and Friday, Sept. 10, 6 to 8 p.m.; Saturday, Sept. 11, 9 to 5 p.m.; and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 13, 14, and 15 from 6 to 8 p.m.

Building commissioner takes over Sept. 20

Newton will have the youngest building commissioner in the state Sept. 20, when Allan B. Fraser, 26, assumes office.

Fraser was appointed this week by Mayor Theodore Mann.

Currently building commissioner and inspector for the town of Bedford, a post which he has held since 1974, Fraser was educated at Wentworth College of Technology and Boston University.

A native of Newton, Fraser was graduated from Newton South High School. In his junior year of high school he founded his own building firm, Design-Built, which specialized in custom remodeling. The business continued for five years and paid Fraser's way through college.

Fraser has also worked as construction supervisor for two firms in Nashua, N.H. He is a member of the American Society of Building and Construction Inspectors and the Massachusetts Building Commissioners and Inspectors Association.

The position of acting building commissioner has been filled by Paul Foley since the former commissioner, Gene Larson, was appointed commissioner of public works in April.

Conservators lecture on environment and health

Rivers conducts preseason grid drills

Forty players, 22 of them returning lettermen, reported for pre-season football drills at The Rivers School, Weston, on Thurs., Sept. 7 to begin a week of three-a-day sessions prior to the Sept. 16 opening of school.

The workout schedule calls for two sessions on the field and one in the weight room as coach Tom Harvey and his staff work to prepare the team for a game condition scrimmage against Buckingham, Browne & Nichols Sat., Sept. 18 at Rivers.

Rivers, which finished the last two seasons with impressive 6-1 records, will be competing this year in the newly formed Independent School League made up of most Massachusetts prep schools.

The team will play a 7-game schedule beginning Oct. 2 at Thayer. The full schedule will be announced later.

Of the team's 22 lettermen, nine are returning starters. They are led by senior co-captains Joe Ansaldi of Burlington and Bruce Keltie of Wellesley. Both are two-way players. Ansaldi is an offensive guard and defensive tackle. Keltie is an offensive and defensive tackle.

Coach Harvey said that Rivers will install a new veer offense "to complement the wishbone and try to produce a more wide open game with more passing."

One of Harvey's chief problems will be finding a replacement for kicker Arthur Illman of Weston, the state's leading place kicker last season. Steve Kravit, a junior from Newton and a first-year player, "looks good to us now," Harvey said.

The complete team roster will be announced later this month.

Pats pick up running back

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The New England Patriots have obtained veteran Jess Phillips to bolster their corps of running backs and waived nose tackle Richard Bishop.

Phillips was obtained on waivers from Oakland Monday. He is a nine-year pro who played five seasons with Cincinnati, two with New Orleans and one year with the Raiders. He is the 11th leading rushing among active National Football League backs.

The Patriots decided they needed another back when rookie running back Ike Forte suffered a hamstring injury to his right leg in the Patriots' 27-13 loss to Baltimore Sunday. Forte will be out for at least a week and maybe longer.

Also, back Allen Carter was used little in the opening game because of a knee injury.

Bishop, a free agent who played college ball at Louisville, was signed prior to the Patriots' final preseason game.

Patriots coach Chuck Fairbanks said doctors were to re-examine wide receiver Steve Burks, who has been a cast, to determine whether surgery would be required on damaged ligaments in his left knee.

Fairbanks said there didn't appear to be any serious injuries, other than Forte's, sustained in the game against the Colts.

Fairbanks reviewed films of the game and said his team "did not execute well."

"We missed some real good opportunities offensively, some big passing plays and, on defense, I was very, very disappointed with coverage," Fairbanks said.

Jury selection to begin tomorrow for Susan Saxe trial

BOSTON (UPI) — Jury selection in the first-degree murder trial of antiwar activist Susan Saxe is expected to take about two weeks.

Ms. Saxe is accused of participating in a bank robbery nearly six years ago in which Boston policeman Walter A. Schroeder was shot to death.

Selection in the tightly guarded Suffolk Superior Court of a 16-member jury from the initial pool of 800 candidates begins Wednesday.

Ms. Saxe, 27, a 1970 magna cum laude graduate of Brandeis University, was arrested March 1975 in Philadelphia after a four and a half year hunt. Katherine Ann Power, 27, another suspect, still is being sought.

The two women knew each other at Brandeis where they were both active against the Vietnam War. After her capture, Ms. Saxe described herself as a lesbian feminist.

Technically, Ms. Saxe is charged with "felony murder." One of Ms. Saxe's alleged accomplices in the $26,585 robbery of the State Street Bank and Trust Co. branch in Brighton, William A. Gilday, is serving a life sentence for actually killing Schroeder.

According to Massachusetts law, anyone taking part in a crime in which someone is murdered is liable for the killing. Ms. Saxe also faces two counts of armed robbery in connection with the holdup.

The state has assigned Assistant Suffolk County District Attorney John T. Gaffney, 56, to prosecute the case. Gaffney's record is impressive: he has handled nearly 200 murder cases in 26 years and lost only one.

Nancy Gertner, 30, and Thomas Shapiro, 33, will defend Ms. Saxe. Gertner has tried one first-degree murder case; Shapiro none.

Superior Court Chief Justice Walter H. McLaughlin, who is due to retire Jan. 22 when he reaches the mandatory age of 70, will preside over the case. He has a reputation for running fair trials and for being tough at sentencing.

In addition to Gilday and the two women, a grand jury indicted Stanley Bond and Robert Valeri for the bank robbery crimes. Valeri's testimony was instrumental in convicting Gilday and Bond. Bond was killed when a bomb he was allegedly manufacturing at Walpole State Prison exploded.

Valeri has never come to trial. Gaffney is expected to use Valeri extensively in prosecuting Ms. Saxe.

According to testimony at Gilday's trial, Gilday acted as lookout and shot Schroeder in the back after Ms. Saxe, Valeri and Bond had left the bank. Power, who drove one of two getaway cars, was not in the bank.

Gertner maintains the Saxe trial is political. Gaffney said he will refrain from political implications and "try the case as a simple felony murder in which a policeman was killed in the course of a bank robbery."

Excise error caused by faulty data

BOSTON (UPI) — Most errors in automobile excise tax billing to Massachusetts motorists are due to faulty data received at the Registry of Motor Vehicles Data Processing Center, according to Assistant Registrar Joe Bragalone.

"There are more than 10,000 errors usually discovered during each inspection period on auto registration certificates. These errors include: wrong make of car, color and most often the incorrect vehicle identification number," Bragalone said Monday.

Mining: Risks and rewards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The risks and rewards of mining such scarce minerals as manganese nodules from the bottom of the sea should be little different from the economics involved in mining on dry land, an ocean economist said today.

Arnold J. Rothstein of Deepsea Ventures Inc., based in Gloucester Point, Va., told an international ocean technology conference he found great similarity in 12 out of 14 points of comparison between seabed and dry land mining projects.

Areas where the risks are not alike both involve government regulation, Rothstein said in a paper prepared for the conference, and in each of those cases "government actions to date have tended to penalize ocean projects."

Rothstein was one of the opening speakers for the second day of the Oceans 76 meeting, which has brought together 1,200 experts representing at least 11 nations.

In the opening sessions Monday, a representative of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration warned nations such as the United States to expect higher property damage and loss of life from storms as they develop their offshore riches and experience growing coastal populations.

Milton G. Johnson said community education and preparedness programs must be strengthened along the U.S. Atlantic and Gulf Coasts. Expanded use of radar is "absolutely necessary" to monitor storms, he said, and World War II sets now in use should be replaced with more accurate new ones.

Other speakers said progress in tapping the riches of the sea either can brighten mankind's future or lead to "inevitable" war and possible environmental disaster, depending on how the nations of the world cooperate in using the ocean.

Representatives of several nations said their governments plan to move swiftly to develop deep sea mining, offshore oil drilling and the expansion of national fisheries. One U.S. official expressed optimism about efforts to draft new laws covering such activity.

"No longer can the oceans be regarded as an infinite resource to be left to those courageous enough to venture out upon them," said Commerce Secretary Elliot L. Richardson. "Technology has increased their value to the point where nations quarrel over competing uses and competing claims to jurisdiction.

"The issues involved can no longer be avoided. We must, as a world community, come to grips with these issues and work out mutually satisfactory solutions."

Howard Pollock, deputy chief of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, said a United Nations conference has made "considerable progress" toward drafting a "comprehensive and widely accepted" new sea law treaty to replace the present one which is 18 years old.

"If the (sea law) conference is successful, a new era of cooperation for the maximum benefit of mankind will be heralded through peaceful accommodation of competitive demands," Pollock said.

"If, on the other hand, the conference fails, the 70 per cent of the earth's surface which is ocean space will face economic, political and military rivalry and inevitable conflict."

Connors got everything he wanted

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Now, finally, Jimmy Connors has everything.

For starters, he has his second U.S. Open Tennis Championship in three years.

He also has this lovely blonde dish, a former Miss World, sitting around waiting for him after all his matches. Once in awhile they get themselves a hamburger. They don't have to restrict themselves to that, though, because Connors already has earned himself more than a quarter-million this year.

If he had been lacking anything, it was only some personal satisfaction and he finally got that Sunday by beating Sweden's Bjorn Borg, 6-4, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4, for the Open title.

Connors, it turns out, still is a little sensitive about the 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 licking Spain's Manuel

MILTON RICHMAN

Orantes inflicted upon him in last year's Open final. That sensitivity showed a couple of times Sunday evening in the interview area set aside for the media.

"Good evening," Connors began. "Just one year ago, I was sitting here after losing to Orantes."

That remark passed over almost everybody.

A moment or so later, however, Connors coldly brushed off a query pertaining to last year's final here by saying to his questioner, "You must've been one of those who were for Orantes."

Something obviously was eating Connors, and he might've kept it locked inside, but he was given the perfect opportunity to let everyone know what it was when he was asked whether there was one overriding reason, other than the $30,000 he got for it, that pushed him to win the Open title again.

Connors could hardly wait to answer.

"You wanna know why," he said, suddenly raising his voice and flinging the mike he was holding onto the table. "I'll tell you why. I wanted to win to keep you people from bringing up 1975."

There. It was out now. Jimmy Connors felt much better.

Manuel Orantes not only beat Connors last year, he all but humiliated him, chasing him back and forth from the baseline to the net and nearly driving him up a wall with all the soft stuff he kept feeding him. After he had disposed of Connors in straight sets, Orantes said he knew the one sure way of beating him was to keep coming back at him with the soft ball until he slammed it into the net. Orantes said the biggest mistake was to go out there and slug with him because that was right up Connors' alley.

Bjorn Borg knew the way to beat Connors also. He tried the same thing, but this time it didn't work. You can rub Connors' nose in the clay once, but not twice. Connors refused to be suckered into the same trap he had been a year ago. He was much more patient with Borg than he ever was with Orantes.

"I just stayed back and waited until he hit the ball a little shorter," he said.

Borg was the counter-puncher throughout the match. Connors threw in some soft stuff, too, occasionally. It was classic tennis in the truest sense, yet it often looked more like a chess match.

Connors and Borg became so preoccupied at one point in the third set tie-breaker that they forgot to switch ends of the court at 9-9. One of the teen-age ballboys had to bring the oversight to the umpire's attention and the umpire instructed Connors and Borg to go to opposite ends.

Patience was Connors' strong suit. Borg went more for finesse. Borg tried to cut it so fine while serving once that the ball barely reached his side of the net.

"Nice serve, Alice!" called out a wag.

This is not to say the 16,253 weren't treated to good tennis. Sometimes, they saw superlative tennis but little of it was calculated to make anybody's hair stand on end.

N.A.A. Lions edge Methuen, 8-6

The NAA Lions won their third consecutive game and League home opener Sunday defeating the Methuen Rangers 8-6 in a hard fought defensive game.

End Mike Kasten provided the margin of victory with the 2-point kick conversion following the Lions second quarter touchdown. Holder Larry Chin's fine effort saved a bad snap on the play, as the kick just beat the Methuen rush.

The Lions touchdown was set up by great punting and defensive play. A 35 yard punt by Mike Goldman pinned the Rangers at the 8 yard line. Led by ends Mike Gorski and Carl Shismanian, and cornerback Chin, the Lions dropped Methuen backs for 4 losses in 5 plays.

The Rangers punt attempt was ruined by a bad snap and Lion's cornerback Mark Fleming recovered on the 10 yard line. Fullback Bill Penzo then drove to the 6.

On the next play Gorski from halfback bolted in for the touchdown behind solid blocking from Penzo, end Mark Phillips, tackle Scott Hayden and guards Mark Hernandez and Joe Scroppo.

The blitzing Methuen defense was equally tough, however, and kept the Lions off balance throughout most of the game. Penalties and fumbles hurt both teams.

In the fourth quarter, Methuen utunned the Lions with a 36 yard touchdown run down the right sideline on a flashy "double reverse" play, but the game-tying conversion kick was stopped by another bad snap. Despite an inspired Rangers team, the Lions showed good poise and finished strong for the win.

On defense, Rob Steinberg, Pete Alexander and Steve D'Angelo all played very well. Cornerback Fleming with one interception and several fine tackles was a standout.

On offense, tailback Chin had 48 yards in 9 carries in a reserve role, Penzo 14 yards in 4 carries and Gorski 30 yards in 12 carries. Quarterback Joe Deasy played well in the face of the heavy Methuen rush.

In other NAA games, Methuen defeated the "B" Tigers 20-0, and the "C" Cowboys lost a close game to Dracut 7-0. This Sunday the Lions and Tigers play at Tewksbury and the Cowboys host Brookline at Newton Highlands Field.

Zimmer wants 20 for Tiant

BOSTON (UPI) — Luis Tiant's back is stiff and the baseball season is coming to a close. But manager Don Zimmer is going to give him every chance to win 20 games.

"Louie will get four, maybe five, more starts," Zimmer said after Tiant pitched the Red Sox to an 11-3 win over the Cleveland Indians Sunday. "If I have to, I may use him in relief to get him his 20."

Tiant struck out six and walked one to gain his 18th victory, second only to Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles in the American League. It was the eighth triumph in the last nine decisions for the right-hander, who has 11 losses.

Tiant gave up six hits, including two homers by George Hendrick.

"I felt stiff in my back all game," Tiant said. "Zimmer asked if I wanted to come out. I said no. I want to finish. I don't want to get in the habit of not finishing the game. If you go seven or eight innings all the time, you get it in your head that you can't go nine. A starting pitcher should always try to finish every game he starts."

The Red Sox scored nine runs in the third and fourth innings to swamp Cleveland. Catcher Carlton Fisk opened the Boston scoring in the second inning with his 15th homer of the season. Fisk also drove in a run with a grounder in the third inning and tripled home another in the fourth. Rick Burleson's two-run double was the key blow in the five-run third inning.

Zimmer praised Tiant, 35, who had 20-win seasons with Boston in 1973 and 1974 and with Cleveland in 1968.

"The guy gets better every year," Zimmer said. "He's a hell of a pitcher, especially in this park. He's a real good competitor. If the other team scores a run or two early, he bears down. Some guys can't do that. Louie can win without his good stuff. he can finesse the hitters."

"I've been in this game for 12 years," Tiant said. "Nobody can tell me anything about this game."

There was talk in the Red Sox lockerroom that Tiant was in the running for the Cy Young Award as the American League's top pitcher.

"I'd like to win it, but it's no big thing," Tiant said. "I just like to play baseball. I'm just trying to do the job the best way I can."

Fred Lynn and Carl Yastrzemski each had two hits and two runs batted in. Lynn's .318 batting average is fifth in the league. Yaz's 90 runs batted in are good for fourth in the AL.

Cleveland's Dennis Eckersley (10-12) goes against Boston's Bill Lee (3-6) tonight.

Ex BC booter Fred Steinfort kicks winning field goal for Oakland

BC also won for Oakland

It was pro football's exercise in excitement, the Oakland Raiders against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Sunday's duel before a national television audience at first seemed like a ho-hum Steeler victory. But games have a way of changing suddenly when these two clubs tangle and it happened again at the Oakland Coliseum as the Raiders, down 28-14 with five minutes left, exploded for 17 points and a 31-28 victory.

The winning points came when German-born Fred Steinfort, playing in his first pro game, kicked a 21-yard field goal with 18 seconds left. Steinfort's kick came after Raider quarterback Ken Stabler tied the game with 69 seconds left on a two-yard run.

Stabler hit five passes, including a 10-yarder to tight end Dave Casper, to pull the Raiders within seven points with 2:56 left and then capped a 29-yard drive with a two-yard run around left end to tie the score.

Steinfort, who replaced 49-year-old George Blanda, got his chance to be a hero in his first game when Otis Sistrunk blocked a pass by Terry Bradshaw and Willie Hall grabbed it at the Steeler 12 with 50 seconds left.

"I've never been so far behind a team so good and come back to win," said Stabler.

"Stabler is amazing," said Casper, who caught seven passes for 124 yards. "If you're open, he'll find you. He always calls the right play at the right time."

The Steelers, who saw a sure win slip from their grasp, were glum.

"When we were ahead 28-14," said Coach Chuck Noll, "I thought we were in pretty good position. But you never know as long as there's time left to play. We lost to a great team...."

BC finally won the big game

BOSTON (UPI) — It took a quarter of a century, but Boston College finally has shaken the onus of not being able to win the big one.

Eagles' fans, ever mindful that Boston College's last moment of glory came on New Year's Day 1941 in the Sugar Bowl, waited and waited and waited for their boys to trip a nationally ranked opponent.

In 1974, the chance came and went against Texas; last fall the opportunity to retain a national name vanished in an opening game loss to Notre Dame.

But Saturday night, with nationally ranked Texas again the opponent, the Eagles performed a miracle, nipping the Longhorns, 14-13, in a game dripping with drama.

"The atmosphere around the college after the game made it seem like we had just won the Rose Bowl, not an opening-season game," said one alumnus. "It was so great, so great, I can't believe it, I can't believe it."

Eagles offensive tackle Bill Ohrenberger, one of many standouts in the game, said the win lifted the status of the sports in the entire region. "It was great for New England football. It showed we could play quality football with anybody."

What the game showed most was the Boston College defense deserved its preseason raves. The Eagles, aided by a hamstring pull to All-American candidate Earl Campbell, limited the stampeding Longhorns to 169 yards rushing. They made the big plays time and again, especially in the final few minutes of play when Kelly Elxias moved up from his cornerback position to topple Olympian Johnny Jones' two-point conversion try that would have put Texas ahead.

The least surprised person seemed to be Darrell Royal, the Texas coach who gave an "I told you so" speech in the losing lockerroom Saturday night.

"I was fearful coming up here, but nobody believed me. Boston College is a better team than the one we played two years ago. Boston College played inspired football," he said.

The first inspiration came on the second play from scrimmage as Eagle halfback Neil Green opened his varsity career with a 74-yard touchdown romp. Green injured a knee and only played the first half, but still amassed 113 yards.

Glenn Capriola also had a fine game, gaining 97 yards. But it was quarterback Ken Smith, in his first varsity start, who was most incredible. The little-used junior ran the Eagles' offense smoothly, completing passes only when they were most needed and scoring one touchdown on a drive.

"Our offensive was doing all right," said Smith, "but a strong defense and a good prayer saved us."

The prayer came into play in the final minute of the game as the Longhorns completed a 50-yard pass to the Boston College 22 only to have it called back because Texas had too many men on the field. A subsequent field goal try — afer the Eagles were penalized for roughing the passer with no time remaining — went just wide from 53 yards out.

"I held my breath and thought it was good," said coach Joe Yukica after his biggest victory. "But as far as I was concerned, every play was hold your breath."

No minor fete planned for Norwood major leaguers

NORWOOD— Norwood will honor its three major league baseball players next month in a special evening called Norwood's Major League Night.

Norwood is believed to be the only town in New England — perhaps in the country — to have three major leaguers, Richie Hebner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Skip Lockwood of the New York Mets, and Bill Travers of the Milwaukee Brewers.

Norwood Police Sergeant John Flaherty, originator of the evening, has been involved for the past several weeks in establishing a date, Friday, Oct. 15, that would be compatible with the schedules of the three athletes.

Final planning of all activities is still underway, but the total program will definitely include a parade through downtown Norwood, a presentation of honors and awards, and a dinner-dance later in the evening at Cornetta's Iron Horse.

Further details will be announced as they become finalized.

Hebner, Lockwood, and Travers all developed their baseball talents in the Norwood youth baseball programs and the Norwood school system before going on to national fame in Major League baseball.

Tickets for the dinner-dance, scheduled for 8 p.m, have already been printed and are available from members of the committee. Seating at the Iron Horse is limited to 250 persons.

Friends and admirers of Hebner, Lockwood, and Travers are advised to purchase tickets as soon as possible.

Tickets, priced at $9.00 per person, may be obtained from any of the following persons: Bob Ivatts (762-4683); Jerry Miller (762-0466); Joe Curran (762-6328); Joe Kelliher (762-6206); Jim Keegan (762-0055); Barry Quinlan (762-7391); Jim Curran (762-1212); Bob Lawrie (769-2696) John Flaherty (762-3197); Mary Guiney (762-1212); and Ted Hansberry (769-0569).

JoAnne Carner favored in Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — JoAnne Carner, winner of the U.S. Women's Open and second leading money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, rates the favorite role in this week's Portland Ladies Classic beginning Friday.

The LPGA's top money winner, Judy Rankin, is passing up the Portland tournament and so are 11 others among the top 20 on the women's money winning list. Top prize in Portland is $6,400, with total tournament prize money at stake $45,000.

"Judy has a family gathering going in Midland and her son is starting back to school, so she regretfully passed up Portland," said an LPGA spokesman.

Assorted ills caused others to pass up the tourney, and some will be getting ready for the alltime money event for the ladies —the Carlton Grand Prix next week in Los Angeles, which is offering $205,000 in prize money with $35,000 to the winner.

But Carner, a winner in Portland the year before last and a native of Kirkland, Wash., and defending champion JoAnn Washam, are on the scene along with Kathy Whitworth, a back-to-back winner here in 1972-73. Pat Bradley, Amy Alcott, Donna Young, Susie McAllister, Debbie Austin and Joyce Kazmierski also will contend for the winner's purse.

Washam, like Carner, is a Washington State product, and the Portland tourney was their chance to get "close to home." Both are long hitters.

"I think I've still got a chance to catch Judy Rankin on the money list," said Carner.

New England football

Columbia faces Harvard

BOSTON (UPI) — Columbia gets a chance to start the Ivy League season with a shock Saturday while Boston University could send the Yankee Conference race reeling in the first full weekend of New England college football.

Vastly improved Columbia tests preseason favorite Harvard on the Crimson's turf as the Ivy League fight opens a week early this year. In a break with the past, the eight Ivy sdchools open their schedules with league play. In other games, Yale meets Brown in a battle of contenders at providence, Dartmouth hosts Pennsylvania and Princeton visits Cornell.

In the Yankee Conference, defensively strong Boston University travels to Durham to face defending champion New Hampshire. Massachusetts plays at Maine in the other conference game while Connecticut hosts Navy and Rhode Island is at home against Northeastern in non-league contests.

Columbia coach Bill Campbell has brought the Lions a long way in two seasons and has hopes of finishing in the first division of the Ivy League. But he said Tuesday, in a telephone conference call to the New England Football Writers' weekly luncheon, that "Harvard is the best team on paper.

"I know (Harvard Coach) Joe (Restic) feels he has holes to fill in the offensive line but I sure as heck would like to have the players he has in the skill positions," he said.

Campbell cited All-Ivy quarterback Jim Kubacki, veteran ends Jim Curry and Bob MacDermott and seasoned runners Tom Winn and Mark Taylor as Harvard's key personnel.

Columbia, a 28-0 winner in a scrimmage against Hofstra last week, benefits from the return of quarterback Kevin Burns of Danbury, Conn. Burns, out last season with a broken collarbone, has an experienced receiver in Dave McAvoy, the team co-captain.

Juniors Jay Hickey and Bruce Stephens lead a running corps that gained 422 yards against Hofstra in the scrimmage.

"If they gain 422 yards against us Saturday, we're in trouble," said Restic, expressing concern his offense may not generate many points against Columbia.

Boston University, down since going to the "Little Rose Bowl" in 1969, has experience at quarterback with Greg Geiger returning, but might be without injured running back Roger Strandberg. The Terriers' defense has 10 returning starters.

A's get Fairly

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The Oakland Athletics purchased veteran utility man Ron Fairly from the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday.

Fairly, 38, who can play first base or outfield, joins his new team Wednesday in Oakland.

Ftorek named Team USA MVP

NEEDHAM—Needham's Robbie Ftorek has won a Toyota Celica GT sports car after being named the outstanding player on Team USA in the recent Canada Cup hockey series.

Team USA General Manager Tommy Ivans of the Chicago Black Hawks called Robbie's parents in Needham two nights ago to make the announcement and Ivans has accepted the car for Robbie until he returns from Finland, where he is at training camp.

Robbie also won the Most Valuable Player award for the team's final game, a 6-2 victory over the Finns. Robbie received an Eskimo walrus carving for having scored two goals in the victory. (BOB HAWES)

Once you know the facts, there's no way you can vote for a State-run Power Authority.

No way.

Fact 1. If the State takes over the electric business your towns and communities stand to lose millions of dollars in property taxes.

Fact 2. There are no competent studies which prove that you will save one dime on your electric bill. In fact, you'll probably pay more. That's why other states rejected similar plans.

Fact 3. New power plants must be built. Yet the State has an almost perfect record of coming in late and over budget on everything it constructs. That's one reason for your ridiculously high State taxes.

Fact 4. Look at the way the State runs the MBTA, State pension funds, welfare, then ask yourself how they would run a complex business like electricity!

Fact 5. When a Nor'easter hits your area and your lights go out, whom do you call? The electric companies' ability to meet these crises is unmatched. Would the State be there in a big storm, climbing the poles at 3 AM?

Fact 6. If your electric company wants a rate increase it has to go before a government board to plead its case. A State-run power authority could raise the rates anytime it pleased, with absolutely no appeal.

A State Power Authority is a dangerous experiment. And once it's in, there's no turning back. You're going to have to learn to live with it. And you're not going to like it.

Don't let the State take the power from the people. Vote against creating another Politically-Appointed State Bureaucracy.

Chamber of Commerce sets Oct. 6 for annual achievement dinner

Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce Presiden John L. Vaccaro has announced the appointment of William M. Cahill of West Newton, chamber vice president and treasurer, as coordinator of the chamber's 18th Annual Achievement Dinner.

The dinner will be held on Wednesday evening, Oct. 6, at the Marriott Hotel, Auburndale.

The chamber's Annual Achievement dinner was established in 1959 to recognize outstanding accomplishments of persons who, by their professional careers or personal community leadership, have brought distinction to Newton or Needham.

Recent recipients include Sen. Edward Brooke, Arch MaDonald, Miss Adelaide Ball and the late Hon. Franklin Flaschner. Among the most recent speakers are Dr. John Silber, mary B. Newman, John Buckley and Rev. W. Seavey Joyce, S.J.

Ms. Stoloff to teach legal literacy workshop

Sonia S. Stoloff of Chestnut Hill will teach a workshop in legal literacy at the Open College, Pine Manor Junior College's program of continuing education designed especially, but not exclusively, for the adult woman. The eight-week, noncredit course begins Oct. 1.

In addition to including specific subjects especially relevant to women, such as consumer protection, family law, and the Equal Rights Amendment, the workshop will teach participants how to select and utilize the services of a lawyer.

"I want to break through the mystique of 'legalese' so that students in the class will feel comfortable talking with an attorney," says Ms. Stoloff. "Women need to realize that they have every right to ask questions — hard questions — of an attorney. And, they must know what questions to ask."

Ms. Stoloff received her Juris Doctor degree from Brooklyn Law School, where she was in the top fifth of her class. Her particular area of interest is special education, and her current private practice includes serving as consultant to the Bureau of Special Education Appeals.

She has an M.A. in special education from Columbia University Teachers College and graduated cum laude from Brooklyn College with a B.A. in psychology.

The Open College will offer four other noncredit workshops this fall, beginning the week of Sept. 27. They are black and white photography, calligraphy, personal communication skills, and poetry writing. To register or get further information, all the Open College, 731-7088.

TV technology display at Kiwanis Home Show

The upcoming Newton Kiwanis Home Show will feature a display showing the changing technology in TV equipment over the past 17 years.

A schematic of the old black and white set will be shown along side one of a new set. Differences, not only in the working mechanism, but especially the size of the parts, will be noted.

Kaye Williamson, manager of New Wal TV in West Newton, will hold demonstrations of how problems in TV sets are traced.

The Home Show will be held Oct. 1-3 in the West Newton Armory. There will be giveaways, door prizes, refreshments and a wealth of ideas for homes and apartments.

For further information call Judy Chernin, 332-8708.

Northland buys interest in Wells Ave. building

Untapped energy

As utility costs continue to climb — residents in some areas now pay $2000 a year to heat their homes — and shortages of fuel remain a possibility, solar heating looks more like a ray of hope and less like a pipe dream.

How practical is solar heating? And how much would it save an average householder? Some information based on a recent Reader's Digest article:

Solar heating pays off best in areas where there is plenty of winter sunshine, heat requirements are high, and so are utility costs. Prime areas where solar heat means savings are the North Central States, Mountain States and parts of New England. If you are building a house in one of these locales and electricity costs more than four cents a kilowatt hour, you might consider solar heating as a viable alternative to conventional methods. You may be able to save about 75 percent of your utility bill.

The cost of installing a solar-heat plant is high ($8,000) is a ballpark figure), and you need to install a standby conventional heater as well, but the system shouldlast the life of the building. Thirteen states give homeowners a tax break if they put in solar heating. In some cases installation can be financed the same way as a mortage.

Sonce solar heating is still a relatively new concept, you need to proceed carefully to avoid being fleeced by unscrupulous sellers. Consult with a qualified solar engineer, the article advises. Ask for references, examine warranties carefully, check the seller's reputation with your local consumer agency, and talk to previous purchasers of his system.

There's plenty of energy in Old Sol, and now may be the time for you to tap it.

Management consulting a multinational business

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The management consulting business has gone multinational.

It's not just a matter of a successful firm establishing foreign branches. On the contrary, groups of consulting firms spanning the oceans have found it necessary to form permanent consortiums in order to deal with the extreme complexities and much more extensive services demanded of consultants by clients, usually governments, in such regions as the Middle East.

"In these areas, you can't just sell advice and blueprinted plans, you have to be able to deliver 'turnkey' projects," says Fred M. Scriever, vice president of Reliance Group, Inc., New York. Reliance consists of Yankelovich, Skelly & White of New York, Inbucon of London, Werner Associates, Inc., of New York and Brussels, and Operations Research, Inc., Washington.

A "turnkey" project is one in which the consultants follow it all the way through to completion, finally handing over the keys to the completed and operation-tested plant or complex to the client. The consultants must accept responsibility for cost control, engineering reliability and other such matters as well as the industrial, financial and marketing studies on the feasibility of the project.

Right now, Reliance Group is executing a turnkey job on a $100 million fertilizer complex in Saudi Arabia with another $50 million going into roads, water, power and other supporting services.

The Reliance Group and similar firms receive numerous requests from the developing firms to help them create new industries. Schriever said, for instance, as a result of the work of multinational consulting groups, fish farming soon will become an important industry in the Middle East. Large scientific agricultural business projects will receive high priority in many countries, he said, with the multinational consulting firms making big contributions or even taking full responsibility for them.

Edward J. Rand, a vice president of ORU Group, Inc., a New York subsidiary of Werner Associates, in an article for the Conference Board Record, explained some of the intricacies of doing business in the Middle East where failure to understand and cope with the different lifestyles and enormous economic and technical gaps can be extremely costly.

For example, he said, in some parts of the Middle East when the local ruler goes away, the border is closed by the police without notice and with no concern for how that can interrupt a construction project for days. Even under normal circumstances moving essential personnel in and out of some countries can be time consuming, expensive and even perilous.

Failure to know all the details about harbor depths, availability of docks and lighterage vessels can cause materials delivery delays that run costs up by $1 million a month on a substantial project. Waiting time to unload a ship may stretch to 45 days.

Seventy-five per cent of all skilled labor must be imported, and the multinational consulting firms must know where such labor can be found most quickly. The productivity of local labor is improving but still is two-thirds or less than that of American or European workers as a rule.

And protracted negotiation is a way of life in most of the developing lands; you never are quoted the same price two days in a row even for an identical taxi trip.

'TEXAS TRILOGY'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Preston Jones' widely acclaimed "A Texas Trilogy," three plays dealing with small-town Southern life, premieres at the Broadhurst Theatre Sept. 21. Fred Gwynne and Henderson Forsythe star in the comic first play, "The Last Meeting of the Knights of the White Magnolia," about a Ku Klux-type clan and their eccentricities.

We have it on high authority that sharing the ride is a very good idea.

It made sense to Noah.
And it still holds true today.
Sharing the ride with just one other person can cut your commuting costs in half.
Think about it.

Share the ride with a friend. It sure beats driving alone.

DEATH PENALTY

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas courts have sentenced 42 persons to death since a new capital punishment law was enacted by the legislature in 1973.

Of those sentenced to death, 19 were white, 16 were black and seven had Spanish surnames.

The state's former death penalty law was declared unconstitutional because it was "wantonly and freakishly imposed." The new statute is being challenged in a case now on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

ABSENT ENZYMES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Absence of certain enzymes in the body can cause allergies, nervous symptoms, insomnia, alcoholism, migraine symptoms and hyperactivity, according to Dr. Lendon H. Smith in his new book "Improving Your Child's Behavior Chemistry."

Enzymes, the tiny protein molecules which speed up chemical reactions, are found in all living organisms. In the human body, there are over 1,500 different enzymes which are essential to virtually all bodily processes. Some physicians now believe that certain enzymes may also affect human behavior.

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Almost 40 per cent of U.S. oil and gas production comes from Texas.

Safety influences car cost

Government-mandated safety standards continue to have a major effect on the design, weight, and cost of Chrysler Corporation passenger cars for the 1977 model year.

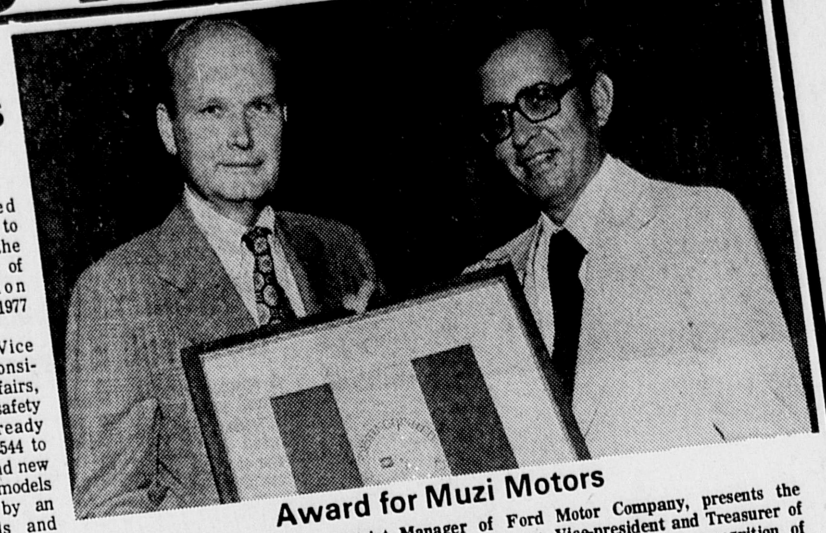

Sydney L. Terry, Vice President-Public Responsibility and Consumer Affairs, said existing noise and safety requirements have already added 315 pounds and $544 to the company's cars, "and new standards for the 1977 models will increase weight by an additional 18 pounds and consumer cost by another $73 per car."

Terry said design changes this year will assure that 1977 model cars can withstand specified front and rear impacts up to 30 miles-an-hour, side impacts up to 20 miles-an-hour, and simulated rollover with minimal fuel leakage.

"We have also made changes to assure that the hood hinges with limited rearward movement by the hood or other exterior parts in a frontal accident, and to assure that full-size car bumpers will withstand corner impacts of three miles-an-hour without damage," Terry added.

"Safety and noise regulations already in effect on our 1976 and earlier models," said Terry, "include 51 federal standards in the United States, 40 Canadian regulations, and a multitude of state regulations."

He said the 300-pound-plus weight penalty imposed by these standards translates into an additional 20 to 30 gallons of gasoline a year for the average car, which amounts to between two and three billion additional gallons of gasoline nationally.

Award for Muzi Motors

The Distinguished Achievement Award is presented "in recognition of progressive management. . . modern sales and service facilities. . . sound merchandising practices. . . high quality standards. . . and continuing interest in redering superior service to Ford owners."

Tax argument turns personal

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

An appraiser who furnished information on the Marriott Hotel claimed this week to have a tape of a phone conversation damaging to Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small, Small said at a recess meeting of the Board of Aldermen Monday night.

Small said that the appraiser, Matthew Leydon, who now works in New York, recently told assessor Philip Waterman that he had taped a conversation in which Small allegedly said that in return for his chemical company's being given the Marriott business Small would "take care" of their taxes.

Small attributes the story, which he denied completely, to the Marriott's displeasure with recent adverse publicity on its real estate tax bill and abatements.

The existence of any such tape was denied by the general manager of the Newton Marriott and by the Marriott corporate headquarters in Washington, D.C., Tuesday.

Waterman would not comment on the incident except to say that he had never told Small of the alleged conversation with Leydon.

Leydon was unavailable for comment Tuesday and Wednesday. He was reportedly in Florida on business.

Small has been pressing the Board of Assessors to revise their methods of assessing businesses for real estate taxes and used the Marriott Hotel as an example.

At a recent Finance Committee meeting he questioned the propriety of the reduction in taxes the Marriott has been enjoying and hinted that the assessors had been too willing to grant the corporation an abatement.

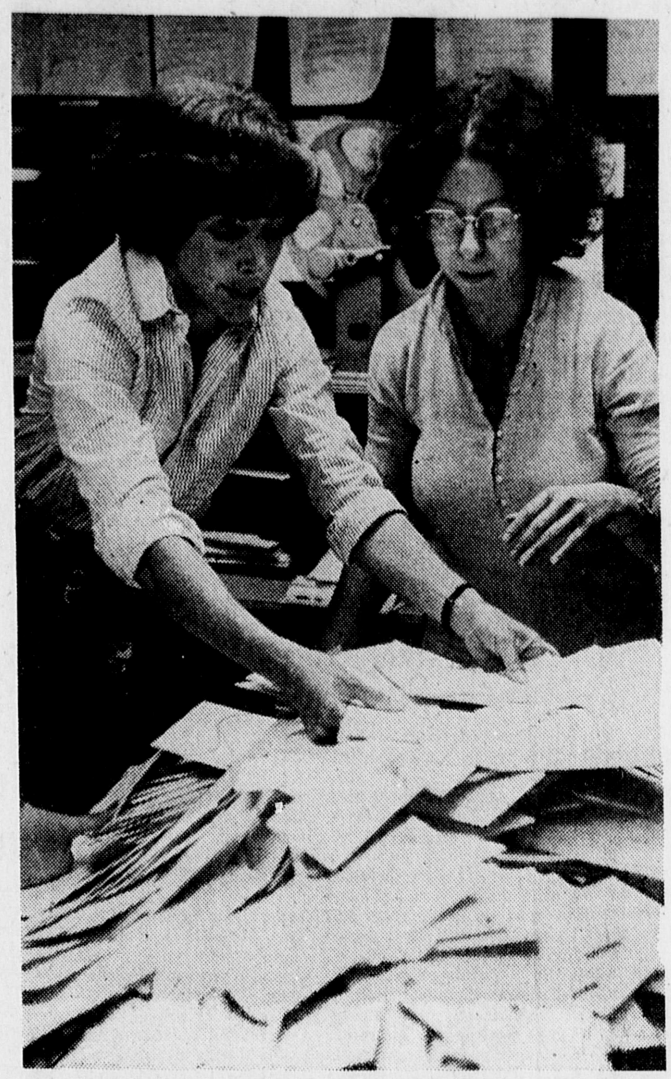

The Marriott, which once had been expected to provide $1 million in taxes to the city, paid a tax of $588,000 last year, a decrease of more than $100,000 from the previous year.

Small charged the Marriott with "ripping off" the city with its taxes.

Small said he is "deeply disappointed" with the holdover member of the Board of Assessors, who he said has "caused more problems" with the Cole-Layer-Trumble revaluation.

Waterman's term as assessor expired in February. Mayor Theodore Mann has not reappointed him and sources at City

Tax rate $164.40

Pending certification by the state, the Newton real estate tax rate will be $164.40 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation, an increase of $5.40.

The $164.40 was to submitted to the state Wednesday for approval.

The Board of Aldermen made a further cut in money to be raised by taxes Monday night when it accepted a motion by Ald. Eliot Cohen to amend the Finance Committee report from last week, which would have meant that $400,000 would be raised for for appropriation to budget reserve.

The mayor asked for $900,000 to take care of salary increases coming as a result of collective bargaining.

The mayor's request that $1.2 million in available cash surplus be applied now to the total tax need was approved by the Board easily, unanimously and with no debate.

The motion by Cohen to reduce even further the Finance Committee recommendation of $400,000 istead of $900,000 for collective bargaining was opposed by eight aldermen when first proposed; four reversed their votes for a 20-4 final approval of appropriating only $200,000.

Cohen convinced the aldermen that $200,000, in addition to the $658,000 left in available surplus after current com-

McGrath weighing sticker candidacy

State Rep. Richard McGrath said Wednesday morning he is "90 percent sure" he will oppose A. Joseph DeNucci on stickers in the November election if the financial cost is not too high.

McGrath lost the Democratic nomination for reelection to his seat from the 16th District in last week's primary by 176 votes. DeNucci lost to McGrath in the 1974 primary by 4 votes.

McGrath is awaiting word from a professional political consulting firm on the cost of running an intensive campaign in the few weeks left before the regular election.

He said, "We've counted the votes — we know they're there."

His political advisers in the city tell him that all the DeNucci voters turned out for the primary, while McGrath supporters did not all vote, and he can count on many more votes if only the people would go to the polls.

McGrath said the major problem would be education of the voters in how to use the stickers, which are applied to a roll of paper in the voting machine.

McGrath, who would be seeking his second term as a state representative, was to talk further with Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Newton Election Commission, Wednesday. Licarie has called running on stickers "a very difficult avenue."

McGrath's election organization is still intact, McGrath said, and more people are joining him and urging that he use the sticker procedure.

If he chooses to go through with the sticker plan, McGrath said, he will force DeNucci "to run on the issues."

Both sides complained during the primary campaign that the other side would not discuss the real issues and were indulging in personal attacks instead.

Moulton St. will be paved

Moulton Street in Lower Falls will be paved and the state will pay the costs.

The announcement came at Tuesday's joint meeting of the Newton Community Development Authority and the Planning and Development Board, postponed from Sept. 9 to Sept. 23 due to lack of a quorum.

Present this time were all six members of the NPDB: Chairman Stanley Miller, Vice Chairman Cecil Cadwell, David Lurensky, Margaret Smith, Carol Robinson, and Charles Thomas, as well as alternates Ernest Siciliano and Otis Robinson.

Gerald Early, Director of Rehabilitation and Renewal for the Authorit , said that the Commonwealth of High hopes voiced for Novitiate land

The owner is not pressing to sell it, the city has not decided if it might buy it, the MDC hasn't taken a strong position on what it would like, but that didn't stop 70 residents from contemplating what they would like to see on the 60 acres of Novitiate land if it becomes public domain.

A sokesman for the Xaverian Brothers said the city could buy the land for $1.5 million.

A meeting by the Newton Conservators at Meadowbrook Junior High School Tuesday night brought out use proposals ranging from nature trails and sheep grazing to low-income housing and housing for artists and musicians.

Bordered by the Charles River Country Club, the city infirmary land, the Charles River, a farm, and the Wells Avenue Office Park, the land on Winchester and Nahanton streets in Ward 8 is currently owned by the Xaverian Brothers Novitiate.

Environmental planner William Giezentanner was hired by the Conservators to explore possible alternatives to use the land to its best potential with conservation in mind.

Giezentanner, who designed the Charles to Charles Pathway that would wind through the Novitiate land, showed slides of the land, pointing out how it is

New controls urged for PW timekeeping

Public Works Committee review of the recently completed audit of public works record-keeping procedures continues to put pressure on the city comptroller and the public works commissioner to institute changes that will prevent cheating, especially on number of hours worked.

The examination of record keeping was ordered by the Board of Aldermen after State Rep. Richard McGrath last spring charged that "sloppy" procedures were inflating the cost of rubbish collection beyond the true figures. The issue at that time was the estimated saving to be obtained by abolishing rubbish collection by the city work force.

Using records removed from City Hall and given to him by an unnamed person or persons, McGrath came close to charging criminal actions in payment to city employees.

City Comptroller Larry Marino, who prepared the report on payroll and timekeeping procedures, said he found no evidence of fraud, but recommended several changes in procedure.

The time card should be a photo ID card or one which has assignment and times worked written on the back of the card, Marino said. Cards should be gathered by a central timekeeper working for the city treasurer,, not the public works department, Marino added. "It's better to have the timekeeper out of reach."

In reference to what steps have been taken since last April and May to correct procedures in the public works department, Marino said he had suggested certain procedures to Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson, but cannot order him to follow any procedure

Contest extended

Due to the tremendous response to the walking tours of the Novitiate land, the Newton Conservators announced this week that tours will be extended to include Saturday, Sept. 25 and Saturday, Oct. 2.

The Conservators and the Newton Graphic would also like to announce that people wishing to enter the photo contest can take pictures Saturday, Sept. 25.

The original entry deadline of 5 p.m. Oct. 1 will remain the same.

Tours are at 10 a.m.

Take your camera along and capture the beauty of this 60-acre tract. We're looking for the "best picture" of the land. Photos should be submitted to the Newton Graphic, 1178 Walnut St., Newton Highlands.

The contest is open to people of any age, but not to professional photographers.

After the Oct. 1 deadline, the editorial staff of the Graphic and a representative of the Conservators will judge the entries and select a winner. The winning photo and a picture of the winning photographer will appear on the front page of the Graphic in October.

The Novitiate land is bordered by Winchester Street, Nahantón Street and the Charles River and the old infirmary land. People can park in the driveway in front of the main building or in the parking area on the infirmary land.

Anyone wishing further information on the contest should contact Newton Graphic Editor Cynthia Black at 965-6300.

Bigelow House

Richardson's Bigelow House sought by historic committee

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Proposals have been received by the Planning Department for the use of the Bigelow House-Peabody School property on Oak Hill declared surplus by the city.

The Bigelow House is of unusual interest because it was designed and built by noted architect Henry Hobson Richardson in 1886 and is on the National Register of Historic Places.

Among the proposals received is one from the Newton ion, a legally established Historic Preservation Associat organization whose genesis was in the threat of demolition of the Bigelow House.

A committee appointed by the mayor last year to determine the best uses for the Bigelow House and other surplus municipal buildings decided on sale of the Peabody School and the Bigelow House for conversion or building anew for residential use. A half-dozen proposals have been received.

The NHPA proposal depends wholly on the city's giving the house and five acres of land to the NHPA for $1.

The NHPA has submitted architects' drawings showing plans for four apartments constructed in the Bigelow House. The NHPA would undertake an authentic restoration of the house and then sell it as a condominium' using any profit as the start of a revolving fund to buy and restore other historic houses in Newton.

THe NHPA says the authentic restoration of the Bigelow House would be more in keeping with the Peabody will, which stated that the property should be used for educational purposes. because the associattion feels the property would then be "a prize historical attraction" in the Boston area.

Officers of the small but growing nonprofit group are John N. Howard, Dennis Rieske, and Elsie Husher.

Howard tried to repair the house and keep it secure against vandalism for more than a year while the city was deciding what to do with it, and spent more than $1000 of his own money on the project. Rieske is an architect and a member of the Newton Historical Commission, of which Elsie Husher is the chairman.

The NHPA feels that the city should give it the house and land not only because it will do a thorough and correct restoration of the building but also because after subtraction of five acres of land from the 17.5-acre parcel only enough land will be left for the construction on the Peabody School site for 22 units of housing.

The organization feels that the maximum allowable on the entire parcel of land — 31 units including four in the Bigelow House — makes for too high density.

The request for proposal issued by the Planning Department specifies that the old Peabody School may be either remodeled or torn down. If it is demolished, a new building must be built within roughly the area occupied by the present building.

The city has estimated the prospective cost of the Bigelow House alone at $47,000, which Rieske says is too high for the shell of a building. Rieske has seen estimates for restoration from $200,000 to $500,000.

At one time the Newton Cultural Affairs Commission was interested in acquiring the Bigelow House for use as an arts center, but the general disrepair and the cost of rehabilitating the house proved insurmountable and the plan was dropped.

Even though the highly praised work by CETA workers made an apartment in the house habitable for a caretaker, the city reneged on its plan to have the house occupied to prevent vandalism, according to Rieske.

Insurance on the house was canceled, Rieske said, because of the city's failure to live up to its agreement with the administrators of the Peabody estate to maintain the property' and the city is afraid of liability in case of injury to an occupant.

Proposals for the development of the Oak Hill property are now being reviewed by the Planning Department, as are proposals for the renovation and use of the old Peirce School in West Newton. All are available for inspection at the Planning Department.

Meanwhile the Newton Historic Preservation Association is talking to banks about their hopes of being given the Bigelow House property and finding out what the banks can offer in the way of financing the project.

The Historical Commission has allocated its $15,000 in federal community development funding to the NHPA for the Bigelow House.

John Howard has submitted a proposal that he buy the house himself and restore

Woman apointed city engineer

Cynthia A. McCarthy, 42, of Foxborough, has been appointed city engineer by Mayor Theodore Mann, effective Oct. 4.

Ms. McCarthy received a B.S. degree in civil engineering from Tufts University in 1956. She has been employed as a civil engineer in the Cleveland consulting firms of Slabe and Mackay and Adache and Associates, and as a senior civil engineer in the office of the Cuyahoga County Engineer, Cleveland, Ohio.

Most recently, Ms. McCarthy has worked as a project engineer for the Massachusetts Port Authority, where she was responsible for the civil engineering coordination, review, design, planning and construction of multiple improvement projects to transportation-related facilities and coordinated the reconstruction work on the Tobin Memorial Bridge.

In making the ahnouncement, Mayor Mann stated, "The appointment of a permanent city engineer will round out the city's management team. Her experience and expertise in the engineering field will be a great asset to the city. I look forward to working with her."

Ms. McCarthy will replace Philip Jones, who has been serving as acting city engineer.

Ms. McCarthy was interviewed briefly by the aldermanic Finance Committee Monday night, and will interviewed yyyey- further by the Public Works and Buildings committees.

Her appointment becomes permanent within 60 days after the effective date of the appointment unless rejected by a vote of the Board of Aldermen.

Substitute policy in schools to be examined

The School Committee will receive input from the Student Advisory Committee on a study that shows substitute teachers cost the School Department $62,000 last yea at the two high schools. The five high school students have previously suggested that substitute teachers are often of no assistance in instructing a class when a teacher is out for one or two days. A report from Asistant Superintendent for Personnel Hope Danielson shows that the estimated cost of substitute teachers filling in for teachers who were out one day was $28,263 last year. About three-fourths of the 1290 one-day absences were filled by substitutes, according to figures in the five-page report.

Mrs. Danielson advises against any stiff policy on substitutes since the need for them varies seasonally and in certain types of classrooms.

Substitutes must always be on hand in science laboratories, and auto and electrical shops, she notes, and a reasonable number of teachers must be on hand in schools when many teachers are absent.

The teacher contract allows each teacher 15 days of paid sick leave and six days of personal or court leave.

The School Committee will meet on the matter Monday at 7:45 p.m. at Day Junior High School.

Teachers will get pay increase two weeks late

Teachers in Newton did not receive their negotiated salary increase last week in their pay checks, but their association president said the increments will be in the next check.

Newton Teacher Association President Richard Cochran said Tuesday, "We won't do anything counterproductive to us or the city" regarding the delay, and noted the school Personnel Department has already sent out a letter of apology and explanation.

Approximately 1000 teachers, principals and administrators were to have received a 5.4 percent pay increase and, in some cases, a step increase in their Sept. 15 checks.

Cochran thanked Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Hope Danielson for moving up the expected increase from the Oct. 15 check to the Sept. 30 check.

Cochran, a social studies teacher at Warren Junior High School, estimated that the city could have profited $150 in interest by delaying the pay increase two weeks.

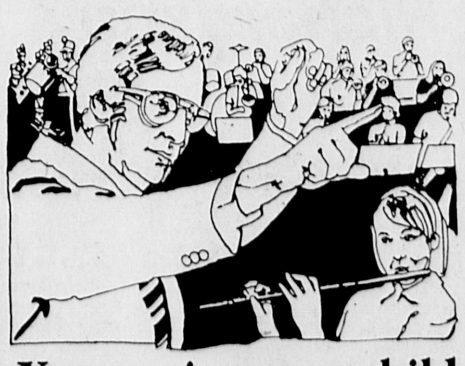

He said that "computing that miniscule amount" of interest per person and having it added to the pay checks would probably cost the city more money than the employees would gain.

To help teachers who were expecting the increased pay the NTA arranged interest free loans from the Massachusetts Teachers Association.

Assistant Director of Personnel Thomas O'Conor said the delay was caused by the manual computation of each salary adjustment.

O'Conor said that the data processing system has not yet been programmed to add the 5.4 percent cost-of-living increase' the amount of which was not known to the School Department until after Aug. 20.

That increase, along with the step increase for teachers who have not reached the top salary in their grade, nets teachers a salary increase of about $800 to $1200, Cochran said.

Pines and Passman cross swords over poll harrassment

By RICHARD WILLIAMS

Howard U. Passman and Lois Pines crossed swords this week over charges and countercharges of harassment and election law violations during the Sept. 14 primary election.

Passman will be the Republican opponent to incumbent Pines in the 19th Middlesex District state representative race in November.

Election Commission Executive Secretary Alan Licarie spoke openly about charges made by the two but said it was a "pretty damn good election," and noted that no formal challenges had been . made to his office.

Pines, an incumbent Democrat running for her third term in the House, charged that Passman workers at Mason-Rice School in Newton Centre kept encroaching on the 150-foot limit for politicing, and that that his workers were "obnoxious."

Passman, who received 164 sticker votes in the district that includes Chestnut Hill and Newton Centre, charged that Pines' workers did everything possible to prevent him from getting the 150 sticker votes necessary to appear on the Nov. 2 ballot. He needed the sticker or write-in votes because he had changed his party registration within one year of the election

Mason-Rice School was a main area of contention. Election official Licarie was called there four times during the day to settle disputes about the 150-foot limit from a polling place for distributing campaign materials or campaigning.

Passman worker Ron Civins-Mills claims that he was told twice by Pines workers that he was too close to the school because he was giving out stickers instead of just holding a sign .

Civins-Mills called Licarie who told him that the law reads, in effect, that campaigners must be 150 feet from the premises of the polling place, which would be out in the street at most polling places.

At most polling places Licarie allows signs and workers to be at the border between the parking lot and the sidewalk leading up to the door of the polling place.

Licarie explained this to the Passman worker to his satisfaction, but another Pines worker questioned him and she called Licarie, Civins-Mills said.

Another controversy at Mason-Rice occured when a voter, apparently Republican, asked for assistance after she had entered the voting booth. State law requires two people, a Republican and a Democrat, help voters.

Licarie said this happened when some of the poll workers were at lunch and one worker stepped inside to help the voter.

A Pines worker inside the polling room at Mason-Rice as an observer pointed out that two persons, one from each party, should assist someone when help is asked for.

Passman and Pines spent most of the day campaigning next to each other at Spaulding School where two precincts vote.

Passman claims he was kind to his opponent, int oducing the persons he knew to her, but she walked past the campaigning limit, he said.

Pines noted that Passman was introducing people to her, but each time he added a negative remark on her positi ons' she said.

Licarie's staff was thanked in a letter from Civins-Mills on behalf of the Passman workers.

Civins-Mills also added that the alleged harassment by Pines workers may actually have helped the Passman campai n.

"They've given him (Passman) a lot more credibility, making him look like a powerful candidate breathing down her (Pines') neck," Civins-Mills said.

Fink eyes teacher evaluation and reading scores this year

A new evaluation process for tenured teachers and the learning of reading skills by junior high school students will be two areas of close concentration by the School Department this year.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink told the School Committee in his annual report that the opening of schools went very well this year according to principals, but the two subjects are new on his mind.

In a preview to an upcoming report on Scholastic Achievement Test and other test scores, Superintendent Fink said there has been a decline in the rate of growth in reading skills for junior high students.

Although there is no decline in the level of learning, he said the decline in the growth rate may show one of three things.

It may show a decreased stress of reading skills in junior high schools, an extremely strong stress in elementary schools, or an early development of reading skills in junior highs.

He was pleased with other reading scores that showed 75 percent of students tested were above the national average and only one group out of 148 groups of students were below the national average.

He was also encouraged by test results in math that showed a reversal of negative trends detected in the past.

Evaluations

The voluntary evaluation of tenured teachers will begin this fall as a first step toward compulsory evaluation of tenured teachers starting next year.

The superintendent said each principal would pick four or five to be on the first evaluation team in departments. These teams would include the department supervisor and otherpeers of the teacher to be evaluated.

Next year the porgram will be in full force and will not be voluntary for staff. About every three years each tenured teacher will be evalated, Fink said.

The Newton Teachers Association agreed to this process when working with the last School Committee in determining language for a reduction-in-force clause. Currently 75.4 percent of the teaching staff is tenured, the superintendent said.

In his annual address he also noted that the Davis School is beginning the Wods in Color program that has been very successful at Horace Mann School.

He also said this year the staff will be working to build a more benef icial working relationship with curriculum coordinators in the Division of Program and the principals and teachers.

Other goals will be implementing K-9 curriculum guidelines in all subject areas, improving special education resource centers and ttoring programs, balancing special education and general resources, and reducing racial isolation inside the schools with staff and collaborative efforts.

Legislation could cost Committee $500,000

The School Committee has taken a unanimous stand against a federal piece of legislation which could cost the School Committee $500,000.

The federal unemployment compensation reform bill (H.R. 10210) was passed by the House with all Massachusetts representatives voting for it despite the School Committee's objections.

If the bill becomes law it could cost the School Department as little as $300,000 if the Committee allocates that amount to the Division of Employment Security, which is the amount in pay that unemployed or fired workers would receive.

With a contributory payroll tax method it would cost the Committee $500,000.

The legislation, Chairman Alvin Mandell said, comes in response to 22 states whose unemployment funds are depleted, and who have asked the federal government to loan them $16.5 billion.

Mandell said the Massachusetts Association of School Committees has also opposed the legislation.

A record of the Committee's stand will be sent to the U.S. Senate and senators, noting that additional obligations on the School Committee could threaten the financial continuance so such programs as Metco.

Two attorneys join city law department

Appointment of Michael D. Baseman and Susan Kurland as assistant city solicitors to serve in the city Law Department was announced this week by Mayor Theodore Mann.

The new city solicitors replace George Goverman and Kenneth Bagley, who are leaving for other positions.

Michael D. Baseman is a 1975 graduate of Harvard Law School, where he served on the committee for legal research on the draft board of student advisors. He received the B.A. degree in economics from Cornell University in 1972.

Baseman has been employed as a legal researcher in the firm of Sherin and Lodger of Boston and as a law clerk in a Pittsburgh firm. He joined the Law Department Sept. 15.

Susan Kurland graduated magna cum laude from Brandeis University in 1973, with a major in history. She received the J.D. degree in 1976 from Boston University School of Law, where she was employed as a research assistant and served as a student attorney in the clinical aid program.

Kurland has also studied at the University College in London and Tel Aviv University. She has recently worked in a Chicago Law firm as a law clerk. Her employment with the city starts on Sept. 20.

Kenneth Bagley is moving to San Diego (Cal.), where he will work for the city attorney's criminal division.

George Goverman will be an election commissioner for the city of Cambridge.

Help on Ch. 766 given by Council for Children

Do you need help in understanding Chapter 766?

Parents, educators and other interested persons are invited to call the Area Office of the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Council for Children at 965-9810 to request the services of a "parent support volunteer."

The Newton-Wellesley-Weston Council for Children is pleased to announce the completion by several area residents of a training program designed to train them in the regulations of Chapter 766, which provides for the education of children with special education needs.

The parent support volunteers are versed in the use of 766 regulations and can provide assistance to parents involved in the evaluations of their children as well as assisting in communications between parents and school personnel. The Area Office, through its Help for Children program, can also make referrals to any other services required to assist families. For additional information, call Help for Children, 965-9810.

Flu shot clinics to be held at N-W Hospital

Flu shot clinics for "high-risk" residents will be held at Newton-Wellesley Hospital sometime after mid-October.

Although specific dates have not been established yet, plans are being formulated by the hospital, Newton Health Department officials and the Newton-Wellesley Visiting Nurse Association to inoculate members of the high-risk population as soon as the vaccine becomes available from the federal government.

Specific dates and times will be announced as soon as possible.

High-risk people include those age 65 and older, those 25 and older who have chronic diseases, and all health care personnel.

Housebound people will be able to receive the vaccine through the Newton-Wellesley Visiting Nurse Association.

Transportation for Newton residents will be available to the clinics at Newton-Wellesley through the City of Newton's bus shuttle. The schedule for the shuttle will be published in local papers at a later date, and it should be consulted for a suitable time.

The vaccine for high-risk people will be bivalent, which offers protection against both A-Swine and A-Victoria influenza. All those getting the vaccine must read and sign a consent form indicating they understand the risks and benefits of the vaccine. Anyone with a particular health problem will be evaluated by a physician before being vaccinated.

After the inoculation, the consent forms will be collected and everyone will be asked to wait a few minutes to make certain they are feeling well enough to leave.

The flu shot clinics will be staffed by hospital and public health depatment personnel and the Visiting Nurse Association and immunizations will be given on a first-come, first-served basis. For further information contact the Newton Health Department at City Hall, 244-4700.

Further details on dates and times of the clinics will be published in local newspapers.

Lewis Day cited for 25 years with Hancock

Lewis E. Day, Jr., of Waban was recently honored for 25 years of service with the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. at the 24th annual Quarter Century Club dinner at the Copley Plaza Hotel, Boston.

Hosting the dinner were Gerhard D. Bleicken, John Hancock chairman of the board and chief executive officer, and Edwin Matz, president and chief operations officer.

The 848 club members, each claiming a minimum of 25 years of service with the company, represent some 26,500 years of service.

Second of surveys

Students should be able to write a sentence

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

The ability to compose a readable sentence is the most important skill the Newton schools should teach, according to a survey of 319 Newton residents chosen by a random sampling procedure.

The survey by Boston College professor Ronald Nuttall and University of Massachusetts professor Ena Vazquez Nuttall, both of Newton, found that four specific basic academic skills are viewed as the most important that schools should teach.

These are the ability to compose a readable sentence; speak the English language add, subtract, multiply, and divide whole numbers; and to use a dictionary correctly.

Responses to the 34 questions on this section of the Nuttalls' survey were grouped by the authors into general subject areas. In order of importance were basic academic skills, attitudes of tolerance and respect, important practical skills, social skills, sex knowledge and skills. vocational skills, cultural appreciation, unimportant practical skills, and knowledge of God.

Ron Nuttall was a candidate for School Committee in 1971 and was a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee on Declining Enrollment. He is the director of the Laboratory for Statistical and Policy Research at Boston College.

Ena Vazquez Nuttall is assistant professor for humanistic applications at the School of Education, University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

The Nuttalls used a stratified random sampling in mailing 1200 questionnaires to about each 80th person in the city resident list, excluding college dormitory students. Exactly 150 residents in each ward received one.

The 319 respondents, 27 percent of the sample, remained anonymous but were asked to list their local elementary school.

Between 11 and 19 responses were received from each school district except for the countryside, 10; williams, 9; spaulding, 8; memorial, 5; and Hamilton, 4. Fourteen persons did not is question and 11 did not know the school district. answer th

The Nuttall questionnaire had 115 multiple choice questions on it. Currently only the first section of 34 questions has been analyzed.

Following each statement describing a certain skill, respondents were asked to check one of seven spaces on a line that had "very important" on one side and "very unimportant" on the other side

On a scale of 1 to 7, the four basic skills mentioned earlier received average ratings of between 6.5 and 6.8.

The next three top responses had to do with speaking English well, basic arithmetic functions, and use of dictionary, which all received an average rating of 6.5 or more.

More specific skills in reading and math were less important, according to the average scores. Working with decimals and fractions were rated 6.3 and 6.2' with algebraic know-how received an average rating of 4.9.

Attitudes of tolerance and respect is the second most important subject for schools to teach, according to the Nuttalls' report. "Having a positive regard for people of different races" ranked fifth among the 34 questions, and respect for the law followed two-tenths of a point behind at 6.2.

The Nuttalls judged certain important practical skills to be the third priority viewed by the public. Included in this category is first aid, with an average score of 6.3, and filling out a job application, rated 5.9.

The report ranks certain social skills as important. Within a score range of 6 to 5.8 were the areas of getting along with people socially, having respect for authority, getting along with a supervisor, and being well disciplined socially.

The Nuttalls see that sexual education is less important than the above social skills, because knowledge of human reproduction and the ability to relate socially with the opposite sex received average scores of 5.7 and 5.2 respectively.

The ability to compete with working peers and having a vocational skill were ranked next with scores of 5.6 and 5.3. The Nuttalls viewed these scores as meaning vocational skills are of middle importance.

Appreciation of the fine arts was near the bottom of the list. Appreciation of nove ls, music, and art were ranked 5.1, 5.1, and 4.9.

Next to last of general priorities was a group of practical skills that included management of home finances which averaged 5.0.

Also in ths grouping were skills in child care, typing, sports competition, use of a road map, and completing the short form for federal income taxes. All these items averaged between 4.1 and 4.9.

Knowing God

Tied for last place with a score of 3.9 were repairing of minor car problems and ability to "Know and love God."

The Nuttall report notes that the religious question was by far the most controversal one on this section of the survey.

One fourth of the respondents scored this a seven, and another fourth gave it the lowest possible score of one.

Among those who indicated their religious preference at the end ot the questionnaire, the Catholic average for this question was determined to be 5.3, the Jewish average of 2.7' and the Protestants were in the middle with 3.7.

The survey also asked the income ranges of respondents. Of the 319, 16 checked less than $7,000, 55 ckecked between $7,000 and $15,000; 140 checked between $15,000 and $35,000; 38 checked between $35,000 and $50,000; 30 checked over $50,000; and 40 made no response.

The following number of people classified their political leaning as follows: 5 radical, 21 very liberal, 70 liberal, 119 moderate, 68 conservative, 3 reactionary, and 23 made no response.

Bridge players help arthritis

Duplicate bridge will be played to raise funds to combat arthritis at the West Newton National Guard Armory, 1137 Washington St., West Newton, at 7:45 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 23.

The Eastern Massachusetts American Contract Bridge League Unit is participating in a cooperative effort of the American Contract Bridge League (ACBL) and The Arthritis Foundation. The foundation has been designated as the ACBL "Charity of the Year" for 1976.

Proceeds from bridge players' entry fees to the game will go to support research into the causes and prevention of arthritis, the nation's number one crippling disease. The ACBL is funding four major projects conducted at arthritis clinical research centers across the country.

The public is cordially invited. Those desiring further information should contact Richard Berk at 1-877-2186.

Divorce waiting period reduced in legislature

The state House of Representatives this week voted to reduce the waiting period for a divorce decree's effective date from six months to 30 days.

Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton), an advocate of divorce law reform during her four years in the house, co-sponsored the legislation.

"A six-month wait after being granted a divorce has constituted an undue harship on both parties," she observed. "A 30-day period is adequate to allow either arty to change their minds after the divorce has been granted."

Mrs. Pines was also the sponsor of the 1976 "no-fault" divorce law, adding the new "irretrievable breakdown of the marriage" as grounds for divorce.

"Unfortunately," she said, "the new law was not adequate and requires a 10-month waiting period before the divorce can be granted."

"Most parties still use 'cruel and abusive treatment' as the ground on which they file," she said.

"I will continue to fight to reduce this waiting period until people seeking a divorce can choose the ground without an excessive waiting period being imposed, " she said.

Names and politics

Politicians as a class tend to encourage familiarity by their constituents, as typically illustrated by their use of familiar or childhood names in the affectionate diminutive.

But perhaps never in the modern history of American national politics has an aspiring politician used that device so effectively, and with so little resistance even among wire news editors who typically insist upon formal styles of nomenclatures, as has James Earl Carter of Georgia.

If that full, formal name is not quite familiar, it is that legally borne by Jimmy Carter, the Democratic nominee for president.

Identification by initials (FDR, LBJ and JFK) is familiar enough. But it derives substantially if not wholly from some of the mechanical problems in communication, as in condensing for the composition of newpaper headlines. Thus also the name "Ike," for President Dwight Eisenhower, became commonplace.

The Carter phenomenon is substantially different. He has been permitted to use the name "Jimmy" on the election ballot, as state election boards elsewhere including Wisconsin followed the precedent of Georgia where Candidate Carter was permitted to so list himself.

We have had "Alf" Landon, and "Jerry Ford," and "Dick Nixon, among many others, as tokens of the popular habits of speech of their constituents.

The man from Plains may have established an important precedent in American politics.

Clumsy spies

It turns out that not only United States has military equipment with defects and embarrassing inadequacies. Take the Russian submarine of the November class.

First commissioned in 1958, the nuclear powered, 360-foot sub is supposed to make so much noise when diving that it sounds "like the flushing of an antique toilet," according to a Norwegian naval officer. Several years ago one sank in British waters, naturally causing some red faces in the Kremlin.

And then in July another one was caught in a fishing net.

All sorts of sophisticated equipment on board such submarines is supposed to detect fishing trawlers, cables, nets and engines. After all, an easily seen spy is not much use. But a Norwegian trawler found itself hauled backward in the Barents Sea, some 1½ nautical miles outside the Soviet fishing boundary. The sub had to surface to disentangle itself from the nets but there weren't any Russian apologies.

Of course such underwater espionage goes on all the time and no doubt a lot more nations than the Soviet Union are as devious. But it does serve to make a mockery out of all the hallabaloo about territorial waters and Freedom of the sea lanes.

The Editor says

Who really decides our elections?

By Cynthia Black

Since the end of June, this paper has been nothing short of BOMBARDED with letters about Metco.

Prior to that, we existed on a day-to-day basis under a pile of letters about Angier-Ellis.

Heaven knows what will be next. Maybe it will be the "moment of silence" in the schools.

I would bet that if I reviewed every issue of the paper since the opening shot was fired, I would discover the number ofletters are split pro and con on a 50-50 basis.

The people who have come to be known as "the majority members of the School Committee," that is Mandell, Ash, Delicata, Prince and LeConti, are alternately welcomed as the saviors of the school system and condemned as the five greatest threats to education this city has ever endured.

Make no mistake about it, there is a message in this madness.

Do these five people represent the "majority" of people in this city, or not?

The answer, I feel, is going to be a long time coming. In fact, there will be no answer until November, 1977.

When I looked over the results of last week's Democratic primary in the 16th Middlesex District, a pet theory of mine came to mind.

Again, I asked myself the question: who really decides elections? And again, the answer was the people who DON'T vote.

There are approximately the same number of registered voters in each ward of this city. There are eight precincts in the 16th Middlesex District. Last Tuesday, the loser, incumbent Richard J. McGrath, won in five of the eight precincts, but the margin between he and the victor, Joseph DeNucci, was relatively close.

The exception occurred in two West Newton precincts which came out heavily in favor of DeNucci. In one it was Denucci 529, McGrath 220; in the other DeNucci 511, McGrath 268.

So while there were between 500 and 600 votes cast in the five precincts McGrath won, there were almost 800 cast in each of the two DeNucci won.

Clearly, a massive and successful effort was made by DeNucci forces to get the vote out where they knew their candidate was strong. While the same 200 to 300 McGrath voters were there, they were met by an extra 200 or 300 DeNucci voters.

Had McGrath made the same effort in precincts where he was particularly strong, the outcome might have been different.

Where ever those extra 300 or 400 voters were last Thursday that might have tipped the scales in favor of McGrath, they indirectly decided the outcome of the election by not voting.

Now let's go back to the 1974 and the election that produced this School Committee "majority."

In that election, 40 percent of the voters voted and 60 percent stayed home.

Keeping in mind there are about the same number of voters in each ward, let's pick two wards and compare them. One went for all the so-called "liberals" on the School Committee and the other backed the new "conservatives." The figures used are from Wards 7 and 8, and all I've done is add up the total number of votes cast.

In Ward 7, for example, 1053 people voted for Jeffrey Schwamm, the liberal; and 541 voted for Henry Delicata, the conservative, making a total of 1594. In the same race in Ward 8, 901 people voted for Schwamm and 1230 voted for Delicata, making a total vote of 2131. Here the difference just in the number of votes cast is in excess of 500!

That's why there is a group of people in this city that subscribes to the theory the "liberals" didn't lose this election, they were simply caught sleeping and the switch; they failed to get their people to the polls.

Back to the letters again.

If the letters are any kind of barometer, and I think they are, I have to go along with the theory that the 1974 election, again, was decided by the people who were complacent and did not vote.

But I don't think that's going to be the case in 1977.

If the "conservative" majority indeed survives the next election, then I will concede there has been a basic change in community thinking on the schools. Until then, I think the message in the letters is that this community is sorely divided over the school issue and hardly of one mind when it comes to the "majority."

"Did you hear that, Pat? . . . China, a fifth of the world, is leaderless . . . a fifth of the world, Pat . . ."

The Democrat snafu on postcard registration

By Gus Tyler, national columnist

NEW YORK — If Jimmy Carter should lose this year's election by a narrow margin, the blame may be placed with the Democratic controlled U.S. Senate. The reason will be the failure of that body to go along with a proposal for postcard registration in time for the federal elections this November.

Carter is eager to have Congress pass a bill to allow registration by mail. In an address before the Voter Education Project in Atlanta recently, he stressed his desire to make it as easy as possible for all of voting age to cast a vote:

"Whether I'm elected or not," he said, 'I'm going to work hard to see to it that we have a bill passed in Washington, D.C. — very simple bill — that says that when somebody is 18 years old, and a citizen of the United States, that they're registered to vote."

To make it easy for everyone to vote is a good democratic principle. But it is also good for the Democratic Party.

About half the people of voting age do not generally cast a vote in a presidential election. These nonvoters are overwhelmingly drawn from lower income classes. If they did vote, they would go about three- or four-to-one in favor of the Democrats.

Why don't these people vote? In part, because they are just plain ignorant about the importance of government; in part, because they feel that they really don't count. Many, however, do not vote because they feel that the process is too burdensome.

To vote in the United States, you must perform two separate acts at two separate times. First, you must register, usually weeks in advance of the elections at a time when people who have a low level of involvement with politics are not yet turned on. Then you vote.

Registration procedures are not simple everywhere. Sometimes you have to make a trip to someplace, not easily accessible. Sometimes, the hours of registration are limited so that working people can not fit the time into their schedule. Sometimes, the would-be-voter is limited to certain days of the week or the year.

Sometimes, the registration takes place in official buildings and these can be threatening for persons in whom any uniform or governmental insignia stirs fear.

In most countries of the world, voting takes place without this double do. If you are a citizen of voting age, you just go in and vote.

Carter's call for postcard registration was followed up by action in the House of Representatives. Its version, as passed, was not quite what advocates of the idea wanted; namely, a mass mailing to citizens of voting age, providing the necessary post card forms for mail registration. Under the House version, the citizen will have to fetch the form from the local Post Office.

But even this softened version is running into difficulty in the Senate. Sen. James Allen (D.-Ala.) threatens a filibuster, like the one he ran in 1973 on the same subject. In addition, the Senate can't make up its mind as to which committee should handle the bill. And even if it does, the Senate calendar allows little room for action in time. —

Of the 50 states, 18 presently allow registration by mail. The number of voters covered is about half the potential electorate: actually 47.3 per cent. That leaves a majority of the states with a majority of the eligibles still excluded.

The failure of Senate Democrats to act deprives Carter of what could be a great party issue. The Republican Party convention is officially on record as opposed to postcard registration. The Democratic standard bearer is for it.

Another Corner

Escape from ideology

By Ron Civins-Mills

In the last 10 years or so, the press and newly arrived political activists on the front have placed an ever increasing emphasis on ideology.

They have attempted, with considerable success, to take our two major political parties and define them in liberal-conservative terms. Thus, the Democratic party is supposed to be the liberal force while the Republican party champions the right wing.

Yet, as Lillian Ambrosino's column on this page last week demonstrated, the ideologies which these parties purportedly represent constantly undergo revision and redifinition.

If the individuals who comprise the parties periodically change their perceptions, then certainly the parties which are merely collections of individuals will remainill-defined and further alienate citizens from the political process.

That leaves us with only three options: complete elimination of the parties, enforced strict adherence to dogma imposed by leadership of the ideological parties, or the re-establishment of non-ideological parties which successfully guided America for over a century.

Elimination of political parties is absurd at best and anarchistic at worst. Organization of the political process is the only method by which people will ever be able to participate within a society.

Anyone who has ever attempted to run for office quickly learns that without permanent organization beyond friends and relatives who support your candidacy, the venture is doomed to failure.

Those handful of so-called independents who occasionally achieve office are really either Democrats or Republicans getting significant organizational support from the party. Elimination of party structure will certainly guarantee that only the most wealthy and powerful will rule, not manage, the political apparatus.

As to strict ideological parties, we need only look to European examples to demonstrate the failures of dogmatized party structures. Italy, for example, has a plethora of parties which are never able to obtain a majority. They must resort to coalitions which fail because the ideologies of the parties frequently prevent compromise and the government falls.

The party leadership demands from its membership, especially the parliamentary members, adherence to Marxist, socialist, capitalist or fascist principles. When a small group within a given party balks at the party line, they are soon purged from the party and frequently form yet another narrow-based party demanding the same loyalty from its new adherents.

Yes, there's a party for everyone, but the price is high; strict discipline and governmental inaction and instability.

Seymour Martin Lipset stated in "The Politics of Unreason," the chief practical bulwark against the development of effective value-oriented right-wing extremists movements in America has probably been the existence of the two party system...These parties have not been ideological agents, but coalition parties, compromise parties, designed pragmatically for electoral victories.

These parties have been equally effective in blocking left wing extremist movements as well. Our parties, in the past, have been winnowing rooms where, for the most part, the fringe elements dedicated to hate, violence or exclusionary philosophies have been sifted out of positions of leadership. Their voices can surely be heard, but their range is extremely limited.

Practical political parties, therefore' offer the only solution to political action and access. Parties whose primary concern is obtaining political power and keeping the machinery of government moving are what we ought to attempt to rebuild, not destroy.

For the real virture in practical parties is that they can easily take solutions from the right and left wing without the agonizing struggle of attempting to reconcile the choice with a predetermined philosophy which may cripple the party's ability to respond to the people's needs.

In such a party, no one need be excluded, no one need be told what to think. In such a party, mistakes in decision-making can quickly be corrected without internal fighting which can undermine the two-party system.

The non-ideological party brings us together and gives greater participation to an even larger spectrum of people than any ideological group could ever hope to do.

In the final analysis the weaknesses of the extreme philosophies of Goldwater and McGovern resulted in their own defeats and the victory of men who encouraged war and corruption.

The American voter rejects narrow ideology and is forced to vote against it when it is offered. With strong practical parties, we can look forward to the day when people do not vote against a candidate, but for one.

Ron Civins-Mills has lived in Newton for two years and is the former political director for the Republican party of Massachusetts and now a political consultant with Guy & Co. of Marblehead and Manchester. He is a graduate of Suffolk University and a member of the Newton Republican City Committee. He is married to the former Jane Civins and lives in Newton Centre.

Write-ins

To the Editor:

I want to thank everyone who took the time to not only vote Tuesday, Sept. 14, but vote with stickers and write-ins for Lester Bowen for register of deeds in the Middlesex south district.

With only half of 44 cities and towns heard from, I have received over 1000 votes. One thousand are needed to be on the ballot. When all the stickers and write-ins are added, I know we will have several hundred extra votes.

I have also been told that many people used the stickers to try to nominate me for other elected offices, including some on the Democratic ballot, and my sincere thanks goes to them as well.

Now with this fine start, I feel we can return Middlesex County to the high position it once had of honesty and justice in the Commonwealth.

And with you continued cooperation and all-out support, I know we will carry every city and town in Middlesex south district for register of deeds.

Home Rule

To the Editor:

In a letter to the editor in early July, I suggested that a front page headline of June 29 should have read "Newton Board Tells Beacon Hill—Fund State Programs."

The majority of the Newton School Committee had voted the day before in a public session that lasted until 3 a.m. not to provide Newton real estate tax dollars for the state-sponsored and supposedly funded Metco program. They voted to continue the Metco program for the education of 350 Boston children at the level that the $616,000 of state-allocated funding would sustain.

On Sept. 1, a major victory for the real estate taxpayers of all the cities and towns of the Commonwealth was won. The state "found the money" to support its Metco program and Home Rule prevailed.

From June 29 to Sept. 1, School Committee members Delicata, Prince, LeConti, Ash and Mandell were subjected to much verbal abuse by the mayor, the balance of the School Committee, 14 members of the Board of Aldermen and Channels 5 and 7.

I thank the School Committee majority for having the courage to stand up for their principles and winning this victory for Home Rule. I urge all those who agree with me to let them know. I am sure they would appreciate hearing from you.

Labels

To the Editor:

Twenty odd years ago, individuals who disagreed, for whatever reason, with a reigning philosophy were labeled "communists." A generation previous to that the label was "anarchist" and further back in our colonial period the label was "witch."

History repeats itself. Currently, the label is "racist." It has been expressed by some that "the true core of the Metco crisis is racial, not financial."

This is their belief; not a fact. Since finances are insignificant to them, I suggest they give away, say, 15 percent of their family's income. If they feel that I have no right to tell them what to do with their money, they certainly have no right to tell me what to do with mine.

If their beliefs are based upon their apparent dislike for the majority of the present Newton School Committee, then the ballot is their option.

Let them remember, however, that these School Committee members are not responsible for the decrease in SAT scores, the inability to communicate, etc. This is a product of the doings of previous School Committees whose philosophy was spend, spend, spend.

These individuals not only cheated our children but effectively stole from our purses by giving us less than what we paid for.

A. Landsman,
Newton Centre

Disappointed

To the Editor:

May this letter serve to express my personal disappointment in Rep. Richard J. McGrath's e behavior after being defeated by A. Joseph DeNucci.

Two short years ago, Mr. DeNucci lost the state representative election for the 16th Middlesex district by a four-vote margin. Being a man, a concerned citizen and a fellow Democrat, Joe promptly issued a letter of endorsement to Mr. McGrath and asked all of his fellow workers to likewise swupport the victor of that race.

Much to my surprise, Mr. McGrath has yet to acknowledge Joe's victory (by a 176-vote margin) let alone offer endorsement or support.

It seems he is too busy trying to organize a sticker campaign. This is hardly the action of a man, a concerned citizen or a fellow Democrat. If this behavior is indicative of the caliber of person Dick McGrath is, then the people have certainly made the right choice in the primary.

Mr. McGrath, during an interview with WNTN, indicated he has "professional campaigners" encouraging him to run a sticker campaign. Well, these professionals may have one view, but their actions and Mr. McGrath's indicate anything but professionalism.

I personally am thrilled that we have a man like Joe DeNucci as a candidate in November. He has always concerned himself first with peoples' choices and acted accordingly. It is too bad Mr. McGrath can not show the same respect for the people's choice, Mr. DeNucci.

Mr. McGrath may not rally his supporters to Mr. DeNucci. This is a personal choice. But as the defeated candidate in the primary, he should extend the same courtesies that Mr. DeNucci offered him in 1974.

Wetlands—

told David Grice and Paul Grainger of the state Department of Environmental Management.

The Rosses are upset about the proposed restrictions on their residential lot based on the Act.

Grice, the land use administrator for the program, and Paul Grainger, the legal counsel, are going from town to town across the state holding explanatory sessions and formal hearings for concerned property owners.

They have been on the road, so to speak, for five years using aerial photographs, working with local conservation commissions, and consulting with other agencies involved in wetland protection.

About 120 landowners in Newton are affected by the proposed restrictions, Grice said.

The restrictions will be attached directly to the property deed and will go with the land.

A buyer, therefore, knows about the restriction and cannot later claim ignorance, Grice pointed out.

The Inland Wetlands Restriction Act, as Grice prefers to call it, is being implemented by the Department of Environmental Management under the state Office of Environmental Affairs.

The Act probably means that the Rosses cannot add a tennis court to the outdoor swimming pool already enhancing the back yard of their half acre lot.

The "wetland" defined by the state DEM around area number three in Waban covers about a third of the Ross' property.

It fringes on a neighborhood pond where children skate in winter.

Abutters along Waban Avenue, Carleton Road, Homewood Road and Nehoiden Road own the pond.

Unfortunately, the dry section of the Ross' lot already contains a house with garage and the pool, so the only portion still available for future development such as a tennis court is the "wet" portion.

Are the restrictions an unreasonable intrusion of government and a violation of private property rights?

The Rosses believe they are, so they will probably take their case to Superior Court, the avenue of appeal set forth in the Act.

Only Superior Court may determine whether the state "order" of restrictions for a given piece of land so restricts the use of that parcel as to deprive its owner of "the practical uses thereof" and constitutes a "taking" without adequate compensation.

All Newton property owners whose land is affected by the proposed DEM restrictions were notified of the Sept 9 informal session with Grice and a Sept 15 formal hearing before Commissioner Betty Woode in the War Memorial Auditorium.

Abraham Moskow of Dudley Road waited until the formal hearing to protest inclusion of area number 17 as a wetland.

His house and lot are included, and he believes the land is not a wetland.

Moskow and his attorney wanted an "administrative appeal hearing" before the countdown of the 90 day appeal period began.

Grice and Woode urged Moskow to consult staff people at DEM and talk further with Paul Grainger, their legal counsel.

Grainger advised Moskow to file his appeal with Superior Court as soon as possible.

Other questions from the 50 or more persons attending last week's formal hearing were related to the resale value of their property, the assessed valuation, or city taxes.

Answers to such queries would have to come from the city's assessors, not from DEM, people were told.

Of the 22 Newton sites pinpointed for restrictions, 13 are in Ward 8.

Staniford Street land in Auburndale where developers are still trying to build low-moderate income housing is also targeted.

Grice has a hypothetical example of what can happen in a suburban community with inadequate controls over inland wetlands - a housing development called "Ferndale Park."

Ferndale, he says, was built on a former red maple swamp. (Red maple vegetation is a sign that the land is naturally wet.)

The houses in Ferndale all have septic tanks.

Because the ground is full of water, the septic tanks have to be filled with water while they are being installed in the ground.

Otherwise they will float to the surface, Grice says.

The land around the house is so wet that the sump pump goes all the time.

If it doesn't, the electrical appliances in the house don't work.

The yard is too muddy for the kids to play in.

The house is all mildew.

The owner is crying, "I've got a $30,000 mortgage, the developer went bankrupt, and I'm stuck with it..."

The Inland Wetlands Act is intended to prevent any more "Ferndale Parks."

Support for the proposed restrictions has come from the Massachusetts Audubon Society, the Charles River Watershed Association, the League of Women Voters of Newton, the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, Massachusetts Forest and Park Association, and Dr. Augustus Thorndike, an affected property owner in the Hammond Pond area.

Only Moskow and the Rosses have publicly objected to any of the restrictions to date.

Any property owner has 90 days following receipt of his notice of the restrictions to file an appeal with Superior Court.

The hearing record will also be left open for 30 days (after September 15) for additional comments, Grice said.

Larson has been deeply engaged in perfecting the Public Works Department reorganization plan, which will be ready within a week, and dealing with the purchasing procedure for the bid and purchase of new rubbish-collection trucks. Larson took over as public works commissioner April 1.

Marino suggested that it would be a good idea to have a consultant hired at $3000-4000 to set up a system for preparing the payroll, incorporating his ideas on the public works payroll annd other hourly jobs.

He would have to talk to PW Commissioner Larson first, though, Marino said.

The committee agreed that he should follow through on his recommendation and asked that he come up with something before the next meeting of the Public Works Committee early next month.

it as an alternative option to the proposal of the NHPA.

The NHPA is looking for support from the public and from the Board of Aldermen if its proposal makes it past the first Planning Department screening.

Mayor Mann this week, asked for his position on giving the house 'outright to the NHPA, said his position is the same as that of Planning Director Charles Thomas.

Thomas said that the NHPA proposal will receive equal consideration as all other proposals'

The absence of a money offer will not work against the proposal, he said, nor will the fact that the proposal is made by a nonprofit citizen organization tip the scales in its favor.

Conservatory course peeks at BSO concerts

This fall three music courses will be available to the public through the Friends of the New England Conservatory of Music.

On Fridays a series of 10 lectures will be offered in a symphony analysis class directed by Helen MacMorgan, assistant professor of music at the North Shore Community College. In this popular course, she and several guest lecturers will discuss the program to be performed that day by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The second course in piano ensemble and sight-reading will include study of selections from the baroque through contemporary periods. Some sight-reading ability is required, and placement will be arranged at the first class.

For further information on these courses and other Friends of the Conservatory activities, call 262-1120, ext. 257.

YOU'RE INVITED BACKSTAGE AFTER THE SHOW

Cornell runs in 17th Middlesex

A. Jefferson Cornell, an insurance broker, will run against Peter Harrington in the 17th Middlesex District, consisting of Newton Corner, Nonantum and Newtonville.

"I think the people of Newton and, in fact, all of Massachusetts have come to realize big government grows larger and more costly only at the expense of the 'little guy'," he said.

Cornell said he will work to get the Numbers Game money back for city and towns; will work to streamline government and work to reduce the meals tax.

Cornell has been active in the Newton Jaycees, where he served as vice president, president and chairman of the board. He is currently the head of the Volunteer Probation Officer Program in Newton District Court.

He is treasurer for Insurance Agents of Newton and vice chairman of the Newton Republican City Committee.

Women's Caucus endorses Needleman

The Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus has announced that Joan Needleman, a lawyer running for Clerk of Courts, is the kind of candidate the multipartisan organization believes is needed in gorernment.

According to Caucus Co-Directors Mary Amato, Ruth Ferguson and Barbara Magovsky, Mrs. Needleman obtained a perfect score on the questionnaire sent to candidates. Among the areas in which Joan scored high was her agressively affirmative stand on the Equal Rights Amendment.

Needleman, who sees herself as much a reform candidate as a Republican, has the backing of Sheriff John J. Buckley and has pledged to "clean up the Middlesex County court system before it collapses under its own weight."

Mrs. Needleman sees it as the job as one for "someone not anxious to hold the county hostage but anxious to promote the court service and to cooperate with the judiciary in its goals and their implementation."

Joan Needleman, an attorney at both the Massachusetts and Federal Bars, who holds a doctorate in mathematics, wants to debate her opponent but so far hasn't any takers.

The former Newton school committeewoman is also working hard to include women and young people in her campaign at all levels to make it "the kind of campaign that's going to give the county and its courts system back to the people."

Aaron Spencer wants less.

Less State spending.
Less taxation.
Less unemployment.
Less crime.
The old remedies don't work anymore.
Maybe they never did.
You can't bury this State's problems under taxpayers' money and expect the problems to go away.
If anything, the taxpayers go away.
Aaron Spencer understands this better than our present State Senator, Jack Backman.
Even now, Senator Backman is trying to get a "graduated" (read "bigger") State income tax.
And remember when they got the State sales tax, we were supposed to get real estate tax relief. Remember?
Well, the old remedies don't work anymore. But Aaron Spencer will.
Aaron Spencer understands about things like running a business in this State. Currently he runs a chain of franchises employing more than 400 people.
From this he understands what taxes mean to business people, what business people mean to State employment, and what lack of available employment means to crime.
And he understands what Senator Backman doesn't: You don't change anything with just more of the same. Aaron Spencer wants less.
Aaron Spencer, his wife Irma, and their two children live on Farlow Road in Newton. He is founder and president of International Food Service Inc. While serving as the General Chairman of the United Cerebral Palsy Telethon, Aaron Spencer is also on the Board of Directors of United Cerebral Palsy, Metrobank and Trust Company, and the Family Guidance and Counseling Center. He's a member of the Jewish Big Brother Association and Temple Emanuel of Newton.
Aaron Spencer is a concerned businessman, who has never before been a candidate for public office. He is a vigorous opponent of the extremist philosophy represented by Senator Jack Backman. As your new State Senator, Aaron Spencer will bring a moderate, pragmatic approach to the problems confronting all of us in Brookline and Newton.

Testimonial dinner dance Oct. 1 for School Committee majority

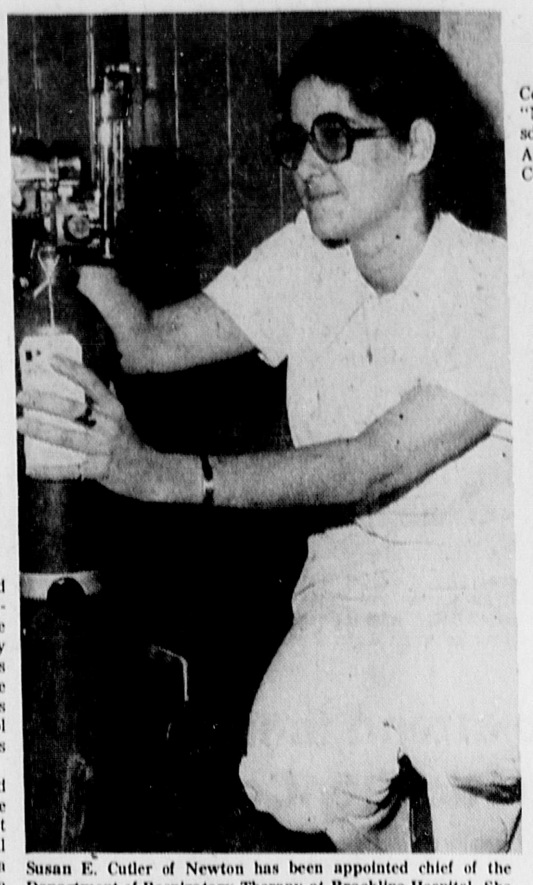

"The Committee for Better Education" is sponsoring a testimonial affair to support the work of the School Committee members who were endorsed by VOICE in the last elections: Paul Ash, Henry Delicata, Michael LeConti, Alvin Mandell and Dr. Edward Prince.

The event will be a buffet dinner dance at American Legion Post 440 on Oct. 1. Cocktails at 6:30, dinner at 7:30, and dancing till midnight to music by Vincent Lopez should provide an opportunity to demonstrate that being dedicated to basic education does not conflict with retaining the capacity to enjoy the social amenities.

Chairwoman Mrs. Esther Lopez says, "It will be possible to exercise a freedom of choice in regard to a variety of refreshments and a medley of dance offerings; dinner, however, will be determined by an arbitrary exercise of rigid standards, to be in conformance with the choice of the sponsors."

The members look forward to seeing their many friends and hope to attract some of the undecided, who may be curious about the intensity of opposition that these members have stimulated among their adversaries.

Tickets are available at $7.50 per person. Information may be obtained by contacting Mrs Lopez at 969-3419.

Susan E. Cutler of Newton has been appointed chief of the Department of Respiratory Therapy at Brookline Hospital. She was formerly at Deaconess Hospital and was educated at Springfield Technical Community College and graduated as a specialist in respiratory therapy.

Edwin Newman to speak at Rivers symposium

Edwin Newman, NBC news correspondent and author of the best-seller, "Strictly Speaking," will speak at The Rivers School, Weston, Oct. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in Haffenreffer Gymnasium.

Newman will be the main speaker at a Rivers— sponsored symposium called "Fighting the New Illiteracy." The symposium will examine the 10-year decline in student verbal skills and Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores and what is being done to combat the problem.

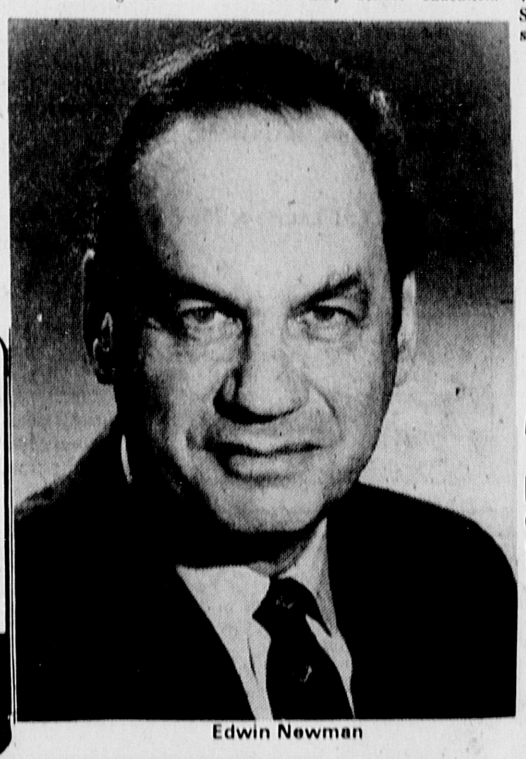

Preceding Newman's appearance will be an afternoon program, from 2 to 4 p.m. consisting of two guest lectures and a panel discussion.

Guest lecturers will be Jack Childress, vice president of Educational Testing Service, the organization that designs the SAT given annually to more than one million high school students; and Dr. Donald Byker, assistant director of Harvard University's Expository Writing Program, a course now required of all Harvard freshmen.

The panel discussion will be moderated by Rivers English Department Chairman, Jack Jarzavek. Panelists will be Richard E. Barbiere English Master, Milton Academy; Prof. Gerald Powers of Boston University's School of Public Communication; Jonathan Shaw, chairman of the English Department, Park School, Brookline; and Donald Thomas, chairman of the English Department, Brookline High School.

Both the afternoon and evening parts of the symposium are free and open to the public, but admittance will by reservation only. Reservations may be made by calling The Rivers School Public Relations Office at 235-9300. The school will accept reservations as long as seating is available.

Rivers Headmaster David M. Berwind said that the symposium is the first of what he expects will be an annual series of Rivers symposia addressed to current topics in secondary school education.

Sharon King, of Woman '76 of Channel 4, played hostess to Fred Virgilio (center) and Mario Baccabella (right) of Fred and Mario's Deli, Newton Highlands, last week. They built an 8-foot submarine sandwich and 42 people ate it.

A.M. drivers should take extra care

Chief William F. Quinn advised motorists, traveling east between 7:30 a.m. and 8:15 a.m., to be particularly careful because of the rising sun and the fact that road dirt and smoking leaves a film on windshields that becomes opaque when the sun is shining on them.

He stated that recently, a school bus driver in New York state, drove into a moving train because of reduced visibility due to the sun.

The chief stated that the bulk of students are crossing streets at this time, and the remainder cross streets between 8:15 a.m. and 8:45 a.m.

Quinn concluded with a reminder to keep windshields clean, be alert for young children to and from schools and be particularly alert at all intersections.

Public meeting Oct. 5 on flood insurance

A public meeting will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 5, 7:30 p.m., in Room 209, Newton City Hall, to review a report, "Preliminary Flood Insurance Study, City of Newton, Mass.," prepared for the Flood Insurance Administration, Department of Housing and Urban Development by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The purpose of the meeting is to insure that the study results are consistent with all known flood studies and experience within the city of Newton. In addition, the procedure for community and individual appeals of the results of the study will be outlined by representatives of the Flood Insurance Administration.

The study was developed to provide the basis for determining a rate structure for subsidized flood insurance and for appropriate flood plain management within Newton.

Newton adopted a flood plain and watershed protection ordinance in 1971. Flood insurance protection may now be purchased by Newton residents and businesses at subsidized rates under the Emergency Flood Insurance Program from any licensed insurance agent.

Copies of the preliminary flood insurance study are available in the office of the city engineer and in the Department of Planning and Development, City Hall.

Democratic committee votes Sept. 30 on slate

The Democratic City Committee will meet Sept. 30 at 8 p.m. at Grace Church to decide whether to go along with the City Committee executive committee endorsement of Democratic candidates.

The executive committee voted last week to endorse Jimmy Carter, Sen. Edward Kennedy, Cong. Robert Drinan, Walter Mondale, Jack Backman, Joseph DeNucci, Peter Harrington, David Mofenson' and Lois Pines.

All Democratic candidates have been invited to the full meeting.

The City Committee membership is around 280, Ms. Reichard said.

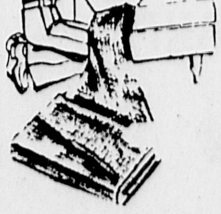

Support of endorsed candidates will depend on how the Oct. 6 fund-raising event turns out, Ms. Reichard said. No money will be given directly to candidates, but mailing pieces and campaign material will be provided.

The fall wrap-up

This fall a sweater can be many things: acket, coat, tunic, vest or even a dress afternoon or evening. Actually, you uld say that a sweater is a point of w.

When you consider the sweater it's nerally associated with warmth, mfort and the pivot of a sportswear rdrobe. Designers today realize more d more that women need flexibility in eir lives and are no longer interested in essing for a season or a particular hour the day. Instead, they want and strive seasonless and timeless clothes that e functional, attractive and most imrtant of all, easy to care for.

Never before have sweaters played ch an important role in fashions—even e bold "sweater girls" of the 40's and 's never dreamed of the variety ailable today. What could be more xible and practical than a light-weight nic of Acrilan acrylic in a new multiriped pattern which can be dressed up r evening. By day it can be worn over inny turtles or, better yet, over last ason's tops and pants.

The skinny turtleneck pullovers you ready own by the dozen will come in ndy for the layered look—put a solid ie under a boldly patterned sweater or sweater vest or V-neck sweater dress. The new cowl neck sweaters often times appear to be a version of the turtle under a sweater but are actually one-piece sweaters.

As for weather, bulky knit jackets fill in on cool days. Layers of crew necks and wraps, many with ethnic detailing, can be added as the temperature drops. The colors from which to choose are rich earthy tones and welcome classic shades of grey, camel, wine and green.

Still important are the sweaters that have the appearance of outerwear and come in handy when it's time to set out on a hike, bicycling or attend an outdoor sports event. The country tweed bulky style sweater with a no-nonsense industrial zipper returns this year because it was such a big seller last year.

However, all is not bulk. All is not big. Sweater dressing comes also in fine knits with varying lengths and weights.

Some versions in Bright Acrilan have a silky lustrous quality that drape beautifully. For day there are sweater dresses that have fine pointelle detailing or contrasting stitching. The look is simple, attractive and most effective.

Fashion's best seller this fall is the "softie"—light and lovely knit dressing that leads us into the new season in the easiest way possible.

Soft knits—from a classic sweater dress to the unconstructed ease of a sweatersuit—represent the trend to comfortable, uncontrived fashion; to clothes that caress the body rather than hug; to the kind of dressing that doesn't lock you in.

Component dressing is fashion's way to versatile wardrobing this fall '76. It's layering of well-thought-out parts that pile on and off in workable, comfortable fashion to allow uniquely personal and creative put-togethers.

Proportion is the key—a short vest atop a longer shirt over a mid-calf skirt; the newest look of seven-eights layering; hip-to-knee length tunics covering pants. Color, prints and fabric must also be compatible. And the layered-on fabrics this season are soft....supple, comfortable, uncontrived and easy.

Some of the most luxurious are jersey fabrics knit in the various man-made yarns which are supersoft and look and feel naturally rich, yet are so unnaturally carefree.

There is a special bonus for the woman who sews. Component dressing means she can stretch her wardrobe budget by whipping up a seven-eights tunic to be worn with last season's pants.

Sweaters have always been around, but to update them every sweater needs to coordinate with the total look. Now that skirts have become as important (some designers claim more important) than pants, twin sweater sets are ideal in solid colors, all manners of tweeds and in novelty designs.

The long sweater dress for evening continues and designers such as Anne Klein and Hallston include these in their fall collection.

A word of caution to sweater wearers. While sweaters in synthetics go in the washer and dryer with immunity, the return to real wool, mohair, cashmere poses problems. If you've ever thrown in an adult sized sweater only to retreive a baby sized disaster, you've learned the expensive lesson that heat shrinks anything made of real wool. Always use a Woolite type of product and wash in lukewarm (or cooler) water. Never put on a hanger unless you want those telltale "wings" in the shoulders. Instead, roll in a towel to get out excess moisture, shape gently on a dry towel on a flat surface and let dry.

Old-world dressing is interpreted in the sweater suit of acrilan acrylic. Earth-tone bands on a loose black sweater is worn over a cream top and full pants.

Food and Fashion

Across the kitchen counter

Schooltime is the time for reading, vriting and that great interlude, lunch. Gone are the days of the brown bag lues when oily sandwiches leaked and tained the bag. Today's children carry nappy looking lunch boxes and brightly olored matching vacuums.

What goes into that lunch box and vacuum should be interesting and nutritious. Bologna or peanut butter slapped on a piece of bread won't stir anyone's appetite. Try some new ideas on your lunch-box carrier.

For example, the night before school, treat the entire family to Orange Drumsticks. Chill the extra portions and then put them in the lunchbox the next day. This particular recipe is actually a new version of corn crisped chicken with a citrus flavor twist, and citrus, which lends its talents so well to fowl, is the prime source of vitamin C required for growing and maintaining strong bones and teeth.

For a tasty, nutritious lunch, orange lunchbox drumsticks, carrot sticks, peanut butter sandwich and an orange.

To prepare, all you do is dip the drumsticks in a mixture of melted butter (or margarine) and undiluted frozen orange juice concentrate, then roll in another mixture of breadcrumbs, orange rind and salt. No knives or forks needed. To help youngsters clean up after eating, include one or two packets of disposable pre-moistened towelettes.

Since we're singing the praises of the orange, your child will flip over Orange Raisin Cupcakes where you substitute orange juice for milk in the batter and add orange rind for an extra measure of flavor.

Following are some good pointers and suggestions when preparing lunches: When choosing meat as your sandwich filling, slice it paper thin and stack it three or four slices thick, it's easier to bite through. If you're using butter or margarine, mix in a little mustard for added flavor. White bread is fine, but there are so many nutritious breads such as whole wheat, raising and oatmeal, pumpernickel, rolls, etc. try using a variety to avoid monotonous sandwiches.

Sandwich combinations.

Sliced chicken, pickle relish, lettuce on whole wheat bread.

Tuna salad, grated American cheese, pickle relish, mayonnaise on hamburger bun.

Peanut butter, crumbled cooked bacon, banana slices and apple butter on rye bread.

Corned beef, coleslaw, Swiss cheese, Thousand Island dressing on an egg roll.

Sliced turkey, lettuce, tomato, cucumber on an onion roll.

Salami, thin cucumber slices, hard cooked egg slices, tomato on dark rye bread.

Thinly sliced roast beef, pickle relish, tomato, lettuce tucked into Sahara bread

Try combining a favorite fruit jam or jelly with cream cheese and spread it on a tea bread, such as date and nut bread.

Creamy chicken soup is great to put in one of the wide-mouthed vacuums. Or, surprise your children with a Heavenly Shake, a wonderful banana concoction.

ORANGE LUNCHBOX DRUMSTICKS

12 Broiler-fryer chicken drumsticks (3 lbs.)
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup frozen Florida orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 teaspoon salt

Melt butter or margarine in a saucepan. Add undiluted orange concentrate and stir until blended. Mix bread crumbs, orange rind and salt in shallow dish. Dip drumsticks in orange concentrate mixture and then roll in bread crumb mixture. Place on foil-lined 15x10x1-inch baking pan and bake in 350 degree oven for 1 hour, until tender. Serve some of drumsticks hot for dinner; chill others and pack in lunch box the next day. Yield: 12 drumsticks.

ORANGE RAISIN CUPCAKES

2½ cups sifted all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup soft butter or margarine
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 cup Florida orange juice
1 cup raisins
3 tablespoons grated orange rind

Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Cream butter or margarine with sugar; beat in eggs, one at a time. Blend in dry ingredients alternately with orange juice and stir in raisins and orange rind. Spoon into greased muffin cups; fill two-thirds full. Bake in 350 degree oven for 20 minutes, until cupcakes are golden brown and cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool. If desired, frost with Orange Butter Frosting. Yield: 24

ORANGE BUTTER FROSTING

Cream one-third cup soft butter or margarine and gradually beat in 3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar alternately with 2 or 3 tablespoons orange juice. Add 1 teaspoon grated orange rind and beat until smooth and of spreading consistency.

Note: For an added treat, include a whole orange and insert a "Squeater" which is a clever little straw-type device which allows you to drink the juice directly from the orange (before inserting the squeater, gently roll the orange in your hands to break down the juice cells and make the juice more accessible). The squeater may be found in a specialty shop or the housewares section of a department store.

HEAVENLY SHAKE

2 ripe bananas, sliced
¼ cup pineapple-orange juice
one-third cup honey
dash salt
¼ teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups cold milk
2 teaspoons chocolate syrup

Place bananas in blender; blend until smooth and creamy. Add juice, honey, salt and vanilla; blend thoroughly. Add milk and chocolate syrup, blend well. Makes two servings of 1 cup each.

FRUITED CHEESE SPREAD

1 container (8 oz.) cottage cheese
½ cup crushed pineapple, drained
¼ cup shredded mild processed cheese
¼ cup shredded lettuce
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
6 slices date nut or whole wheat bread

Combine cottage cheese, pineapple, cheese, lettuce, lemon juice and salt and blend well. Spread on 3 slices of bread. Top with remaining slices of bread. Makes 3 sandwiches.

Mrs. H. D., Westwood writes: "This year our garden produced a bumper crop of lovely green beans, and after cooking them the standard way. I dreamed up a most wonderful dish I'd like to share with you and your readers. Though my recipe calls for a pound of green beans, I suggest a pound for 4 people and 2 pounds for 6 because they really are great!" (Many thanks!)

JEAN'S GARLICKY GREEN BEANS

1 pound fresh green beans
6 cloves garlic
4 tablespoons oil
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon sugar

Remove the ends and string from green beans and cut in half cross-wise. Crush and chop the garlic coarsely. Heat the oil (preferable in a wok, or a very large saucepan) and add the green beans and garlic and stir-fry for 5 minutes. The heat should be very high. Add the salt, soy sauce and sugar: stir to mix. Remove from heat and serve hot. Serves 4.

Question: Have you ever heard of a fish dish that is baked with squash? I've never tasted it, but friends have told me that it is most unusual and since there is quite an abundance of squash on the country food stands I thought I'd like to try a recipe that combines it with fish. Thanks.

Mrs. R.K., W. Newton

Answer: How about a fish dish that combines fish, squash and a tasty sour cream sauce? From The Art Of Russian Cooking, here is:

FISH WITH SQUASH AND SOUR CREAM SAUCE

2 pounds boneless fish fillets such as halibut or flounder
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
½ cup flour
1 cup oil for frying
1½ pounds squash (pared)
2 cups sour cream
¼ cup grated cheese, such as Parmesan
¼ cup bread crumbs

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Prepare the fish by salting, peppering and rolling in flour. Drain. Reserve some salt and flour for squash. Fry till light brown in ½ cup oil. Put in an oven-proof dish that can be brought to the table. Cut the squash into slices (about ½ inch thick) salt and roll the slices in flour, then fry them on both sides in remaining oil, till golden brown. Put the squash on top of the fish and pour over the sour cream. Mix the grated cheese with the bread crumbs, sprinkle over the dish and bake in a medium oven until a golden-brown crust forms, about 15 minutes. If desired, serve with a bit of chopped dill on top. Serves 4.

Question: When we go to a Chinese restaurant too eat, my husband always examines the dish and tells me that I could have prepared the same thing at home at a great savings and I tell him that I could never make a professional dish that would look and taste as well. For example, the chicken with vegetables that comes with the toasted almonds on top, can I make this in my kitchen? I look forward to your response in your column.

E. C., W. Roxbury

Answer: If you read the recipe carefully, prepare all ingredients in advance and then go to it—you should have no difficulty preparing a most acceptable Chinese dish in your own kitchen. If you have a wok, fine. If not, I suggest you use a very large saucepan. (Let me know whether your husband gives you a 4 star rating for this easy chicken recipe. Good luck!)

DICED CHICKEN WITH VEGETABLES (GAI DING)

½ fryer chicken, skinned and boned
1 wedge ginger, size of a quarter
2 teaspoons cornstarch mixed with 2 teaspoons water
¼ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
Dash of pepper
¼ cup almonds
Salt
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1½ teaspoons salt
1 cup Chinese cabbage
1 can (4 oz.) canned mushrooms
4 water chestnuts
¼ cup celery, sliced thin on diagonal
½ cup bamboo shoots
¼ cup chicken stock or water teaspoons sherry
12 snow peas

Dice chicken into pieces approximately ½ inch square. Dice all vegetables. Smash wedge of ginger. Mix cornstarch solution and add sugar, monosodium and pepper. Set beside pan.

Using a high flame and a dry frying pan, toast almonds in 1 tablespoon salt. Remove and set aside. Reheat pan and add 1 tablespoon of oil, 1 teaspoon salt and ginger. Next, add Chinese cabbage, mushrooms, water chestnuts, celery, and bamboo shoots. Stir for 30 seconds. Add stock (or water) and cover for 2 minutes. Remove and set aside. Heat pan and add remainder of oil and ½ teaspoon salt. Add chicken and sherry. Stir fry for 2 minutes. Add vegetables and snow peas. Stir for 30 seconds, bringing stock to a boil. Add cornstarch solution and stir until thick. Garnish with almonds. Serves 3 (If you want to use walnuts instead of almonds, do so.)

Question: I hope you can help me. I am looking for a good, rich, old fashioned fudge cake with a light, fluffy 7 minute icing... haven't had it in years and I've had a yen for it for quite some time. Thank you very much.

Answer: This recipe is for chocolate-lovers and those who refuse to count calories! Enjoy!

FUDGE CAKE WITH SEVEN MINUTE FROSTING

½ cup water
1½ teaspoons baking soda
½ cup cocoa
1¾ cups sugar
two-thirds cup margarine
2 eggs
2½ cups sifted flour
¾ cup buttermilk
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix the first three ingredients and set aside. Cream sugar and margarine together until fluffy. Add eggs one at a time and beat well. Sift flour, measure and add alternately with buttermilk. Add salt and vanilla. Add the cocoa mixture and blend in thoroughly. Turn into 2 greased 9-inch layer cake pans and bake at 350 degrees 30-40 minutes, until tester comes out clean.

SEVEN MINUTE FROSTING

1 egg white
3 tablespoons water
⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar (or 1 teaspoon vinegar)
¾ cup sugar
Dash of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla, (peppermint flavoring is also very good)

Put all ingredients, except vanilla (or peppermint extract) in the upper part of a double boiler. Stir to blend, then set aside for 15 minutes or longer. Set over boiling water and beat vigorously and constantly with a rotary or electric beater just until mixture stands in peaks. (This takes anywhere from 3 to 7 minutes). Remove from heat and stir a minute or two. Stir in vanilla or other flavoring.

"I WON THE BATTLE OF THE BULGE"
At Slender World I Lost 44 Inches, From Size 15 to Size 9.

BEFORE

AFTER
Have you ever been so discouraged with your appearance that you were embarrassed to go out in public?
I had been trying to diet from last February to April without one change in dress size. Just looking at all my size 15 clothes was depressing.
One day I noticed an ad for Slender World in the paper and began to wonder if I could really lose 2 dress sizes in only 30 days. It seemed so hard to believe. I made an appointment at Slender World for the next day. When I arrived a counselor showed me through the clinic and I was given a figure analysis. Our treatment she explained is 100% organic. It is applied by a trained technician in a private treatment room. The contour treatment causes an inch loss wherever it is applied.
I was concerned that I might put the inches back on if I drank a glass of water. This is not true. Water, tea and coffee are even served in the lounge area of Slender World while you're treated.
I talked with several very happy customers that had accomplished fantastic results.
As results in the program are guaranteed I decided to give it a try. I lost 12 inches my first treatment. It took only one hour. While I was relaxing in the lounge my diet history was taken. The counselor helped me with a food plan that I could not only lose with but also live with. I'm happy to say I'm now back to a perfect size 9. I've lost 44 inches. The Slender World program really works and I gladly recommend it to everyone!

Foreign News Commentary

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI) — Britain is giving complete support to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's latest peace mission in southern Africa.

Britain, former colonial ruler of South Africa and Rhodesia, has demonstrated its deep interest by assigning a senior official of the British Embassy in Washington, Richard Samuel, to follow the secretary's African shuttle.

Although the Foreign Office says Samuel will not be attached to the Kissinger party, British officials agree his assignment is virtually unprecedented.

According to the officials, Kissinger and the Labor government of Prime Minister James Callaghan now see eye to eye on the goals of the mission and the methods to be employed.

Agreement was reached, they say, when the secretary visited London immediately before and after his Sept. 4-6 meetings with South African Prime Minister John Vorster in Zurich, Switzerland.

On his first London stopover, Kissinger met for two hours with Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland. On his return, he had a long discussion with Callaghan, with Crosland also present.

Although not overwhelmingly optimistic about the Kissinger mission's chances for success, the Callaghan government feels strongly that it may be the last chance to head off a racial bloodbath in southern Africa, into which the superpowers might be drawn.

British officials say Callaghan and Crosland fully agree with Kissinger that Vorster holds the key to any settlement involving either South West Africa or Rhodesia.

South Africa administers the sprawling territory of South West Africa, known in the United Nations as Namibia, under a half-century-old League of Nations mandate branded illegal by the U.N. General Assembly 30 years ago.

The white-ruled country is also the only trade outlet for landlocked Rhodesia, which is the object of U.N. sanctions and an economic blockade by neighboring black African states.

According to the officials, Britain agrees that a settlement in Namibia is the more promising in the immediate future.

The Callaghan government welcomed the recent resolution of a constitutional conference in Namibia recommending independence under a multiracial government by Dec. 31, 1978.

But like the United States, Britain believes independence should come sooner and that all groups in the territory, including the militant South West African People's Organization, should be represented at the constitutional talks.

British policy on Rhodesia calls for a two-stage operation.

First, officials say, the white and black factions must accept the principle of black majority rule and free elections within two years. This would be followed by another period of 18 months to two years to allow for an orderly handover of power to blacks.

Britain also has promised to support a U.S. plan for international financial aid to members of the white minority who decide to remain in a black-ruled Rhodesia and lesser compensation to whites who leave.

Books

Franklin, by David Freeman Hawke. (Harper and Row, $15.95) This new biography pulls Benjamin Franklin from the "hero" category, but presents the reader with something much more worthwhile. Using what Franklin wrote, and what was written about him by his contemporaries, the author renders the real Franklin as an enigmatic, contradictory personality. His well-documented text is very much like a procession of scenarios, with the characters speaking their lines from 200 years ago. Franklin comes through as a political realist, combining self-interest with what he thought was best for the country. Yet, his petty revenges, delight in recognition, and depression when castigated by friends, were all too human. Hawke has written an engrossing biography, which Dr. Franklin certainly merits.

Dance as Life, by Franklin Stevens. (Harper and Row, $10) This book is the result of a season Stevens spent with American Ballet Theatre. He emphasizes the hard lot of the professional ballet dancer, whose career is usually finished by 40, but also manages to convey some of the rewards of the profession. As a former dancer himself, he takes a sympathetic, human approach, and if his book falls short of the highest standards of New Journalism it does avoid the cloying reverence of many books on the subject.

Someone Is Watching, by Penelope Field. (Little, Brown, $7.95) If the heroine of this Gothic felt a little less sorry for herself, it might be easier for the reader to be sympathetic, but aside from a slip into petulance the author has crafted a fast-reading story. The heroine, a lonely orphan in Seattle, hears from her long-lost wealthy aunt and, immediately, peculiar, threatening things begin to happen. When she goes to visit the aunt's California mansion, her situation becomes more violent. There's also a tepid love interest.

Inside Bellevue, by Sybil Leek and Glen Hilken. (Mason, Charter, $8.95) This is a nightmarish account of a prolonged stay at Bellevue Hospital as a charity patient. Hilken found the aged New York medical complex was like a badly managed prison. With supervision at a minimum, patients fought like animals. The strong terrorized the weak. One patient even amused himself by turning off respirators of terminal patients and watching them squirm.

LIFE GOAL

NEW YORK (UPI) — An increasingly better standard of living is the major goal of U.S. youth, according to the Rand Youth Poll. The organization, which makes surveys of American youth, says four of every five persons under 30 say "a higher and higher" standard of living is what life means to them. Next in popularity as a goal is "a peaceful life," it adds.

INSURANCE

NEW YORK (UPI) — More and more people are beginning their insurance programs at an earlier age, according to the American Council of Life Insurance. A council survey showed that whereas 21 per cent of those under 25 bought their own life insurance four years ago, by this year the percentage had risen to 24 per cent.

Lady pilot says flying, wedlock not compatible

LONDON (UPI) — Men tend to give Ann Bostock a searching glance, but this has nothing to do with the fact she is an attractive girl who looks much better than she photographs.

What draws the scrutiny at Gatwick Airport is the fact Miss Bostock is usually wearing the uniform of a first officer and the viewers are obviously wondering: "A lady pilot — is she going to fly my plane?"

Well, if they're lucky the answer is yes. For First Officer Bostock, 25, may be the first of her sex to hold this rank with British Caledonian Airways, but she earned the job by passing every test comfortably and with distinction.

Back from a roundtrip to Milan with a flight captain who let her make one of the takeoffs and landings, Miss Bostock relaxed over a cup of tea and said:

"I've seen surprise on many faces when they see me but never alarm. I've never met any discrimination from passengers or the crew. Their reaction to a woman on the team has been very pleasant. I'm treated just like any other first officer and that's the way it should be."

She was, she said, a farmer's daughter, physically strong from a largely outdoor life and showjumping her thoroughbred horse, when her brother began to come home full of his adventures in learning to fly in a cadet scheme. The whole family enthused with him and she and her sister and father all got private flying licenses as well.

By now the bug had bitten deep. She became a flying instructor, ran up the 700 hours needed for a commercial license and applied for the written and practical flying examinations for civil aviation.

One exhausting test was to handle, in a simulator, a BA-111 passenger plane as though the power-assisted steering had failed.

She then began the heartbreaking job of writing around to airlines, at a time of flight deck unemployment in the industry, for an interview. She suspects her name went to the bottom of the pile until Caledonian said that, on the basis of her test ratings and exceptional flying experience, she deserved at least a trial. Thus the door opened.

Miss Bostock said she had graduated from Oxford with an honors degree in philosophy, economics and politics.

None of this is of much help in her present assignment to continental runs but may be useful when, as she hopes, she becomes a captain on intercontinental flights and has to spend some time abroad.

At the moment its a five-day week and mostly back home in Britain every night.

"Flying is hard work," she said, "but fortunately I'm a good sleeper and I recover quickly. There's nothing women's lib about my employment. Women have gotten into the flight crew in other countries and the way is open here for those willing to work hard. But even though it's a great job not many women aim for it.

"There's nothing defeminizing about it. But you have to make up your mind that it isn't really compatible with the concept of marriage, a home and kids. I don't have any social problems at the moment, though if I were on long-range flights I can see them happening."

She said the lure of far places was a powerful antidote to romantic commitment. Marriage in her case was a possibility. "But," she added quickly, "I won't let it interfere with my flying" — and off she went in a flight uniform adapted from the men's uniform only for her.

As she left, down below in the Caledonia hangars two 16-yearold girls were working as the first girl engineering apprentices in another advance into a male stronghold.

"Our supervisor says one of these kids is so brilliant she frightens him," said a Caledonia staffer.

ICY TIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — The condition of ice cream is a good barometer of home freezer temperatures, according to the consumer education program of Cornell University. If the frozen dessert is easy to spoon after a container of it has been in the freezer a few hours, freezer temperature probably is in the 20s. If it is hard to spoon, the range probably is 10 to 20 degrees. If it is hard and bricklike when a spoon is bounced on it, the freezer temperature probably is about zero degrees.

Eight weeks of lectures and classes planned by four conservative temples

An outstanding roster of lecturers and teachers has been arranged for the sixteenth annual Combined Adult Education Program of the Conservative Temples of the Newton-Chestnut Hill area.

Commencing Tuesday, Oct. 19, at 8 p.m., the program will run for eight consecutive weeks.

This year the host temple will be Temple Reyim, 1860 Washington St., Newton. Other participating temples will be Temple Emanuel, Temple Emeth, and Temple Mishkan Tefila.

Avigdor Levy, senior lecturer in Middle Eastern history at Tel Aviv University and former director of STRATIS, the Israel Institute for Strategic Studies and Policy Analysis, is presently in the United States as a visiting lecturer at Brandeis University and will commence the lecture series with a talk on "Stability and Change in the Middle East."

On Oct. 26, "The Emergence of Historical Thought in Nineteenth Century Judaism" will be the topic of Ismar Schorsch, dean of graduate studies and associate professor of Jewish history at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

An analysis of some of the major needs of American Jews and the extent to which these are met by the contemporary synagogue will be the subject of a talk on Nov. 2 entitled "Restructuring the Synagogue" by Bernard Reisman, associate director of the Lown Graduate Center for Contemporary Jewish Studies at Brandeis University.

On Nov. 9, M. H. Goshen-Gottstein, visiting lecturer at Brandeis and Harvard universities this fall, will discuss "Is Our Bible Jewish?"

Goshen-Gottstein is chairman of the Department of Ancient Semitic Languages and professor of semitic Linguistics and Biblical philology at Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

The fifth lecture in the series will be presented by Professor William Schwartz of Boston University Law School on Nov. 16. He will speak on "Jewish Ethics and Twentieth Century Problems."

On Nov. 23, "Latin America and the Atypical Destiny of its Jews" will be the subject of a lecture by former Israeli ambassador to Latin America, Benno Weiser Varon.

The following week David Neiman, associate professor of theology at Boston College, will speak on "Poland, Russia, Yiddish: The Origins of Ashkenazic Jewry."

The final lecture on Dec. 7 will be delivered by Eugene Weiner, member and former chairman of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Haifa University and past director of the Lehman Institute of Ethics at the Jewish Theological Seminary. He will speak on "Social Stress in Israel; Old Solutions, New Problems."

Weekly classes

Each weekly meeting will be divided into two parts. The first hour will be devoted to the classroom and participants may choose from an extensive selection of eight courses. The lecture will follow during the second hour and refreshments will be served after the lecture.

Elementary Hebrew will be taught by Ilona Haendel, a graduate of Teachers College in Israel, who is now associated with the Solomon Schechter Day School. There will be courses in basic conversational Hebrew and intermediate conversational Hebrew taught by Ruth Livne, a graduate of Tel Aviv University, and Bella Kenpel, a graduate of Hebrew University, respectively. Both are instructors at the Ulpan, Hebrew College, Brookline.

For those interested in Yiddish, a conversational Yiddish class will be taught by Harriet Segal, a graduate of the University of Lithuania, who presently teaches at Temple Emeth Religious School. These classes aim to broaden vocabulary and conversational skill.

Courses of a topical nature will include "Diversity and Conflict in Medieval Judaism" to be given by Rabbi Marc Saperstein, spiritual leader of Temple Beth David in Canton and doctoral candidate in Jewish history and literature at Harvard University.

The course will highlight the wide variety of options available within medieval Jewish life by analyzing a number of different cultural and social types, including Talmudic scholar, philosopher, and Kabbalist.

"Understanding the Talmud: Text and Context," an analysis of selected texts to shed light on the sources and assumptions of the Oral Law and the problems involved in their interpretation and codification, will be presented by Charles Raffel, doctoral candidate in Jewish philosophy at Brandeis University.

For those interested in literature, a course on "The Jewish Experience in American Fiction" will be given by Sylvia Rothchild, well-known lecturer, writer, and journalist in New England area. The six novels she will discuss will reflect stages of Jewish selfawareness in America.

The final course of the series will be given in cooperation with Zionist House and the New England Zionist Federation. Different speakers each week will discuss aspects of "The Continuing Crisis — Mideast in Perspective."

The public is cordially invited to participate in the series. Registration for the entire series of classes and lectures will be $8 for members of sponsoring temples, $12 for nonmembers, $5 for senior citizens, and students will be admitted free.

For further information call the offices of the participating temples; Temple Reyim, 527-2410; Temple Emanuel, 332-5770; Temple Emeth, 469-9400; or Mishken Tefila, 332-7770.

Sister Margaret Gorman, president of the Newton Community Service Centers and former chairman of the Human Rights Commission, will receive the 18th annual Achievement Award citation at the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce's dinner Wednesday, Oct. 6, at the Marriott. Dinner reservations are available through the Chamber, 244-5300.

North gridmen open season with 20-0 victory

By RICHARD S. GROSSMAN

Newton North Head Football Coach 'Stormin' Norman 'alker once said, "Newton will never win a game on in-icate or flashy plays. We will win games on conditioning, efense, toughness, and desire."

Well, so far Coach Walker's philosophy seems to be orking out.

Last Saturday at Dickenson Stadium, Newton North arted their 1976 season with (as the saying goes) "a knock wn, drag out" type 20-0 victory over Framingham North.

Prior to the contest Walker and his assistants set several oals for the team and afterwards indicated, "Check those oals - then the statistics. That will tell the story."

Prior to the contest Walker and his assistants set several oals for the team and afterwards indicated, "Check those oals - then the statistics. That will tell the story."

The first goal seemed difficult - "Keep Napoleon to under 0 yards." This, of course, referred to Framingham North's tar halfback Niel Napoleon, who gave the Tigers much trouble last year. In the 1975 season opener Napoleon, who was shaken up several times, picked up 80 yards in only nine carries. The Tigers fared much better this year, holding Napoleon to only 37 yards in 13 carries.

A Framingham assistant coach commented, "Niel couldn't go anywhere because they were keying on him. After the first few plays they closed up the outside and forced him inside where he wasn't as effective."

Score one goal for NNHS.

The second Newton objective was to intercept three Framingham North passes. Not only did the Tigers achieve this, but their interceptions came off of three different throwers. The first interception came a few minutes into the first quarter when defensive end Tim Dargan picked off a James Fitch pass on the Framingham 43 yard line. Thirteen plays later, nine of which were runs by Jim Acheson and the other four of which were runs by quarterback Kevin Hinchey, Acheson went over the goal line from yard out for the first of his two TD runs.

The next interception came early in the third quarter when Lee Waxman grabbed a Niel Napoleon pass out of the halfback option play on the Newton 34. Just 3:31 later with 5:09 left in the quarter John Riley rolled to his left side and ran the ball in from nine yards out.

Manning Intercepts

Just to make coach Walker's dream come true, defensive back Bob Manning intercepted a Brian Kelly pass on Framingham North's very next play from scrimmage.

Score a second goal for the coaching crew.

Moving right along we come to goal no. 3. "Sack the quarterback two times."

NEWTON DID NOT SACK JAMES FITCH TWO TIMES. Rather it was three.

The diminuative junior at middle guard (170 lbs.) Shota Aki made the first strides in this direction by sacking Fitch on the first play from scrimmage. The other two sacks were perpetrated by juniors Joel Dennis and Tim Dargan.

That's a hat trick.

"Block one kick."

So far the Tigers' first and third scores have been described. What do you suppose set up Jim Acheson's second one yard plunge.

Near the end of the third quarter a North drive stalled deep in Framingham territory on the 5 yard line. Three straight Napoleonic runs put the ball on the eleven and the Spartans in a punting situation. Defensive end Greg O'Halloran tore through the FNHS line and blocked the Steve Kalick punt which was recovered on the one foot line, give or take a little.

That's four for four.

Coach Walker was willing to accept O'Halloran's block as the fifth goal - that the defense score once. According to the coach, "that was close enough to a score itself to give the defense credit."

To avoid showing off the Tigers did not live up to the sixth goal, which was to cause and recover three fumbles. In this department Framingham made three unassisted fumbles and recovered all three. However Newton did cause and recover two, although one was annuled because of a penalty.

Although there were no goals set for the offense, the Orange and Black did pretty well there too. North gained 246 yards to Framingham's 117. Unlike Framingham's however, Newton's was accomplished almost totally on the ground (235) with Hinchey only going to the air three times, with one eleven yard completion to end Kevin Jones. Framingham came up with 38 yards rushing and 79 passing. Newton North also out first downed Framingham 14-7.

One statistic indicating the early point in the season was Newton's six penalties for 70 yards.

Acheson Gains 80 Yards

Gaining yards on the ground for Newton were: Acheson 23 carries - 80 yards - 2 TDs; Tony Santagati six carries - 59 yards; Hinchey eight carries - 43 yards; Rich Prioa six carries - 30 yards; and Riley four carries - 23 yards - 1 TD.

Not to be outdone, the kickers also came up with a fine day. Soccer style kicker Dallas Morgan was two for two on extra points (one being from 18 yards out and the other from 23 yards out because of a delay of the game penalty against Newton).

Steve Fleming had several punts well over 35 yards and more often than not was the first man downfield after kicking off - making several fine tackles on kickoffs.

Line coach Peter Capadulupo said, "The lines played an improved game. Several seniors, especially (Joe) Dalton, (Dave) Bracken, (Jamie) Schiff, and (Doug) Smith all played well.

"We do need improvement in the line, although our backs ran so well today that it made the line look even better than it was."

Another Framingham North assistant commented, "We knew basically what type of a game Newton would play. We weren't surprised, we just couldn't stop them."

Coach Walker praised several players including O'Halloran, Dennis, Mark Barrisano, and Phil Jennings for their sound play.

He didn't really have to implicate anyone, except maybe Bobby Orr. All he had to do was to check those goals.

Next Sunday the Tigers travel to Medford. Kickoff is at 1:30 p.m.

Different days for school grid

There will be no Saturday football game for either Newton North or Newton South this weekend because of the Jewish holiday Rosh Hashanah.

Instead, Newton North will play on Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at Medford High while Newton South will host Weston High this Friday at 3 p.m. at Dickenson Stadium.

The Newton North starting time is a late change for the game, originally scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

Lion 11 falls to powerful Littleton High, 27-8

By Greg Soyka

LITTLETON—A few of the last words that Newton South Football Coach Koyjoyian gave to his 1976 football team before Saturday's contest were, "We can beat Littleton if the defense can hold on." However, this was too big an if. On that warm, sunny autumn afternoon at Littleton, a Lion victory was just not to be. The final score was 27-8 Littleton.

As was feared, the defensive unit was not able to contain the powerful and explosive Littleton Tiger attack. From the very first play from scrimmage, the Tiger offense ran off tackle for big yardage, a play that became a model for what was to come during the game. On this same first series, the Tigers marched seventy yards with little resistance for the first score of the game.

Then the determined Lion offense started a drive of their own. Running backs Jim Amicangioli and Richie Filler followed the blocking of Barry Gale and the offensive line in hopes of getting back in the game. With the good running and some unexpected help from the Littleton secondary the Lions were in excellent scoring position. Unfortunately, a dropped pass in the end zone extinguished the hopes of a tie ballgame.

The Littleton offense then seemed to move the ball at their will. When the South defense held them on one play, the next play usually broke for long yardage. Before long the Lions were looking at a 14-0 deficit.

The Lion offense again tried, but couldn't get on track. The running backs made fine advances but two fumbles on two separate possessions along with an illegal procedure penalty chocked the offense in the first half.

Before the half ended, Littleton was on the profitable end of a pass interference penalty which set the ball on the Newton South one yard line. The Tigers scored again taking a 20-0 halftime lead.

After the halftime break, the Lions returned ready to get the lead. However their hopes were depressed after being forced to punt the ball away. Shawn Daley kicked a respectable punt but bad coverage, missed tackles and some fine moves by the Tiger return man resulted in an additional six points.

Newton Gets On Board

With less than four minutes left to play, the Lions put together their best drive of the day which was terminated with a one yard touchdown run by Richie Filler. The extra points attempt succeeded when Quarterback Mike Cushner hit Barry Gale with a short pass.

It is hard to praise a team that gets demolished in a season opener. The score was lopsided, but with a few good breaks the score could have been closer. Mike Cushner played a fine game at quarterback, completing 8 passes for 85 yards. Unfortunately, with statistics the really close ones never show up. Early in the ball game Mike passed to end Mark Manfredi in the end zone. The pass was nearly perfect, but with the amount of congestion in the corner Mark couldn't hold on. Later Mike missed receiver Doug Jackson by just inches; this play would have resulted easily in a T.D. if completed.

In the second half Cushner again threw perfectly to end Shawn Daley, who couldn't hang on to the pass. Despite this near miss, Cushner kept his poise. On the next play, Mike connected with running back John Forti for his longest completion of the day, some thirty yards.

Running back and safety Jim Amicangioli was one of the very few Lions who played well. Jim carried the ball 11 times for 48 yards. On many of his runs, Jim was hit hard at the line of scrimmage, but he recovered and powered ahead for the extra gains. On defense Jim kept the secondary in line, stopping the long passes and aiding on several tackles.

Halfback Richie Filler also deserves a lot of credit. Richie carried the ball 21 times for 71 yards. On this day Richie's quickness and strength came through when the Lions needed a critical first down. His crunching power will really help the offense in the games to come.

The coaches and players feel that the loss to Littleton will not be an indication of what is to come for the next nine games. Starting Monday, the team has been getting ready for thier next game, the home opener at Dickenson Stadium, Newton North High School. Because of North's schedule, the Lions will meet Dual County rival Weston at 3:00 Friday afternoon. Everyone is urged to be there for an exciting afternoon of football.

N.A.A. Lions win 4th straight

A hard charging 'ball control' offense highlighted the NAA Lions 12-0 win over the Tewksbury Red Raiders Sunday at Hazel Field, Tewksbury. The Lions are now unbeaten in 4 games.

The Lions cored in 5 plays on their first possession. Fullback Bill Penzo cracked the middle for 9 yards and halfbacks Larry Chin and Mike Gorski added 4 and 5 yards more before a holding penalty set the team back.

The quarterback Joe Deasy hit Gorski with a 57 yard pass-run touchdown. After a fine leaping catch of a short pass, Gorski turned and sped down the sideline, sprung by a great block from end Mark Phillips. The conversion kick failed.

On their very next series, Deasy directed the Lions on a crunching 82 yard touchdown march in 16 plays which carried into the second quarter.

The offensive line paved the way, with ends Phillips and Jimmy Miller, tackles Scott Hayden and Carl Shismanian, guards Joe Scroppo and Peter Alexander and center Jeff Kabot opening big holes for Chin and Gorski. Chin finished the scoring drive with a 2 yeard plunge.

Tewksbury blocked the extra points kick.

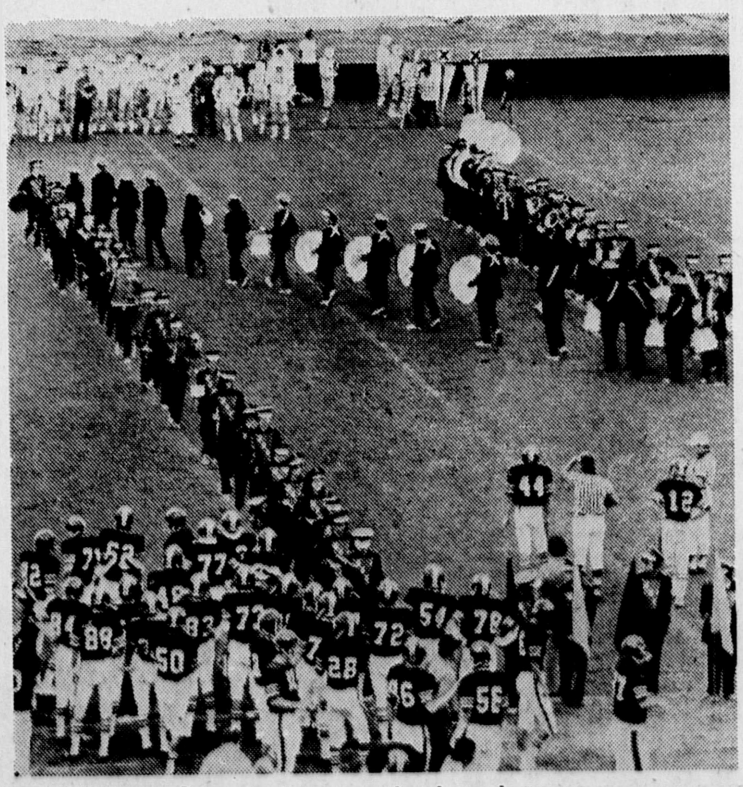

Tewksbury was unable to mount an attack against the rugged Lions defense, which has allowed only 1 touchdown in 4 games and held the Raiders to 68 total yards.

Ends Gorski and Dvid Goldman, tackles Steve D'Angelo, Jim Donlin, John Tessel and Peter Kanellias spent most of the game in the Tewksbury backfield.

Linebackers Penzo, Chin and Rob Steinberg played another strong game. Defensive backs Mike Kasten, Mark Fleming and Jon Bovarnik combined to stop the run and break up 3 long Raider passes.

On offense, Chin with 74 yards in 14 carries, Gorski with 52 yards in 11 carries and Penzo with 21 yards in 4 carries led the Lions rushing game.

In other NAA games, Tewksbury downed the 'B' Tigers 30-0, and the 'C' Cowboys defeated Brookline, 27-0. This Sunday the Lions and Tigers host Brookline at Newton Highlands field and the Cowboys play at Watertown.

South field hockey team ready for opener

By ELISA HURLEY

Newton South's field hockey team has more than enough girls for the upcoming 1976 fall season! The girl's Athletic Association, under the leadership of its president Buthaina Shukri, has managed to recruit twenty new field hockey enthusiasts. They accomplished this by visiting girls during their homeroom period during the first few days of school.

Practices and scrimmages are now going on under the leadership of the team's new coach, Ms. Estelle Myers. She has replaced the well known United States Field Hockey Team star, Ms. Pam Hixon.

The girl's first scrimmage was against a strong Stoneham team, and Newton South's varsity was slow in starting. The opposing team got two quick goals. Newton South knew that they had to "get everything together," and they did. They got four goals in the next 15 minutes. The half was over, and the girls were thrilled! The scorers were Right Inner Kiki Farrish, Right Wing Emily Monoson, Center Forward Barby Long, and center halfback Buthaina Shukri.

The 2nd half Newton South played well with "long through passes," but managed only one goal by R. HALFBACK Debi Spielman.

Playing next was the Junior Varsity team. They worked well together, but one must keep in mind these girls have not played together for at least two years. This is because the Junior High stopped field hockey and replaced it with soccer. The junior varsity team beat Stoneham with a close score of 1-0. The goal was scored by Penny Shockett, a girl to watch for in the future!

N.S.H.S.'s field hockey team is going to have an exciting and winning season this fall. What they need and want is your support. Why not come out and cheer them on!

The first game of the season was to be today against Concord-Carlisle at 3:30, and to your convenience it's at N.S.'s home field.

We look forward to seeing all of you there!

South soccer team splits first two games

By JOSH EHRLICH

When the Newton South soccer team ran all over Arlington 5-0 in their first scrimmage, Coach Crowther warned the team not to become overconfident, for many tough games lay ahead during the regular season in the Dual County League.

Last Saturday, Newton South found out just how tough it could be when they journeyed to Wayland for their second game, and suffered a 3-1 loss to a powerful Wayland team.

This defeat followed a hard-fought 2-1 victory in the season's opener at Weston. So now the Lions return home for 5 of their next 6 games, and will hope to improve upon their 1-1 record against Acton-Boxboro on the 23rd.

Weston High, a school more noted for its tennis than its soccer, proved to be no pushover. They scored first and held a 1-0 lead going into the half-time break.

The first half was a frustrating one for South which played solid defense, but was unable to capitalize on its many scoring opportunities. Forty seconds after the 2nd half began, however, the Lions got on the scoreboard. Jeff Fastov outraced a Weston defender from his right wing position and drilled the ball past the reach of the goalie.

Ten minutes later, scrappy forward Albert Pazos put one in from in front of the net, the assist going to Peter Levin. South's defense, sparked by a fine performance from goalie Andy Wise was able to hold on and preserve the 2-1 win.

In Wayland, 4 days later, things turned out differently. The Wayland team, which had beaten perennial power Lincoln Sudbury 3-0 earlier, was ready to go, and did not stop until 4 quarters later when they walked off the field with a 3-1 victory.

At the outset, Newton South showed signs of its soccer playing potential. The Lions controlled the first 10 minutes of the game, but then Wayland pulled together.

Passing alertly, showing excellent skills, Wayland strode to a 3-0 half time lead to the delight of their home crowd. In the fourth quarter, South rooters finally had something to cheer about when Frank Otten tipped in a ball off a corner kick by Donny Moore who, by the way played his customary excellent game. South was unable to score again and boarded the bus back to Newton, trying to forget about Wayland for the time being and begin looking ahead to Acton-Boxboro.

South's soccer team has a new appearance this year. Besides hoping to catch some attention in the bright orange warmup suits that are due any day, the Lions have employed a more refined passing and ball control game.

Last year's kick and chase tactic proved erratic, so throughout the pre-season games and practices this year, head coach Crowther and coach Mazolla have stressed close passing and control. With the new faces of sophomores and juniors on the team along with the experienced seniors from last year, the south soccer team feels that it can look forward to a successful year.

The loss of Captain Mike Stollar, with an ankle injury, has hurt but his return next week, coupled with a cance to regroup after Saturday's loss, could produce a tough team to beat.

North harriers await new season

By BRUCE DANZIGER

The Newton North High School cross country team is eagerly awaiting the upcoming fall season with optimism. One of the three captains, Duncan Scott, feels that the hard work that the team has been engaged in lately should pay off.

The other captains with Scott are Garde Wells and Marc Laredo. These captains are all returning from last year's varsity team.

They coach of the team, Mr. Joseph Connolly, is also quite optimistic about the season. "We will be competitive with all the schools in the league. We should do well dependent upon thee improvement of times by our fifth man," says Connolly. The schedule is as follows:

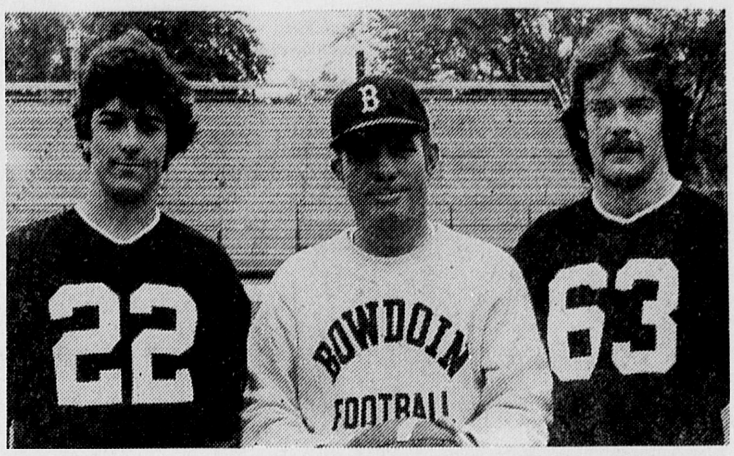

Thursday, Sept. 23, Waltham, 3:15.
Wednesday, Sept. 29, Quincy, 3:15.
Tuesday, Oct. 5, Weymouth North, 3:15.
Friday, Oct. 8, at North Quincy, 3:15.
Wednesday, Oct. 13, at Brockton, 3:15.
Tuesday, Oct. 19, at Weymouth South, 3:15.
Tuesday, Oct. 26, Cambridge, 3:15.
Tuesday, Nov. 2, at Brookline, 3:15.
Tuesday, Nov. 9, League Championship, 2:30 p.m., if Newton qualifies.

The way the competition works is: Ten people run in the varsity meet per team, but only the top five from each team are counted. For example, if Newton had the 1st, 3rd, 10th, 14th, and 18th finishers in their top five, they would have a score of 46. (Score computed by adding places together).

The same is done for the other team, and the team with the lowest score wins. For the junior varsity, there is no limit, so usually everyone else on the team runs in the meet. The score is computed in the same manner as in the varsity. Thus the times of the runners are unimportant in the scoring, but they are to the runners themselves.

Under the leadership of Wells, Laredo and Scott, many runners from last year's junior varsity are returning in addition to a group of sophomores. The main loss that this team suffered was that of Rich Schilder, last year's co-captain. But the addition of excellent sophomores should more than make up for that loss.

All in all, everyone feels confident that the team will do well and be in contention for the league championship.

Members sought for advisory group to state Welfare Dept.

The steering committee of the Brookline Area Community Service Center of the Massachusetts Department of Public Welfare has held an organization meeting to establish guidelines for selecting an advisory board.

The Brookline Community Service Center area includes Newton, Wellesley, Weston and Brookline.

The advisory board's responsibility according to state mandate is to act in the interest of the citizens of the area served, to advise the area director, the commissioner and the state advisory board on the needs of the community and on steps that should be taken to increase the effectiveness of the public welfare program.

The center provides these communities with access to all services which are available within the jurisdiction of the Department of Public Welfare.

At the initial organizational meeting, Ann E. Macdonald of Chestnut Hill was elected chairman pro tem. Others serving on the steering committee are State Sen. Jack Backman, Shepard Cohen, Terry Colby, Marilyn Colman, Everett Morgan, Pauline Robinson, Rev. Paul Ryan, Lewis B. Songer and Sandra Wayne.

According to Public Welfare Department guidelines, the funrtion of the steering committee is to offer all interested residents of the area an opportunity to submit themselves as candidates to participate on the local advisory board. The law requires membership to include representation from various groups including the service recipients, businees and community leaders and related agency representatives. Therefore a minimum amount of personal information about each person who applies will be necessary.

Persons interested in serving on the advisory board may obtain an application by calling 731-1500 or writing to Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, director, Department of Public Welfare, 320 Washington St., Brookline, Mass. 02146. Applications will be accepted through Sept. 30.

October is monster month at the Boston Aquarium

Water kelpies, sea hags, sea serpents, and "Nessie" are monsters' fare for New England Aquarium visitors during October.

"The Phenomenon of Loch Ness," a historical survey of monsters through the ages including the most recent findings of the teams investigating "Nessie," will be presented each day during October.

Sea monsters have been an acceptable part of our folklore since man first set out to explore the seven seas.

Sea travelers have reported sightings of monsters for hundreds of years, with the first recorded sighting in 565 A.D.

Boston has its own tradition of sea monster sightings. According to historians (some of questionable character), Boston Harbor has been visited many times in the past by a sea serpent "at least 80 feet in length."

Monsters have been reported over the years by hundreds of persons from Gloucester to Boston Harbor to Nantucket.

The Boston Harbor monster was most frequently sighted in the early 1800's when citizens use to line the coast to watch it snaking through the water.

Findings of the recent investigations in Loch Ness are included in the program, with live hydrophone recordings of the monster, photographs, and speculations as to what it might be.

"The Phenomenon of Loch Ness," a 24-minute audio visual presentation, will be shown in the Aquarium's Sea Theater at no additional charge to Aquarium visitors.

Indian Guides meet at schools

R. John Hasten, the youth and camping director of the Newton YMCA, has announced this week's schedule for Indian guide rallies in the Newton-Weston area.

The YMCA Indian guide program is a father-son project where fathers and sons in grades K-3 meet in bi-weekly meetings in houses in their local "tribes,"

Through story-telling, game-playing, crafts, and snacks, a father and son are drawn closer together. Nationally, over 500,000 participants are enrolled in Indian Guide tribes. Local rallies are open to both fathers and sons to give them an explanation of the program.

Hasten will be at the following schools at 7:30 p.m. with a brief talk and materials on the program: The Angier School on Thursday, Sept. 23; the Ward School on Friday, Sept. 24 and in Weston in the Country School on Monday, Sept. 27. For more information call Hasten at 244-6050.

Health Planning Council hosts Dr. Caper at BC

Dr. S. Philip Caper, vice chancellor for health affairs at the University of Massachusetts Medical School in Worcester, will be keynote speaker at a free public education program on Saturday, Oct. 2, sponsored by the Health Planning Council for Greater Boston.

Ethel Lennox of Dorchester, program chairman, said Dr. Caper will lead off the program beginning at 9:30 a.m., at Cushing Hall, Boston College School of Nursing, Chestnut Hill.

The program is free and open to the public. Interested persons may obtain a brochure describing the day's events by phoning the Health Planning Council in Brighton at 787-5800.

The program will include a panel discussion among persons representing health care consumers, health professionals, elected officials, and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Panelists announced this week are Barbara Fegan of South Wellfleet, consumer president of the regional Health Systems Agency for southeastern Massachusetts, and a consumer advocate in the areas of health and environmental quality; and Dr. Charles A. Sanders, general director of Massachusetts General Hospital, one of the largest health facilities in the state.

The main speaker Dr. Caper, will discuss the evolution of regional health planning and the social and economic factors which lead to passage of the National Health Planning and Resources Development Act and the development of a regional network of Health Systems Agencies.

The Health Planning Council for Greater Boston is one of the first Health Systems Agencies to be designated in the country and it serves over 2.23 million persons in 65 greater Boston Communities.

Dr. Caper played a major role in the preparation and passage of the Federal planning legislation when he served as a key staff member of Senator Edward Kennedy's subcommittee on health.

Newton cyclist in Grand Prix at No. Conway

Bicycle racing is fast becoming a major sport in this country. At North Conway, New Hampshire this weekend there were held the Third International Grand Prix bicycle races.

Jonathan Robbins, a Senior at Newton North High School, came in 13th out of a field of 54 in the 32-mile. This may sound like no big deal, except that his time of 1 hour, 36 minutes and 7 seconds was only exactly two minutes out of first place.

There were three events: The grueling 105-mile race through the twisting roads of the White Mountains including the Kancamagus Wilderness Highway, the very demanding race up the 8-mile Mount Washington auto road, and a 32-mile race for cyclists not classified under U.S. Cycle Federation rules.

The race attracted entrants from 12 foreign countries and from all over the United States. Some Olympic racers were among the contestants.

Newton woman wins tennis tournament

Mrs. George (Claire) Volpe of Newton was winner of the season's first Mixed-up Doubles Tennis Tournament held last Saturday evening at the Charles River Indoor Tennis and Health Club. In recognition of her victory she was awarded an inscribed plaque.

According to Tournament Director, Mary Roark, the steady play and well chosen shots of Claire Volpe were the key to her victory. Also, stated Mary Roark, the offensive and defensive lobs of the winner were executed with great precision.

These popular Friday and Saturday evening Mixed-up Doubles will continue throughout the winter indoor tennis season.

CAR CORNER

Back in 1910, a motorist would race his engine vigorously just before he turned off the ignition switch. "There" he would say, "that makes it easier to turn her on the next time." Back then motorists believed that this final revving would pull in raw gasoline, and prime the cylinders so that they would fire right away. It turns out that priming the cylinders with raw gasoline this way also washed the protective film of oil from the cylinders, but at 25 miles per hour top speed, it was not all that important.

From the air, France looks like one vast farm, divided by hedges into an endless patchwork of little, irregular fields . . . It looks peaceful and serene . . . But wait till you see it at night, when the Palace Vendome, the Rue de Rivoli, Notre-Dame, the Louvre, and the Arc de Triomphe are floodlit . . . And where would you stay? . . . At the luxury end, there are three-and four-star hotels, where they greet you in English

Kiwanis Home Show adds new attractions

The Newton Kiwanis Home Show, which will be held Oct. 1, 2, and 3 at the West Newton Armory, is adding new features to the show every day.

Many of the exhibitors will be offering specials and giveaways. The prizewinner of the "oldest radio" contest, sponsored by WNTN will receive a $100 savings bond, so be sure to search for an old radio and bring it to the show.

A special display area is being set aside for the entries. The radio need not work. Judging of the contest will be done by the Electronic Technicians Guild of Massachusetts, it was confirmed by Gilbert Clark, president of the Guild.

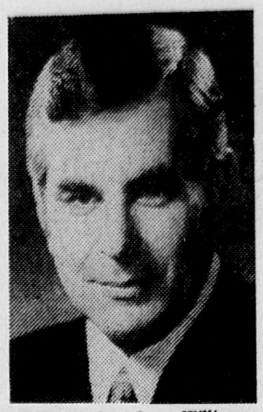

One exhibit will feature repair and recoloring of vinyl upholstery. When a plastic, vinyl, naugahyde, or leather piece of furniture is damaged or the color is worn, the piece need not be replaced or recovered, since for about half the price the color can be restored or changed.

Vin Sulprizio, manager of Newtonville Star Market, announced that in the Star Market Booth, tickets for a Thanksgiving Shopping Spree will be available. This is being sponsored by Star Market to further benefit the Newton Kiwanis Underpriviledged Children's Fund, in addition to the other proceeds of the Show.

Bob Dwyer, owner of Newton Buick, will display two cars. if smaller transportation is for you, Harris Cyclery of West Newton, will offer bicycles and motor bikes. There will be a custom sizing machine, so that one is assured of being correctly fitted to the bike of their choice.

Show Coordinator Judy Chernin said that only a very few exhibit spaces are still available. The Show will be "one of a kind" in that each booth display is not duplicated by any other. The ideas, services, and sale items available for the consumer will be unique and varied.

Discount tickets are available in many stores in and Newton. For further information, please call 332-8708.

Talk show host Jerry Williams of WBZ radio will be the guest of honor at Charlesgate Clothes, 145 California St., Newton, when the store previews its new Fall line of men's fashions Sept. 29 from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Danziger's group buys into Crimson Galeria

Robert A. Danziger, president of Northland Investment Corporation, Newtonville, announced that he and a group of local investors have acquired equity interest in Crimson Galeria, an enclosed shopping mall recently completed in Harvard Square.

Haim S. Eliachar of Chestnut Hill, the developer of the mall, continues as the majority owner and co-general partner with Northland. The Galeria includes 18 retail stores, a restaurant, and a cinema, located on three levels at the corner of Boylston and Winthrop streets. Northland will continue as the managing agent for the mall.

Former princess auctions jewels to pay off debts

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The jewels that adorned a queen of Egypt flashed and sparkled in a federal courtroom and drew curious stares — but would not draw enough money to pay the debts of commoners who lived royally.

Fathia Ghali, former princess of Egypt and sister of the late King Farouk, looked on impassively Monday as a Bankruptcy Court judge tried to auction off the jewels of her mother — former Queen Nazli Fouad — to pay $310,000 in debts.

Although the family had valued them at $500,000, jewel dealers would not bid more than $180,000.

Judge James Moriarty and the attorney for businessmen holding the jewels as collateral rejected the offers as too low. The lenders can retain the jewels, or search for a purchaser who will pay more.

Mrs. Ghali, 45, wearing costume jewelry and rings, leaned forward tight-lipped when, aided by a woman television reporter who displayed them, the judge offered for sale a set of diamond and ruby necklace, pendant and earrings.

It drew a high bid of $140,000.

"Those are pigeon-blood rubies," she whispered. "My father chose them one by one for my mother. They are beautiful pieces and worth much more than that."

Her father was King Fouad I, who ruled Egypt from 1922 until he died in 1936.

A necklace of emeralds as big as pullet eggs set in platinum drew a bid of $50,000. By stages, bidding for the whole collection rose to $180,000 and went no higher.

"The rubies and diamonds were purchased by my father more than 40 years ago. They were never part of the crown jewels. They were just in the family."

The Egyptian crown jewels remained in Egypt when King Farouk was deposed by an Army officers revolt in 1952.

To Old and New Friends. . .

Welcome!

Welcome to all the warmth and atmosphere that was Fontaine's Dickens. I say was, because many of you saw, as I did, a fine reasonably priced eating establishment go steadily downhill. Being a frequent patron I felt as if an old friend was dying as I stood helplessly by and watched. On June 2nd, 1976 I stopped watching and bought what had been my favorite eating spot. Immediately I started changing things. . .all the furniture was thrown out, new was purchased, the wine cellar was completely remodeled into a fine lounge with piano bar and the interior as well as the exterior was completely refurbished.

Those not familiar with my name may recognize some of the other restaurants I have been associated with; the Red Boot in Canton, the Boston Club, Grey Gables on the Cape and the Cumiquid Ocean House also on the Cape; all well known establishments that have always featured excellent food and service.

We feel that Fontaine's Dickens is now a restaurant where you can come, have a nice quiet meal in a warm atmosphere and not spend a lot of money. All our meals are served complete with potato and vegetable and none is priced at more than $10.00, most are between $5 and $6. Even our Canadian Hardshell Twin Lobster Dinner, which we feature 7 days a week, complete with potato, vegetable and salad is only $6.95. All our chowders, soups, bread, in fact everything we serve is made from scratch by our chef, Chuck Francis.

Come. . . Join us for dinner. We serve the good food you've looked for, at a price you can afford, in the atmosphere you'd expect at high priced restaurants.

Sincerely,
Art DeSaulniers

Revenue sharing — good or bad?

By DONALD H. MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Every three months, 39,000 states, counties, cities and towns throughout the country get a check from Uncle Sam.

The money, known as "revenue sharing," involves one of the few fundamental debates about American government to come before Congress this year.

But the more Congress debated it, the more the issues became submerged from view.

Revenue sharing involves turning over part of the money the federal government collects in taxes to state and local governments, with very few restrictions on how they can use it.

The idea was considered during the administration of Lyndon Johnson, when the government thought it would soon have a budget surplus, so why not spread it around? Vietnam took care of the surplus and, for the time being, the proposal.

Richard Nixon revived it as part of what he called a "new federalism," which he said would return power to the people. According to the theory, Washington was more efficient and more progressive than localities in collecting taxes; but localities knew better what their needs were and would make wiser decisions on spending.

In 1972, at Nixon's urging, Congress promised state and local governments $30 billion over five years, with no need for annual appropriations. That money runs out the end of this year.

Early this year, a proposal by President Ford for a renewal of $43 billion over nearly six years began making its way through Congress.

Some powerful members were opposed to renewal, one of them Rep. Jack Brooks, DTex., chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, which had jurisdiction over the program.

"I think revenue sharing is destructive of our federal system of government," Brooks said. "It is destructive of the principle of public accountability by public officials, and it is destructive of Congress' responsibility to determine how federal revenue should be spent.

"... Instead of pouring out $6.65 billion every year indiscriminately to every state and local jurisdiction, we should be using our severely limited funds to attack specific national problems."

Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., head of the House Budget Committee, said the program "destroys the basic principle of taxpayer control by having one level of govenment raise taxes and another spend it." He said such budgetary promises also make it hard to control federal spending.

Others charged that formulas for distribution of the money give some of it to communities which don't need it and give not enough to big cities and poor rural areas which need it most.

But there were two obvious political realities. Governors, mayors and county officials are one of the nation's most powerful lobbies. Also, their treasuries had grown used to the money; to withdraw it suddenly would disrupt the economy at a critical stage of recovery.

In June, the House voted 361 to 35 to approve a $25 billion extension of revenue sharing through September, 1980. The Senate recently voted 80-4 to approve $41 billion through September, 1982, and it remained only to compromise the difference.

In both versions there would be no further need for appropriatons. The money is promised in advance as an "entitlement" program — just as veterans and Social Security recipients are entitled to their benefits.

Both versions added new provisions to give local citizens more say in how the money is spent and to strengthen rules against discrimination in progams using the funds. Neither changed the distribution formulas.

In the Senate, many of the arguments for and against revenue sharing were not even made.

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., sought annual appropriations and was voted down, 62-14.

Sen. William Proxmire, DWis., proposed giving state legislatures a choice between spending the money through appropriations bills or refunding it to state residents as a rebate on their federal taxes. This, he said, would add a sense of local responsibility.

But Proxmire added that he knew the idea would be rejected, and he withdrew it without a vote.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, long an opponent of revenue sharing, voted "no" but took no part in debate. An aide said he realized opposition was futile.

In the Senate, the most vocal attack against the concept of revenue sharing came not from the liberal wing, which has opposed it, but from a fiscal conservative William Scott, RVa.

He argued that with the federal government facing a $50 billion deficit next year "there isn't any revenue to share."

DRILLING RIGS

HOUSTON (UPI) — The pace of world oil exploration continues to increase, especially in Africa, a manufacturer of oil field equipment reports.

As of June 30, the Hughes Tool Co. counted 1,000 rotary drilling rigs, 50 more than in March, operating in non-Communist nations outside North America.

The company said the greatest surge occurred in Africa, where 45 more rigs, for a total of 146, started work during the quarter. Eighteen-hundred exploration drillings occurred in the United States in 1975.

Travel New England

On the go in New England

Just as all major league teams like to have a star player to lure the fans into the stadium, each of the six New England states is best known for one thing in particular which draws vacationers into the region.

Once you're in the state, however, it's a whole new ballgame. You soon begin to find out that there's much more to enjoy than you originally thought.

The mere mention of any state's name evokes a certain image; let's take a look at some of these. Remember, this is meat merely to whet your appetite. From here it's up to you to play the field and discover the vacation variety that awaits the New England traveler.

CONNECTICUT . . .summer theatres . . .

Summer theatre in Connecticut ranges from star-studded musical tent productions to comedy revivals staged in classic barn settings.

A visit to the American Shakespeare Theatre, the nation's foremost classical repertory company located in Stratford on the banks of the Housatonic River, offers a relaxed Elizabethan atmosphere of theatre enjoyment complete with strolling madrigal singers.

Headlining the theatre's 1976 summer season is "The Crucible," "The Winter's Tale," "As You Like It" and "Love and Master Will." All four plays are running in rotating repertory through Sept. 26.

Built in 1876, and located on the Connecticut river in East Haddam, the Goodspeed Opera House towers six stories above the river landing at its base. The small size of the theatre (300 seats) is an attractive feature of this historic landmark which presents tourists with an imposing example of Victorian architecture.

The world premiere of "Annie", based on the Little Orphan Annie comic strip, will run through Sept. 26. The curtain rises Tuesday--Friday evenings at 8:30, Saturday 5:00 and 9:00, Sunday 5:00 and Wednesday matinee at 2:30.

RHODE ISLAND . . mansions . .

Mention Rhode Island and the first picture that comes to mind is Newport with the splendor of summer villas and mansions that line Bellevue Avenue and cresting rocky coves along beautiful Ocean Drive and Cliff Walk.

The Marble House, Rosecliff and the Breakers depict some of the staggering wealth of the Vanderbilts, Astors and Whitneys, among others, who used to live in Newport. For a firsthand view, the mansions are open to the public during the summer.

Storyland, Glen, N.H.

One of the most magnificent of all Newport summer residences is the Breakers. Built for entertaining, it shows off to its best advantage at night when it is illuminated by the elegant chandeliers suspended from the high ceilings.

The Breakers stable houses one of the largest collections of carriages and coaches owned by one family. Harness, livery and other equipment are displayed in their original setting.

The Newport area was once a rich man's resort, but you don't have to be a millionaire to go there and have fun today. It's knee-deep in history and a walker's dream because of its compactness.

NEWPORT HARBOR is a mecca for sailing enthusiasts and yachtsmen from all over the world. And there are regattas, boat shows and many more boating activities scheduled throughout the season.

Hundreds of new sailboats of every description will be displayed afloat and on land at the Newport International Sailboat Show at historic Fort Adams State Park September 23-26. Shuttle boat service will take you from the downtown waterfront to the show grounds at Fort Adams.

MASSACHUSETTS history . .

A thin line of armed patriots, drawn up across Lexington Green on the morning of April 19, 1775, marked the beginning of a new era in world history. Massachusetts truly was "where it all began," and from Boston to the Berkshires history takes the spotlight.

You can walk Boston's Freedom Trail, retracing each step in a young country's fight for independence; get caught up in the witch hysteria of Salem at the Salem Witch Museum; relive the Pilgrim's landing at Plymouth Rock; step back in time to the early 19th century in Old Sturbridge Village; and become part of the distant nautical past in Fall River in Bristol County.

Branching out from Boston, history lies in every direction. Stretching 63 miles, the Mohawk trail in the northwestern corner of the state originally was an Indian footpath. Today, it is a scenic highway drive that takes you past towns which were settled as far back as 1686.

In Quincy the Adams National Historic Site was the home of four generations of the Adams family including John Adams, the second President of the U.S. and his son John Quincy Adams, the sixth President.

VERMONT. . auctions . . .fishing . . .country suppers .

If you are a fisherman you'll find some of the finest trout waters in the nation at literally every turn in the road. In Vermont's Northeast Kingdom there are streams whose names are almost legendary among the fishing fraternity.

When you feel the urge to rub elbows with the natives, try attending a square dance or a chicken pie supper. The latter is a Vermont tradition that is a regular summer event in many churches and grange halls. If you've never attended one, you've got a real eating experience in store for you.

Countless other attractions and events provide a ready and appetizing menu of things to see and do. These include auctions, gondola rides and county fairs.

Many say that Vermont offers the ideal blend of scenic relaxation and just the right amount of "doing" for those who want to stir and be active.

ON THE GO

Perhaps one of the most fertile fields for bagging a bargain antique is this Green Mountain State. Auctions in Vermont are as easy to find as the hundreds of antique shops dotting the landscape. And it's a rare road that meanders through the mountains that doesn't pass four or five garage sales.

But despite its quiet, idyllic look, Vermont can be alive with things to do for those who want a change of pace from pastoral landscapes. You'll find it turning into a sports-minded state with some of the bigger tennis camps cropping up in ski areas like Killington, Mount Snow, Stratton, Stowe and Sugarbush.

NEW HAMPSHIRE. .fun attractions . .

The White Mountains have been attracting visitors for nearly two centuries, and whereas the natural beauty of the region rivals any state, it's the family attractions that provide the fun and games that "make" a vacation.

There is Six Gun City and Santa's Village in tiny Jefferson; then Natureland with animals and rides in Lincoln; Story Land on Rt. 16 above North Conway, where storybook people and animals mingle in a fairytale setting; and next door to Storyland, Heritage New Hampshire takes you on a journey through 30 separate events in the state's history.

For nearly 50 years Clark's Trading Post has entertained visitors in Lincoln. Their offering of a trained bear show, logging railroad ride via a steam locomotive and a collection of Americana in museums is second to none and pleases the entire family.

Of geological interest is a tour through Lost River near North Woodstock, The Flume in Franconia Notch and Polar Caves near Plymouth.

In North Conway you'll want to ride the scenic 11-mile steam railroad, and Mt. Cranmore's Skimobile mountain ride.

The Castle in the clouds, Wolfeboro Rail Road and a cruise on Lake Region are a perfect way to combine fun with a day of sightseeing.

MAINE . . .scenic. . .

In Maine, crystal clear lakes and streams cut into mountain scenes. Many connecting inland lakes offer a haven for the water skier and for those who just like to take a lazy waterway trip with the family, setting their own pace.

Here, the air is fresh and clean. Woodlands are filled with paths just beckoning you to walk them. Rising above, many peaks offer a challenge to those who enjoy a vigorous climb to behold the world from a lofty site. It is the first place in the U.S. to see the rising sun.

Thousands of people can swim and fish in Moosehead Lake on the same day and never know that anyone else is around. And no wonder, Moosehead is bigger than the state of Delaware. The point is if it's solitude that brings out the best in you, there's plenty of it to be had in Maine.

The 3,500 miles of Maine's seacoast is dotted with famous resort towns such as Bar Harbor, Rockport, Camden and Boothbay Harbor. These spots were once the playground of the wealthy, but now are a haven for vacationers who like brisk sailing and leisure living.

The ocean has played an important role in the heritage of the state, but it also means succulent seafood, and you should never leave without getting your fill of lobster and clams at a real Downeast clambake.

Summer is the perfect time to visit one or many of Maine's historic covered bridges. The state boasts nine of them. The oldest are Hemlock Bridge in East Fryeburg and Low's Bridge near Sangerville, both built around 1857.

Not to be overlooked is the famed wire bridge in North New Portland. Located in picturesque settings, the bridges will remind you of the days of yore and the "ole swimmin' hole" that we all knew so well in our youth.

Wanted: Tradition-minded people with excellent taste & high standards.

We address ourselves to you because our stores are tailored to you. Everything we offer is Traditional with a capital "E", for Early American. Everything, from furniture, lamps & pewter to paints, hardware & stains, including a few really select Bicentennial mementos.

As for taste, we don't claim to be arbiters. We let history do that. This Chippendale Wing Chair, for instance, has been popular for a mere 200 years.

We also share your high regard for quality. As shown by this chair's hand-woven crewel upholstery. The solid mahogany legs; the hardwood frame. We've offered it for 20 of its 200 years. And it has always had a following, despite its cost ($294.).

The same high standards are evident in all our wares. Whether you buy a $500. hutch (we'll ship it home for you) or a $6.50 pewter letter opener, you can expect it to last. Because we want you to come back. And, just as importantly, we want your children to come back.

Right now millions of Americans are being forced to sit back and rock their lives away. Simply because they're older. Stop and think about it!

It's going to happen to you. You're going to be "older" someday. Maybe sooner than you think.

And you're going to have to face the same problems that exist today. Unless you start changing your attitudes about aging now. Get rid of your stereotypes.

Try and imagine what you'll be like. What you'll want to do. What you'll want to contribute. That's all we ask.

But you'd better hurry.

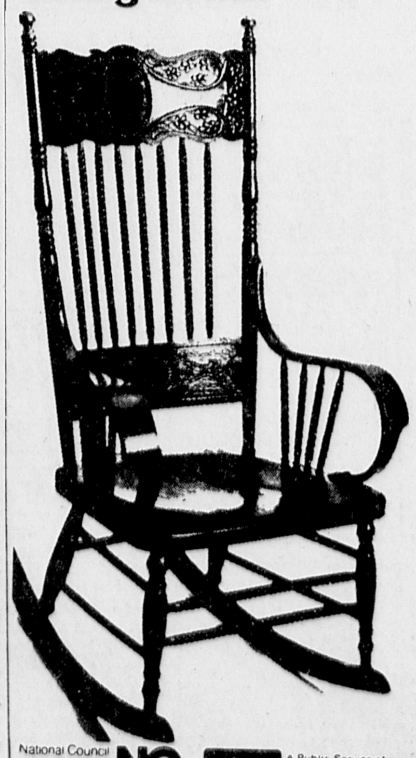

If you don't want to take your old age sitting down, get off your rocker and separate the facts from the myths.

Now.

For more information on what you can do, write:

The National Council on the Aging, Inc. Box 28503, Washington, D.C. 20005.

Get off your rocker. Don't take old age sitting down.

It always happens so fast.

And, this time, you're right. It did happen to "the other guy."

You know: The guy who wouldn't hurt a fly, turn down a friendly drink—or take a cab home instead of driving. A nice guy who'd now and then smoke in bed, maybe swim out a little too far, sometimes hurry a little down the stairs.

We know you knew him. And that you'll miss him.

We just don't want you to join him.

"Oops" is a pitiful epitaph.

lly divided into eight sections by iphical characteristics.
planner also showed slides of ational use of open land which lated the citizens to break into groups and consider what they like on in each geographic section.
re is a pond in the lowest section of id near the river, but Giezentanner hat for some unknown reason it 't freeze in the winter like it did in ast.
t people at the meeting would like the manmade pond adjusted so it freeze, and some would like to see cked with goldfish.
ng the riverfront suggestions were noe access from cars, canoe rental e, picnic and rest areas, a sandy , for possible swimming, and e study since the river flow varies ly in a short distance.
largest area the planner delineated a 20-acre section of oak woods with understory plants. Several groups to leave this area as it is, but some ested a section of it for parking, ed jogging tracks, cross country g, and picnicking.
hird section of four acres enclosed by other Novitiate land has the old football fields of the former orphanage.

Sheep grazing was proposed for this site, as was bocci, horseback riding, winter carnivals, oudoor concerts, track and field events, and ice skating if the plain were flooded in the winter.

A plateau area of six acres bordering on Nahanton Street was seen as the worst possible place to build condominiums, if that is ever considered for the land.

It was also seen a good place for picnicking, sky watching, kite flying, and was one of the several areas considered for parking.

The 10 acres on which the building, swimming pool, gymnasium, and two playing fields are located were seen as feasible for a nature museum, recreational facilities, housing for artists or low-income persons, an arts and crafts center, emergency housing, a day camp headquarters, or a conference center.

Giezentanner saw many conflicts that planners encounter from the suggestions of the people, but noted the program was mainly to stimulate interest in the land.

John McGrath of Newton is the realtor who is handling the sale of the land for the Novitiate.

He said he has had several offers for the land, but the Novitiate is serious in its intent to find a buyer who will use the land wisely.

He said he had notified Mayor Theodore Mann about a year ago as a courtesy to let him know the Xaverian Brothers are considering selling the site, but added, "There is no gun to the city's head to make them buy it tomorrow."

He said he and the Novitiate would plan the sale of the land with information gained at meetings like the one Tuesday night.

"We're not going to turn it over to a developer," McGrath said.

He said he would sell the land and the buildings to the city for $1.5 million, and did not rule out a split sale to the MDC and the city or a school and the city.

Joel Lerner, director of conservation services in the state Office of Environmental Affairs, said there may be state money available to match federal grants for land purchase next year, but this year there are already more requests than there is money to fund them.

Thomas McDermont from the Metropolitan District Commission said the MDC may have money to purchase some of the site near the river, but made no committment other than expressing interest in the site.

Two more tours of the site are scheduled for 10 a.m. on Saturdays, Sept. 25 and Oct. 2. Citizens can drive onto the land from Winchester Street and park near the main building.

achusetts has approved requests for nditures of over $2,000 to pave two ons of Moulton Street.
proval came Sept 16, about two ths after the Board of Aldermen oved a request from Ald. Carol Ann and Ald. David B. Cohen for the ng of the street at either state or city nse.
dermen sought funds from the state , on grounds that trucks working on state-assisted portion of the Lower s urban renewal project had been onsible for breaking up the blacktop ing that once existed on the now y street.
omas, the NCDA's sole member, ounced that the United States ional Park Service has awarded a nt to the City of Newton to do a survey istorical properties in Nonantum and ton Corner.
It is a field research project," Thomas the Board.
ne of the objectives is to discover sites which an historic event may have urred, he said.
nother is to uncover a typical street of ven era or worthy examples of period hitecture, he said.

The end result could be the targeting of more historic districts in the city, Thomas added.

No further word has come from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development on funds for the Lower Falls housing project along Washington Street.

Letters from Sen. Edward Brooke and Rep. Robert Drinan indicate that Washington is "aware of" the project, Early said.

Both officials expect funds to be released after Oct 1, Early said.

Cetrone-Campa Construction Co. of Newton, which bid low on the next phase of the Washington Street widening in the Lower Falls urban renewal project, is expected to get the contract for the job.

The NCDA and the NPDB voted to have City Purchasing Agent Blair Kanbar execute a contract based on Cetrone's bid of $52,627.

Only the downhill, righthand side of the street between Grove Street and the bridge is involved.

In other business, the Authority and the Board voted to adopt Thomas' proposed employment policies and practices with slight amendments.

The Board agreed to allow leeway of up to $300 for "emergency repair and maintenance of property" in the hands of Early, at his request.

Both the Board and the Authority said no, however, to Early's plea that payroll expenses include "local travel" as an "administrative" cost and that travel to "conferences" be included.

All travel expenses must be approved by the NCDA and the NPDB before the money can be repaid.

The August balance sheet showed payments of $52.80 to Early for "local travel."

The format of the Authority's balance sheets came in for severe criticism from both Miller and Lurensky, so Thomas is revising the forms.

Miller called them "really not understandable."

Administrative Assistant Eleanor Bennison can explain them, because she does all the bookkeeping, Early said.

Ms. Bennison was absent from the session.

She is presently in Bermuda, Early said.

The next joint meeting of the Authority and the Board is scheduled for Oct 14 at the old Newton Redevelopment Authority office in Lower Falls.

ments, is rest sufficient to see the city ough the of this fiscal year.
eading the Board through a list of nies to be coming in which, he said, ght easily result in the city's starting '78 with a $4 million surplus, Cohen oved to most people's satisfaction that all's recommendation of putting aside 00,000 of '77 income should be over-rned.

Earlier, in a Finance Committee recess meeting, Michael Lebner, the mayor's budget officer, termed Cohen's proposal "irresponsible."

Both Small and Cohen said they were trying to prevent the accumulation of a large surplus to be used as a political advantage by incumbents seeking reelection.

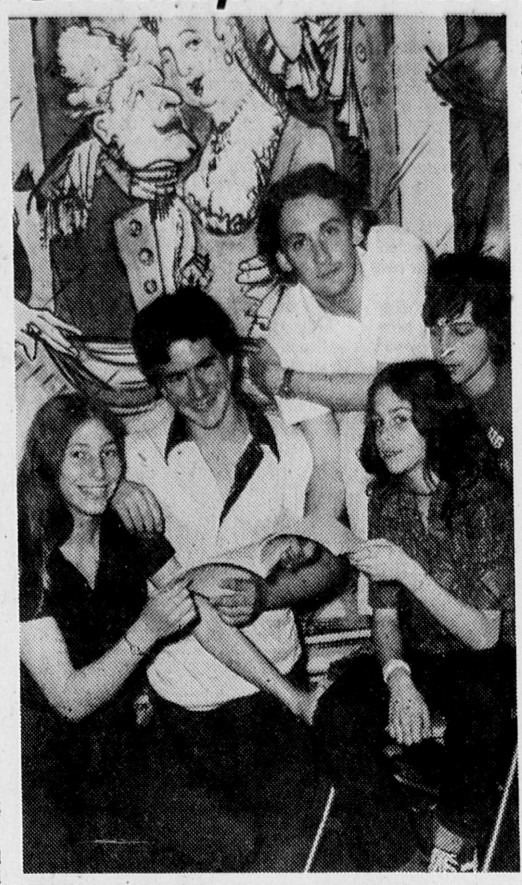

Both have said repeatedly that any benefit that can accrue to the taxpayers should be given here and now, not next year or the year after.

Traditionally voters are reputed to have short memories, and a cut in the tax rate has been a traditional means of impressing the electorate in an election year.

If voters' memories can retain the relatively small tax increase from now until next fall, Small, Cohen or both may use the fact if and when they run for mayor.

Cohen has been considering seeking election as mayor for a number of years, as have Small, at least three other aldermen, and a state representative.

'Greasepaint' cast includes veterans

Featured performers in the Newton Country Players' season opener, "The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd," include (from left) Liz Yoffe, Peter Levine, Paul Tines, Rachel Leavitt and Jay Massimo. Performances will be given for four weekends beginning Sept. 30. at Pomroy Playhouse, Newton Corner.

Two veteran juveniles of the Newton Country Players' stage, Jay Massimo of Waban and Peter Levine of Newton Highlands, and two new ingenues, Liz Yoffe of Newton Centre and Rachel Leavitt of Needham, assume the major roles in the Players' initial production of the season, "The Roar of the Greasepaint — The Smell of the Crowd."

The Broadway musical success, which will open the curtain on the Players' 21st year of community theater activity, is directed and choreographed by Paul Tines of Waltham, with Peter Sklar of Newton serving as musical director and pianist. Producers for the show are Belinda Annis of Newtonville and Renee Massimo of Waban.

With book, music and lyrics by Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley, and a cast comprised of Newton Country Players' Juniors, performances are scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 30, at 7:30 p.m., Friday and Saturday, Oct. 1-2, at 8 p.m., and a matinee on Sunday, Oct. 3, at 1:30 p.m. Donation is $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for youngsters under 16 years of age.

The production is available for programming at reduced rates to sponsor groups and theaterparties interested in fund raising, with alternate dates available, at the Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton, with its seating capacity of 200.

Tickets for "Roar of the Greasepaint" may be purchased in advance at Hubbard Drug Co., 425 Centre St., Newton Corner, or at Waban News. For information concerning individual membership or theater party sponsorship, phone Larry Morris at 244-8593 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Local women organizing Newton choral society

If you like to sing, how about joining the Newton Choral Society?

It doesn't exist yet, but two Newton women wonder why one can't exist and are willing to undertake getting a Newton community chorus together.

Marjorie Toledo and Barbara Chen, both musicians, hope there are at least 60 people in Newton who would prefer to sing with a Newton group instead of going to Boston or Wellesley or Framingham.

Newton has a symphonyand drama organizations —why not a choral group? There was one here about twenty years ago, they have learned, and they hope they can get a chorus together again.

As Ms. Chen and Ms. Toledo envision the chorus, people who enjoy singing would meet once a week. All serious singers would be welcome, even though they can't read music.

Marjorie Toledo is a voice teacher with a B.S. from Juilliard; Barbara Chen, who will be piano accompanist, has a B.A. from Taiwan Normal University and a bachelor's and master's degree from the Boston Conservatory of Music.

They are discussing the hoped-for choral society with just about everyone in the city who can help them get started — the Cultural Arts Commission, the All Newton Music School, for example — but they need the interest and support of the people will be doing the singing.

Those interested should call Marjorie Toledo at 965-0954 or Barbara Chen at 969-5061.

Hall say that the mayor is looking for someone to replace Waterman.

The Board of Aldermen passed a resolution requesting the Board of Assessors to submit in writing to the aldermen by Monday the criteria used for assessing large businesses and two- to four-family houses.

The latter amendment to the resolution was proposed by Ald. Robert Gaynor, who has felt that the assessment practice has been unfair to owners of small multifamily houses.

Ald. Robert Tennant, who cast the only vote opposed to the resolution, called it "outright discrimination against the Marriott."

Small has turned over to his lawyer the question of statements allegedly made by Leydon.

In other business the Board appropriated $68,000 to complete the purchase of the Bigelow House-Peabody School property in Oak Hill. Proposals are being reviewed for the disposition of the property.

Former Aldermen Michael Lipof was approved as a member of the Newton Free Library Board of Trustees until June 30, 1978.

A vote of "no action necessary" was taken on a petition for permissive use to build a 112-unit condominium on land at Nahanton and Winchester Streets, Ward 8. The companion petition, a request for a change of zone from Residence A to Residence E, has been held by the Land Use Committee, and another public hearing will be scheduled.

An amendment to the zoning ordinances to provide for control of home offices for doctors and other professionals and for recognized home occupations will have a public hearing Nov. 8.

'The Innocents' leaves us in the lurch

BY RANDY MUDARRI
Graphic theater critic

Boston's 1976-77 theater season has opened with a thud.

The suspense in "The Innocents" that builds and builds ultimately leads to nowhere.

"The Innocents" is adapted from Henry James' "The Turn of the Screw." An English governess tries to save two orphaned children from evil spirits. Add one frightened housekeeper and two dead, frustrated servants, and the cast is complete for the mounting mystery.

To director Harold Pinter's credit, the mystery does mount. Eerie musical sound effects (by Harold Birtwistle) accompany the presence of either of the dead servants, and equally haunting lighting (by Neil Peter Jampolis) lends a spooky atmosphere to the Victorian drawingroom set by John Lee Beatty.

As scenes pass, this story of the supernatural strengthens its grip on the audience. To this point, "The Innocents" is superb.

One must understand that in this 1950 adaptation, William Archibald has committed himself to an interpretation of the book as he sees it.

Actually, as one reads the book, one wonders whether the dead servants' visages that Miss Bolton, the governess, sees are simply her own hallucinations or are actually present.

The other characters, the children Flora and Miles and the housekeeper Mrs. Grose, do not react to the dead servants' "appearances." Thus, if they are simply hallucinations, the other characters really do not see them. Yet, if in one's interpretation the dead servants are actually present, then the other characters' ignoring them takes on a different meaning.

This adaptation contrasts Miss Bolton's acknowlegement of the dead servants with the children's and Mrs. Grose's nonchalance. One's anticipation of a great climax is unrealized. It is this failure that negates any previous emotional effect or buildup and the audience feels cheated.

The acting is very good.

Claire Bloom as Miss Bolton is cool, calm and as collected as can be expected. This steady performance anchors the rest of the cast.

Pauline Flanagan as Mrs. Grose spices the mystery with her seeming nonchalance. Flora, the young girl, is played by a perky Sarah Jessica Parker in a manner in which, once again, the audience does not know whether to accept her innocence at face value or whether she's diabolically up to something beneath the surface.

The young boys, Miles, is played by Michael MacKay in a snotty style that prevents him from effectively interacting with the rest of the cast.

The dead servants are played by Dino Laudicina and Catherine Wolf. The ending, which left the play's potential unfulfilled, and in which Miles slumping to the floor leaves the audience wondering whether he's fainted or dead, ruins what Pinter's direction had theretofore built.

After the first blackout or two, the audience was buzzing with anticipation. Unfortunately, we were disappointed.

"The Innocents" is playing at the Colonial Theater in Boston through Oct. 2.

Newton Symphony announces auditions

Auditions for string positions in the Newton Symphony Orchestra will be held on Sunday, Sept. 26, at 2 p.m. at Meadowbrook Junior High School.

Now preparing for its 11th concert season, the search for additional instrumentalists assumes great significance this year according to Gary Good, Newton Symphony Orchestra manager.

"Our 11th anniversary program will consist of a number of significant works from the standard classical repertory, "he said, "and, in addition, we will be performing with some distinguished soloists."

Good pointed out that openings remain in the string sections for qualified players. The orchestra is composed of a largely part-time group of players whose full-time activities as students, housewives, doctors, business men and teachers make participation in the orchestra a "true labor of love."

The Newton Symphony Orchestra concerts will consist of a regular series of three performances, a special Youth Concert, and a performance in Jordan Hall.

Rehearsals are scheduled to fit the convenience of the people involved, and most instrumentalists remain with the orchestra for years, Good added.

Auditions will be conducted by Michel Sasson, musical director of the Newton Symphony Orchestra. Prospective members are urged to attend the auditions and to bring their instruments and any musical selection they have prepared. Sightreading will also be part of the auditions.

Fixing North High to cost $1 million?

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

No good news was heard by any of the 150 persons who attended the School Committee meeting Monday to hear about Newton North High School's ventilation problems that have plagued the school during the three years it has been open.

The city's public building commissioner, Gene Larson, said it will take him three months to study a two-inch thick report on the school before he recommends a refurbishing project that will cost about $1 million.

Newton North English teacher George Bower of Newtonville read a petition from 198 teachers which questioned the safety of a building where "by Tuesday afternoon of each week the air is stagnant, dirty, and bone dry."

Richard Adams, Beals housemaster and vice-president of the Newton Teachers Association, said official grievances are being compiled concerning the health standards of the school.

Roy Cornelius, director of Support Services for the School Department, said, "Short term changes are not worthwhile," noting that the 15-month study found problems in one area caused by short term solutions in other areas, such as putting in new windows and fans.

The $150,000 report by the Balco, Inc., a private engineering firm specializing in heating, ventilation, and air conditioning (HVAC), includes details on each of the several ventilation systems that are interconnected.

The report suggested testing room 2505 for carbon dioxide and ozone. Virginia Fano, the science teacher in that room, said at the end of the early part of the meeting for public comment that she had been trying to get the Health Department to test the room.

After writing about 30 letters, she said she finally had a test made by someone from a labor safety council, but never was informed of the results.

Health Commissioner J. Carolyn Zavaarine said Tuesday she was aware of the problems in the school and was

Parking garage may be built free

Underground parking at Newton Centre?

Yes, say Ald. Eliot Cohen and Newton Centre businessmen.

Maybe, say the Public Buildings and City Planning committees.

No, say at least one group of Newton Centre residents.

Cohen wants to take advantage of a new federal public works act that would, if Newton is successful in its application, pay for the whole project.

Accordingly, he has submitted a resolution to the Board of Aldermen that asks the mayor to request money for drawing up plans for the garage.

According to Cohen, the garage would be underground from the easterly end of the Newton Centre triangle bounded by Langley Road, Beacon Street, and Center Street.

The total height of the structure would not increase over the ground level as it is now, and a small park with benches could be built over the underground garage.

The capacity of cars would be about double that of the single-level parking lot that now occupies the land. Some parking would stay at street level.

The new federal act, which has not yet been funded, would require almost breakneck speed in having plans drawn, reviewed by the Design Review Committee, presented at public hearings and passed through other possible stages.

The act, designed to give immediate relief to areas of unemployment, require application within 60 days after 30 days after enactment. If approved, the work must begin in 90 days and be completed within 18 months.

Planning Director Charles Thomas commented that such fast action by the various city agencies and officials might not be desirable. "It would be difficult to do appropriately in the short time allowed " he said. '

Cohen acknowledged that the project might not be able to make the deadlines, but reasoned that even so, the plans, which might cost around $30,000, would still be usable for construction of the garage financed by a city bond issue.

Cohen feels that there is little doubt that the facility is needed.

But members of the Newton Centre Neighborhood Assn. don't agree. Southard Lippincott of Tyler Terrace said the association is opposed because the need for additional parking has not been proved, the group wants no expansion of

McGrath won't try sticker run

State Rep. Richard McGrath will accept his defeat in the Democratic primary election and has decided not to run on stickers in the general election.

McGrath lost the primary by 176 votes to A. Joseph DeNucci.

McGrath said this week that "all the ingredients turned up favorably" is his assessment of his chances to defeat DeNucci in the 16th District race, but the cost would be exorbitant.

A political consulting firm estimated that it would cost between $5000 and $7000 to run a campaign just to educate voters in the technique of using stickers in the voting machines. McGrath would need additional money for normal campaign expenses and advertising.

McGrath commented that in his opinion the victory of DeNucci, who is almost certain to win in November, has had a great influence on the upcoming redistricting of House districts to accommodate the 1978 cut in membership of the House.

He said that the redistricting, which is still being worked out but is nearly complete, has been engineered to give DeNucci the north side of the city plus some of Waltham, thereby eliminating the district now represented by McGrath's close friend, Rep. Peter Harrington.

The rest of the city will probably be split between Reps. David Mofenson and Lois Pines, with Mofenson taking the southwest side and Pines the center of the city, McGrath predicted.

With Mofenson's surprise support and endorsement of DeNucci, McGrath said, "Mofenson has done what VOICE and Teddy Mann have been unable to do, but he did it in a way I didn't expect."

VOICE is conservative political group.

Mofenson this week acknowledged that his endorsement of DeNucci had been unknown to McGrath and had represented a switch from his earlier position of endorsing neither candidate, but denied that redistricting is complete.

As far as he knows, Mofenson said, no definite decision has been made on new Newton districts.

Marriott and other business taxes to be investigated

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Under threat by the Marriott Hotel to initiate court action to protect the confidentiality of its financial data, the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen Monday night voted to investigate assessing practices utilized for abatements on income-producing properties.

Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small has been questioning the reasons for the drop in real estate taxes paid by the Marriott and criticizing the Board of Assessors for giving the Marriott abatements.

The Marriott, built in 1969 at a cost of about $10 million, paid $285,710 in 1970, $356,093 in 1971, $618,204 in 1972, and $679,938 in 1973.

Beginning in 1973, the Marriott asked for and received abatements on its real estate tax bill, so that the tax bill has remained under $700,000.

Taxes for 1976 were abated by $159,000, resulting in a total real estate tax of $572,400, and taxes for FY 1977, bills for which are about to be mailed, will be $608,000.

Small and Board President Joseph McDonnell appear outraged that while tax bills for all Newton residences have gone up yearly because of the increase in the tax rate, the Marriott's tax bills have often decreased.

Small blames the assessors for being too easily intimidated into granting abatements to the Marriott. McDonnell says the abatements should not have been granted, and if the Marriott did not feel the tax was fair it could go to the appellate tax board to seek relief.

Several aldermen have asked for profit figures from the Newton Marriott operation, which corporation executives attending the Finance Committee meeting Monday said are either impossible to provide or are trade secrets, the divulging of which would be helpful to competitors.

Attorney Richard Lovell, representing the Marriott here, said his client would probably go to court to resist any effort

Recreation Dept. eyes Novitiate

BY PRISCILLA LEITH
Graphic correspondent

The Newton Recreation Department may be a potential bidder for the St. Joseph Novitiate buildings and playfields.

Recreation Commissioner Russell Halloran is reportedly very interested in the Novitiate facilities as sites for Recreation Department programs.

The Recreation Commission and other city agencies interested in the proposed Novitiate Park will coordinate plans with the Newton Conservators.

The Recreation Commission's cautious but positive response to a Conservators appeal Monday night came just as the Conservation Commission moved toward supporting full acquisition of the Novitiate site.

Since the Newton Conservators began their drive for city acquisition two months ago, 250 people have seen the 60-acre parcel and everyone loves it, says Joan Lerner, who is leading the tours.

Over 1,000 people have signed petitions so far, she added.

The Conservators will continue to gather signatures through October and deliver them to city officials, she added.

The overwhelming public support is no surprise to Ms. Lerner and other members of the Conservators' open space committee who spearheaded the drive.

They point to Newton, Massachusetts: 1975 Population and Opinion Profile, a document published by the the Department of Planning and Development, as proof that Newtonites are solidly behind buying more land for open space preservation.

That report, culled from city census questionnaires, reveals that a whopping 84 percent of city residents want land purchased for conservation purposes.

Within this 84 percent a ranking of preferences indicated that most (28 percent) want highest priority to go to "acquisition of open space for the purpose of preservation of the natural en-

Moment of silence to start school day

All Newton public school students will soon begin each day in school with a moment of silence that can be used for prayer or meditation.

The School Committee unanimously voted to comply with the state law which requires up to one minute of silence each day at the beginning of school.

An advisory opinion from the legal office of the State Department of Education noting the constitutionality of the state statute was the key document for complying with the law. Two weeks ago the motion to comply was tabled until the advisory opinion was made.

School Committeeman Robert Cohen, who urged compliance two weeks ago, noted there is nothing compulsory about the statute besides the requirement of silence.

Cohen said, "Students can meditate, or pray, or think about the Red Sox or Patriots or sex."

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink was in the process of sending a memo to all principals and teachers ordering the silent moment at the beginning of the day.

School Committeewoman Honora Kaplan was concerned about disciplinary action for minor infractions of the requirement for silence, but was assured when the superintendent said he would send out a memo quoting the advisory opinion.

The advisory opinion by General Counsel Sandra Lynch quoted from the three-judge United States District Court that upheld the state law.

A group of Framingham parents challenged the statute when it was enforced in schools there in January of this year. It has been a law since 1966.

Counsel Lynch writes, "In sum, a school system may only require its students to remain silent without activity for a one-minute period at the commencement of the first class.

"A school system may not require its students to pray or meditate, nor prohibit them from doing so silently during this period," she said.

The law "is entitled to presumptive validity, its constitutionality has been upheld, and so it should be treated as are all other state laws," she concluded.

The state law, Chapter 71, Section 1A, reads as follows: "At the commencement of the first class of each day in all public schools the teacher in charge of the room in which each such class is held shall announce that a period of silence not to exceed one minute in duration shall be observed fro meditation or prayer, and during any such period silence shall be maintained and no activities shall be engaged in."

Register to vote

To vote in the Nov. 2 election, Newton residents must register by Oct. 5.

The Election Commission office at City Hall will conduct voter registration today (Thursday) and Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturday, Oct. 2, from noon to 10 p.m.; Monday, Oct. 4, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Tuesday, Oct. 5, from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission, says that voter registration will probably be more than 90 percent in Newton by the end of the registration period.

Cohen asks Fink 32 Metco questions

School Committee member Robert Cohen was joined by several other members of the Committee in asking the superintendent of schools a three-page list of 32 questions about Metco.

Cohen presented the questionnaire to Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink during an executive session Monday night which he, Cohen, had voted against holding.

Metco Coordinator Katherine Jones, who will has resigned effective Oct. 15, said Tuesday she had no knowledge of the questionnaire.

The questionnaire asks about the selection of Metco students, any commitment made to them for completing 12 grades of education in Newton, their progress compared to Newton students, and any racial tensions in the schools.

Cohen had incorporated all suggestions for improving the questionnaire made by six other Committee members before submitting it to Fink.

Cohen said, "It is not going to be an easy questionnaire to answer. It is intended to be something constructive."

He expects to get answers to financial and instructional questions that have concerned him and other members, and put an end to some rumors that have been circulating.

Superintendent Fink said, "I assume this reflects the interest of the School Committee. I will answer it to the best of my ability' as quickly as I can."

The questionnaire also asks the superintendent about disciplining Metco students, the process for transfering a Metco student to another school or class, what complaints have been made, if any, about Metco students receiving special treatment, how many Metco students have been terminated and why, and what proportion of Metco and Newton students receive special education services called for by Chapter 766.

Cohen also wants to know about any black student lounges, whether Metco students are ever sent home by cab, and if any classes have been divided because of Metco students.

He says he has reasons to believe the answer to the last question is yes.

The Metco staff in Newton is currently short a counselor and a psychologist. The jobs were offered back to Charlayne Murrell and Juan Lovelace when the School Committee approved the Metco budget in September, but they had already taken other positions.

Louis Tiant signs tonight at Watertown Mall

Louis Tiant, well-known Red Sox pitcher, will be appearing at the Paperback Booksmith in the new Watertown Mall Thursday, Sept. 30, from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m.

He will be signing autographs for his new book called "El Tiante."

Joe Fitzgerald, writer of that book and "The Championship Feeling," will be joining Tiant at the mall. Fans are reminded to bring Red Sox baseballs and tee shirts for "El Tiante" to sign.

ERA

Leaders of the ERA information forum held last week in Day Junior High School (from left) were: State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton), Sonya Hamlin, director of public information for the Committee to Ratify the Massachusetts Equal Rights Amendment, and Ann Kendall, chairwoman of the committee.

ERA backers sponsor rally at Day Jr. High

An estimated 200 people were at Day Junior High School last week for an appearance by Sonya Hamlin in support of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

The ERA for Massachusetts will be Question 1 on the November ballot.

The evening at Davis School was sponsored by the Newton Committee to Ratify the State Equal Rights Amendment and the League of Women Voters.

Ms. Hamilin was introduced to the audience by State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton), who initiated the proposed amendment to the state constitution in the House Massaschusetts Legislature.

The amendment reads: "Equality under the law shall not be denied or abridged because of sex, race, color, creed or national origin."

Ms. Hamlin stressed that the purpose of the Mass. ERA is to grant people equal protection under the law.

"What it will do," she explained, "is ensure that similar people will be treated similarly in similar situations."

"It will not, and can not, affect private business, private industry, private eduacation or private behavior," she added. "It will not force anyone into a situation she finds personally unacceptable or undesirable. It will affect only state actions, state labor laws, education and employment."

Asked why she felt the ERA was a necessity, Ms. Hamlin responded:

"We need the amendment for reinforcement because it's obvious that the laws haven't always been obeyed. You don't need laws and amendments for things people want to do innately. Without the ERA, the courts have no legal basis for enforcing statutes already on the books.

"And laws against discrimination have been used mainly in cases of racial, not sex, discrimination. people equal rights, widowers whose wives had worked would have received their wives' social security benefits, but they didn't.

"Wage-earning women would have no problems obtaining credit or renting an apartment and women who are homemakers would own half the property in their homes; but they don't.

"Right now in Massachusetts, anything acquired during the marriage belongs to the one who paid for it, the house, the furniture, the washing machine; not the one who takes care of it."

She also pointed out that the ERA will enable Massachusetts to set up guidelines on what constitutes an act of discrimination .

"Think of it as a backbone, a legal and moral affirmation that says, We in Massachusetts don,t believe in discrimination for any reason, and from now on, we won't put up with it!'"

Oak Hill man drowned in Chestnut Hill pond

An Oak Hill man with a history of heart disease was found dead in Hammond Pond last Thursday at 9 a.m.

A boy fishing discovered the body of Paul G. Dell, 70, of 185 Spiers Rd., Oak Hill, in about eight inches of water at the Chestnut Hill pond.

Middlesex County Medical Examiner Dr. Nathaniel Brackett said the cause of death was drowning, but it is possible that the Dell had a heart attack.

"He had really bad heart disease," Dr. Brackett said.

Dr. Brackett said the man had been seen walking around the pond that day and there is no reason why he fell into or went into the water.

Sgt. John Bakey of the Metropolitan District Police said that Dell was found 200 to 300 feet from a rock used to practice climbing, and about 500 feet from the R.H. Stearns parking lot.

Newton Police Officers James P. Akins, Jr., and William F. DeFlorio tried to revive the man en route to Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

He was declared dead upon arrival.

She was charged with speeding, failing to stop for a traffic signal, operating to endanger, refusing to stop for a police officer, and assault with a dngerous weapon, to wit an automobile.

Police Officers Diana C. White and Vincent Dennis first spotted the green Cadillac El Dorado at the corner of Parker Street and Wheeler Road Saturday night at about 9:30 p.m.

The officers stopped the car on Wheeler Road but the operator sped off when the pair got out of the cruiser police said.

A chase followed on Wheeler Road, Meadowbrook Road, east on Dedham Street, and north on Walnut Street.

Three times the cruiser pulled up to the side of the speeding car, but each time the driver swerved toward the cruiser, forcing it to drop back police allege.

Sgt. Frank Gorgone and Officer Lynda Glenn joined in the pursuit in another cruiser and helped stop the car at the corner of Walnut and Boylston streets.

Officers White and Dennis stopped their cruiser in front of the Cadillac and walked toward the driver when the suspect allegedly put the car into gear, forcing White to jump on top of the hood.

Officer Dennis then opened the driver's door and put the car into park.

The arrest followed, but the woman failed to appear for the arraignment in Newton District Court Monday morning.

A Newton Highlands man was arrested Monday afternoon on charges of being a disorderly person and assault and battery on a police officer following an incident in a restaurant.

Police responded to a call for an ambulance at 5:35 p.m. the Highland Restaurant, 15 Lincoln St., Newton Highlands, to help a man who had been stretched out across some stools for two and a half hours.

When Officer Robert Hill asked the man what was wrong, he allegedly spit in the officer's face, began using abusive language, and fought with the officer on the floor of the restaurant.

After about 10 minutes Hill arrested Robert J. Collier, 24, of 924 Walnut St., Newton Highlands, for assault and battery on a police officer and disorderly conduct.

Temple robbed following High Holy day service

After the High Holy Day celebrations at Temple Beth Avodah, 45 Puddingstone Lane, Newton Centre' some thieves apparently decided to decorate their apartment, according to some police speculation.

The temple was broken into between 5 p.m., Saturday, and 8:30 a.m., Sunday, and a large amount of electronic equipment and furniture was taken.

Stolen from the main sanctuary were four 2- by 4-foot speakers, an organ amplifier, a slide projector, and two microphones.

Also missing from offices were a 5-foot long brown and white couch, a vacuum cleaner, a light from the bride's room, and a light from the rabbi's study.

Found outside the temple by police were a man's full-length coat, a black leather glove, and a pair of wire cutters.

Entrance was gained by breaking a 2-foot by 7-foot glass on the side of the building.

Ice cream vendor fights 500-ft. law

Eli Sherer, 17, an entrepreneur who won a fight last summer to have ice cream declared not a meal and therefore not subject to the 8 percent state meals tax, is back again.

This time he is objecting to the city ordinance that prevents ice cream trucks from parking within 500 feet of of playgrounds and from ringing their bells. He operates an ice cream truck.

The Leqislation & Rules Committee of the Board of Alder men did not act on the matter, and it appears that Sherer will not be as fortunate with the city as he was with the state.

The Recreation Commission, which was also meeting at City Hall, voted in agreement with Ald. Donald Budge that perhaps some method could be worked out to allow ice cream and other vending trucks to obtain a special permit to park adjacent to playgrounds for special events.

The Recreation Commission opinion is purely advisory.

Some people feel that allowing ice cream trucks to park nearer playgrounds would eliminate the safety hazard posed by children running across the street to buy ice cream.

Others feel that danger would be increased by the presence of ice cream trucks.

In other business, the Legislation & Rules Committee voted to approve an increase in the cost of an auctioneer's license to the $15 permitted by state law.

No action was taken on a proposed amendment from Ald. Terry Morris to ban the holding of another administrative position in the executive branch of government by the chief of the Fire Department.

This proposal is still under discussion witht the city solicitor, who has given a preliminary opinion that apparently such a prohibition would be illegal.

Library hasn't given up on junior college site

Consideration will be given to a proposal from the Library Trustees for use of some of the surplus Newton Junior College land.

In spite of a recommendation from the committee set up to determine the best use of surplus municipal property — that no Newton Junior College land be reserved for a possible new main library — the Library Trustees argued that the library should be given equal consideration with other developers.

The "core committee" studying uses of municipal property has recommended that the land of the defunct junior college be developed for residential, commercial, or office use, or a combination of these uses. Requests for proposals are expected to be issued in the near future.

A commitment was given in the core committee report that other city land would be given to the Library Trustees when they can demonstrate the potential for raising some of the money for a new library.

After pleas from the Library Trustees, the matter was returned to the core committee for reconsideration, and the same recommendation was made.

Planning Director Charles Thomas is known to prefer a location in a purely commercial district, either the business area of Newtonville or in Newton Centre.

City Planning Committee Chairman Terry Morris said this week that the Library Trustees had not really considered Newton Centre.

In the whole matter of disposition of the Newton Junior College property, the City Planning Committee voted 3-2 in favor of accepting the decision against Newton Junior College land for library use, and 5-0 on future development of the land, including the creation of two house lots at the end of Claflin Place to be offered for sale for residential development.

Crime rate down 14% in 8-month comparison

Crime in Newton has decreased 14.4 percent from January to August, 1976, compared to the same period last year, according to recently released figures from the Newton Police Department.

A joint statement issued by Mayor Theodore Mann and Police Chief William Quinn says they are pleased with the decrease, "but are not satisfied while any negative statistics exist."

Statistics for the eight months compared to the same eight months last year show reductions in crimes of murder, rape, burglary, larceny, and auto theft, and aggravated assault (when the threat of violence causes one to flee, often with a deadly weapon).

These decreases were offset by increases in the crimes of armed and unarmed robbery and unaggravated assault.

Not computed in 14.4 percent reduction were increases in the number of arrests for assault and battery on police officers an4 operating under the influence.

Chief Quinn noted that the reduction in serious crime has been continuous for three years althouqh statistics from the Federal Bureau of Investigation show a yearly rise in suburban communities generally.

The chief attributed the reduced crime rate to alert residents who have called police when seeing suspicious persons and happenings.

Chief Quinn cited six factors that have helped keek citizens alert and help reduce crime.

They are the local cooperative press and radio news, the Crime Prevention Commission appointed by the mayor, and the auxiliary police force whose volunteers assist in many ways.

Despite the 14.4 percent reduction in crime, Chief Quinn said, "The remaining figures are still too high.

"We have too many burglaries where entrance was gained through unlocked doors and windows, too many at which the householder was in the back yard with the front door open, and too many where the cellar or garage door was unlocked," the chief said.

Following is a list of crimes with the figure from the first eight months of last, the first eight months of this year, and the percentage increase or decrease

Murder, 1, 0, down 100 percent.

Forcible rape, 4, 2, down 50 percent.

Attempted rape, 0, 0, no change.

Armed robbery, 15, 24, up 60 percent.

Unarmed robbery, 10, 13, up 30 percent.

Aggravated assault (with a weapon or enough force or the threat of force to cause one to flee or suffer severe bodily injury), 64, 33, down 48 percent.

Unaggravated assault , 83, 92, up 10.8 percent.

Burglary, 752, 645, down 14.2 percent.

Attempted breaking and entering, 108, 103, down 4.6 percent.

Larceny, 1401, 1132, down 19.2 percent.

Auto theft, 457, 307, down 32.8 percent.

The total of the above crimes is 2,895, 2,478, down 14.4 percent.

The number of arrests for driving under the influence for persons over 21 rose from 39 to 55, up 41 percent' and for persons under 21 the arrests rose 25 to 28, up 12 percent.

Convicted bank robber serves sentence in Atlanta

A man convicted of robbing a Newton Cenre bank in March, 1975, is serving a 25-year sentence in Atlanta, Ga.

rancis Spencer Rossi, 33, of Castle Court, East Boston, is serving part of that time for his escape from the Norfolk County House of Correction in Dedham on Aug. 15, 1975.

In addition, Newton police have a warrant for his arrest in connection with the $70,000 robbery of the Old Colony Coin Shop on Feb. 5, 1974, at 78 Bowers St., Newtonville.

Newton Det. Leonard Farrell said the arrest of Rossi may solve several crimes in the region.

"He was related to quite a few holdups in New England," Det. Farrel said of Rossi.

About 60 coins and four valuable watches were found in the possession of Rossi when he was arrested Sept. 21, 1975, in Albany, N.Y., following his escape from the Dedham jail.

Det. Farrel said the police also have identified a second suspect in connection with the coin store robbery in which the owner was handcuffed at about noontime.

U.S. District Judge James L. Watson also sentenced three men from the Greater Boston area in connection with the prison escape in which Rossi climbed a wall and drove away in a car left for him.

Rossi was sentenced for the March 4, 1975, bank robbery of $12,000 from the Community National Bank, on 15 Cypress St., Newton Centre.

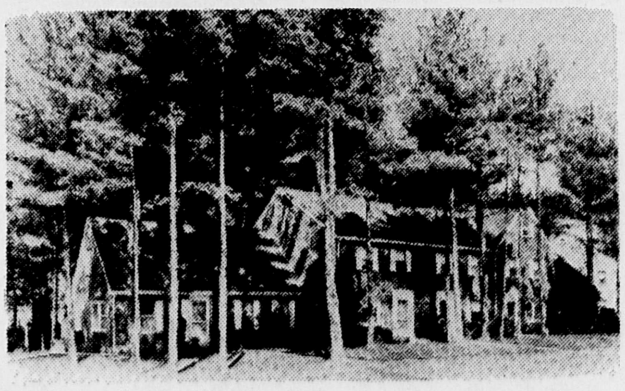

After that robbery four persons in Newton Centre were held hostage and their car was used by the to escape to Boston.

The ban of throwaways

If one were to pick the most controversial questions, which will appear on the Massachusetts ballot in the Nov. 2 Presidential election, the likely nominees would be the suggested graduated state income tax, the Equal Rights Amendment or perhaps even the gun-control proposal.

So far, however, the sharpest conflict appears to be centered on an initiative petition which would ban non-returnable beverage bottles and cans. Arguments are being advanced both in support of and in opposition to such a law.

A few items can be reported, about which there is no dispute.

1. Americans consume an incredible amount of soft drinks. 2. Last year they threw away an estimated 60 billion bottles and cans which account for about half the nation's litter and cost approximately $250 million to clean up.

Supporters of the move for a ban on non-returnable bottles and cans point out that the present system of throwing away containers, most of them with pop-up tops, represents a tremendous waste of energy and materials.

They maintain that eventually we will run out of space on which to dump the discarded bottles and cans and that many persons are not at all particular about where they toss their empty beer cans or soft drink containers.

Opponents of the measure cite that the manufacturers of the flip-top cans and bottles provides many jobs. The greater number of cans and bottles used, the more jobs are available to make them, they add.

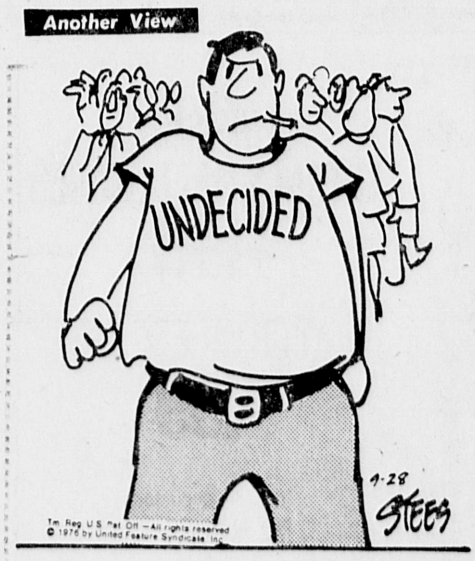

But supporters of the proposal reply that we're wasting materials and energy and encouraging litter.

In answer to the claim that a ban on non-returnable bottles and cans would cause a loss of jobs, supporters of the initiative petition declare that a similar law in Oregon resulted in a net gain of almost 400 jobs. There was, of course, a dislocation of people who had been making throw-away cans and a transition in which they shifted to different employment.

They also suggest that the ban would achieve a saving of 100,000 barrels of oil per day.

The container industry has spent millions of dollars in a lobbying effort to block any ban on non-returnable bottles and cans. That was reflected last June when a bill to require deposits on bottles and ban the manufacture of flip-top cans was defeated in the U.S. Senate by a vote of 60 to 26

Perspectives

The first debate

Memorable when the power went off

Commentary by Mary McGrory

PHILADELPHIA — There was one unprogrammed moment in the debate, which was then 45 minutes old and sagging, when Jimmy Carter suddenly spoke from life instead of from the briefing books which held him and Gerald Ford in thrall.

The President had given his stock answer, in defending his veto of a jobs bill, that a record number of Americans are employed.

Jimmy Carter recalled a Pennsylvania campaign crowd of some four or five thousand. He had asked how many were without jobs and a thousand had raised their hands.

"Mr. Ford can't seem to put in perspective that these are human beings," he said, with something like real feeling. "A 7.9 unemployment rate is a terrible tragedy." He accused Ford of "insensitivity."

The Carter people mourned later, during the post-mortems that raged all night in the lobbies and bars of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, that he hadn't talked like that in the opening round, when, plainly nervous, he had rattled off a low-voiced recital of programs he had in mind.

He and Gerald Ford had come into the Walnut Street Theater, both wearing dark suits and unfortunate ties, determined to land certain punches.

Ford wanted to accuse Carter of Waffling, and he did, coming out of his corner in a rush: "I don't believe he has been any more specific than he has been in other instances ... He hasn't endorsed the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, which is part of the Democratic platform."

But Carter was, as a matter of fact, as forthcoming with the statistics and the plans as Ford.

Carter wanted to paint Ford as a do-nothing president, and he managed to say, "He has not accomplished one single major program for this country."

What Carter really wanted to prove was that Ford was incompetent. But Ford did not oblige with a single blunder — except in his summation, when he said that "our children are the victims of mass education."

But they were both too tethered to their briefing books and their game plans to give much life to the proceedings.

On the only two emotional issues raised, amnesty and the Nixon pardon, Ford was too wooden and Carter too cautious to raise any sparks.

One of the panel members, Frank Reynolds, asked why Ford had not been as merciful to the young men who evaded or fled Vietnam as he had been to Richard Nixon.

Ford replied that he had given the draft resisters a chance and Carter made a perfunctory reply about how difficult it was for Ford to explain the equation, laboriously repeated his contention that his pardon for draft evaders is not amnesty and slid off into a discussion of crime and unequal justice.

Ford made an inconclusive assault on the Democratic Congress, which he intends to make the enemy. He said that Congress was "hiring people by the droves" and was further spending too much money on itself and "there is some question about their morality."

Actually, the body English of the two men was as interesting as anything they said to each other in the ice-cold theater before an audience of 500 people.

Carter stood with his arms folded. Ford gripped the edge of his little lectern.

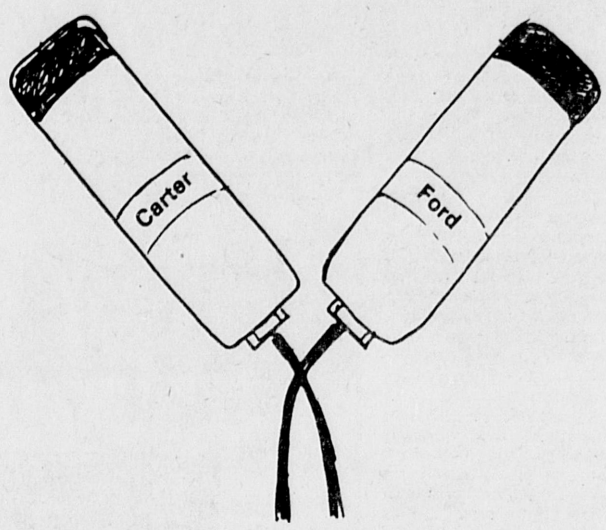

While Ford spoke, Carter looked straight ahead. While Carter spoke, Ford never took his eyes off him. Even while the President was taking notes, he kept his eyes glued on his rival, as if he expected some unexpected move.

The only unexpected thing that occurred was the failure of the sound system, a mysterious mortification.

Jimmy Carter was just beginning to explain what was wrong with the FBI and the CIA.

"One of the most serious things," he said, and his mouth kept moving but no sound came out.

The most serious thing of all had occurred. The sound system failed. It was not possible. The tackiest talk show in the world is free from such humiliation. But is was happening.

The two candidates, separated by 10 feet, began to endure the cruelest fate which can befall a politician at the height of a campaign. They were subjected to immobilization and speechlessness. They had nobody to talk to but each other.

It was a marvelous opportunity to discuss their differences, or even pass the time of day. Neither knew what to do. They occasionally stole a glance at each other. But somehow their glances, like the debate itself, never locked.

The gap was to go on for 28 minutes. The audience, which had been forbidden to applaud, clapped when Jimmy Carter finally sat down on the high stool behind his lectern. Gerald Ford also had what the managers called "the stool capability" — he had protested against it — but he felt called upon to stand. He perhaps wanted to show his superior stamina or perhaps he merely wished to show that he is taller than Jimmy Carter.

When the power was restored and they both had made their closing remarks, affability was restored as well. Carter's wife rushed up to kiss him and he introduced her to the President, who was all cordiality. He told Carter he looked forward to seeing him again at the next debate.

Each side thought the other had done unexpectedly well — Ford without fluffs, Carter with specifics. But the most memorable thing about the first debate was when it was not going on.

Not one trace of humor from the candidates

Commentary by William F. Buckley

Listening to the debate, I thought back to an article on the Nixon-Kennedy debates by P.G. Wodehouse 16 years ago. He couldn't quite believe that two urbane men had got through two entire hours without a trace of wit or humor escaping from either of them. I dunno, maybe it is dangerous, when running for president, to do that kind of thing. Raymond Moley was asked breathlessly in the spring of 1956 how did he account for Estes Kefauver's beating Adlai Stevenson in the primary in Minneapolis. He replied, "Did you ever try to tell a joke in Minneapolis?"

Besides, poor Jimmy Carter was visibly strained. During the week he had made so many misjudgements, the viewers were tempted to think it was he who had arranged the microphone system for the debates. He wasn't going to take any chances. That's why he kept coming back to the cliches. The cliches of populism: the big and the strong and the rich are the enemy. They should be brought to heel, and made poor and weak like everybody else. That's equality.

In a debate, when pressed, the technique is to fall back on cliches that have stood the test of time. Crawl back to their ample bosom, hug it hard, and hope for the best. It is the equivalent of the clinch in boxing. Jimmy Carter had, at the hands of Mr. Ford, a relatively easy time of it in the sense that Mr. Ford, for reasons unknown and unfathomable, let Congress go for what seemed forever. The debate, which began at 9:30 EDT, had stretched to 10:37 EDT before Ford made a single mention of the responsibility of Congress for the tax code.

This was so obviously the favorite hunting ground of Jimmy Carter, one wondered why Mr. Ford took so long to say it. The tax laws are certainly subject to criticism (though not so much of the kind Jimmy Carter chooses to criticise them for); the authors of the tax laws should be identified. They are primarily Democrats. The last American President who went on the air to beg for what Mr. Carter would call a "pro-business tax break" was John F. Kennedy, followed by Lyndon Johnson, stressing the need for an investment tax credit. It was a Republican President — Nixon — who presided over its brief repeal. And a Democratic Congress, frightened by the results of its repeal, who reinstated it. A recent beneficiary of it was — Jimmy Carter.

Mr. Ford is too genteel to have turned to Mr. Carter to ask whether he, Carter, was one of those rich powerful men who had benefited from the tax laws. Because indeed Mr. Carter did. He spread out his income over four years, helped himself to the investment tax credit — and ended by paying $17,484 on $136,926 of income. Some of us do not judge these data to be shocking. But they would certainly shock Jimmy Carter, to judge from his recent rhetoric.

Mr. Ford has no appetite for the generic arguments. He is satisfied to talk about his own recommendations for relief from taxation, and his determination to keep down the cost of government. It is a pity that he is not prepared to say that the United States is the land of opportunity, and a land of opportunity is a land in which people are free even to become rich — like Jimmy Carter, Averell Harriman, LBJ, Joe Kennedy, FDR, — and George Washington.

But in the absence of this, he was effective in holding up to scorn Mr. Carter's own record. For all Mr. Carter's talk about economizing the cost of government, and restructuring the bureaucracy, in fact he proved to be an expansive bureaucrat, who hugely increased the state budget and the number of employees hired by the state. Jimmy Carter's response that the expansion in the number of employees was in the number of activists rather than bureaucrats seemed entirely evasive. The distinction was lost.

The conflicting figures are accepted resignedly by listeners at these things. Carter said the White House had increased in overhead from about four million dollars to about 60 million dollars under Nixon. One dismisses this as inherent nonesense. Carter said Ford had vetoed more than any president in history, and Ford came back showing that FDR had used the veto more often. Carter didn't press the point. It all blurs in the memory. It was an ungalvanized exchange.

But Ford stood his ground, and that is the psychological critical datum.

"BETTY!"

Carter's off-the-cuff style wears thin

By Gus Tyler

NEW YORK — Jimmy Carter's free-and-easy style of answering questions publicly may cause him unanticipated trouble. In the primaries, Carter's off-the-cuff comments were allowed to stand as such because he was not being pursued by mortal foes ready to tear him apart for the slightest inaccuracy.

But in the post-convention campaign, Carter's most minute slips are bound to be expanded and exploited by his Republican opponents. Consider the tizzy on taxes:

In his relaxed way, Carter was telling the Associated Press what his policy would be: shift the tax load toward those who have the highest income and reduce the income tax on the lower-income and middle-income taxpayers."

This is no new principle. The idea that the biggest burden should fall on those best able to carry the load is ancient. The ethical reason is the support of the weak by the strong in any compassionate society.

The economic reason is recognition that the wealth of the wealthiest comes less from the personal contribution of the individual to society than from the growth of the society itself, especially through the labors of the less affluent.

The idea is super-American. Our graduated income tax is the embodiment of this principle with the rate of taxation rising as incomes rise into higher brackets.

Our problem with this system of "progressive" income taxation is that the plan has lost its progressivity because of loopholes that allow certain incomes to be deducted or not counted at all.

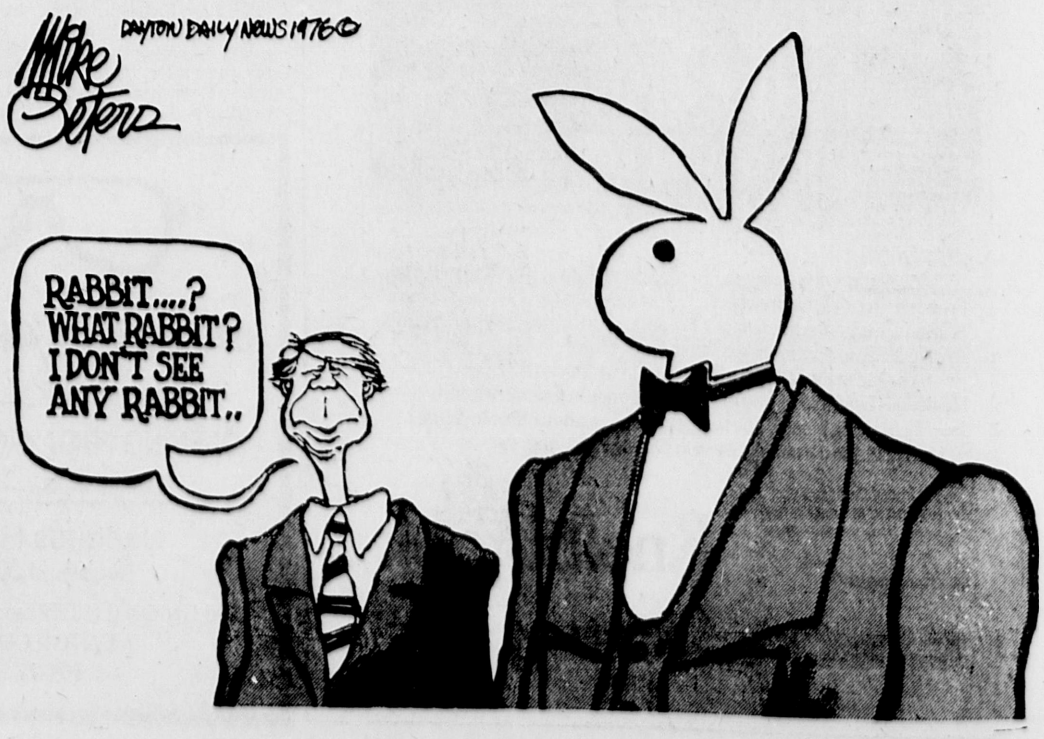

In consequence, there are people with a net income of more than a million a year who pay no federal income tax or pay a tiny tax. There are corporations that instead of paying the full 48 per cent their income pay 9 per cent or 10 per cent.

The real problem in arriving at tax justice is not so much "high" versus "low" income, since a man with a $50,000 salary really does pay at a much higher rate than a man with a $5,000 salary, but the treatment of different incomes in different ways: a man who sweats for his wage pays about twice as much in taxes as a man who derives the same income from capital gains — with no sweat.

When Carter was asked what he meant by "high" and "low," he tossed off a rule of thumb that whatever was above the middle was "high" and whatever was below was "low." This gave Ford his chance to shout that Carter was planning to raise the taxes of all those earning above $12,000 to $14,000.

Carter came raging back that he would "never increase taxes for the lower and middle-income groups" and then went on to make the real point: "There are those in this country who make a lot of money and who pay practically no taxes." Wage earners pay in full, he went on, because they have no "hidden secret loopholes."

But by now, the real issue — loopholes — became muddied and the electorate is likely to hear Republican orators cry from now to Election Day that Carter is out to raise the tax bill of one-half the nation, although Carter's real target is a small elite of superrich in America who escape about $80 billion in taxes every year.

Opinions

The way things are

To the Editor:

My cat was killed last Saturday. At 7 a.m. by three neighborhood dogs with two 6-year-old children watching and crying and screaming.

I was awakened by the yelling and reached the kitchen window overlooking our back yard in time to see one dog I know well and two others not so well trotting amiably down the driveway toward the road.

My cat was dying in the grass under the window, mauled, twitching and bloody. She died about a minute after the boys and I reached her.

My son said, "Why, Mom?" several times through his tears, then said he didn't want to think about it. His friend kept crying that he had tried to get the dogs away from her by yelling, but they wouldn't go.

I'm sure the three dogs did not intend to kill anything; they were out for a stroll and doing what their owners say comes naturally.

The one that I know is mischievous and has caused his neighbors some grief in the past, but I've always felt that the animal that causes damage is not at fault. His owners are.

In this case the owners were lazy and didn't want to take the time and trouble to walk their pets as the so-called "leash law" states; and besides, it was so early in the morning, who would notice?

So the dogs were loose, and because they were loose a gentle, loving, beautiful animal was "playfully" killed in front of two helpless and frightened children and one frantic, enraged adult. She had lived with us for 11 years, and we loved her very much.

I telephoned the dog officer and he was very understanding and came to the house. He also gave a citation to the owners of the dog I knew. He also told me that as long as the owners wish to pay the fines for their animals that cause trouble, nothing can be done.

I can continue to complain, as can my neighbors, and the dog officer can continue to hand out citations, but if the dog doesn't kill any "livestock " or isn't considered viscious or dangerous, then, well, he was sorry but that's the way things are.

Why is that the way things are?

Renewed faith

To the Editor:

It sometimes does us good to get "jolted" back to the reality that, yes, there are some good and honest everyday kind of people out there who are quietly going along their ways, never making headlines with their honesty and decency.

Now, ain't that a crime? It's too bad that in order to make the papers you have to kill, steal, rape or cause riots!

Preoccupied with thoughts, I recently went shopping at the Stop & Shop on Rt. 9 in Chestnut Hill, bought six bags of groceries, put my pocketbook on the roof of my car to give me two free hands to put the bundles in my car, and then drove off to work.

Tenty minutes and two towns later, I remembered I had left my pocketbook on the roof f my car, but alas, no pocketbook. I retraced my route without luck. I spent the next three hours calling my bank and my 22 credit card companies to cancel all my accounts and to issue me new card numbers. Exhausted, I went home from work and received a telephone call from Frank Macchione of Newton Highlands, who was driving his son to work in the morning and found my pocketbook lying along the exit to Rt. 9.

I could not believe that one-in-a-million chance of my pocketbook being found and returned.

I would like to publicly thank Mr. Macchione and his lovely wife. By their actions, I have "renewed" my faith in humanity during these troubled times we seem to be facing in the United States.

Hats off

To the Editor:

Hats off to the four mothers who are very devoted to the city and its children. They are:responsible for many hours of hard work to organize this fall's Newton Youth Soccer League.

After several committee meetings, dozens and dozens of phone calls and much paper work, the Soccer League is three times the size of last fall's league.

It's no easy task to organize a citywide sport, satisfy dozens of parents and try to get cooperation from varying city departments and businesses.

"Four cheers" to Rose Chalfin, Cathy Noonan, Bobbi Van der Walde and Dee Dee Wilcon.

Citizen advocacy starts fourth year of program

The third anniversary of citizen advocacy in Massachusetts will be celebrated Sept. 27 to Oct. 3, in accordance with a proclamation signed by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

The Citizen Advocacy Program, operated through the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens (MARC), is designed to provide individual advocacy to retarded children and adults by establishing a relationship between a competent volunteer (advocate) and a mentally retarded person (protege).

Since its inception in 1973, the program has matched nearly 1200 people. Over 160 cities and towns in Massachusetts are covered by 15 local programs.

Based on the theme "Liberty and Justice for All Includes Retarded Citizens," Citizen Advocacy Week will emphasize the growing self-respect, independency and community involvement of handicapped persons.

A variety of events featuring mentally retarded citizens speaking in their own behalf and actively participating in community functions have been planned by local and state Citizen Advocacy coordinators.

Each program is also conducting voter registration drives to insure that retarded citizens exercise their rights to vots.

In a Channel 7 "Focus" spot, protege Gary Medoff of Newton requests that persons interested in volunteering as advocates telephone the MARC office.

Representatives from the Newton Citizen Advocacy program will be interviewed on the Tom Larson Show on Channel 38 TV.

Open house at all fire stations during Fire Prevention Week

In observance of Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 3-9, Mayor Theodore D. Mann and Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., chief of the Newton Fire Department, extend a cordial invitation to the public to visit the various fire stations and fire alarm office.

Sunday and Monday, Oct. 3 and 4, have been reserved for visits. Visiting hours are from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Chief Perkins said, "Open house at the fire stations and fire alarm office will afford the citizens of Newton an opportunity to view the most modern fire apparatus, equipment, and communication system. Fire fighters on duty will be available to demonstrate or explain equipment, station facilities, and so on. Any questions are welcomed, particularly those pertaining to fire prevention, hazards, and fire exit plans and drills in homes or businesses.

"In short, it is an opportunity for the people of Newton to get to know their Fire Department, a department long recognized as one of the best in the state and one that has, over the years, continuously won high honors in the field of fire prevention."

Chief Perkins further reminds citizens that although one week is annually designated as Fire Prevention Week, the actual practice of fire prevention is a routine that must be observed every day of the year.

The way to get what you pay for.

Over 90 cents of every dollar you pledge to the United Way of Mass. Bay comes back to you and your neighbors in the form of services. If all the 165 or so human care agencies who are supported by your United Way had to raise all their own resources a larger percentage of that money would be wasted on fund raising efforts.

You should also know that the agencies themselves must continually show that they are spending their United Way money on necessary and valuable programs for all of us.

Another thing to think about when you make your pledge is that it will make it possible for a whole army of people to keep doing their great work.

Communist Eastern Europe used to be a part of the world where tipping was forbidden — but it has come a long way since . . . Rules still vary from country to country . . . In Czechoslovakia, hotels and restaurants add a 10 per cent service charge to your bill; in the Soviet Union you still might have a tip refused . . . The best advice is to use the Western European rules spelled out below: Bars: Unless a tip is included in the bill, leave 5 to 10 per cent to the barman . . . Washroom attendants: The equivalent of 10 to 15 cents . . . Theater and Cinema ushers: the same . . . Taxi drivers: 10 per cent of the metered fare is the general rule . . . Tip slightly more in Latin countries — up to 15 per cent . . . Almost all countries have adopted the "service included" system for restaurants.

Library told not to sell new books for Friends

The Newton Free Library has been told by the city lawyer it can no longer use its personnel to sell new paperback books, according to Ald. Edward Richmond. Richmond, chairman of the aldermanic Education Committee that has recently taken the library under its wings, said this week that City Solicitor Howard Levine has issued an opinion that the library should not sell books as an agent for the Friends of the Library, a private organiztion that helps the library. Richmond said he could not quote the decision directly because Solicitor Levine asked him not to, claiming the ruling is not a public document yet.

The decision is not based on any violation of any state statute, Richmond said, but is based upon the legislation that sets up libraries and other municipal agencies that is "always interpreted narrowly."

The library had given the Firends of the Library space in the Newton Corner library to sell the new paperbacks. The library staff would order the new books for the Friends at wholesale and sell them for the Friends at retail prices, making a small profit for the Friends that was turned back for more inventory of paprerbacks.

After Library Director Virginia Tashjien saw Levine's decision, she wrote Richmond a letter saying the library would no longer sell the books, and she would request the Friends to donate the few remaining unsold books to the library.

The sale of the new paperbacks was advertised in the September Newton Free Library Bulletin. Mrs. Tashjian said the sale of the books a was a convenience to readers because certain books were always unavailable because of demand.

Alarm

Assistant Fire Chief Bernard Goulding (left) turned off the outdoor fire box 5412 after an alarm at Newton-Wellesley Hospital last Friday. A nurse, smelling smoke, sounded the alarm. It turned out to be a problem with a fluorescent light fixture. There was no fire, but William Sargeant, , director of engineering for the hospital, was "proud" of his personnel for the "quick and appropriate" action. (Williams photo)

Chamber Orchestra director appointed to Conservatory faculty

Philip Morehead, musical director of the Brookline Symphony Orchestra and the Newton Chamber Orchestra, has been named to the faculty at the New England Conservatory of Music to teach vocal accompaniment.

As a concert artist, Morehead has made frequent appearances in the New England area and in Europe as soloist and accompanist on piano and harpsichord. He has played continuo with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Brockton Symphony Orchestra, and the Sarasota Festival Orchestra.

Besides preforming, he works as artistic director for the New England Chamber Opera group and has conducted all of their performances. He is a faculty vocal coach for the Berkshire Music Center and is also assistant conductor of the Tanglewood Festival Chorus and the MIT Choral Society.

Morehead is married to concert oboist Patricia Morehead. They and their three children live in Newton Centre.

Republicans of Ward 6 discuss GIT

The Ward 6 Committee of the Newton Republican City Committee will hold a meeting to discuss the pro and cons of the graduated income tax on Wednesday, Oct. 13, at 8 p.m. at the Workshop, 72 Columbus St., Newton Highlands.

Speaking in favor will be Donald Feder, an attorney for the Citizens for Limited Tax Action. Susan Hamilton, a member of the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute, will be the con speaker.

All Newton Republican candidates will be cordially welcomed and introduced. A question and answer period will follow the speeches.

The public is urged to attend.

Lutheran group seeks OK for boys' home on Walnut St.

The Lutheran Service Association will appear before the Land Use Committee Oct. 12 at a public hearing to request permissive use for a group home at 515 Walnut St., Newtonville.

The home, which would house 10 boys aged 10-13, would replace Auburn House, 459 Auburn St., which has housed seven emotionally troubled boys for the past few years.

Rev. Robert Heiliger, director of Auburn House and assistant director of children's services for the LSA, said this week there are several reasons for the association's wanting to move to larger quarters.

There is a need to provide a residence for more boys, he said, and Auburn House has no more room. The finances of group housing is improved with a greater number of children, and the state, which pays a portion of the expense, would prefer an expansion of the present Newton facility instead of creating another home.

The Lutheran Service Association two years ago went down to defeat at the hands of neighbors when it proposed a similar home at 390 Dedham St.

This time, Rev. Heiliger says, the LSA has received assurances from many neighbors that the home will be welcome in the neighborhood, and some neighbors have volunteered to speak in favor of the residence.

In the Walnut Street home there will be a married couple serving as full-time houseparents, with possibly every other weekend off, instead of rotating supervisors as now at Auburn House.

The LSA would continue to own the Auburn Street house. It would probably be used for some other purpose by the LSA, Rev. Heiliger said.

by the aldermen to secure confidential information given the assessors when abatements were sought.

State law protects such information, but Ald. Mark White argues that such information should be available to aldermen doing their official duties and sees the correction of possible tax inequities as part of his official duty as an alderman.

An opinion from the state attorney general's office, however, seemed to uphold the assessors.

In order to try to mollify the aldermen, Lovell made an offer to split the cost of a new appraisal of the Marriott property by an independent appraiser to be selected by agreement between the Marriott and the city, even though, Lovell said, the Marriott corporation feels that the correct value is $3.2 million, $500,000 less than the the 1977 valuation.

The valuation is set by the Board of Assessors at about 30 percent of full and fair market value, determined by a combination of estimated market value, cost, and income. The 30 percent figure is used because all of Newton is assessed at an average of 30 percent.

Corporate executives repeated that offer Tuesday at a press conference called by the Marriott.

In a long statement, copies of which have been sent to Mayor Theodore Mann, the Board of Assessors, and the Board of Aldermen, Thomas A. Burke, vice president for corporate affairs of the Marriott chain, explained the Marriott position that it feels it is carrying its "full share of the community tax load."

Burke said, "Of all the communities where we have hotels, not one taxes us to the extent the city of Newton does. Our tax in Newton as a percent of hotel cost (amount invested in the hotel so far) is the highest in our entire system and is more than double our national average."

Burke's statement pointed out that the tax burden imposed by Newton averages $1440 per room, and compared that figure to the next highest, $665, for another 400-room-category hotel.

Questioned about how the total taxes paid to the city and the state (sales, corporate, and other taxes) compare to the total taxes paid by another Marriott hotel, Burke said he could not answer.

As for the statement, often referred to in the FinCom meetings, that the Marriott had said it would provide $1 million in taxes to the city, Burke said that in 1969 before the Marriott opened, taxes were estimated to be in the $200,000 range.

The misunderstanding must have arisen, he said, from the estimate that the hotel would generate $1 million annually in total taxes, including sales, personal property, corporate income, and personal withholding taxes.

In fact, Burke continued, the Marriott now generates more than $1 million in total taxes.

Burke explained the hotel's willingness to pay full taxes as billed up to 1973, after which it asked for and got abatements by calling pre-1973 taxes "tolerable" up to $618,000. After several large increases in taxes, a consultant was retained by the hotel who "revealed that there was a substantial difference between the assessed ratio applied to Marriott and the ratio for residential."

According to Burke, "The review showed that generally business in Newton was being assessed in 1975 at a higher ratio than residential — but the gap was not nearly as great as the gap between Marriott alone and residential."

Burke said that if the city will accept the Marriott offer to hire an outside appraiser and split the cost, the Marriott would abide by the findings.

Further, he said, the Marriott agrees to furnish the city with certified annual statements. "Although it is highly irregular and quite costly to have such statements prepared by independent auditors, we will consult with our national accounting firm of Arthur Andersen on this matter."

The veracity of the statements provided the Board of Assessors had been questioned in Finance Committee. Small, especially, castigated the assessors for accepting without doubt figures provided by the Marriott.

The Marriott statement reiterated its position that it has been paying more than its share of real estate taxes, and said, "We regret the threat that all of this publicity — so much of it inaccurate and unfair — poses to our good name.

Finance Committee Chairman Small has for some time said he is dissatisfied with the operation of the assessors, especially in relation to the entire revaluation program.

His persistence in the matter of Marriott and other business taxes may accomplish his goal of getting the assessing department to do what he feels it should do and must do.

Small commented this week that there are only about 20 months left in which the assessors must clear up all the problems with revaluation before it goes into effect.

consulting with the Division of Occupational Safety in the State Department of Labor and Industry to find the right person to test the inside of the school for levels of carbon dioxide, ozone, oxygen, temperature, and humidity.

Dr. Daniel Bernstein of 22 Hobart Rd., Newton Centre, became very upset about the school never having been tested.

"No person in this room can assure me that that air is safe, isn't that correct?" he asked.

He received no direct response.

Director of Support Services Cornelius noted that there are no clear cut safety levels, and they vary with the quality of air outside the building.

Dr. Bernstein also noted that smoking in the school should warrant testing of the carbon dioxide level.

At least 1 year

Commissioner Larson testified that if the School Committee and the Board of Aldermen approve the $1 million expected request, it would take at least one year to repair the system.

That prediction brought a long hiss from the audience, but the worst news came later.

The $20 million school was designed with what is called a two-pipe system for heating and cooling. One pipe brings hot or cold water to an area and another pipe brings that used water back to the basement.

In order to change the system from heating to cooling, or vice versa, it takes 24 to 48 hours for the one process to stop and the other to begin.

To completely redesign the HVAC system with four pipes to allow for instant changeover to heating from cooling, would take to the fall of 1978 if the school is closed for a year, Larson said, adding, "In all honesty I know you don't want to hear it."

Until Larson makes his recommendation on a two- or four-pipe system, Cornelius made some suggestions for the immediate future.

He recommeded the faculty at the school appoint a coordinator to review the Balco report and suggested a plan be set up to keep an ongoing record of what is needed in each room, because some of the problems he feels are can be solved by maintenance workers.

Student Wendy Silverman said that was already done with no improvements in the system.

As a third planning suggestion, he wants faculty to consider the need of the teachers' cubicles, which could be torn down to make one large room.

School Committeman Michael LeConti said he went to visit the school one afternoon and found "a science room and Main Street unbearable."

"The best air was in the stairwells," LeConti said.

He wished he could have gone on a hot, muggy day so he could have fainted and made a bigger impact , he said.

Karen Jones, a member of the Student Advisory Committee to the School Committee from Newton North, presented a petition with 2000 signatures calling for an end to the hazardous conditions.

Faculty shuttle

Newton North teachers received some relief Monday night when the Committee voted 6-2 to approve $7,695 for a shuttle for about 200 teachers from the old junior college parking lot to Lowell Avenue.

The bus to carry 25 persons will run Oct. 18 through April 29, and some additional inclement days, Cornelius said.

The distance from the Claflin Hall lot to the front door of the high school is about four-tenths of a mile, Cornelius said. From the end of Elm Road where teachers used to park before the construction of the playing fields was up to two-tenths of a mile, a citizen said.

The bus will .run every 15 minutes for two hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon.

Dr. Edward Prince and Henry Delicata voted against the bus. The mayor was absent at this time.

One teacher said this will become a negotiated contract item next year for Day Junior High teachers who have no parking, and an Underwood PTA representative noted that teachers' cars at that school often get ticketed after 3 p.m.

The Committee also appropriated $5040 to the Continuing Education Program to allow for extra courses in Spanish, French, Italian, typing, and know your car.

The eight members also approved the request of Murray Road student Kerri Klugman to spend her final semester at the LAB School in Boston as long as the program is a approved by State Board of Education.

A long discussion with the Student Advisory Committee concerning substitute teachers came to no concrete end, and the students will meet with the School Committee at its next meeting to discuss sophomore and other high school sports.

Drinan and Mason will debate live but not on television

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Newton) said "no" this week to televised debates with his opponent, Brookline Republican Arthur Mason, and instead released a list of six joint appearances he intends to make in the 4th Congressional District.

According to a Drinan spokesman' the incumbent's schedule is too crowded to allow for the TV appearances.

Free time was offered the candidates by both WBZ-TV and WCVB-TV. WBZ originally offered 30 minutes of time on one of three October dates, Oct. 13, 20 or 27. WCVB offered live time on its channel on Oct. 24 or 31.

According to Drinan's schedule, he has promised appearances in various district communities on all of those dates.

Commenting on the live local appearances scheduled, Drinan said: "Although Congress is in session and I have only limited time to campaign, I have made these debates a high priority. I have always believed that voters in a democracy should be fully involved in the electoral process and these debates offer a forum for ideas as well as an invaluable form of voter education."

Mason, saying he was "pleased" the congressman had agreed to the six joint appearances, added: "But those appearances are mostly candidate's nights where only hundreds will have an opportunity to see the candidates discuss the issues of the campaign.

"Two television stations have offered to give every voter in the district the chance to see the to candidates. I applaud the effort of the media to serve the public interest. I decry Congressman Drinan's attempt to hide from the public."

The scheduled candidate confrontations are: Oct. 8, Newton South High School; Oct. 17, Temple Beth Am in Framingham; Oct. 19, Newton League of Women Voters; Oct. 24, Brookline League of Women Voters; Oct. 26, Fitchburg-Leominster Leagues; Oct. 28, Framingham League of Women Voters.

School Volunteers for Boston seek help of retired persons

Retirees and those contemplating retirement from their careers in library service and other fields are being urged to use their enormous resources of experience and knowledge to benefit students in the Boston Public Schools.

School Volunteers for Boston has received a three-year grant from the Edna McConnell Clark Foundation to recruit and place retirees, preretirees, and other older citizens into school volunteer positions where their experience, knowledge, skills, and talents can best be utilized.

The new project expands a two-year-old intergenerational program of school volunteers which has received enthusiastic response from students, teachers and participating older volunteers.

Special teaching skills are not necessary. Training is provided for tutors of reading and English-as-a-second-language, and for those assisting with many enrichment programs. The only requirements are the ability to give three or more hours a week in the schools during school hours and an interest in assisting with the education of Boston's public school students.

Subjects volunteers are needed to help with are nursing, aeronautical engineering, music; to serve as computer programmers, library catalogers, audio-visual equipment trainers coordinator of art resource rooms funding specialist, liaison between neighborhood health organizations and individual schools, and administrative assistants to principals.

Also needed are tutors of reading, math, English as a second language, history, art, science, photography, woodworking, needlework, accounting, or horticulture.

People who have travelled extensively and know about different cultures or who have studied the history or geography of any part of the world are needed.

People interested in sharing their lives with students through this meaningful program may call John O'Loughlin at 267-2626.

Newton-Wellesley buys 2000 meals a day

Buying fruits and juices for nearly 2000 meals a day is a bit more complicated than buying for the average family at the grocery store.

Two representatives of Newton-Wellesley Hospital's dietary department are currently "going to market' to purchase canned and frozen fruits and juices to service the 800-900 patient meals a day and 900-1000 employee meals eaten every day in the cafeteria.

Now that it's harvest season for fruits and vegetables, it's almost time for members of New England Hospital Services, Inc., to place contracts with vendors for fruits and juices.

Hospital Services is a non-profit, group purchasing agency which Newton-Wellesley belongs to, along with 73 other Massachusetts hospitals.

Aaron Spencer wants less.

Less State spending.
Less taxation.
Less unemployment.
Less crime.

The old remedies don't work anymore.

Maybe they never did.

You can't bury this State's problems under taxpayers' money and expect the problems to go away.

If anything, the taxpayers go away.

Aaron Spencer understands this better than our present State Senator, Jack Backman.

Even now, Senator Backman is trying to get a "graduated" (read "bigger") State income tax.

And remember when they got the State sales tax, we were supposed to get real estate tax relief. Remember?

Well, the old remedies don't work anymore. But Aaron Spencer will.

Aaron Spencer understands about things like running a business in this State. Currently he runs a chain of franchises employing more than 400 people.

From this he understands what taxes mean to business people, what business people mean to State employment, and what lack of available employment means to crime.

And he understands what Senator Backman doesn't: You don't change anything with just more of the same. Aaron Spencer wants less.

Aaron Spencer, his wife Irma, and their two children live on Farlow Road in Newton. He is founder and president of International Food Service Inc. While serving as the General Chairman of the United Cerebral Palsy Telethon, Aaron Spencer is also on the Board of Directors of United Cerebral Palsy, Metrobank and Trust Company, and the Family Guidance and Counseling Center. He's a member of the Jewish Big Brother Association and Temple Emanuel of Newton.

Aaron Spencer is a concerned businessman, who has never before been a candidate for public office. He is a vigorous opponent of the extremist philosophy represented by Senator Jack Backman. As your new State Senator, Aaron Spencer will bring a moderate, pragmatic approach to the problems confronting all of us in Brookline and Newton.

Many of the original supporters of Newton Community Development Foundation's 10-year effort to build housing for low- and moderate-income families in Newton attended official groundbreaking ceremonies at the Hamlet Street site this week. NCDF has started construction on its 50-unit project. Executive Director Alan Schlesinger (left) said NCDF is still activeiy looking for locations for housing and hopes to build more. Others present include (from left) Robert Casselman, former president of NCDF and now on its advisory board; NCDF President Rev. Gilbert Avery III; Mayor Theodore Mann; Marc Slotnick, executive director for many years and now a member of the board of directors; and lawyer Laurence Madfis.

Growth Policy Committee report done, sent to state

Newton's Local Growth Policy Committee recommends more housing and more business for Newton. These are only two of the many goals for Newton's future mentioned in the committee's final report to the Office of State Planning.

The Local Growth Policy Committee was most concerned about the regressive nature of the property tax and its effect on low-income and fixed-income residents of Newton. Since any change in the property tax must take place at a state level, the committee recommended that the city could help the situation by providing more housing for people of all incomes, to keep Newton from becoming a community of wealthy only.

As Newton's housing consists mainly of single-family homes, the committee found that the lack of variety in size and cost of rental units makes it difficult for many people to move into the city. People find it almost impossible to remain in their neighborhood when their space demands change. It is difficult for city employees to find affordable housing.

Young adults, elderly and lower-income residents may be forced to leave Newton when 100 percent evaluation becomes effective two years from now and its economic reverberations are felt, according to the committee.

The LGPC proposes that the city revitalize its existing commercial and industrial areas in an attempt to provide more job opportunities within the city for Newton residents. An economic revival of this sort will enlarge the tax base, thus reducing the residential property taxes. It will also attract a retail mix to the neighborhood shopping centers that will serve the surrounding residents.

If more jobs are available within the city, people will be able to walk to work. Pedestrian amenities, such as trees and benches introduced to the business centers, will encourage people to walk to shop. Reduced energy consumption and reduced traffic congestion could result from this change. The greater number of chance meetings afforded by increased pedestrian use of the commercial areas will enhance the sense of community experienced by Newton residents.

The Local Growth Policy Committee was formed at the direction of the state legislature to prepare a statement reviewing Newton's past growth, examine the likely influences on growth and provide a perspective on the most desirable directions for future growth.

The committee convened in February, 1976, and met weekly thereafter to produce its report. Comments made by citizens at the two public hearings held by the committee in March and June have been included. The report will be incorporated into the formulation of statewide growth policies along with the reports from the Local Growth Policy Committees in the 350 other cities and towns in the Commonwealth.

More detailed information about the committee's recommendations and others for Newton's future is in the final statement and completed questionnaire of the committee. Copies may be obtained at the Planning Department at City Hall or may be read at any of the Newton libraries.

Summer sliding supplant skiing

By DAVID HASKELL

BARTLETT, N.H. (UPI) — Wheeee... Hit that lever, bank that curve. Here comes a straightaway. Let it all out.

For a few brief moments, young and old, male and female, can fantasize they are bobsledders hurtling at great speeds to victory in the winter olympics.

Only it's not winter. It's summer. And the speed (tops 25 miles per hour) isn't exactly hurtling. And it's not really a bobrun, only a distant cousin.

It is what's billed as the "longest slide in the world" — and that only by a few feet.

The slide is located at Attitash ski area just north of North Conway, N.H., and south of the White Mountains' majestic Mt. Washington.

Thad Thorne, Attitash's innovative boss, detailed the specifics of the slide, the idea for which was adopted from some similar — but smaller — slides in Europe.

Actually there are two slides, winding parallel 4,200 feet down the mountainside, on and across ski trails, through thickets of pine, birch and hemlock. The slides, the first installed in this country, are constructed of molded asbestosconcrete, and the rider uses an easily controllable fiberglass sled.

To reach the starting point three-quarters of the way up the mountain, riders — who on many days have stood in line for up to two hours — get aboard a double chairlift, operated at speeds lower than what would be usual for people with skis on their feet.

At the top, riders place the sled in the slide's chute and sit on it, getting the feel of the lever between their legs and the pitch and roll of the sled itself. By inching forward, the sled is brought to the incline where a sign warns that the slide can be dangerous. There an instructor briefs the riders on how to go fast (push lever forward), stop (PULL BACK!) and degrees in between.

Quite controllable. There have been mishaps, such as speeding sleds going up and over the edges. Thorne and his assistant Dick Jones attribute most of these accidents to youthful hotshots. "You really have to try to hurt yourself on this thing," Jones said.

Then it's down, here a curve, there a curve, faster on the straights. The sense of speed is intensified because the slide is so close to the ground (and wow, do those sleds rock and roll on their specially designed rollers). Adults and kids on sleds in front and in back whoop their enjoyment. Spectators line the course cheering each new slider.

In five minutes, more or less, bottom. It's over. And it was fun.

For all this, Attitash gets $2.25 per ride for adults, $1.75 for kids. And they've got lines of sliders like lift lines of skiers in winter.

Installation was a $450,000 project, a major expense, but the ski industry is for the first time taking a look at something they seldom ever saw — summer money. They like it.

Jones said a large number of ski areas are giving serious consideration to installing the new money-maker. It might just be, Jones said, the answer to providing income to ski areas during otherwise idle summer months. He said Attitash expects to get its money back within three years.

One other already exists, at Bromley, Vt., and several are definitely planned, including Great Gorge, N.J., a site in Michigan and one at Gattenbery, Tenn.

It's an investment and the return looks tremendous, judging from the results here. Although the slides never leave the mountain, it seems they still lead straight to the bank. Wheeee!

MOVING NEWS

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — The executives most often transferred by their employers are in sales or marketing departments, earn $15,000 to $25,000 a year and are 30 to 40 years old.

These figures are from the ninth annual survey of corporate moving practices of Atlas Van Lines, Inc., the nation's sixth largest household goods carrier. The study showed 57 per cent of those transferred last year were in sales or marketing, 16 per cent were in plant management and 10 per cent each were engineers and administrators.

Project Turnabout hosts fundraising dance

On Friday, Oct. 1 Newton Careabout-Turnabout is sponsoring a fund raising dance at American Legion Post 440, 295 California St., Newton, from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Project Turnabout (PT) is a community based, nonprofit, self-help organization located at Beal Street, Hingham, offering comprehensive 24-hour residential treatment for men and women age 19 or older.

Turnabout serves the entire Commonwealth. The clients of PT generally have histories of drug or alcohol dependencies, crime, and-or pervasive problems in living which become manifest as dysfunctional patterns of social behavior.

In Newton a group meets alternate Wednesday nights in the cafeteria at City Hall. The next meeting will be Sept. 29, at 7:30 p.m.

The major objectives of PT's therapeutic community are to help individuals develop and maintain (1) constructive styles of interpersonal relating; (2) the fundamental skills of interpersonal relating; (3) functional alternatives to the antisocial and drug dependent patterns of behavior which they have previously demonstrated.

Project Turnabout is comprised of professional, paraprofessional, exaddict, and volunteer staff.

The five phases of the PT progam are intake, orientation, residential, phaseout, and aftercare.

The results of Turnabout's goals to establish a self-help progam to provide education, prevention and rehabilitation for drug abuse are quite evident in the community since its beginning from a telephone on the wall of the Brighton YMCA in Oct. 1969.

Tickets for the dance are $4 per person. Call Gill Sampson, 527-3938, for reservations. Tickets will be available at the door.

I would like to sincerely thank you, the voters, who took the time last Tuesday, September 14th, to cast your vote for me. I appreciate your faith and trust in me. I will work hard every day to make myself worthy of your support.

SINCERELY,

A. Joseph De Nucci

Work should be requirement of welfare system

State Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton), House chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, has released preliminary returns from a constituent opinion poll he included with his recent newsletter.

The poll invited people living in Waban, Newton Highlands, Newton Upper Falls, Newton Lower Falls, Newton Centre, Oak Hill and Precinct H in Needham to send in their thoughts on a variety of issues. "While I recognize the limits of the sample and the unscientific aspects of the survey," Mofenson said, "I find the opinions and comments expressed to be quite interesting and informative. I appreciate the time and thought each of the respondents spent answering the questionnaire."

Mofenson has tabulated 166 of the returned questionnaires' and others are still coming in, he said.

The survey asked, "Do you support legislation to..." and asked for "yes," "no," or "no opinion" answers and invited additional comments.

The strongest position expressed was in favor of the establishment of work requirements for welfare recipients: 78.7 percent said "yes"; 13.9 percent said "no." There was also strong sentiment expressed to abolish the Governor's Council: 66.6 percent said "yes," 9.9 percent said "no," and 27.2 percent were "undecided."

Of those responding, 57.3 percent supported the abolition of Sunday closing laws (blue laws), and 36.4 percent were opposed.

On educational issues, respondents favored maintaining fiscal autonomy for local school committees 61.4 percent to 25.9 percent. A plurality favored the funding of voluntary metropolitan educational and cultural programs: 45.5 percent answered "yes," 37.4 percent "no," the rest "no opinion."

Respondents, in this preliminary sounding, were in favor of the establishment of mandatory minimum prison sentences by a 61.4 percent to 25.9 percent margin. Support for the reinstatement of capital punishment for certain crimes was about the same — 62 percent for it, 29.5 percent against, the rest undecided.

While respondents favored the legalization of gambling through off-track betting (45.9 percent to 30.3 percent), they opposed legalizing all sports betting (24.2 percent "yes, 52.6 percent "no") and professional sports betting only (24.7 percent "yes," 45.8 percent "no").

As for providing cost of living increases for state employees, there was stronger support for cost of living increases for retired state employees (55.9 percent "yes," 31.8 percent "no") than for those currentiy employed (52 percent "yes," 35.5 percent "no"). By a close margin — 46.4 percent "yes" to 39.3 percent "no" — respondents supported cost-of-living increases for welfare recipients. .

Neighbhors around Newton North High Schoolol held a block party recently, closing Elm Road to traffic. Over homemade food in varying nationalities, neighbors got to know each other. Miranda Barrows, 2, took time out to make the acquaintance of Stevan Bagley, while adults (from left) Norm Farrar and Andy Lane had a chat. (Williams photo)

Furs for every occasion ... classic and classy

A fur coat is a big investment for any woman and she should know the incoming trends.

The fashion direction of the American Fur Industry, as seen this June at the American Designer Showing in New York, reflects great styling and elegance in furs.

There are far fewer gimmicks in furs, and a greater respect and demand for fine furs, even though the fur industry reluctantly admits that fur prices have risen a great deal. Furs today are very expensive, but in the long run their cost has not kept pace with inflation in other more basic areas — meat, milk, utilities and transportation, to mention a few at random.

Fur parkas are plentiful and right in tune with fashion's infatuation with the rugged outdoors. Hooded for warmth, zippered for ease, the parka paces fur fashion from the flatter furs — Lakoda seal, otter, pieced beaver, unplucked nutria, muskrat, beautiful lynx — to the fluffy foxes in any one of a dozen colorations. Unexpected, and yet so beautiful, is the parka in mink, feathered, plaided or just left in its unique, natural state.

There is also a return of the fur jacket. A few of the highlights: an elegant blouson sable with knit waistband, a cropped aviator jacket in fitch, a stunning mink shirt that reverses to nutria, a blonde opossum with batwing sleeves.

Classic styles translated into fabulous fur look better than ever. For example, the bathrobe coat in natural raccoon, the trench in Tourmaline natural pale beige mink, the blazer in grey Persian lamb, the collarless cardigan in grey squirrel, a cardigan sweater in nutria and a show stopper, the feathered ranch mink parka with drawstring waist.

Furs this year tend to be functional. There are fur-lined raincoats (balmacaans and trenchcoats) and three-way coats with hidden zippers that convert them from floor length to street length to topper length.

Capes are everywhere in every fur with the hood marking the cape as the most flattering and practical addition. One of the prettiest, the Lunaraine mink with lynx-trimmed detachable hood.

The inside-of-a-fur is also a fashion story. There is the red cire jacket lined with coyote sides — a quilted poplin raincoat lined and cuffed in dyed silver fox; an ultra suede cape lined with pieced cat lynx, and a hide-out coat reversing to mink.

Furs are more colorful this year in both bright and subtle shades. Foxes, in particular, take on every coloration including cinnamon, green and slate blue. Quieter are the new ombre foxes in grey and brown.

The floor-length furs are unabashed glamour whether they top sporty jumpsuits or slinky gowns. Highlights: a slitted, hooded natural raccoon, a Jasmine natural white mink shirtcoat, a natural chinchilla worked in a new spiral pattern, a handsome brown chinchilla, an elegant sweeping Blackglama mink.

One of the lovliest of furs (and most adaptable), old fashioned beaver has been revived for winter '76. Especially new is the dyed beaver...a whole spectrum of tints from pure white to caramel, fawn and also, of course, natural brown. When treated in a new way, without interfacing, the beaver becomes featherlight and perfect for the new wrappy styles.

Beaver takes the limelight because it not only wears marvelously, tailors beautifully, looks luxurious and yet is not considered to be priced in the very high brackets. It's a fur worth looking into.

The classic furs: mink, samink, fisher, broadtail and fox are made into uncluttered, long-lined shapes that women love. Great coats this season are designed to look slender even when they are in deep fluffy furs like raccoon, Canadian lynx and fox. The mink and broadtail coats, blazers and blouson jackets are treated like fabric with the same pliability. Some are cut on the bias.

Want to cure rainy day blues? Fur-lavished raincoats star in the fur collections and this year they are made to look miraculously slim, with the super-luxury of a reversible quilted silk liner or fur liner. Also introduced this year, a water-repellant velvet coat lined with wheat mink.

Look for coats that mix two different kinds of pelts. A muskrat coat with watching hood, for example, might have a white fox border around the hemline and the hood.

If your fur coat has yesterday's look because of its short hem, visit your furrier and you'll find out that furs can be lengthened much less obviously than cloth.

A contemporary design from the Georges Kaplan-Ben Thylan Fall-Winter collection. Natural Russian amur raccoon greatcoat.

Rejoice! Apple harvest has begun and there's nothing to compare with the fun of a family outing to an apple orchard to "pick your own."

Have you heard that some apple growers offer a "Rent-A-Tree" leasing opportunity whereby you "own" your own tree. This means you can visit the orchard at intervals, enjoy your apple tree at blossom time and check on the crop as it grows. The owner agrees to do all the work (pruning, spraying and basic tree care). This is a very new development and may be hard to locate...make inquiries at the apple orchard you frequent and it may be something the grower will want to do if not now, sometime in the future.

Mouthwatering apple crumb pie the delight of the harvest season.

It's a good idea to call the grower before you start out on your "Pick Your Own" journey. Sometimes the supply may be limited, picking may be by appointment only, or they may not have on hand the type of apple you're interested in buying. When you see a sign "Select Your Own" it means you are allowed to choose fresh picked apples from bins and boxes at the orchard—these apples are generally not graded.

All growers have picking rules that should be obeyed. Generally, they are: Don't climb apple trees. The boughs are already heavily weighed with fruit. They will break under extra weight and you risk injury to yourself and others. Do not drive into an orchard without checking with the owner first. When picking apples, lift and turn the apple slightly to remove it; careless and hasty pulling of the fruit from the tree will remove leaves and fruit buds needed for developing next year's apple crop.

Containers may or may not be furnished by the grower. If in doubt, bring your own baskets and bags. Economy minded consumers may want to inquire if utility grade apples with minor imperfections are available. These are perfectly good apples and are usually good buys for applesauce, apple butter and other dishes. Here are some signs of quality to look for when you pick your own:

Look for good color, whether red, yellow or green. Occasionally you'll see minor patches of a rough, brownish skin on part of the apple—this is called russeting, usually caused by the weather and does not affect the eating quality of the fruit. Good apples feel firm and heavy. Watch out for excessive bruising which can cause decay and spoilage. You may be tempted to pick the big apples that look so tempting, however, small and medium sizes may be more practical buys and may keep better after you get them home. Large quantity buying (by half or full bushel) is usually more economical than buying in small amounts. A refrigerator is the ideal place to store apples; put the fruit in polyethylene bags to help hold the moisture.

America's favorite dessert still remains the apple pie with its tender, flaky crust. A slightly burned edge on an apple pie is preferable to a pale unbaked color. The filling should fairly sing with natural apple flavor and apple slices tender, but not mushy. Good choice of apples for a pie are: R.I. Greening, Northern Spy, Stayman, Rome Beauty and Cortland. Try combining two or three varieties in a single pie. If juice bubbles through slits in the top crust, that indicates the filling has reached the boiling point. The apples will be thoroughly cooked and syrupy. Apple pie should be served warm. Never refrigerate a 2-crust pie.

PASTRY FOR DOUBLE-CRUST PIE

2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
two-thirds cup shortening
5 to 6 tablespoons cold water

Sift flour and salt into mixing bowl. Cut in shortening, using a pastry blender or knife, until mixture is the size of small peas. Sprinkle water a little at a time, over mixture, stirring lightly with fork, until dough is moist enough to hold together. Divide in half. Roll out one portion for bottom crust and fit loosely into pan. Fill with apple filling. Roll out remaining dough; cover; seal and flute edge.

APPLE PIE

Filling:

6 to 7 cups sliced apples
¾ to 1 cup sugar (depending on sweetness or tartness of apples)
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons butter

Peel apples. Quarter and slice into ¼ inch slices. Measure sugar and spices and mix well. (If apples seem extra juicy, a tablespoon or two of flour may be mixed with the sugar and spices to thicken juice). Toss sugar into apples and transfer apples into pastry lined pan. Dot with butter; cover with top crust. Fold over edges and flute or press with tines of fork. Make several slits in top crust with sharp knife and bake at 400 degrees for 50-60 minutes or until juice bubbles through slits on top of the pie.

DEEP DISH APPLE PIE

Use an 8 or 9 inch baking dish, 2 inches deep. Line sides but not bottom with pastry, arranging it to come over edge of dish to seal to top crust. Double the amount of filling in Apple Pie recipe; sprinkle with 1-½ tablespoons of water and cover with top crust. Seal as above. Bake in hot 425 degrees, 45-50 minutes. Serves 8-10.

APPLE PIE WITH CRUMB TOPPING

Make crust for one-crust pie, line 9-inch pie plate. Add filling as in Apple Pie recipe using the minimum amount of sugar. Cream ½ cup butter, ¼ cup light brown sugar together. Add 1 cup flour and mix well. Sprinkle crumb topping over apples. Bake at 400 degrees 50-60 minutes or until apples are cooked and top is rich brown. Serve warm with cream or vanilla ice cream.

SMOOTH APPLESAUCE

Quarter 6 medium summer apples and remove cores. Do not peel. Place apples in 3 quart saucepan over high heat and add 1 cup apple juice. Bring apples to a boil; reduce heat to low. Cover and simmer 10-12 minutes until apples are tender. Add one-third cup sugar and press apples through a food mill to remove skins (the mixture may be put into a blender). Makes about 4 cups.

RUM GLAZED APPLE CAKE

1 cup butter or margarine
2 cups sugar
3 eggs
3 cups sifted flour
1-½ teaspoons soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
3 cups peeled and chopped apples
2 cups chopped walnuts
2 teaspoons vanilla

Cream butter and sugar until well blended. Add the eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Mix dry ingredients and add gradually. Add the chopped apples, nuts and vanilla. Pour into a greased and floured 10-inch tube or bundt pan. Bake at 325 degrees about 1-½ hours or until a cake tester inserted in center of cake comes out clean. Let stand 15 minutes and turn out.

RUM GLAZE

1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 tablespoon milk
1 teaspoon rum flavoring

Combine all ingredients and blend until smooth. Spread over cake.

Question: We love zucchini at our home and I'd like to have a good stuffed zucchini recipe please.

Mrs. D.S., Norwood

Answer: This is a super way of serving a main dish, using zucchini as a "boat."

STUFFED ZUCCHINI

6-8 zucchini squash (as large as possible)
2 teaspoons salt
3 tablespoons lemon
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 to 3 quarts water

STUFFING:

1-½ cups finely chopped or ground cooked beef, chicken or veal
two-thirds cup cooked rice
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 tablespoon minced dill (optional)
1 tablespoon minced parsley
2 cups white sauce (follows)

Wash zucchini and cut crosswise. With a grapefruit knife or mellon baller, scoop out the inside. Do not break the vegetable while taking out the inside. In a large kettle, bring water to boil, add salt, lemon and vinegar. Drop the zucchini into the water. Blanch for 2 to 3 minutes. Remove from water and cool.

Prepare Stuffing: Combine meat with rice, butter or margarine, garlic, pepper, salt, parsley and egg. Blend until smooth. Stuff the zucchini with the meat mixture. Place in a large baking dish, side by side. Pour the White sauce over all and bake in a preheated oven for 25 min. at 350 degrees. Before serving sprinkle with chopped almonds, if desired.

WHITE SAUCE

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons canned tomato sauce

Melt butter or margarine and add the flour, stirring constantly with wooden spoon. When butter and flour bubble up, add the milk, stirring constantly. (A wire whisk is good for this.) Bring to a boil, stirring constantly, and cook for about 3 minutes on low heat until sauce thickens. Add salt and pepper (adjust seasonings if necessary) and the tomato sauce.

Question: I know this is an unusual request, but our church is having a potluck supper to welcome newcomers in the area and I was requested to bring a bean dish of some kind. I'd like something to feed about 25 people.

E.G.G., W. Roxbury

Answer: Here is not only a good recipe for such an occasion, but if you would like a dandy new booklet entitled, "Beananza! A calendar of favorite bean recipes" from the Campbell Soup Co. FREE, containing all sorts of recipes such as a Winter Chowder, Oven Drumsticks, Country Skillet feeding as few as 4 and as many as 28, send a post card to: Beananza! Box 288, Collingswood, N.J. 08108.

FAMILY-STYLE BAKED BEANS

6 cans (28. oz. each) Pork & Beans with Tomato Sauce
1-½ cups ketchup
¾ cup packed brown sugar
1-½ cups finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons prepared mustard
12 slices bacon, partially cooked

Combine all ingredients except bacon. Divide between two 2-½ quart shallow baking dishes (13x9x2-inches). Top with bacon. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Makes about 21 cups...28 servings.

Recently, while attending the Pillsbury Bake-Off, we sampled their new "Hotloaf" which can be found in the refrigerated section of your local supermarket. This refrigerated fresh dough can be dressed-up in a variety of ways—we sampled three of them, French Onion Hotloaf, Dutch Apple Hotloaf and Italian Hotloaf and found them incredibly good! Following are the toppings for this new product:

FRENCH ONION HOTLOAF (Pillsbury)

Saute two-thirds cup chopped onion in 1 tablespoon butter until tender. Cut dough pieces halfway through lengthwise. Spoon in onions; brush with milk and sprinkle with caraway seed. Bake in preheated oven: 8x4-inch pan, 350 degrees, 35-45 minutes; 9x5-inch pan, 375 degrees, 30-35 minutes.

ITALIAN HOTLOAF (Pillsbury)

Roll dough pieces in ¼ cup creamy garlic, creamy Caesar or creamy Italian salad dressing. Roll in ½ cup finely crushed plain or flavored croutons. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake in preheated oven: 8x4 inch pan, 350 degrees, 35-40 minutes; 9x5 inch pan, 375 degrees, 33-38 minutes.

DUTCH APPLE HOTLOAF

Combine ¼ cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Roll dough pieces in 2 tablespoons melted butter, then in one-half of sugar mixture. Peel and slice 1 apple into 18 pieces; insert between sections of dough. Sprinkle remaining sugar mixture over top of loaf. Bake in preheated oven: 8x4-inch pan, 350 degrees 45-55 minutes; 9x5-inch loaf pan, 375 degrees 35-40 minutes. Drizzle glaze of ½ cup powdered sugar and 3 to 4 teaspoons milk oven baked loaf.

Mrs. M.B. Newton Highlands shares with us her favorite recipe for cooking brisket. She says it's a "never fail" recipe. (Thank you!)

STELLA'S BRISKET

1 four pound brisket (preferably a first cut)
3 large onions
½ bottle catsup
1 cup water
3 onions, pared and cut into chunks

Put brisket in roasting pan with cover. Slice onions and carrots and put on top of meat. Mix catsup and water and pour over brisket. Cook for 3-½ hours in a 350 degree oven, covered. Cool meat; slice and put back into sauce and bake uncovered for 30 minutes.

Michel Kazan introduces his fall and winter coiffure collection next week. This coif features a new "attitude" for short hair. Hair is parted diagonally and kept close to the head with an upturned roll brushing the brow and continuing in an upward movement at the sides and back.

Kazan to unveil fall collection

Michel Kazan will appear in person to present his coiffure collection at his salon in Filene's at the Chestnut Hill Mall on Wednesday, Oct. 6.

Consultations are complimentary with an appointment.

The fall collection is described as "not only a new hairstyle, but hair with a difference."

"The word for hair this season is 'short'; but short is an attitude," he said. "It can mean anything from a close molded head to a finger-waved coif, to longer hair that rests on the shoulder to a neck-twist on the nape."

Like the fall fashions, hair is looser, fuller and with many movements from waves to curls to wisps.

Hair color this fall brings redheads into the limelight. A touch of red will be seen everywhere.

Aquinas Junior College hosts loneliness seminar

Aquinas Junior College in Newton, the Boston office of the House of Affirmation will celebrate two years of service to the clergy and religious of the Boston Archdiocese on Oct. 2 by sponsoring the second annual psychotheological symposium.

The subject of this year's symposium, loneliness, was suggested by participants in last year's highly successful "coping" workshop.

In response to what seems to be a contemporary social as well as religious malaise — "America's neurosis of the year," one commentator called it — the symposium speakers will address themselves to various aspects of loneliness as it affects religious values and living.

Speakers will be Rev. Bernard J. Bush, S.J., director of the Boston office, who will speak on "Loneliness—the Family Tie that Binds;" Sister Dr. Anna Polcino, S.C.M.M., founder and psychiatric director of the House of Affirmation, will address the issue of solitude in "From Loneliness to Holiness;" Rev. Joseph Hart, S.S.E., Ph.D., will speak on "The Perils of the Pleaser 101—Loneliness;" and Richard Gilmartin, M.A., C.A.G.S., will speak about "Loneliness and Narcissism."

Other members of the staff of the House of Affirmation will be available throughout the day for discussion, conversation, and to answer questions about their mission to the church.

Raananim Choir begins second year at center

The Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center is sponsoring for the second year the Raananim Choir.

The choir is a combination of children and teens from several communities performing Hebrew and Israeli music in a choral setting. Last year's group sang several times for various organizations and institutions. A completely new repertoire will be prepared by this year's choir.

Directing the choir for this season will be Stephen Freedman, a graduate of the University of New Hampshire and a music specialist in the Andover public schools. He served as music director for the Grossman Camp this past summer and is associated with Temple Emanuel in Lawrence and Temple Isaiah in Lexington.

Membership in the Raananim Choir is open to all members of the center, third grade and up. While a reading knowledge of Hebrew is not necessary, good English reading skills are essential.

Rehearsals will be held weekly on Sundays from 2:30-4 p.m. at the center at 50 Sutherland Rd., Brookline. Because of the weekend holiday schedule, the first two rehearsals on Oct. 10 and 17 will be held from 6:30-8 p.m.

For more information about the choir, or to arrange a performance, call Bob Feinberg, youth supervisor, at 734-0800.

Temple Mishkan Tefila recently held two receptions for its new rabbi, Rabbi Richard M. Yellin, (pictured left). More than 700 people attended a Shabbat Service Sept. 11 to officially welcome the rabbi and his family. The following week, about 200 community leaders and temple members were present at a champagne reception.

Rebbetzin Jungreis to speak at Temple Mishkan Tefila

Rebbetzin Esther Jungreis will speak at Temple Mishkan Tefila, 300 Hammond Parkway, Chestnut Hill, Wednesday, Oct. 13, at 1 p.m.

Leader of the movement called "Hineni," which means "Here I am" in Hebrew, Rebbetzin Jungreis calls on the Jewish people to rediscover God and the traditions of their religion.

Married to the rabbi of a congregation in North Woodmere, N.Y., survivor of concentration camps, daughter of the chief rabbi of Szged, Hungary, and coming from a long line of rabbis, the Rebbetzin Jungreis speaks with facts and appeals to one's core of Jewishness in trying to unify the Jewish people.

She feels that many young Jews are experiencing a spiritual hunger, and in place of their turning to other religions, movements, and drugs to get turned on, she offers them their own history and culture.

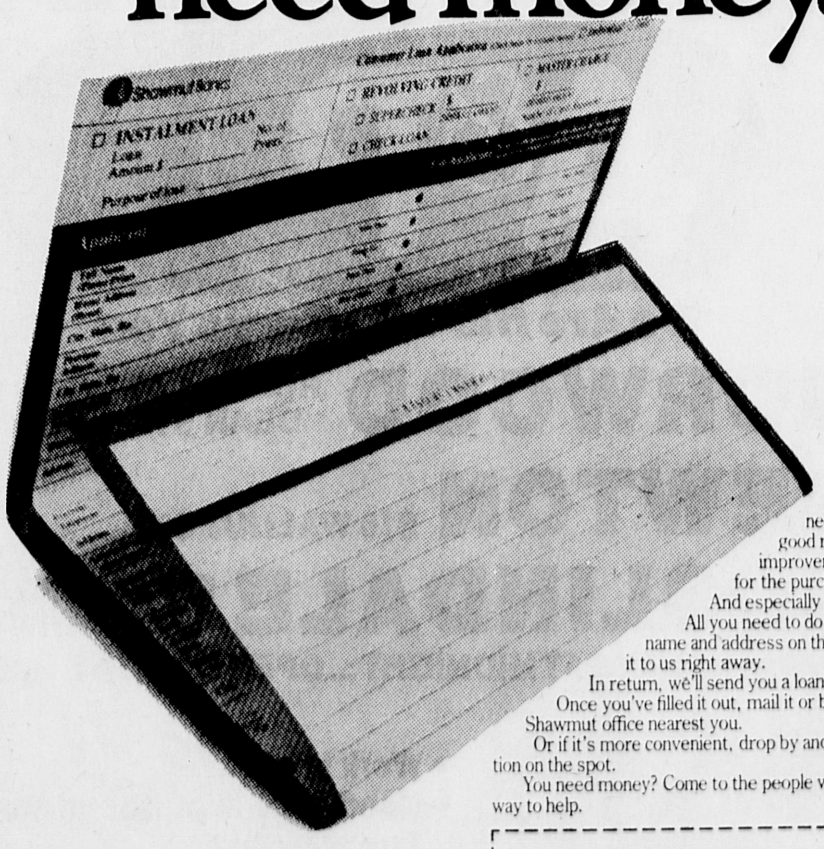

She speaks of her experience in the Holocaust as well as Jewish writings, and exhorts Jews to unite for the salvation of Israel and for their own salvation.

Space is limited, and anyone desiring to purchase tickets should do so as soon as possible. Contact the office at Temple Mishkan Tefila, phone 332-7770.

CAR CORNER

Back in 1910, a motorist would race his engine vigorously just before he turned off the ignition switch. "There" he would say, "that makes it easier to turn her on the next time." Back then motorists believed that this final revving would pull in raw gasoline, and prime the cylinders so that they would fire right away. It turns out that priming the cylinders with raw gasoline this way also washed the protective film of oil from the cylinders, but at 25 miles per hour top speed, it was not all that important.

Eliot Country Fair slated Saturday

Other fairs want the customer's money; but the Third Annual Eliot Country Fair, to be held at Eliot Church, Newton Corner, Oct. 2, wants more. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"We want your blood this year," said Fair Chairman Patrick Nee, referring to the fact the Red Cross Bloodmobile will be parked at the church until late afternoon. "Although we have 20 advance pledges, we will need help reaching our goal of 50 pints."

The remainder of the area will give visitors an opportunity to browse, eat, dance, play games and buy. One section will be devoted to work of local artisans, jewelry, ceramics and leatherwork, arranged by Susan Whittemore. The flea market run by Mr. and Mrs. Ted Chapin will be augmented by separate booths for books and records, for plants, handmade goods, toys and games and baked goods.

Children are important at the Eliot Fair too. Starting with balloons, children's activities will include games and such creative activities as vegetable printing, supervised by Carol Lee, Mary Nee and teenagers from the church. There will also be an "under-a-dollar" table for gift items, run by Miriam Morrow.

The whole family can participate in dance movements at the Tangram booth. They can have their pictures taken in costume or have their lives analyzed through numerology. And, of course, Eliot Fair would not be complete without June Spackman's homemade soup and other refreshments.

Others chairing committees are: Allyn Davis, books and records; Alice Pratt, plants; Ann Purple, baked goods; Isabel Conway, hand goods; Nancy Lob, Tangram; Gordon Dalbey and Pat Brennan-Nichols, Eliot information; Mary Jill Landon, public services.

'Vows of Our Youth' is sermon at Beth Avodah Sunday service

The highest of the Jewish holy days, Yom Kippur, will be observed all over the world on Sunday evening, Oct. 3, and Monday, Oct. 4. Each person will pray not only in his own behalf, but in behalf of his fellow men, recalling the suffering of past martyrs, repenting past sins.

As the strains of the haunting Kol Nidre fill the temple, each person will become even more aware of goals not attained, of promises unfullfilled, and await the New Year ready to begin anew.

At Temple Beth Avodah, Rabbi Robert Miller has chosen as the text of his Sunday evening sermon, "Vows of Our Youth." Cantorial soloist Frederick Shapiro will chant the Kol Nidre to a background provided by the temple choir.

Monday morning, "The Disposable Scapegoat" will be the subject of Rabbi Miller's sermon. The afternoon memorial service will feature a dramatic reading of "A Dark Night," a novella written by Meadowbrook ninth-grader Susan Stepakoff. Susan will read her work, a stirring tale of the Holocaust, assisted by several young members of the temple. A children's service will be held in the Temple Sanctuary at 1:30 p.m.

A break-fast for temple members will be arranged by Judith Maltz at sundown, as the temple family looks forward to a happy, healthy productive New Year.

Dr. Alice Kuhner of Newton Highlands has been appointed a research fellow in immunology at Robert B. Brigham Hospital. She is a graduate of the University of Ohio in Miami, Ohio, from which she received her bachelor's and master's degrees in microbiology. Tigers put on running show, 20-0

North crushes Medford in another whitewash

One of the team's greatest rushing days ever combined with a lid-slamming defense helped Newton North duplicate the score of a week before in downing Medford High's football team, 20-0, at Dickenson Stadium on Sunday.

The Tigers, behind Jim Acheson's 100-plus yards , ran for some 300 yards as a team and scored two second-quarter touchdowns to seal the Mustangs' fate as Newton ran its season's record to 2-0. The week before, Newton blanked Framingham North in a nonleaguer by the same 20-0 count.

Scoring the Tigers' touchdowns were Kevin Hinchey and Acheson, both on shorts runs, and Mario Luchetti, on a 42-yard pass from quarterback Hinchey. Hinchey's and Acheson's scores both came in the second quarter while Hinchey's lob to Luchetti, who also made two fine interceptions on defense, came in the third frame.

Dallas Morgan added to Newton's scoring parade with two extra-point kicks in the victory.

Hinchey scored first with what proved to be the winning points in the opening seconds of the second quarter, capping a 92-yard drive that began after Luchetti made the first of his two interceptions in his own end zone. Hinchey went in from the three on first and goal and together with Morgan's kick, it was Newton 7, Medford 0, and the Tigers had already established the pattern for the whole game, as it turned out.

The Tigers came back to score again a short time later, helped again in part by the defense, as Greg O'Halloran recovered a fumble near midfield. After making a big 42-yard run, Jim Acheson got the honors once again and took the ball in from the two as Newton made it 13-0. A pass try for the extra points failed.

That would be all for the first half, as Newton just did miss out on one golden opportunity to score in the second quarter. A penalty nullified a great TD catch by end Kevin Jones.

The Tigers, who were not to be denied this day, came back in the third quarter to score on a great pass play from Hinchey to Luchetti. At the Medford 42, Hinch found his teammate with a quick pass, Luchetti got a great block, and was gone as he raced downfield for the final Newton touchdown. Morgan's extra point was good once again, and the scoring was over for the afternoon at 20-0 for the hosts.

Enough simply can't be said for the Tigers' overall effort. Offensively, it was a banner afternoon. Newton combined for close to 300 yards on the ground and well over 100 yards in the air as Hinchey was throwing on target.

Luchetti made two fine interceptions on defense and was a factor on offense as well. John Riley, Kevin Hinchey, Jim Acheson, the team's leading ground gainer, and Rich Proia paced the ground game.

The offensive line was at its best, opening up holes all day and protecting Hinchey like a ten-foot wall.

A measure of the defense's success was Medford's total yardage of just over 100.

This was surely a sweet day for Newton players and Head Coach Norm Walker, whose club was in the running for the Division I Super Bowl last year, ending up with an 8-2 record.

The Tigers are now 2-0 on the year and 1-0 in the uburban League.

Sunday's victory was a pretty good tuneup for next Saturday's clash with Brockton at Dickenson Stadium. This matchup is always something special and you've got to believe Newton will be ready for this one. The Boxers are also unbeaten in a pair of games and look like the old Brockton.

Nothing could be better for a great contest next Saturday afternoon here in the Garden City. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

Weston High frustrates Lion football team, 36-8

BY GREG SOYKA

Sheer frustration. That's the only way to describe the feelings of the Newton South Lions football team and their coaching staff. The Lions came into the ballgame Friday afternoon confident of a win. But they left on the short end of a lopsided 36-8 score versus Weston.

Strangely enough, last Friday's game held many parallels with the season opener defeat to Littleton. For instance, Weston's first offensive series resulted in eight points. The Lion defense, playing again without broken-legged linebacker Mike Hernandez and for the first time missing linebacker Willie McDonald, could do nothing to stop the Wildcats from Weston.

A second similarity to the game vs. Littleton was that the Lions were trailing 22-0 at haltime.

A one-sided score like this might give wrong impressions. In the first half the Lions could have made the score closer. The offense moved the ball well most of the day. Unfortunately, the Lion offense was stopped twice within ten yards of a score by the obstinate Weston line.

In the second half, things didn't change much. The Weston team continued to control most of the action. The Wildcats piled up two more touchdowns and led 36-0 in the fourth and final period.

The Lion squad at this time was disheartened, battered, and beaten, but they did not give up. With four minutes left to play, the game, for all intents and purposes was over. The Lions refused to be shut out. On one of their last possesions of the day, the Lions offense finally scored. The touchdown play was a beauty. Halfback Richie Filler took the ball "up the middle" then broke to the outside for a thirty five yard touchdown run.

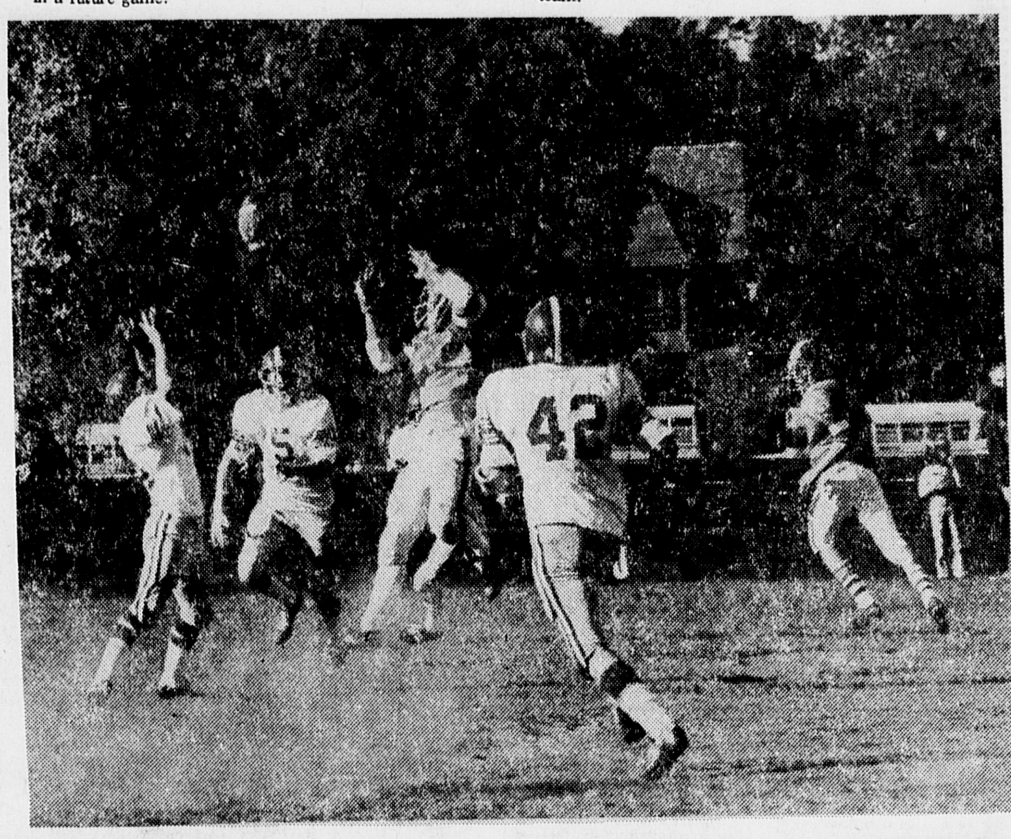

On the extra points attempt, quarterback Mike Cushner threw a pass to end Joe Peltier, who then caught his first varsity pass, for two points. The miserable game ended on a good note for the Lions.

As far as the usual excellent passing attack went, that day it was not that hot. Mike Cushner completed five passes for a total of eighty five yards. Again against Weston thhere was a lot of close ones. Four of Mike's passes were directly on target, but too fast for the Lion receivers to hang on.

Mike's finest pass of the day went to end Doug Jackson for a forty yard gain. Another good pass was a screen to Richie Filler for a twenty five yard gain.

Speaking of Richie Filler, he played a superb game. Richie made good yardage on almost every attempt. To add to this, he caught the earlier mentioned screen, ran thirty five yards for a touchdown, and had another forty yard run. Filler had well over one hundred yards on the day. With this type of running, the Lion offense is sure to put it all together in a future game.

The Lions next battle a powerful Division Two Cambridge Latin team. The game will be played at Latin's home field on Saturday at 10:30 a.m. Please come and support our team.

Investigate illegal ticket selling

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — The Massachusetts attorney general is investigating possible deceptive sales tactics used by an American Hockey League club in selling tickets to National Hockey League exhibition games.

Atty. Gen. Francis Bellotti's office said Tuesday it received complaints on the way the Springfield Indians sold tickets for two NHL games.

Involved were Tuesday's Boston Bruins game against the Chicago Black Hawks and Sunday's clash between the Washington Capitols and New York Rangers.

The tickets were originally sold in a package, highlighted by the Boston-Chicago game featuring former Bruin superstar Bobby Orr in a Black Hawk uniform.

But when sales were slow, Indians management allegedly began selling tickets for the two games separately. Many patrons who had bought the package asked for refunds on the Washington-New York game.

Indians management refused, claiming the package afforded "better seat selection" in the 7,500-seat Springfield Civic Center.

A spokeman for the attorney general's office said that was "a pretty weak argument. I think its unfair ethically, but we're not sure if its illegal."

Waltham harriers tip North

By BRUCE DANZIGER

The Newton North High cross country team put up a gallant effort but was edged by Waltham, 26 to 29.

According to Coach Connolly, "We lost because our runners were not in condition. This is only the second week of the season, and against a good team like Waltham, you must be in prime condition.

"If this had been mid-season and we had had our no. 4 runner (Dan Laredo), I think we would have won."

Another thing that should be taken into consideration is the difficulty of the course. It consists of two laps in a circle around Hull St., Walnut St., Prospect Ave., and Beaumont St., plus another varied lap. The course is very hilly, and it totals 2.6 miles. All this should indicate that, as one of the runners said, "We still are a better team than they are. We blew a meet that we should have won."

After one lap, Newton had 1st, 3rd, 6th, and 8th places in Duncan Scott, Garde Wells, Marc Laredo, and Steve Silluzio. After two laps, the situation was exactly the same, the same places held by the same runners.

The final results:

Newton	Waltham
1 Duncan Scott	2
4 Garde Wells	3
6 Marc Laredo	5
8 Steve Silluzio	5
10 Peter Denis	9
29	26

The loss evens their record at 1-1. (They won the season's first match at Rindge Tech by a score of 16 to 48). The next match is next Tuesday at home, and Newton should come out steaming. A little work to get in shape, and they should become one of the premier teams in the league.

South booters blank Acton, 4-0

By JOSH EHRLICH

Whoever arranges sports schedules certainly picked right when Sept. 23 was chosen for the first home soccer game for Newton South.

It was a clear cool afternoon with just enough sun to keep the large crrowd of Lion's fans warm as they were treated to an exciting 4-0 win against Acton-Boxboro. The signs publicizing the game which lined the hallways off the school, the "South soccer is beautiful" buttons seen everywhere, and the enthusiastic crowd of students, teachers and parents indicated clearly that soccer has caught on at Newton South.

Acton came into the game 2-1, having given up only 3 goals in their previous games. Their defense, obviously tough, was unable to hold up against the Lion's offensive attack. In the first quarter Danny Moore took a shot on the Acton goalie who was unable to hold on to the ball. Frank Otten slid in as the ball rolled along the edge of the goal and tipped thhe ball into the corner for his second goal of the year.

In the second quarter South picked up its second quarter South picked up its second goal. Albert Pazos, in the midst of a fine performance, chipped an indirect kick over the heads of the Acton defenders. Mike Stollar cut in alone on the goalie and flipped a soft shot into tthe far corner. For Stollar it was his first regular seasonal goal after missing three weeks with an ankle injury. The Lions took their 2-0 lead into the half time break and took the field to begin the third quarter hoping to break the game open.

And break it they did. Josh Ehrlich scored the third goal of the game on a penalty shot. A hands call in the goal area gave South a free shot, and the left wing shot a ball along the ground past the goalie's reach. Late in the game Mike Stollar scored his second goal.

Gary Simon, coming up on the side, chipped a ball in front, and Stollar made an excellent play, drilling a head ball past the Acton goalie.

After the game, coach Crowther told the team that he was "very proud" of their effort in the game. He had every right to feel pleased as the Lions demonstrated their true ability, coming right back after a loss the week before and winning a lopsided game against a solid team.

The defense, led again by goalie Andy Wise, was tough all game. Newcomers to South soccer, Harry and Stan Samkange, turned in fine performances on defense, and we can look forward to viewing the two brothers in the seasons ahead.

Using alternate halfback lines, the Lions demonstrated their depth and the next few games should determine whether the soccer team can retain this high level of performance.

Rivers soccer team has potent offense

Rivers could put a silencer this year on those soccer detractors who have been saying for too long that, "it's a nice game but there just isn't enough scoring." A strong forward line and midfield should give Rivers' varsity soccer team its best offense in years. Graduation left some gaps in the back line and the goal but, if those spots can be filled, Rivers could field one of the strongest independent school teams in this area. If not, there will be a lot of scoring at both ends of the field.

Head coach Eric Suby says he has seven starters back from last year, six of them either forwards or halfbacks.

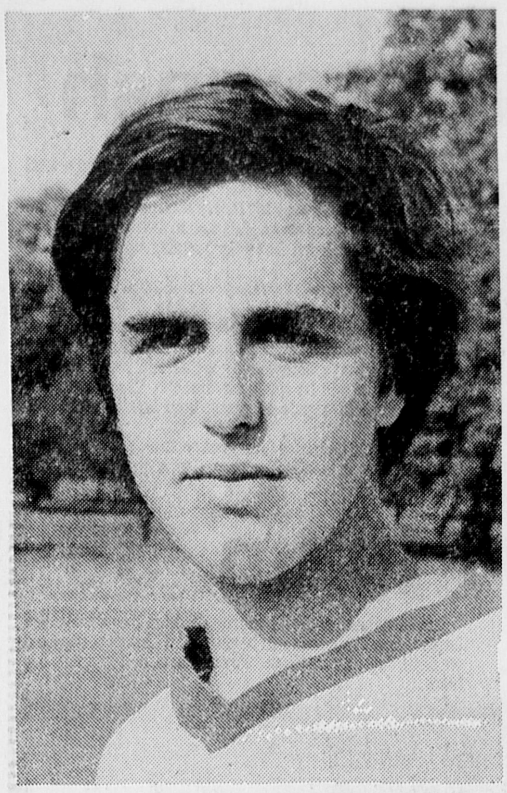

Last year's leading scorers, junior Eric Trunfio of Holliston and senior Mike Black of Newton, both look strong in pre-season, according to Suby. Black is showing the benefits of a summer spent playing in England and Trunfio is adjusting well to a switch from forward to halfback.

Seniors Steve Willis of Wellesley and Joe Perini of Framingham, two of the team's tri-captains, are also back from last year's 6-4-1 team and add size and strong shots to the midfield.

Joining Black in the front line are seniors and veterans Fred Pierce of Wellesley and Nathan Smith of Dedham. Smith, a fast outside right, is back near top form despite a broken leg that sidelined him for half of the 1975 season.

The only experienced fullback is tri-captain Bill Richmond, a senior from Dover. The remaining fullback positions are still open but lettermen Kip Dole, a junior from Wellesley, and Buzz Abbott, a senior from Sherborn, should be strong contenders.

The biggest competition is the fight for the starting and back-up goalkeeper spots, the four players fighting for the position, none of whom played varsity soccer last year, are: seniors Mark Rosen of Natick and Hank Miller of Newton, junior Mike Leon of Sudbury and sophomore Paul Duprey of Framingham.

N.A.A. Lions to host Dracut Sunday

The NAA Lions host the Dracut Steelers Sunday at Newton Highlands Field in the first big showdown of undefeated teams this season in the Merrimack Valley League. Both teams have scored 3 straight impressive victories in league play thus far.

The Lions extended their win streak last Sunday to 5 games overall, rolling up 294 rushing yards in a 34-0 romp over the Brookline Rams. Five players had touchdowns as the Lions scored in each period.

Fullback Bill Penzo capped a 30 yard drive in the first period with a 3 yard touchdown run, set up by his own 14 yard run on the previous play. Tackle Carl Shishmanian kicked the 2 point conversion.

In the second period, cornerback Larry Chin picked off a Brookline pass and raced 30 yards to paydirt. After this score the extra points kick failed.

With quarterback Joe Deasy in charge, the Lions offense dominated the second half clicking for 3 scores on long drives. Fullback Chuck Pepper completed a 74 yard march in 9 plays with a 1 yard plunge. The kick was blocked. Chin's second interception on the Lions 30 led to the next surge, with halfback Mike Gorski's 3 yard burst ending this 12 play, 70 yard effort. Pepper then passed to end Mark Phillips for 1 extra point.

In the 4th quarter, Deasy sneaked 1 yard for the closing TD, after the Lions piled up another 58 yards in 7 plays. Chin passed to Gorski for the final extra point.

The Lions credit the offensive line with another solid game. Ends Phillips, Russ MacPhail and Mark Fleming all played well, as did interior blockers Shishmanian, Joe Scroppo, Scott Hayden, Mark Hernandez and Jeff Kabot.

The heart of the Lions success again was the defense with another superb effort in notching their 3rd shutout. Pepper at safety added 1 interception to Chin's 2 and tackles Scroppo, Peter Kanellias and Steve D'Angelo, ends Gorski and John Tessel, and linebackers Penzo and Rob Steinberg all helped throttle the Rams attack.

On offense, Pepper gained 107 yards in 14 carries, Gorski 102 yards in 13 carries, Chin 47 yards in 8 carries and Penzo yards in 4 carries.

In other NAA games Brookline defeated the 'B' Tigers 26-0 and the 'C' Cowboys downed Watertown 13-0. Both teams also play Dracut teams this Sunday at Newton Highlands.

BC in best shape

BOSTON (UPI) — Sixteenth ranked Boston College will be in its best physical shape of the season Saturday against battered Navy in the top game involving New England football teams.

The Middies, 70-14 victims to top-ranked Michigan last week, are decimated by graduation and are without four players who started the season.

"We're young and inexperienced but I feel we'll play better as the season goes on," said Navy Coach George Welsh Tuesday via a telephone conference call to the New England Football Writers' luncheon.

"We just weren't good enough last week against Michigan and we're facing the best Boston College team I've seen in my four years here," he said. "In the game films we've seen Boston College looks like the Miami Dolphins coming across the field."

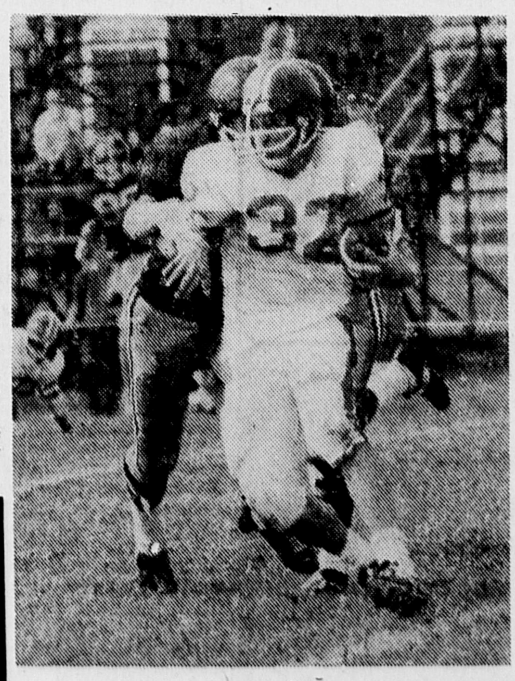

The Eagles, 2-0 and seeking a Bowl bid, will have full services of Joe O'Brien, their starting quarterback until hurt in fall practice. He will back up starter Ken Smith.

Defensive back Dave Almeida also will be healthy and running back Neil Green, hurt in the win over Texas, could be ready to play.

"Maybe Smith is not Mike Kruczek (the Eagles' star quarterback last season) but he's a very good college quarterback. Overall Boston College is the biggest team we will see ll season," said Welsh.

Navy, 1-2, will have to face a Boston College defense that Welsh says "may be as good as Michigan. I just hope they're not as quick as Michigan because if they are — with all the other things they have going for them — no one is going to touch them."

The Eagles still will be without wide reciver Bucky Godbolt, hurt against Texas and won't have Anthony Brown. But Glenn Capriola and Tony Melchiorre, who riddled the Tulane line in a 27-3 win last Saturday, are both in good shape.

Britain seeks ways out of pound crisis

LONDON (UPI) — Britain asked the International Monetary Fund today for standby credits of up to $3.9 billion to bail out the pound from its worst crisis in history.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey said he was applying for an IMF loan from money already set aside for British credit — a potential of $3.9 billion.

The move brought some relief to the embattled pound, which opened on the foreign exchange at $1.6670 after Tuesday's closing rate of $1.6378.

Dealers on the London money markets Tuesday said the pound fell further and faster than at any time, apart from formal devaluation, and they were dumping it "right, left and center."

Intervention by the Bank of England halted the slide temporarily and dragged the pound from its new all-time low of $1.6305 to its close of $1.6378 in London.

But the currency still had lost more than 4¼ cents since Monday and almost 14 cents this month.

It closed in New York at $1.6565.

Sterling also lost ground against European currencies, registering new lows against the Swiss franc and West German mark, among others. Measured against 10 leading world currencies, the pound has lost 45.5 per cent of its value since December 1971 when new parity rates were established.

The pound's weakness also depressed share prices, stockbrokers said, and the Financial Times share index dropped 8.5 points to close at 336.1, a new low for the year for the market indicator.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey postponed his trip to Hong Kong and Manila for world monetary talks because of the crisis. He conferred with economic advisers for five hours Tuesday evening, but no statement was issued.

Callaghan's message, in a tough keynote speech to the ruling Labor party's annual conference at Blackpool, appeared to be grim and uncompromising.

"We have lived too long on borrowed time, borrowed money, and even borrowed ideas," he said. "We will fail if we think we can buy our way out of our present difficulties by printing confetti money and by paying ourselves more than we earn."

Industrialists estimated the cost of crude oil may have risen 8 per cent in the last 10 days. Timber and newsprint importers estimate a 10 per cent price increase since August. The price of imported chemicals has risen by an estimated 25 per cent this year because the pound's decline.

Tourism is about the only British industry to have benefited, since sterling's weakness means holidays in Britain are cheaper for foreigners.

Nursing home owner seeks reimbursement

BOSTON (UPI) — In what may be a precedent-setting case, a nursing home owner has charged the state with taking over his facility and asked a Superior court to order reimbursement.

The suit in behalf of Mathew A. Chiara, owner of the Woodlawn Nursing Home in Methuen, was filed in Essex Superior Court Tuesday.

Chiara's attonrey, Richard Gens, said the suit charges the state has taken possession of the facility and must now pay Chiara a fair price for the land, buildings and business.

"We're not challenging the fact that they've taken over tha facility," Gens said, "because they have."

The suit stems from unprecedented action taken by the Department of Public Health earlier this month under a state of emergency declared by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

Following the issuance of Dukakis' order, Public Health Commissioner Jonathan Fielding issued a series of orders which he said were necessary to protect the life and safety of the 90 patients in the facility.

Under Fielding's order Chiara has been barred from transferring patients from the facility.

In addition, the staff of the facility is now being paid by the Public Health Department with funds provided by the Department of Public Welfare.

Fieling said he also was prepared to send state personnel into the facility, but that action never became necessary.

The current battle is the latest in a long war between various state agencies and the owners of the nursing home. The dispute concerns improvements in the facility required under the federal Life Safety Code and payment of state funds for publicly assisted patients.

State public health and welfare officials contend Chiara was demanding special treatment in the payment of his bills for Medicaid patients. Chiara, however, contends the state owed him the money and should have paid it.

When the state refused to continue the weekly payments, Chiara then sent a notice to his employes stating he would no longer be responsible for their pay.

Boston plumbers on strike

BOSTON (UPI) — About 1,300 plumbers and gasfitters from the Boston area have gone on strike against the Master Plumbers Association.

Matthew Twomey, secretarytreasurer of the Plumbers and Gasfitters Union Local 12 said Tuesday the workers voted to strike because the association failed to implement previously negotiated increases in health insurance and pension benefits.

He claimed the union members accepted a 40-cent per hour pay decrease in order to get the increased health and pension benefits. The union signed a new two year contract on Sept. 1.

Thomas Sullivan, a spokesman for the association, said his organization will go to court to end the strike.

Attorney Belli: Troubles with the bar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — San Francisco attorney Melvin Belli, once dubbed "King of Torts," is tweaking professional bar associations again for "retrogressive leadership."

Belli, 69, has been in trouble with the California bar and the American Bar Association intermittently in the past 20 years. The state bar suspended him for one month because he endorsed a brand of Scotch in a New York newspaper advertisement. Belli defended the endorsement on free speech grounds.

By his own account, Belli once introduced the late racketeer Mickey Cohen to the ABA's national convention under a pseudonym and called him a tax expert. The lawyers listened to Cohen attentively and did not learn who was really addressing them until later. Cohen was under indictment for tax evasion at the time.

Belli's autobiography, "My Life on Trial", is now at West Coast bookstores and will be available nationally next month. In it he claims the ABA and state bar associations are riddled with conflict of interest and that "the legal establishment in America is not there to serve the people but to serve itself."

"And," he said, "as members of their various bar associations, they have provided retrogressive leadership in the country for more than a century — and continue to do so."

A spokesman at the ABA headquarters in Chicago said the organization "will not dignify Belli's remarks with a response."

Belli writes that most bar leaders "work for the nation's largest establishment law firms and, in that capacity, their main concern is to help predatory corporations screw the people at large, fix prices, challenge the constitutionality of antipollution laws, put together phony bond issues."

To Your Readers:

The responsibility for the safety of children returning to school belongs to motorists, students, parents, school patrol officers, school bus drivers and to safety officials.

It is only through a joint effort that everyone concerned can be made aware of the perils which highway traffic presents and the steps that must be taken to avoid accidents.

Motorists must observe the school bus law and come to a full stop when school bus lights are flashing!

Parents should accompany young children and teach the safest routes to school!

Students should cross at corners or within crosswalks and ride bicycles single file obeying the rules of the road!

Please---do your part to keep your community's children safe.

Thank you,

Joseph joins Carroll for business planning

Jack Joseph of Newton, former president of Growth Capital Management of Boston, has joined Mike Carroll, president of AM&S Associates of Boston, to create Carroll-Joseph, a division of AM&S, which offers corporate analysis and planning.

Recognizing that careful planning is the key to business success, Carroll-Joseph designs business plans for corporate clients which analyze their present condition as well as setting out strategies for their continuing sucess.

"Although the economy is improving, lending institutions and investors, due to prior experience, are more hard-nosed than ever," said Joseph.

"It is vital, therefore, that corporations approaching the financial marketplace be well prepared. That is why the business plan is now more important than ever before," Joseph added.

BayBank Newton-Waltham promotes two men for functions

Giles E. Mosher, Jr., chairman of the board and president of the BayBank Newton-Waltham Trust Company, announces the appointment of Frank S. Jackson and Howard P. Strum to direct new centralized functions at the bank. According to Mosher, the new assignments are the result of a recently completed internal study of major bank activities.

In addition to other duties as chairman of the Executive Committee, Frank Jackson now assumes full responsibility for the analysis of the bank's major account relationships.

His efforts will be directed toward the financial needs and requirements of BayBank Newton-Waltham's corporate customers to insure that they are satisfactorily met. In announcing Jackson's appointment, the bank's president noted that the new function will absorb responsibilities formerly shared by several major departments.

Jackson, who joined the $360 million banking organization in 1939, serves on the boards of directors of the Maytag Gray Corporation, Cambridge, and the Watertown Chamber of Commerce.

He is a trustee of the Mount Auburn Hospital and a past president of both the Lions and Rotary Clubs of Watertown. In 1972, he was voted that city's businessman of the Year.

In announcing the appointment of Howard Strum, vice president, as manager of bank properties, Mosher stated, "BayBank Newton-Waltham currently serves its customers from 31 locations extending from Watertown to the Marlboro-Hudson region.

"These facilities, which represent a bank investment in excess of eight million dollars, will be managed by our new bank properties officer," Mosher said.

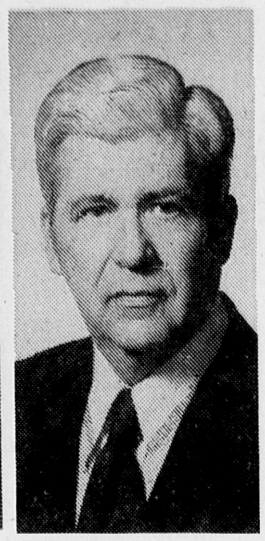

In his new post, Strum's responsibilities will include property occupancy and maintenance, and construction, relocation and renovation of all offices and facilities.

Strum, who has been employed by the bank since 1949, was elected a vice president in 1969. Prior to his new assignment he directed the activities of the financial institution's branch banking system.

A graduate of the Stonier Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University, he serves on the Waltham Corps Advisory Board of the Salvation Army and is treasurer of the Newton Heart Fund and Cerebral Palsy Association of Greater Boston.

Chief surgeon sees hospitals in Israel similar to ones here

Modern operating rooms, up-to-date surgical techniques, and nursing strikes all sound familiar to doctors in the United States. But they were also part of a two-week visit to Israel for Dr. John McGinty, Newton-Wellesley Hospital's chief of orthopedic surgery.

Dr. McGinty, whose trip was arranged and supported by a Jewish philanthropic organization in Canada, Hadassah Wizo, was invited to teach arthroscopy at a military hospital near Tel Aviv in Zerifin, Israel. (Arthroscopy is a technique for diagnosing internal knee problems with an optical instrument the size of a ballpoint pen.

Dr. McGinty made his trip serve double duty — he worked at two hospitals the first week and traveled with his wife and three children the second week. The first hospital, Assaf Harofeh in Zerifin, is a 600-bed military hospital actually located on a military base.

Comparing it to an American hospital, Dr. McGinty said, "It was modern and up-to-date with a superb staff—equal to what we have here. Their surgical techniques, equipment, drugs — everything was up to date."

Explaining that Israel has a system of socialized medicine supported by a heavy tax structure, Dr. McGinty said that only about 5 percent of the population go to private doctors or private hospitals. The majority go to government hospitals when they are sick or injured.

Because the free enterprise system is so limited, salaries are comparably low. For example, he said the beginning doctor nets about $350 a month in Israel.

While he was there, the nurses organized a national one-day strike for higher wages and were available only for emergencies. When he left, they were still lobbying and negotiating, "But if they raise the nurses' salaries, they'll have to pay the doctors more too," he said.

Dr. McGinty did both surgery and instructing, said Dr. McGinty, who it was not difficult to communicate with other staff members because so many of them were foreign trained and understood English. He taught orthopedic surgeons as well as some orthopedic residents.

After five days at Assaf Harofeh Hospital, Dr. McGinty traveled to Safad, a cultural community in the Galilee Mountains about 120 miles away. He worked in the government hospital there one day seeing and caring for outpatients.

Although the Safad Hospital is smaller—it is a 350-bed facility, comparable to Newton-Wellesley—it seemed busier and shorter on staff. "Even though it's a smaller hospital, it services a much wider area than Assaf Harofeh," said Dr. McGinty.

Dr. McGinty noted that the hospitals are seeing more serious illnesses and injuries now that they have begun allowing Lebanese patients over the border to be treated.

"And it's frustrating, too, because the Lebanese are well cared for in Israel but lack the follow-up therapy at home which they need to recover," he said.

The patients at the military-base hospital also tend to be young because Israel has compulsory three-year military training for both men and women starting at age 18.

Following his week of work, Dr. McGinty and his family traveled extensively, covering 500 miles in a week.

Of course it doesn't take long to get where you want to go," he noted, "since Israel is only as big as Massachusetts!"

The Robbins family of Prince Street, West Newton, does not just grow a few flowers or shrubs in their backyard that come up in one season. The whole family applies its green thumb to acres of pine trees, which will come to maturity in another generation, at their vacation farm in Conway, N.H. In recognition of their conservation efforts over the last 10 years, the American Forest Institute recently awarded the family a tree farm certification, attesting to their good "woodlot management." The Charles River Watershed Association will hold its 11th annual meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 6, again at the Perkins School for the Blind on North Beacon Street in Watertown.

CRWA's work on this program has been carried on with the assistance of a grant from the Mabel Louise Riley Charitable Trust.

After the business meeting scheduled for 8:15, a special Environmental Protection Award will be presented to the Boston Globe by CRWA's outgoing president, Robert H. Johnson, in recognition of the Globe's role in promoting public understanding of the recreational and aesthetic assets which the Charles represents in the metropolitan area and in developing support for Charles River improvement.

Teenagers need short-term homes

Adolescence is a trying time, both for the children and their families. Many youngsters need some time — a week, a month — to be away from their family to "get their head together" while the family in turn tries to resolve difficulties.

Since the Families Extended program ended due to funding cutbacks in 1975, the Newton-Wellesley-Weston area has not had a foster care program for teenagers. This vitally needed service is being reinitiated now, under the auspices of the Newton-Wellesley— Weston Multi-Service Center, and foster families are needed.

Placement Coordinator Shelley Stahl emphasizes that "there is no 'perfect' foster family. Single-parent families, couples with or without children, and families representing different income levels, ethnic backgrounds and life styles are all valuable participants."

Foster families receive a weekly reimbursement for the youngster's room and board, and also receive orientation, training, and support from "Multi" staff members. While the teenager lives with the foster family, he or she continues to attend school and also receives counseling, as do his or her parents.

Potential foster families may call Shelley Stahl at 244-4802.

Two women appointed to Pine Manor staff

Two Newton women have joined the faculty at Pine Manor Junior College in Chestnut Hill as of September. They are Carol Gay of Newton Upper Falls and Helle Mathiasen of Newton Centre.

Carol Gay will teach Communication Skills, a required course for freshmen at Pine Manor. Ms. Gay received her B.A. magna cum laude at Carson-Newman College, and her M.A. in English from Simmons College.

She has taught at the Boston public schools, the University of Massachusetts-Boston, and is presently at Simmons College.

Originally from Denmark, Helle Mathiasen received her M.A. at Copenhagen University and her Ph.D. at Tufts University. She has taught English-related courses at adult education schools and Copenhagen University Extension in Denmark, Tufts University, and the University of California-San Diego.

She also was a Danish instructor at Tufts University.

She is presently working on an edition of Keayne's sermon notebook. At Pine Manor, Ms. Mathiasen will teach English.

Pine Manor, established in 1911, has 450 students on its 79-acre campus.

Three concerts planned for 100-voice society

The Wellesley Choral Society has started its 29th season with rehearsals on Mondays at 8 p.m. in the music room of the Wellesley Junior High School.

Keith L. Phinney is returning as director for his tenth season, and Annette Der Sarkisian will again be the accompanist Though rehearsals have already begun, new members are still welcome. Last year, there were 20 Newton residents singing in the 100-voice chorus. There are no auditions.

The holiday concert which will be presented Dec. 5 will feature traditional holiday music and a special production of Gustav Holst's drama with music "The Coming of Christ" given with the help of the Wellesley Players.

The major concert in March will be the Mozart Grand Mass. The pops concert will be given two evenings in May in Knight Auditorium, Babson College.

If you like to sing, just attend rehearsal at the Wellesley Junior High School on Monday evening. For more information call President Betsy Corman at 237-2284 (evenings), Membership Chairwoman Alice Batchelor at 237-9866, or the Wellesley Recreation Department at 235-2370 (sponsor of the Choral Society) vironment," according to the Planning Department document.

Novitiate—

Next in preference are acquisition of the Charles River banks (24 percent), wetlands (14 percent), playfield development (13 percent), and future use (9 percent).

This, as Ms. Lerner points out, puts the Novitiate land in the top two categories.

It is also in direct conflict with Conservation Commission and Planning Department plans to concentrate on purchase of wetlands in the capital improvements program, she adds.

Slated for acquisition in FY 1977 are the 3.5 acre Dolan Brook wetland, the 37.6 acre Kennard Estate, also a wetland; and 2.4 acres on Oakdale Road where a "major property owner" wants to "release his portion as an alternative to development," according to the Commission minutes of November, 1975.

In FY 1978 the Commission plans to buy 17 acres of wetland along Nahanton Street, leaving out the entire corner of Winchester and Nahanton streets, and 5 acres of WHDH land between the Charles River and Sweet Street in Upper Falls.

Finally, in FY 1979 purchases would be only 15 acres of the Novitiate land nearest the Charles River Pathway, the 3 acres of Marcy land off Chestnut Street in Upper Falls, and 20.8 acres of wetland off Winchester Street near Carl Street.

This adds up to a lot of wetland.

Little desired fits the "open space" category for walking, canoing, picnicking, and general passive recreation.

Only the Norumbega land, put into the 1976 acquisition program after extreme citizen pressure and the threat of development last year, qualifies for that slot.

Norumbega's wooded, riverfront 13.3 acres are to become a northside city park.

Southside residents, especially those in Ward 8, have no riverfront open space of comparable quality and size.

The 100 or more people attending the Conservators' Conference at Meadowbrook last week are developing specific plans for the Novitiate Park and will continue to press Mayor Theodore Mann and the Board of Aldermen for open space within walking distance of their homes.

In another development this week, the Conservation Commission has expressed a willingness to change its capital improvements request to include more of the Novitiate land.

In a memo dated September 23, but released at Monday night's meeting of the Newton Recreation Commission, Commissioner Helen Heyn said the Conservation Commission now wants to "leave open the possibility of recommending acquisition of the entire site for public use."

To this end the Conservation Commission wants input from the Recreation Commission "about their possible interest in using all, or parts of, the land and-or the buildings," Ms. Heyn said.

Finally, the Conservation Commission wants to finish discussions with the Metropolitan District Commission on the Novitiate land before making any further recommendations, she said.

The Recreation Commission spent about two hours Monday evening listening to Conservator representatives and, after brief discussion, voted in favor of a motion by Commissioner Paul Burke that the city groups involved (Conservation Commission, Mayor's office, Planning Department, Recreation Commission and aldermanic City Planning Committee) get together with the Conservators to work on the Novitiate Park proposal.

Burke called for "more facts and figures" before the Recreation Commission could intelligently make any decisions on the Novitiate buildings and playfields.

Recreation Commissioner Russell Halloran is reportedly very interested in the Novitiate facilities as potential places for Recreation Department programs.

Halloran would only say Monday that he was interested, and that the important things is to coordinate and find out what is the best way to go about getting the property.

Finding a way for the city to use the buildings would wipe out a major roadblock to the Park's becoming a reality,since the land agent is unwilling to sell any of the open land by itself.

"The land has not been offered for sale. We have been looking for someone to utilize the buildings," said John Math, the Novitiate's real estate agent at the Recreation Commission meeting.

"This land is not going to be sold as a piece of land," he added.

"If the city feels it should acquire all the land and all the buildings and utilize the buildings for recreational facilities - that is fine," McGrath said.

the commercial district, traffic congestion would be increased, and the money could be spent better on creating buffer strips of landscaping and trees between parking lots and the residential parts of Newton Centre.

The urban design study of Newton Centre, which was started late last winter, was supposed to determine among other things the parking requirements of Newton Centre.

Cohen reported that most of the businessmen in the Newton Centre triangle area are in favor of the proposal for underground parking, even though the area will be disrupted for up to eight months while it is being built.

The Public Buildings Committee approved the resolution.

The City Planning Committee approved the resolution with the exception of one paragraph that assumes that the need for the facility is definite.

Plymouth Rock wasn't always as solid as it looked.

When the pilgrims first landed here from jolly old England, things weren't so jolly.

He hunts meteorite bits

By MAXINE YEE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ronald Oriti likes to search for something he might never find — all in the interest of science.

Oriti is an expert on meteors and meteorites. What he looks for are fragments of meteorites.

"Meteorites are so fascinating and interesting you get a big thrill when you find one," he said. "Then add to that the scientific importance. Then the excitement of the hunt is enough to make you want to look for fragments in the most rugged places."

An astronomical lecturer at Griffith Park Observatory, his latest search effort was for remnants of a single brilliant fireball that burst over northern California shortly before midnight Aug. 23.

Hundreds of people in three states — California, Nevada and Arizona — reported seeing the flash of the meteor as it exploded in the earth's atmosphere. Some even reported hearing a "sonic boom." That convinced Oriti that fragments survived the trip to earth and can be recovered.

But even Oriti admits searching for the fragments is like looking for a needle in a haystack.

Almost all meteors burn up in the earth's atmosphere. The ones that do survive often fall in inaccessible areas — the ocean, the forests.

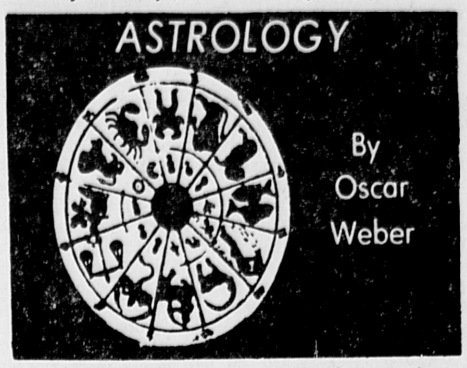

Using preliminary calculations drawn at the observatory, Oriti concluded the meteor exploded over northern California, possibly in the Sonora area.

He packed his bags, arrived in the Mother Lode Country several hours later and began interviewing anyone who saw or heard anything the night the fireball was sighted.

From eye-witness accounts of where the meteor was seen overhead, he calculated the "sub-end point" — the area over which the meteor burst — was somewhere near Hetch Hetchy Reservoir on the west side of Yosemite National Park.

"We can determine the sub-end point to within two miles," said Oriti. "But the thing to remember is that when it breaks up, it falls in an area that sometimes covers several square miles.

"If there were 100 specimens, then we'll have a chance of finding one or two fragments. If we find anything, then we'll know the ellipse of fall (the area in which fragments were thrown from the explosion). Once we're in this area, we'll comb it with a fine-tooth comb."

Q. I read your column regularly. I have bought books and tried to write my own horoscope but I get confused with all the charts. I was born in Waltham, Mass. on July 29, 1939 between 6 and 6:30 a.m. P.C.

A. It is not easy to study any deep or occult subject just by reading books. Astrology when taught by a competent teacher need not be occult (hidden) but must be mastered step by step in an orderly, systematic manner.

From 6 to 6:30 a.m., there is 30 minutes during which the Signs of the Zodiac on the Midheaven changed from Aries to Taurus and the various degrees of the Signs on the different Houses changed. The First House ranged from nine degrees of Leo to fifteen degrees of Leo, so you see a more definite time of birth is needed to calculate an accurate horoscope.

However, your Sun, Mercury and Pluto were in Leo; Neptune was in Virgo; your Moon and Mars were in Capricorn; Jupiter in Aries; Saturn and Uranus were in Taurus and Venus in Cancer. These indicate that you have good organizing ability and an instinct to achieve recognition.

You are capable of being very affectionate but tend to inhibit or restrain your feelings or you may find an outlet for your strong emotions by striving to accomplish some objective or ambition. Your intense energies, when directed towards a specific objective, have the drive to reach the goal.

You probably have much vitality, as a general rule you are optimistic, can generate considerable enthusiasm and take life philosophically. Early in life you may have had to overcome some difficulty but this has tended to give you experience and strengthened your ability to handle your duties and responsibilities with fortitude.

Backgammon's champion booster

By EDWARD W. BASSETT

NEW YORK (UPI) — An ex-jet fighter pilot, he bought his first title, won a second and has been challenged by Muhammad Ali.

Baron Vernon Ball, whose match with Bobby Riggs was rained out, now wants to play Jackie Onassis.

His game is backgammon. He's the world champion. That's the title he won. "Baron" is the one he bought. Now he's opening promoting his backgammon title by playing celebrities.

"If you were the world champion of something, wouldn't you want people to know?"

"The interesting thing about the game is that a beginner can take a champion — once," said the Baron. "That's because the game is 75 per cent luck and 25 per cent skill.

"In the long run or a tournament, however, the good player will win," says Ball. who has challenged the Russians to put up a champion and has put his title on the line for $100,000."

A Boris Spaasky-Bobby Fisher type match would give the game worldwide visibility, says the 45-year-old hotel owner from St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. What is more, he figures the publicity "would benefit me as well as help the game."

So Ball has challenged the Russians to put up a champion. He has put his title on the line — for $100,000.

Of his desire to play Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, he says, "I hear she plays an excellent game of backgammon and she's always doing things for charity, so the proceeds could go to the charity of her choice if she wins."

He feels he can get sponsors to put up $25,000 to $50,000 for such a match.

The tanned, lean resort owner has pulled other stunts. In 1970 he bought his first title — that of Baron — for $13,000 from an impoverished Italian "just for a lark." More recently, he staged what he says was the world's first underwater backgammon game in the waters of St. Thomas.

He became champion of the world's oldest recorded game last January, beating top pros, many of whom had been playing for 40 years.

"I had only been playing for just over two years at the time," he said. "So if I can do it, anyone can."

About the same time he met Ali and taught him the basics of the game, only to have the world heavyweight boxing champion turn around and challenge him to a money match which hasn't been played yet.

He once agreed to a money match of backgammon followed by a tennis match with "Bobby Riggs, the great hustler himself," but "it started raining and we had to cancel," said Ball, who was once a rated tennis player.

"It's an addictive game that completely absorbs me when I play," he said while scratching his bushy mustache. "I usually have one cigarette in my mouth and one going in the ashtray."

The backgammon boom has spread to college campuses and neighborhood bars, says Ball. He estimates there are at least two million players in the country. He says "There are at least six new backgammon clubs in New York City this year."

"I think the game deserves the promotion," says the Baron. His current promotions include a display his expertise in a forthcoming film, "The Great Balloon Race," and a pro-celebrity tournament in Mexico featuring Lucile Ball, George Plimpton and Polly Bergen.

CHEATING CAUSE

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Parents' excessively high scholastic standards sometimes cause their children to cheat, says Dr. Leon Rottman.

He said parents' excessive worry when they are faced with cheating and stealing situations can also be a threat to the adults' mental health if they lead the parents to worry about "where we went wrong."

Rottman is Extension human development specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. He said a child of parents who demand A's may be tempted to copy from another student. Honest approval for B and C grades may reduce their need to cheat, he said.

The Green Thumb

Dried Arrangements—Now's a good time to be thinking about gathering leaves, stems, grasses, pods and other materials for dried arrangements. The selection is unlimited. Try Queen Anne's Lace (wild carrot), zinnias, larkspur, yarrow, globe amaranth, plus scads of other items found in meadows, or in your own backyard. There are several methods of dry, the simplest being the upside or hanging system. Golden rod, blue salvia, statice, and several grasses dry easily by tying the stems in a bunch and hanging them in a garage.

Pick materials on a hot, dry day so no moisture is on them. They dry best in hot weather. A garage is a better place than a basement for drying. Attics are good places to dry your specimens.

Another method for drying consists of using sand or borax. Take fine, dry sand (never damp) and pour it in a box about 3 or 4 inches deep. Put flower heads in, upside down, and pour more sand in gently until the flower heads are covered. Store in a cool dry place for 2 to 3 weeks, then take them out, pour off the sand and carefully wipe the flowers from particles, using a soft brush or a piece of cleansing tissue. Some people prefer a mixture of sand and borax; others use sand and corn meal. Sand is slower working whereas borax is fast acting. The borax alone may make the flowers too brittle if they are watched carefully and removed at the right time. We like a mixture of two thirds borax and one third sand.

If you want to try your hand preserving foliages such as leaves of maples, poplars, rhododendrons, etc. try glycerine. Remove dust from leaves, pound the lower ends of stems with a hammer to split the bark and loosen the wood. Stand the material in a jar containing solution of two thirds water, one third glycerine, so it reaches 3 or 4 inches up the stems. Allow a week or so for the solution to be absorbed. Leaves and low growing plants may be placed flat in a pan of glycerine. This solution may change the color of the foliage (usually darker). Use the glycerine over and over again as it will last indefinitely.

Green Thumb Clinic—"Our peony bush started out beautifully this spring, but the buds did not open. They turned brown and dried up. What should we do with the plants? Dig them up?"

Ans: No, do not dig them. Cut the stems back now, close to the ground. Place the clippings in a plastic bag and haul them to the dump (not on the compost). Spray the bed with Bordeaux Mixture, Captan, or Benlate, now and again in the spring when growth starts. Spray again when the buds start to open. Your trouble is botrytis or fireblight disease, serious on peonies and tulips.

MUSHROOM BOOM

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mushroom production is mushrooming in the United States. It hit a record high of 309.8 million pounds for the period that ended in June, 1976, up more than 10 million pounds over the previous year, according to the USDA Crop Reporting Board. Although most of the crop was processed, sales of fresh mushrooms totaled 142.1 million pounds, an increase of 16 per cent over the previous year.

Homebuilders plan may offer hope for home buyers

The Executive Committee of the 80,000-member National Association of Home Builders has put forward a proposed program of governmental assistance to provide homes for purchase by your families, the elderly, and moderate income families and still be non-inflationary.

Endorsement of the proposed program, to be submitted to the Administration and the Congress, came last week during NAHB's Fall Board of Directors and Builders Conference.

The proposal was conceived by NAHB President John C. Hart of Indianapolis. It involves a front-end subsidy by the government. It would reduce prevailing mortgage interest rates by up to three percentage points for the term of the mortgage. Under the plan the federal government would make a one-time payment to the mortgage lender covering the cost of the difference between the then market interest rate and a variable below-market rate. This payment would be secured by a non-interest bearing second trust (for the term of the mortgage) given by the buyer and payable to the federal government. The funds advanced by the government would be recaptured upon the resale of the home.

This new program is "truly American," Hart said. "Lower income families, formerly excluded from the new home market, would be able to choose a home of their own in the location of their choice; the costs subsidized by the government would be recaptured; and repayment by the home buyer would be accounted for by the equity built up in his home through normal appreciation in value."

In addition, if housing opportunities were provided for 100,000 families per year, Hart said, "this program would create 185,000 more jobs for craftsmen, laborers, and minorities. It would develop $600-million in federal personal and corporate tax revenues and $150-million in state income and local real estate taxes."

Hart's program sets a sales price limit of $50,000. It is intended for conventionally financed, new single-family units including condominiums. The below-market interest rate would vary according to the sales price of the home—the lower the price of the house, the lower the interest rate. For example: assuming a market rate of 9 percent, buyers of a $25,000 house would receive a below-market interest rate mortgage of 6 percent. The interest rate would increase ¼ of 1 percent for each $5,000 increment in the sales price up to $50,000 at 7-¼ percent.

"Another feature of this proposal," Hart said, "is that the home buyer is obligated only to pay back a pro-rated portion of the subsidy at any time of resale during the first 12 years. During that first 12 years, the remainder of that second trust is assumable by succeeding buyers—thus, allowing other buyers to take advantage of a below-market mortgage rate."

Hart pointed out the direct effect the proposal has on qualifying new home buyers: "A buyer who could afford only a $25,000 home in the current market would now be able to afford to purchase a $30,000 home. This in itself opens up a whole new range of opportunities for prospective buyers."

"Furthermore," Hart said, "the amount of cash required for a down-payment is substantially reduced. For example: the buyer of a $40,000 home in today's market is often required to pay 20 percent or more in downpayment—that's $8,000. Under our proposed program that same home would require a downpayment of only $2,750.

Builders urge continuance of interest plan

The National Association of Home Builders today urged Congress to continue, at least on a standby basis, bovernment programs that provide mortgage money at below market interest rates during periods when credit is tight and expensive.

In testimony before a Senate Banking Housing and Urban Affairs Committee oversight hearing, J. S. Norman, Jr., of Houston, said that without the mortgage funds provided through teh tandem and so-called Brooke-Cranston programs "many builders would have been unable to survive" the 1974-75 recession.

These government programs are "a needed adjunct to other government efforts designed to assure that every American family has the opportunity to obtain adequate housing at a cost it can afford," Norman, the immediate past president of NAHB, said. "They are especially needed when other government actions tighten up the supply of mortgage funds and drive up interest rates."

Although the housing picture has brightened considerably in the past year, Norman warned that interest rates hover at about 9 percent — far too high for the budgets of millions of moderate income families. Many of these families, however, would be able to afford a new home with 7.5 percent mortgage money provided under the Brooke-Cranston program, he said.

The Brooke-Cranston program is one of the government's most effective but least expensive housing programs. The Government National Mortgage Association agrees to buy mortgages in advance from lenders at 7.5 percent interest rates. The lender issues the 7.5 percent mortgage to a new homebuyer or aprtment builder and then sells the mortgage to GNMA, which, in turn, either keeps the mortgage in its own portfolio or sells it on the open market. In effect, the government is subsidizing the difference between the 7.5 percent interest rate and the gging rate for mortgages in the secondary market.

In 1974-75, $7.75 billion in Brooke-Cranston money was released for purchase of single family mortgages. Another $5 billion was released this year for purchase of FHA-VA aprtment mortgages.

The recent upturn in multifamily starts, Norman said, can be attributed to the release of the 7.5 percent mortgage money.

Another possibility would be for Congress to enact a permanent trigger mechanism "whereby tandem funds would be available whenever housing starts fall below a certain level," Norman said. This would eliminate the uncertainty in the housing industry created by the government's "start again — stop again" policy in regards to whether the program would be renewed.

Norman also noted that GNMA has recaptured about $5 billion from its recnt mortgage sales. He urged HUD to release this money for purchase of single family mortgages.

"She wants to know if she can get an unlisted ZIP code?"

Plymouth Rock wasn't always as solid as it looked.

When the pilgrims first landed here from jolly old England, things weren't so jolly
There was sickness and disease. Starvation. And rough winters to fight.
But it was worth it because those early Americans were planting the seeds of freedom in this new land
Today you can help those seeds continue to grow by buying United States Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan.
All you do is arrange to have a little set aside from each paycheck to buy Bonds. It's safe, automatic, and no struggle at all
Buy U.S. Savings Bonds
It's one investment that really is as solid as a rock

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

200 years at the same location.

Sharing the ride isn't exactly a new idea.

When Noah got the word about a stormy outlook for the world, sharing the ride was the only thing that made sense.
Times have changed, but the idea still holds water. When you share the ride, you can cut your commuting expenses in half. And you help reduce that sea of cars around you.
Doubling up can make a big difference. To you. To all of us.

Share the ride with a friend. It sure beats driving alone.

Books

Evelyn Nesbit and Stanford White, by Michael Macdonald Mooney. (Morrow, $10) The story of the Nesbit-White love affair deserves retelling, enhanced here by a beautifully textured background of New York City at the turn of the century, the storied "Gilded Age." Architect White seduced Miss Nesbit, then an innocent of 19, and he in turn was shot by the man who later married her, Harry Thaw. The author has researched deeply to evoke the era and bring the rather trite tale to life. His epitaph for White is striking: "It (New York City) would remember him principally because he had loved a pretty woman and been murdered for doing so."

Blood and Money, by Thomas Thompson. (Doubleday, $10.95) The complicated, diffuse tale of a Texas millionaire's obsession with his daughter taxes the reader's credulity at times. Nonetheless, it is immensely entertaining, skillfully juggling such currently popular themes as medical advances, new wealth, raucus life styles and assassination. The characters might not be lovable, or quite real, but they are fascinating to follow.

Wednesday the Rabbi Got Wet, by Harry Kemelman. (Morrow, $8.95) Rabbi David Small is at it again, at odds with his congregation and doing a little detecting on the side to help his friend, Barnard's Crossing police chief Hugh Lanigan. Should the synagogue sell a block of property and buy a camp site in New Hampshire for a retreat? And what does all this have to do with mixed prescriptions and the death of a not very nice old man? That's what readers of the latest in the Rabbi Small series will discover, and they'll have a lot of fun doing it.

Candide, the Complete Words and Music. (Schirmer BooksMacmillan, cloth $35, paper $25) The first of a series of the full texts and scores of hit musicals planned by Macmillan. This is the celebrated Hal Prince Broadway version, music by Leonard Bernstein, book by Hugh Wheeler, lyrics by Richard Wilbur, John Latouche, and Stephen Sondheim. A big beautiful book with excellent color photographs, marred slightly by the failure to identify the cast members.

TAX SAVING

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — An economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service says a recent Texas Supreme Court decision could save part-time farmers and ranchers tax money.

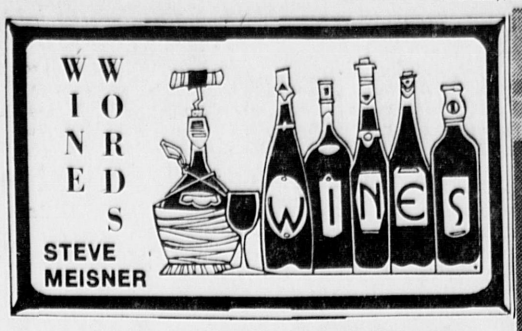

The court ruled farmers and ranchers may qualify for agricultural tax exemptions on farm real estate even if they earn more than half their income from other sources.

Copra and cinnamon account for almost all of the Seychelles export income.

PATENT ACTIVITY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More inventions are being patented for quadraphonic or four-channel stereo sound than for any other technology, according to a study here.

During the 1973-75 period, patent activity in this field grew at an annual rate of 112.2 per cent, or about 49 times the average for all other technologies combined, according to Intellectual Property Owners, Inc., a nonprofit edducational group dedicated to preserving patent rights as an incentive to innovation and creativity.

Of the many wine-producing areas in the United States, the area that receives the most publicity is California, and this is probably will-deserved.

quality, some being extraordinary. California wines reach national markets, and have become a permanent fixture in wine shops across the USA. I have heard it often repeated though, that we do not ever see the "best" of California wines on the eatern seaboard, as they are quickly bought up in their home state.

Often they are spoken for before they leave the winery. I have also heard the same people lament that our east coast wine producers don't hold a candle to their California counterparts. Having heard this once too often, and discovering myself in possession of a week of vacation, I journeyed to the New York wine country surrounding Hammondsport, on Lake Keuka.

As luck would have it, my wife and I chose the Bully Hill Wine Co. as the object of our first curiosity, and as luck would have it, we were no sooner out of our car when we bumped into a certain Walter S. Taylor, owner of Bully Hill, artist, traveler, grape-grower, philosopher and poet,.....all by his own admission.

Mr. Taylor proved to be a most interesting and charismatic individual, but more to the point, the wines which he so kindly provided for us to taste were somewhat of a revelation. Many of us have been brought up to think that European wines (those of France and Germany particularly) are the only wines that fall into the category of good, drinkable wines.

A recent development is that we now are encouraged to believe that the only wines we should consider in the fine wine category are European wines and California wines made from transplanted European (known as Vinifera) vines.

Despite the fact that many European wines, along with many California wines, are excellent, we should not trap our wine-tastes in a single groove. We should be open to the diversity of the product of the grape.

Mr. Taylor utilizes what are known as French hybrids in the making of his wines. He also uses native American grapes. His wines do not bear familiar sounding names such as Chardonnay, and Cabernet Sauvignon and Riesling. Instead, they bear names such as Baco Noir, Aurora Blanc and Seyval Blanc. Rather than looking down on such wines without even trying them, we should look on them as new and different experiences.

Not every grape grown in New York is a Catawba. Not every wine has the "foxiness" we hear about so often. Mr. Taylor's Baco Noir was full, rich red wine, and his Seyval Blanc was off-dry and delicate.

His new product, Walter S. Taylor Red, is a fruity, berry—like blend of several grapes that had a freshness, a lightness and a very clean finish that was unexpected and very pleasing. And wy & why should we miss something that is pleasing to us, out of pure habit? The point is, of course, that if you like European wines and you like California wines, go ahead and drink them. But if you like to try new wines, don't let anyone tell you that there aren't some good ones to be had up near Lake Keuka.

As another example, following our visit with Mr. Taylor, we ventured on up the sloping mountain road overlooking the lake a mile or two, where we paid a visit to Dr. Konstantin Frank, a strong-willed old winemaker of 77 years who has achieved fame in the United States wine industry because he was the first vintner to successfully grow vinifera vines on the eastern coast (cold weather, short growing season).

He was hospitable enough to allow us to taste several of his wines, including Johannisberg Riesling, Chardonnay and Gewurztraminer and we found these wines at once different in character from their European brethren, and yet curiously the same. The wines, like the winemaker himself, were vigorous and lively, steely and complex. These wines, we felt, would grace any table and add to the enjoyment of many a meal.

Comparison with other more well-known wines is unavoidable, yet on this occassion we felt comparison to be pointless.

The New York wines we tasted really could stand on their own, just as the fine wines of California, Europe, and a hundred other places aou & around the world. Try them! You just might like them.....and here's to your health!

Saturday Camp begins at Service Centers

The Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., will be offering its Saturday Camp for 7- to 14-year-olds beginning on Oct. 2. In its seventh season of operation, the program is designed to encourage creativity, self-confidence, and an awareness of the natural environment.

The camp is geared to young people whose school and social skills could benefit from a close and supportive interaction with adults. Campers are encouraged to play an important role in the planning and selection of activities.

This year an environmental awareness program will teach how to adjust to outdoor living and will help develop a more concerned outlook toward the ecology. Campers will learn how basic outdoor materials, such as rocks, wood, and plants, can provide for survival in the outdoors.

A special ropes course and rock climbing program, based on Outward Bound, will also be offered. The ropes course includes a variety of swinging rope techniques, such as the Burma bridge, the cargo net swing, and the catwalk, and other activities that keep the participants eager and willing to continue.

The goal of both these programs is to teach campers the skills and confidence necessary to feel comfortable with their environment and to have a respect for nature.

In addition, the camp offers other activities such as ice fishing, cooking, physical yoga, dancing, drama, sports, and arts and crafts. Regular camping overnights will be held on Fridays. Staff members are student teachers from Boston College who are trained and supervised by college personnel.

The camper-staff ratio is approximately two to one. The fee, which includes both cost of materials and transportation, is $55 for the 10-week fall session, plus a $3 registration fee.

Registrations are being accepted at the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., 429 Cherry St., West Newton. For further information call Rick Williams at 969-5907.

The Saturday Camp sponsored by the Newton Community Service Centers offers an enjoyable day in an outdoor setting where children can learn abuout themselves and the environment.

Scout news

By JANET HOLLY

Girl Scouts, rally 'round! This is a good time to get together your classmates, friends, and ask your parents to help get a troop started.

Adults, if you see the need for something like scouting in your child's school, call the Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council office at 890-1660.

Few other organizations for kids furnish food for spirit as well as mind and body. And if you are a leader forming a troop in Newton, let the service team know. They are interested in helping you. Call 332-6585 to speak to the secretary.

A well-informed, trained GS leader and assistant make the scouting experience something which girls can remember for many years.

There will be training sessions for all new Girl Scout leaders in Newton and Waltham Wednesday, Oct. 6, 9:30 a.m. to noon. Bring your "GS Leaders' Manual," Program Level Handbook, pencil and paper and lunch to Newtonville Methodist Church on Walnut St.

On Tuesday, Oct. 7, from 7:30 to 10 p.m., at First Baptist Church, Lexington Street near Totten Pond Road in Waltham, is another opportunity to get the basic training. Call the GS office ahead of time.

Thursday, Sept. 30, experienced leaders and assistance have an opportunity to get their advanced outdoor skills training at Camp Mary Day off Route 30 near the Natick-Weston line, from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

If your girls are juniors or cadettes, they will probably want to go overnight camping. The chance to obtain training for this if you have the equivalent of basic outdoor skills will be here soon.

The first half will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. either Oct. 12, 14 or 19 at Weston Scout House. The overnight part will be at Camp Mary Day Friday, Oct. 22, 5 p.m. to Saturday, Oct. 23, 2 p.m.

Now is also the time to think about whether your troop will sell Girl Scout calendars. The new, colorful calendars sell for 60 cents each, an increased profit for troop treasuries of 30 cents per calendar. Place your troop orders by calling the neighborhoood secretary. Delivery will be during the beginning of November.

So far, more than 500 cadette girls have registered for the cadette encampment Oct. 1-3. The theme is "Global Girls Games," celebrating the 50th anniversary of the World Association.

'Taming of the Shrew' terrific

By RANDY MUDARRI
Graphic theater critic

In celebrating the opening of its second season, the Boston Shakespeare Company has a terrific production of "The Taming of the Shrew."

The scene is the Italian town of Padua. A wealthy citizen, Baptista, is father of two daughters; Bianca, charming, beautiful and wooed by the bachelors of the town; and Katharine, normally referred to as "Kate the Cursed."

The local suitors are in a bind because Bianca cannot be married before her older sister; and who would ever marry her?

Along comes Petruchio, a gentleman from Verona, who just happens to be in the market for a rich wife. When told of Baptista's wealth and Katharina's availability, Petruchio resolutely sets out to win her.

The scenes between the determined and sharp-witted Petruchio and the equally unbending Katharina are literary classics and are peformed here tremendously well. Spirit, timing and emotion are blended wonderfully in these clashes and credit must be given to the actors for sustaining the momentum and adding to it, for the sexes never battled such as this.

As amusing as these scenes are, they admirably do not pass into outright farce, thus lending more credibility to the play as a whole.

Lucentio is from Pisa and instantly fell in love with Bianca. Gremio is a rich old man who desires her, as does Hortensio, another local suitor.

Lucentio and Hortensio switch roles with their servants, and disguised as tutors, enter the house of Baptista with the intention of getting to Bianca and having her fall in love with them. Meanwhile, Gremio plays it straight and barters with Baptista while opposing Lucentio, who is actually Tranio the servant.

Involved as the plot is, it is to the credit of the cast that all remains very clear to the audience.

This production is tremendously funny, well-acted and excellently directed by Bill Cain.

Sterling Swann as Petruchio has great stage presence. Confidence, style, wit and good looks are interwoven in such a manner that his asides and underplaying carry great effect as well as prevent him from being offensive. Swann couldn't have been better.

Opposite him is S. Proctor-Gray as Katharina. She is Swann's equal in their scenes together, but early in the play in her scenes with the other characters she has a tendency to overact. Her gradual transformation from shrew to ex-shrew is clearly evident, displaying a good sense of comic timing and acting ability.

Ramon Ramos is Gremio, the old suitor. He splendidly uses his voice for various effects and punctuations and is just plain funny.

As Bianca, Samantha Wenderoth looks like a little China doll, but doesn't do much else. John Griffin is good as Baptista and in this role somehow reminiscent is of Ozzie Nelson.

Richard Cochrane gives the impression, in his role as Lucentio, of being starstruck. Steven Ahern is good as Hortensio and briefly funny in a cameo bit as the tailor. Grey Johnson is adequate as Petruchio's servant, Grumio. Steven B. Aveson is still losing lines due to speaking to rapidly in his role as Lucentio's servant, Tranio. His other servant, Biondello, is played by Tom Dinger, he of the decreasing numeral (why?).

Richard Moses, Alan Babb, Janet Buchwald fill out the cast. Accompanying guitar music is composed and played by Robert Fiorentino.

Shakespeare buff or not, anyone will enjoy this production of "The Taming of the Shrew." The production is at the Boston Shakespeare Company Theater at the corner of Berkeley and Marlborough streets in the Back Bay.

Spain: political violence since Franco's death

By PETER UEBERSAX

MADRID (UPI) — Political violence in Spain has claimed more lives in the nine months since the death of Generalissimo Francisco Franco than in the nearly 2-½ years of turbulent political change in neighboring Portugal.

When Francisco Javier Verdejo, an 18-year-old member of the Maoist Young Red Guards, was killed by a police bullet in the southeastern town of Almeria last month, he was the 30th Spaniard to die in violence involving extremists of both the left and the right and Spain's police forces.

Hundreds of persons have been injured in politically motivated incidents during the nine months that Spain has been traveling the road from Franco's authoritarian regime to the democracy promised by King Juan Carlos.

In Portugal, 21 lives have been claimed by political violence since the military coup on April 24, 1974, according to unofficial tabulations.

The reason why politics in Spain are bloodier than in Portugal is generally explained by the more violent nature of Spaniards and the existence of old hatreds generated by the 1936-39 civil war.

One major source of violence is the existence of a guerrilla movement in the northern Basque provinces. Most of the bloodshed has occurred in the Basque region — a reflection of the strong political tensions in that independent-minded part of the nation.

Eleven of the 30 post-Franco deaths — among them four policemen — fell victim to terrorist acts by "Basque Homeland and Liberty" (ETA), the guerrilla arm of the Basque separatists. Another 11 persons died as a result of police action, and eight in other violence directly or indirectly connected with politics.

The bloodiest incident of the post-Franco era so far occurred last March in the basque town of Vitoria during an illegal twomonth strike by thousands of steel workers who, the government said, were led by a former Catholic priest turned Marxist revolutionary.

Police dropped tear gas and smoke flares into a church where 5,000 strikers were meeting, then used their submachineguns as the crowd surged from the church and engulfed police. Five workers died and about 100 persons — among them many police — were injured.

Violence also was sparked by the escape in April of 40 left-wing prisoners — among them many convicted terrorists — from a maximum-security jail in Segovia.

Hidden under a double floor of a trailer truck, the prisoners made it to the French border but then lost their way in the fot. In a series of shootouts along the smuggler trails of the Pyrenees mountains, police recaptured all but four of them. One prisoner was killed and several injured.

On Montejurry, a "holy mountain" in the Basque region, right-wing and left-wing members of a dissident monarchist movement clashed during the annual pilgrimage of the Carlist Movement to honor their war dead.

The right-wingers, who dug mountaintop trenches and installed machineguns to stop the left-wing monarchists, killed two persons and injured several others.

ETA, in turn, killed three policemen with boobytrapped Basque flags whose display is illegal and automatically results in removal by police. Another victim of the Basque guerrillas was industrialist Angel Berazadi who was kidnaped and later slain — despite the announced willingness of his family to pay a $3 million ransom.

Two bombers — alleged by police to be members of a far left revolutionary movement — died in a nationwide wave of bombings of government buildings and civil war monuments last July when the bomb they were carrying blew up prematurely.

In recent months, police action resulting in the death of street demonstrators or left-wing militants has caused increasing public protests and demands that the government restrict the use of firearms by the civil guards and armed police, the two forces responsible for maintaining law and order.

The death of Verdejo stirred public protests throughout the nation and Premier Adolfo Suarez personally visited his parents to express his condolences.

Verdejo was killed when police surprised him painting the words "Bread, Work and Liberty" on a housewall. A police statement said a police gun discharged accidentally when the officer pursuing Verdejo stumbled in the darkness.

Japanese fear auto wrecks and fires

By MARIANNA OHE

TOKYO (UPI) — The Japanese are more frightened of war than burglars, but the thing they fear most is traffic accidents, according to a recent survey.

The poll was conducted by Leisure Development Center, a Tokyo think tank. It shows almost 60 per cent of all Japanese leave their doors unlocked, but take out life or casualty insurance policies.

They believe defense expenditures are necessary for national security and that politicians should be judged according to character rather than talent.

The company sent questionnaires to 3,500 Japanese men and women between the ages of 20 and 70. Replies were received from 1,808.

About 50 per cent of those polled said defense expenditures are a barometer of national security.

Eighty-eight per cent said traffic accidents, viewed as a kind of modern natural disaster, are a menace to life and limb. Eighty-five per cent expressed fear of fire, 77 per cent earthquakes, 68 per cent inflation, 62 per cent typhoons, 62 per cent air pollution, 55 per cent a food crisis and 50 per cent war.

Half of those polled said they fear water shortage, 46 per cent burglary and thunder, 37 per cent epidemics, 33 per cent fascism and 25 per cent discrimination.

The survey showed the Japanese value harmonious personal relations over individuality and independence. Seven out of 10 surveyed said they would think twice about carrying out plans that could be detrimental to the interests of their family.

The same number said good personal relations with clients are essential to successful business, and mutual trust is more important than laws and regulations in solving problems.

A whopping 90 per cent said teachers, judges and politicians should be judged according to their humanity rather than their talent.

The Japanese dislike secrets. Nearly half of the respondents said they are ready to share their personal confidences with whomever they trust, while 75 per cent want business enterprises to be open about their operations.

Fifty-five per cent demand disclosure of all policies by the government, including defense matters.

The Japanese are punctual. Three-fourths of those polled said they make a practice of being on time.

They dislike waiting for buses, but don't mind waiting for examination results, traffic lights, typhoons, commodity price reduction, or conclusion of transportation strikes.

Army of crooks ripping off London tourists

By MICHAEL DENNIGAN

LONDON (UPI) — An army of international crooks, winning with a variety of new-to-Britain ripoffs, is grabbing an illicit share of the nation's estimated $2.6 million tourist revenue this year.

There is little Scotland Yard can do except hope that visitors will hold on to their valuables and money with as much effort as they used in securing them.

From all over the world, thieves, pickpockets, call persons of both sexes, pimps, confidence tricksters and camp followers have swarmed into the moneypots signposted by the hotels and shops of Park Lane, Bond Street and Knightsbridge.

They operate, too, in the gaudy streets of Soho, packed with cheap-looking strip clubs, pornographic movie houses and some of London's best restaurants.

The crooks have been attracted by the big money spenders of America and the Arab oil world and wealthy businessmen from Europe and Asia, drawn to one of the great wide-open cities of the world.

A special London police squad set up to deal with crimes involving foreign visitors reported more than 2,000 thefts from hotel rooms with the 1976 tourist season less than halfway through.

One Arab guest claimed $180,000 lost in jewelry and money from his luxury hotel located in Park Lane across from Hyde Park.

Detective Inspector Brian O'Loughlin, head of detectives in the tourists' "Golden Mile," says a more average take for the increasingly cool and daring hotel thieves is about $18,000 at a time.

O'Loughlin, who operates from Vine Street police station in the center of the well-heeled tourist belt, says hotel room robberies are a new and growing headache for his men.

"I thought I left all that behind in the United States," said one victim, Don Soldini, a realtor from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Early in August a gang led by a woman burst into his room, roughed up his wife, Dolores, and coolly walked off with $50,000 worth of Soldini's jewelry and property in Soldini's suitcases.

Soldini was out at the time and the gang apparently knew his wife was alone.

Investigating Detective Sergeant David Frost said the Soldini robbery was the first time in his experience that violence was used in such a caper.

It worried detectives all the more as it appeared the Soldinis were victims of a trick that normally did not involve rough stuff.

"They had made some friends and it appears the robbery derived from that," said Frost in the guarded manner of a British policeman on a case.

He meant the Soldinis were set up, like many of the victims this year.

A ploy more familiar to Frost and his Vine Street colleagues is the bogus Dutch or South African "jewel expert" who strikes up a friendship with outof-towners, then disappears with the wife's jewels, pretending he knows a place where they can be cleaned cheaply.

Most hotel room thefts are carried out by prostitutes, male or female, with or without gangs or help from accomplices among the high-turnover hotel staff, says O'Loughlin.

The special tourist protection squad has files on 800 well-dressed women who use the lobbies of top-class hotels as their hunting grounds. The bedrooms are where they collect the prizes.

The girls come from the United States, Canada, Italy and West Germany, as well as other British cities, says O'Loughlin. After a "strike" they move on to other pastures until their faces are forgotten — and then they return.

Not far behind are the roving bands of pickpockets, alumni of internationally recognized pickpocket schools in North Africa, Colombia and Peru, says O'Loughlin.

They are organized and arrive in London equipped with an array of aids, including specially cut rubber gloves to aid the "dip," and lists and maps of choice locations, as well as pictures of members of Scotland Yard's antipickpocket squad.

OIL REFINERIES

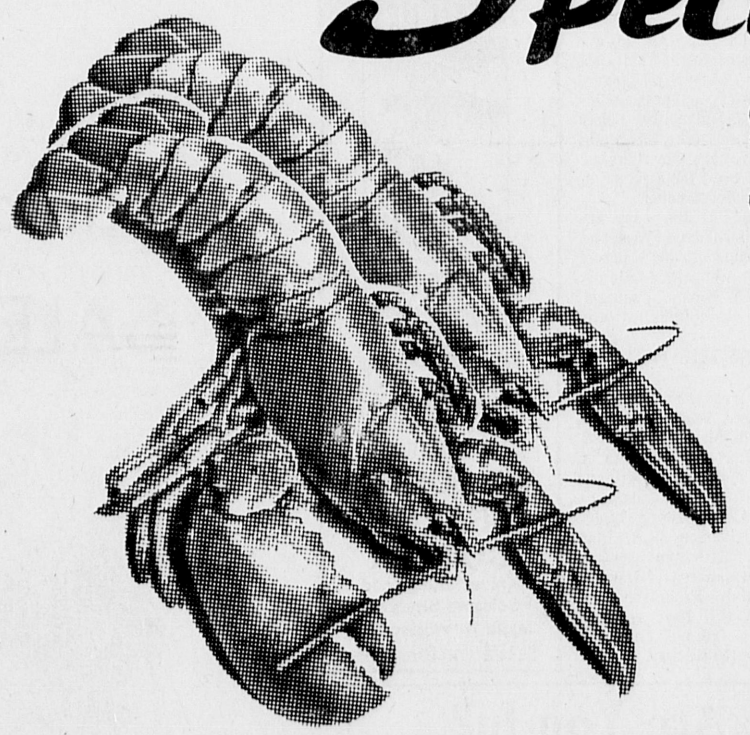

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — New Mexico has eight oil refineries capable of processing more than 100,000 barrels per day.

The New Mexico Oil and Gas Association says the amount processed at the refiners exceeds the daily consumption of refined petroleum products within the state.

WEIGHTY COURSE

POULTNEY, Vt. (UPI) — Coeds at Green Mountain College in Poultney can earn college credits for a weight control program. They can earn four credits for eight weeks or six credits for 12 weeks by attending the nutrition-behavior-body awareness course, which is part of the Green Mountain Weight Control Community for Young Women on campus. The program for 18 to 55-year-olds now operates all year, offering four, eight, 12 or 16-week sessions. The course can also be taken without college credits.

"Greasepaint" is the story of the game of life, a sort of Laurel and Hardy set to music Few get out of life everything they desire, yet true contentment lies in the heart. One who "gets" is Sir, and one who's always ,bested is his foil Cocky of the "Have nots."

They meet to play "The Game." Sir insists that the "haves" must retain their position even if the rules of the game must be constantly changed to accommodate them. Thus, Cocky contends with new rules at every turn. Cocky tries again and again, unsuccessfully, to play the game, and with every defeat Sir's rules become more restrictive.

Cocky, tired ot Sir's commanding role, revolts. He declares that only in dreams do hopes come true. Sir reminds Cocky that it is the courage, wisdom and foresight of the "haves" that improves the lot of the "have nots." Crowned "King" in a mock ceremony, Cocky seems to be winning the game of life, but Sir steps in to remind him that wealth is the trump card. Desperate, Cocky pleads to heaven with the memorable "Who Can I Turn To."

Someone even more downtrodden than Cocky enters to play the game. Cocky becomes as overbearing as Sir, asserts himself with Sir, and with new confidence plays the game and wins. He challenges Sir's mastery and proposes his new rules. But neither Cocky nor Sir can make the grade alone and finally they share the load and head for a future of mutual understanding.

Included in the cast are Stuart Alford, Jane Freedman, Dinah Longson, Jane Longson, Wendy Lorraine, Jenny Lowenthal, Kevin Lowenthal, Renee Massimo, Diana Moncure, Howard Morris and Justin Yoffe.

Stage manager is Ruth Rudnick and lighting technicians are Scott Marshall and Steven Goldstein. Movie theater holds presidential 'straw' vote

Voting for the presidential candidate of their choice, by patrons of Chestnut Hill Cinema, one of the General Cinema theatres, is now in full swing. This marks the third presidential straw vote, which began in 1968 and has continued to increase in popularity.

Every theatre patron at Chestnut Hill cinema, Rte. 9, requesting a cold drink at the concession stand through Nov. 1 will be asked, "Do you wish a Carter straw or a Ford straw?"

The straw of the patron's choice will be a vote for the candidate of their choice. At the end of each day, the votes will be tallied and the daily results sent to General Cinema theatres home office in Boston.

The daily results from over 600 theatres in 39 states, coast to coast, will be fed into a computer and a national percentage for each candidate will be determined. This information will be seent to all General Cinema theatres and the results posted in every theatre lobby. Each theatre will also post the percentage of votes cast for each candidate in their own theatre.

In 1968, General Cinema theatres presidential straw vote picked Richard Nixon as the winner within one tenth of a percentage point of the actual winning margin.

In 1972, with over 790,000 straw votes cast, General Cinema theatres again picked Nixon as the overwhelming victor, and again the straw vote proved uncannily accurate.

In 1976, over 1,000,000 straw votes are expected to be cast, nationally.

BUMPER CROP

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station report rice will be plentiful this year.

What Kind of Shape Are You In?

Jan Lane graduated from high school weighing 200 pounds, wearing a size 22 dress Can you imagine shopping for a prom gown when you wear a fat lady size? She refused to remain fat, so she tried almost every weight reducing program available to the American public Her weight went up and down like a roller coaster, but she couldn't seem to get those excess pounds to stay off

The program she eventually found to be successful was what Slender World grew from — a combination program consisting of group therapy, organic contour cream treatments, diet counseling and self-improvement classes

Jan today is a very svelte 120 pounds and wears a size 9, which allows her to wear very trendy clothes (See photo above) The before picture is not even her top weight, since virtually no photos exist of Jan at 200 pounds except for her high school graduation picture. Jan has lost 80 pounds and slightly more than 112 inches and has managed to keep it off

Through Slender World, Jan has helped thousands of women like herself achieve success and meet their goals for an improved figure and better self-image.

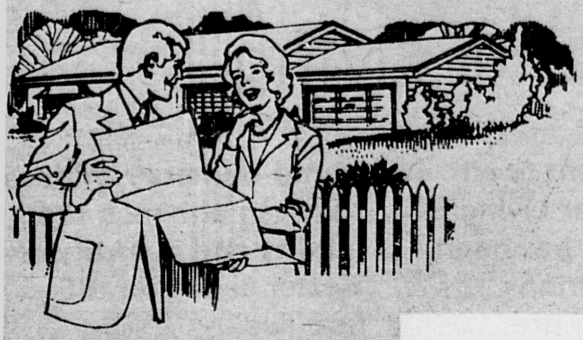

Barbara Parrish, one happy customer lost 40 pounds, and 48 inches in three months Shelly Hames is another, she lost 35 pounds and 35 inches in six weeks. Grace Brown had more a figure problem than weight problem, she lost 20 inches and five pounds in two weeks. So if you're overweight or out of shape call Slender World where many customers lost two dress sizes in 30 days

JAN LANE, Director of Slender World, Went from A Very Shapeless 200 Pounds to A Very Shapely 120. Above, in the Before Photo, She Weighed About 180.

Dover Country Store features furniture for all

The Dover Country Store, located on Springdale Avenue, Dover is a familiar spot to many residents in suburban communities. Mrs. Catherine Wakefield started the Dover Country Store twenty-seven years ago and originally began with new clothing sales. Soon Mrs. Wakefield began selling some formerly used items of furniture as well as used clothing and began using a little Yankee Thrift ingenuity.

The Dover Country Store is now owned and operated by Michael Dowd. Dowd sells merchandise for less because he purchases entire home contents and sells them at the Dover Country Store. This is an ideal way to dispose of items no longer needed or to assist homeowners in a move to either another location or to smaller quarters.

Amateur theatre productions have also had the benefit of finding just the right furniture for their theatrical sets or period costumes. The entire contents of the Dover Country Store are available to customers every day from 9-5 Mon.-Sat. and Wednesday and Friday evenings until 9 p.m. A friendly staff is available to assist you in your selection, and all merchandise has been purchased within an eighteen mile radius of Dover.

New electric staple gun for easy home fix-up

Fall is a perfect time for do-it-yourself projects and for readying your house for the winter ahead. Especially when that home fix-up project means extra money in your pocket all winter long.

One sure and easy way to lower the winter fuel bill is to install energy-saving insulation in the attic, basement or other area that has uninsulated ceilings, floors or walls.

With convenient blanket insulation and the help of a new electric staple gun, installing insulation has never been easier.

The unique staple gun makes short work of insulation because it operates with a simple push of the button.

To install wall insulation:

First, measure and select blanket insulation that is wide enough to fit snugly between the wall studs. Unroll and press the insulation into place between the studs, making sure there are no gaps.

The vapor barrier must be facing the room side of the wall. Then, using ⅜" to ½" staples, tack the insulation to the sides of the wall studs at intervals of about eight inches.

While the Duo-Fast people designed the electric staple gun with enough power to satisfy the heavy-duty needs of the man-around-the-house, its light weight (2½ lbs.) and easy handling make it the perfect tool for the handy-woman as well.

Covering a drab wall with fabric, giving windows a new decorative treatment, or reupholstering furniture are all easy and economical ways to liven up the home for winter.

Staple-gun upholstery, for example, is much easier and faster than the traditional hammer-and-tack method, and it can be used to attach replacement webbing, a dustcover — or anything else where the tack is not exposed.

To reupholster furniture:

Follow the same steps you normally would. But instead of hammering in tacks, simply position the electric staple-gun nose where you need a tack, and press the button. Presto! You've got fasteners that will probably hold better, are easier to remove, and take only a fraction of the time of conventional hammer tacking.

Reupholstering is a fast, easy and inexpensive way to liven up your home decor this fall. A new electric staple gun makes it easier for any do-it-yourselfer to get professional results.

STOP THAT SAG!

If the seats of your cane chairs are sagging, tighten them up by sponging them with a mixture of hot soap suds and salt. Rinse with clean water, dry outside in the sun. When cane is nearly dry, cover with cloth and go over with a hot iron.

PLANTS!

Fifty percent of common garden plants, as well as many wild plants, are poisonous. A single bite of certain mushrooms can be fatal. Caution children never to taste any part of any plant.

Foam 'overcoats' cover energy costs

Cost conscious building owners and managers in New England are relying on foam "overcoats" to ward off rising energy costs and maintain maximum heating and air conditioning efficiency during the severest weather conditions.

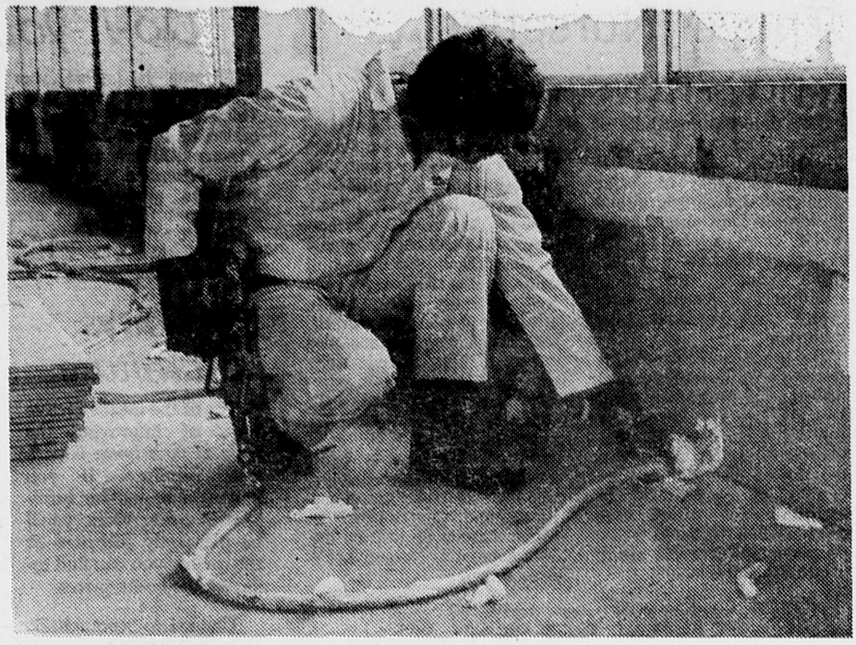

Peter Elliot & Co., managers of the newly constructed 128-One Office Building here, used foamed in place insulation as a rapid and effective means of making the building warmer in the winter and cooler in the summer, with the further advantage of reducing overall energy costs.

"Insulspray," a foamed in place urea formaldehyde insulation system developed by Borden Chemical, was applied by Spray Systems of 3 Lenox St., Norwood, a firm headed by Charles Scott.

Scott, also president of Scott Chemical Co., an authorized distributor of Borden's Insulspray products, noted the new insulation system is being used in both old and new buildings, residential and commercial, and can cut heating and air conditioning costs by up to 30 percent.

In the case of the Dedham office building, it took less than a week to completely insulate all perimeter walls in occupied areas of the building.

Insulspray is reported to have an insulation value 1.7 times that of mineral wool and 2.2 times that of fiberglass. It also is an effective sound deadener and resists moisture, mold, fungi, pests and rodents.

"Insulspray" provides a foam overcoat of insulation to ward off rising energy costs and maintain maximum heating and air conditioning efficiency.

Best buys in furniture

One of the most effective ways of improving the looks of your home is with new furniture. If you haven't shopped for furniture in many years, you'll be pleasantly surprised at the quality you can find today at moderate prices.

Thanks to competition and government regulations, workmanship is better, and thanks to technology, materials are better.

When selecting a chair, test it for sturdiness. Check the arms on sofas and chairs. If you can feel the frame under the padding, it's a bad sign. In choosing fabric, remember that heavy fabrics wear longer, as they do tightly-woven fabrics.

Old Farm recipes back

Today, as millions of Americans join a back-to-the-earth movement by raising their own vegetables, old recipes from the rural America of long ago are re-appearing.

One of these old farm recipes but with a new health feature is delicious Carrot Yogurt Cake featured in the Ortho garden book, "When the Good Cook Gardens."

Carrots, fresh and healthful from your own garden, are used in quantity in this recipe and the authors of "When the Good Cook Gardens" advise a shredder makes fast work of assembling the quantity of grated carrots needed for this decorative nut cake.

The new but old-fashioned cake is topped with a cream cheese frosting and decorated with pecans or walnut halves for a lovely finishing touch.

Gardeners can enjoy this very special dessert year 'round since carrots can be planted and harvested several times a season and into fall. A fall crop of carrots will keep well in cold storage until late spring.

Try Carrot Yogurt Cake and the only big question will be "how can anything so good for you taste so good?"

CARROT YOGURT CAKE

1 cup butter

One and two-thirds cups sugar

4 eggs

1 teaspoon each grated lemon peel, cinnamon and vanilla

1 cup plain or vanilla-flavored yogurt

2½ cups all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon baking soda

1½ teaspoons baking powder

½ teaspoon salt

¾ cup chopped pecans or walnuts

2½ cups finely grated carrots

Beat butter until creamy. Beat in sugar and eggs. Mix in lemon peel, cinnamon, vanilla and yogurt. Stir together the flour, baking soda, baking powder and salt and add to the creamed mixture, beating until smooth.

Mix in pecans and carrots. Turn into a greased and floured 10-inch bundt or tube pan. Bake in a 350 degree oven for one hour and 10 minutes or until golden brown and a toothpick inserted comes out clean. Let cool on a rack 10 minutes, then remove from pan.

Cool completely and frost, if desired. Makes 16 servings.

CREAM CHEESE FROSTING

Beat 3 ounces of cream cheese until creamy and beat in ¾ cup powdered sugar. Add 1½ tablespoons milk and 1 teaspoon vanilla or grated orange peel.

House of tomorrow to use building materials of today

"Back to basics" - a key slogan in the residential housing industry for the past few years - has meant a cut in the overall size of new homes. By eliminating amenities and reducing lot sizes, the building of stripped down houses is an attempt to hold prices at a level affordable by today's young buyers.

Recent research indicates that active home buyers are willing to compromise and accept smaller homes on smaller lots - only if there's an opportunity to expand living facilities at a future date.

This is why many builders are now offering houses with partly unfinished interiors. It means a substantial savings in the selling price of the home, yet the raw space is available for future expansion as family needs dictate.

WOMAN'S DAY magazine, in its October issue, illustrates one way that this process might work. Starting with a basic 11' x 16' room - typical of unfinished spaces that might be found in today's "no-frills" house - WOMAN'S DAY has created a highly versatile "Everything Room" that can be built economically with do-it-yourself materials and labor.

The room adapts neatly to working, hobbies, entertaining, sleeping, playing - even growing plants. Since it's designed to be assembled - and enjoyed - in stages, it's also easy on the family budget. The decorating and furnishing contains many ideas from Armstrong's Bureau of Interior Design which collaborated with WOMAN'S DAY editors on the design and construction of the room.

Armstrong has prepared a 16-page how-to booklet giving detailed information and illustrated step-by-step instructions for completing the "Everything Room."

Initially, $345 is all the investment required to get the project started. This is spent to paint walls, lay cushioned vinyl flooring, and to purchase room-darkening window shades, inexpensive draperies and hardware, and bright posters for wall hangings.

To round out the few pieces of furniture (already owned), make-shift carton seats are made by putting one carton inside another, topping with a foam cushion, and decorating with tape to match the Tred-way floor colors.

New purchases at this point: four directors' chairs, two table tops, and a 6' x 6' solid color nylon rug cut from a roll.

Add-on plywood bookshelves are constructed with standards and brackets. End table is a tall carton and a plywood mobile storage cube combines successfully the functions of a cocktail table, game box, and a seat on casters. Fake fur covers the pillows.

Approximately $850 is needed for Stage 2.

Approximate funds needed for the last or third stage: $1,270, for a grand total of about $2,465 in money outlay.

(For the Armstrong "I-Did-It-Myself" idea booklet with detailed information and illustrated step-by-step instructions, readers may send $1.00 to Armstrong Cork Company, Dept. WD-1076, Lancaster, PA 17604.)

Berkelhammers has the shade to light your room

Three years ago Al Berkelhammers (Berkelhammer Custom Lighting), in Wellesley, was primarily a machine shop specializing in creating lamps and fixtures from objects brought in by customers. Having previously worked for one of the foremost custom lamp makers in the country, Larry Berkelhammers was well aware of the importance of quality lampshades, but being more of a craftsman than a businessman I decided to research the shade field carefully."

Eighteen months later he came "face to face with a ready-made shade that looked custom made ... The quality was superb and the price was a fraction of the cost of a custom made shade ... That ended the question of whether to make shades or sell ready made shades." Today, the entire first floor has nothing but lamp shades. The entire workshop has been moved downstairs (This is where all drilling and mounting takes place).

Often the easiest and least expensive way of freshening up a room is to simply replace the lampshades. A new shade can bring an old lamp and the room up to date. Matching or similar lampshades can unify all the miscellaneous lamps in a room.

Lampshades that are similar in color and style can help give a room a more calm and restful effect. In selecting a shade it is wise to keep in mind that just because a room has white walls it doesn't necessarily mean that the lamps should have white shades. Often the contrast is more pleasing.

The most popular shapes are the drum, empire and bell. Materials range from parchment and vinyl to silk. If you have a very elaborate base in either shape or color, then the shape and color of the shade should be as plain as possible, however, the reverse is not always true.

Whether it be a vase you want mounted or an existing lamp to be shaded stop in at Berkelhammer's, Wellesley, 14 Church Street near the Square. The phone number is 235-4510.

Fresh paint works wonders

"It's amazing what a little paint can do!"

It's true . . . nothing can effect a change so quickly and inexpensively as a fresh coat of paint. So if you like to redecorate but are limited as to funds, pick up your paint brush and give your home a new look.

The trick to redecorating with paint, say experts, is the creative use of colors. Don't paint that tired-looking breakfast nook in the same neutral shade it is now — a bright, sunny color can do wonders to liven it up.

Don't be afraid to use different colors than you've been accustomed to — if you're unsure as to which colors harmonize with others, get a color wheel from your local art supplies store for guidance.

More women heading households

The chances of an American woman being head of her own household and responsible for its finances are growing every day. Census Bureau figures show more women are staying single and more are getting divorces than every before. And on average, women outlive their husbands by about eight years.

Yet millions of working women — despite steady earnings — have not yet begun to prepare financially for retirement.

Whether she's single or married now, the sooner she starts making plans the better off she is likely to be. After all, a working woman deserves more than a farewell party and an orchid corsage at retirement time.

If you're a working woman and employed by a firm that does not sponsor a retirement program, you can do something for yourself about retirement by opening an Individual Retirement Account (IRA).

This program, authorized under Federal law, lets you prepare financially for your later years while reducing your current Federal taxes.

Every year, you can set aside 15 percent of annual earnings, up to $1,500, in an IRA. These contributions can then be deducted on your Federal income tax return, thus minimizing Uncle Sam's bite.

Every year you make these payments you will be getting this tax break — and that can add up to a lot of money. Also, any dividends, interest or capital gains that your contributed payments earn will be tax-deferred until you start to make withdrawals from the plan.

But when you start withdrawing (these withdrawals must start after the age of 59½ and before 70½ or you'll be penalized) you'll probably be retired — and so be in a lower tax bracket and you'll therefore pay less taxes.

To qualify for these tax deductions, you should establish and contribute payments to an IRA plan by December 31st of any year. Of course, you needn't put in $1,500 or the same amount every year. It can be as little as a few hundred dollars annually. The important thing is to make these contributions a regular habit.

Banks, mutual funds and life insurance companies all sponsor IRA plans. The financial objectives of these investments can vary — just like yours do.

First decide what your own financial aims are and then select an investment that most closely matches these goals. How much do you value the safety of your investment? Or its potential for growth? How much risk are you willing to run to aim for a higher income later on?

Questions? A stockbroker, banker, accountant or mutual fund representative can give you advice about IRAs. A good booklet to read: "Take a Tax Shelter Break" offered free by the Investment Company Institute, Dept. M, 1775 K Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20006.

Where does your tax money go?

Would you hand over more than a third of your income without finding out what it was being spent for? Some people may be doing just that if they don't keep informed on government spending–federal and local–based on their tax dollars.

From a quiz on taxes and spending compiled by Ralph Kinney Bennett in the April Reader's Digest come some staggering sums and frightening facts:

Federal, state and local tax collectors put the bite on 37 cents out of every dollar of national income.

Government spending (all levels) averages $7383 per U.S. household–up 1300 percent since 1940.

The national debt is now $38 billion. Interest on this debt is the third largest item in the federal budget–right behind domestic assistance (Social Security, Medicare, food stamps, etc.) and defense.

While U.S. private economy has flourished--our Gross National Product has grown 275 percent in the past twenty years--government spending is far outstripping it. Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon says, "There has been close to a 40-percent growth in government spending in the last two years alone."

One out of six working Americans are employed by one level of government or another–but the number of federal employees has not increased substantially in the past twenty years. What has increased is the federal payroll: it has tripled since 1955

If these statistics were not news to you, you are in a good position to advise your legislators in Washington. But, concludes the article, if these facts are news to you, "you're a soft touch for those who want you to believe that you can have something for nothing."

Spring bulbs available at Family Tree Garden Center

Spring flowering bulbs are now available at Family Tree Garden Center. Holland Bulbs in many varieties and colors are ready to be planted in your garden now for blooming next spring or planted in pots, kept in cool dark places in your home for "forced" blooms in late winter. Directions for either type of planting are available from the experts at Family Tree. Family Tree Garden Center has a full supply of lawn care products for application now on your lawn to make it more attractive for next spring. Plant materials for indoor plants are available as well as a full line of plants to blend with your decor and your type of winter heat, as well as exposure or lack of natural sunsune.

At the center, there are hundreds of items on the shelves: some old familiar products; some new based on current research and fresh new gardening concepts.

The men who are responsible for the operation of the Family Tree are George Dennis, Larry Tasker, Norman "Butch" Welch and Karl Heinz.

Each has spent a great deal of time working in the field of horticulture and, collectively, they represent a fund of knowledge, both practical and technical, which, assuredly, is the most valuable "commodity" the Family Tree has to offer.

Family Tree Garden Center, Inc., located at the corner of the V.F.W. Parkway and Gardner Street in West Roxbury, is beginning its 22nd year serving the communities surrounding it.

Decorator can save time and energy

"Don't be afraid of decorators," says Robert T. Luddington, director of the Jordan Marsh Interior Design Studio. "So many people seem to think that a decorator's services are only for the very wealthy. It's just not true."

At Jordan Marsh, highly trained decorators are available to help customers plan beautiful interiors while staying within bounds of the customer's budget. Luddington, a veteran decorator who has designed interiors throughout the U.S. and South America, explains that a decorator's services can be invaluable. "Many people run out and buy all kinds of furnishings and then don't know what to do with them once they get them home. A simple visit to the decorator beforehand can prevent a lot of costly mistakes.

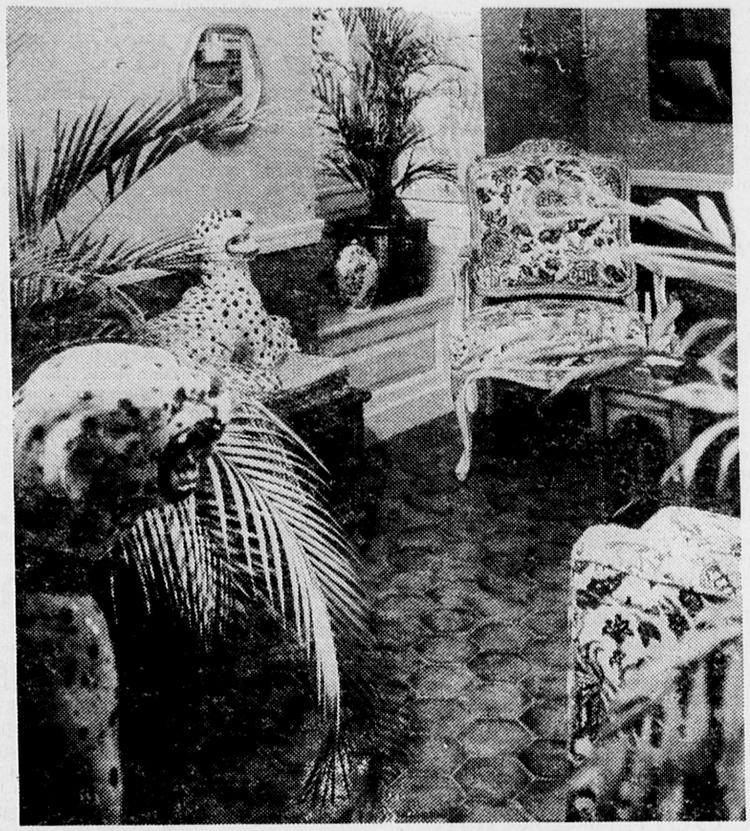

"The decorator can save a customer a good deal of time and energy too by coordinating furnishings, carpeting, draperies, accessories, lamps and wall coverings all at once. The customer doesn't have to run all over with a swatch of fabric trying to work up a color scheme.

"Of course, the decorator's service is highly personal — a nice change in today's computerized society."

How does the service work? A customer interested in decorating a room or more contacts the Interior Design Studio. The decorator then consults with the customer at home to determine the customer's individual tastes, needs and lifestyle. Based on the customer's requirements, a decorating scheme is devised. The decorator then goes over the scheme with the customer making additions and deletions as necessary. For the customer on a budget, the decorator can suggest major purchases for the present and plan additions for the future.

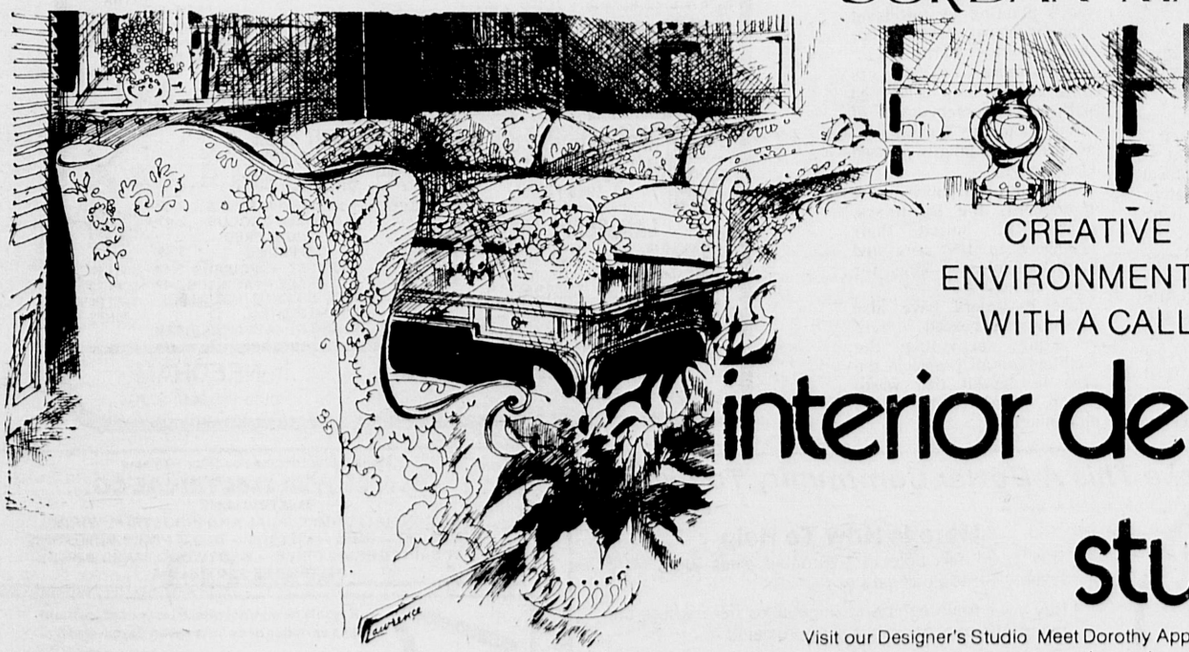

In addition to its at-home service, the Interior Design Studio offers in-store consultations for specific items or problem areas. There is no charge for any Jordan Marsh decorating service beyond the purchases a customer makes through the decorator.

Whether decorating home or office, the Jordan Marsh interior design staff can make decorating easy and less expensive than you probably thought. Make an appointment today. Jordan Marsh has Interior Design Studios in its Boston, Peabody, Braintree and Burlington stores.

A decorator can often provide that extra touch here palm plants are simpatico with rococo furnishings.

Mister Donut guarantees goods

Lee Gudmand is the new owner-manager of Mister Donut, located at 115 Providence Highway, Westwood. Lee is no mere stranger to the donut business, since he has been with the company for the past 15 years. Lee served as vice-president of Mister Donut for the past ten years and traveled extensively setting up and designing franchises on an international basis.

Anyone who has been in Japan recently may have eaten at one of the 130 Mister Donut shops.

Since Lee purchased the Mister Donut Shop in Westwood a few months ago, he has re-done the parking area and has landscape projects being undertaken at the present time. Hanging plants and a few tables inside also create a pleasant way to share a donut and coffee with a friend. Donuts and other baked goods are made fresh twice a day and, at the stroke of midnight, all baked goods in the cases are given away to charitable organizations. Absolutely no baked product is held over to the next day — a steadfast policy which ensures fresh baked goods all the time.

Clubs, businesses and organizations ordering baked foods for their meetings can choose from 54 varieties of donut, muffins, cookies, fancy pastries, Bismarks and tarts. Donut holes are available on the weekend and Lee has lots of fresh baked food ideas for the whole family.

Lee Gudman invites you to stop in to meet him as you drive down Route 1. Stop in for a treat before you continue on your way! And, don't forget, there are more than 600 shops throughout the U.S. and Canada to provide good food wherever you are.

The illustrated handbook "Striking and Struck Tool Safety" lists safety practices, various types of tools and their recommended care and sharpening procedure.

Harvest time at Sunny Brook

It is harvest time at Sunny Rock Farm in Walpole, and an excellent time to visit the farm located on North Street, one of the few remaining active family farms in the area.

Established over 50 years ago by John E. Buttimer, the farm is currently being operated by his two sons, John and George, and their families.

Interest within the family is continuing as Bob Buttimer is now enrolled as a student at Norfolk County Agricultural School, the training his father and Uncle George chose many years earlier.

The Farm Store is open year round, seven days a week. You can shop there for all the locally grown fruits and vegetables, fresh milk and eggs, as well as a large selection of bird seed, bird feeders and much more.

Those wishing to enjoy a cozy fire on these chilly fall evenings should order a load of fireplace wood delivered to their homes at Sunny Rock's always reasonable prices. It's also time to prepare for next year's planting by fertilizing your garden with manure from the Sunny Rock Farm.

As farmers, the Buttimers have always been concerned with the preservation of nature, and are overjoyed to see the current interest focused on ecology.

As their contribution to the movement, the Buttimers, each fall, solicit their neighbors in the area and exchange plastic bags for raked up leaves.

The Buttimers have also become involved with recycling, providing the facilities for all people in the area to deposit thin waste paper, tin cans, and aluminium.

Many means to minimize moving day

Sooner or later, moving day arrives for virtually every family in America. Each year' one family out of five moves, and an average individual will move 14 times in his-her lifetime. In theory, moving day is a time of exictement, anticipation, and happiness. In fact, moving day is frequently marked by frustration, headaches, fear, and unexpected expense.

Many of the problems and expenses related to moving can be reduced or eliminated if you plan ahead, are willing to do at least some of the work yourself, and are flexible. Here are a few tips:

Select the right means — There are basically four means of moving: van line, rental equipment, owned or borrowed equipment' and liquidation. The latter three are essentially do-it-yourself and together they comprise about three-fourths of all household moves.

One method may seem just right for you, depending upon how much money you can spend, how much work you're willing to do, and how much damage to your goods you're willing to risk. Money alone will not guatantee a damage-free move, so consider this:

Van lines are most expensive because they will do all the work for you. However, about 35 per cent of all van line moves result in late pickup or delivery and-or damage to goods.

Rental equipment — trucks and trailers — cost about half as much as van lines. You rent the equipment, drive or tow it yourself, and do your own packing. You give good personal care and can obtain professional type moving aids so you can eliminate damage and hold down expenses at the same time. But no fooling, it is work.

Owned or borrowed equipment may be the least expensive method' but there are several hazards: the equipment is not designed for moving furniture and you may not be able to obtain moving aids so the chance of damage is increased and the job will be harder. You may have to make several back-and-forth trips, and you won't have any insurance protection for your goods. However, for local, short-distance moves and very few goods, this can be quick and cheap.

Liquidation means you get rid of everything you can't carry in your car or suitcase. This is great for bachelors and those folks living in furnished apartments, but you should measure the cost of replacing your goods against the cost of moving some of them. It may be cheaper to move them.

You don't need to settle on just one method of moving. Depending on your ability to pay and work, a combination of different methods may yield the most desirable resutls and still result in substantial savings.

For instance, no matter what method you choose, you can save a substantial sum by doing your own packing. Obtain sturdy packing cartons trom the van line, rental equipment dealer, or local stores, and pack correctly. Van lines charge for packing and unpacking services and they can't possibly do as good a job as you can if you take time to do it properly.

Then, if you don't want to do anything else, call a van line. Or, if you want to save even more, and at the same time insure that you won't be stranded in a new home without furniture or clothes because the van was late, rent a trailer or small truck and move clothes, dishes' beds, smaller furnishings and valued items. Have a van line mvoe the heavier items: appliances, sofas, etc. You'll save some money because you do part of the job yourself' but you won't wear yourself out. This is especially good if you are moving into or out of a high-rise, downtown apartment.

If a van line is completely out of the question, see about getting several friends with pickup trucks and make the move caravan style, possibly augmented by a rental truck for appliances, large furniture, or any item that you don't want open to the elements while you drive around. That way, you can still use equipment designed for moving (a rental truck or trailer), but you'll be able to bet by with a smaller piece of equipment (lower rental rate) and may be able to get a part-day rate (lower than full 24-hour rate).

If you use rental equipment for all or part of your move, be sure it is equipment that has been designed for moving household goods and not freight. Does it have smooth interior sides and deck, weatherproof construction, padded rub rails, recessed tie downs, locking doors? Trucks built for household moving will feature low decks, slide-out loading ramps, easy-riding suspensions and comfortable cabs.

Regardless of how you move, get rid of things you don't really want or need.

Cut energy costs by pushing a button

Storm windows save more fuel dollars than any other type of insulating material.

That's the definitive conclusion of the federal government's National Bureau of Standards, which decided to find out where a house loses heat, how much it loses and what measures could be taken to cut losses. NBS engineers used different energy-saving measures, monitored by infrared photographs, and managed to cut the cost of heating a home by a full 52 percent.

But — fully 24 percent of the fuel cost was saved by adding storm windows. Three other insulating materials saved the remaining 28 percent: floor insulation — 8 percent, ceiling insulation — 5 percent, wall insulation — 15 percent.

Although engineers have, for years, pointed to single-glazed windows as losing more heat than any other part of the wall area, the National Bureau of Standards decided on a full-length study, taking over an entire h use and evaluating different insulating materials under scientifically-controlled conditions.

The house chosen was a conventional one-family, one-level ranch house in Gaithersburg, Md. The house is of frame construction and 22 years old.

Formerly, the house needed 881 gallons of fuel oil for a total cost of $317 (at 36c a gallon) to keep its interior at 68 degrees. After the NBS applied its energy-saving measures, the fuel bill dropped to $152 for only 423 gallons of oil.

The NBS added storm windows to 26 single-pane windows, an area which is about 16 percent of the total exposed wall surface of the house (in line with most U.S. houses). The house interior contains 2,054 sq. ft. of living area, more than a third bigger than the U.S. average of about 1,500 sq. ft.

For a copy of an article in Mechanix Illustrated Magazine describing the NBS work on this house and their findings, write to Fred Schmidt, Seasonall Indistries, Inc., Indiana, Pa. 15701.

Limited Editions spotlight local artists and craftsmen

Limited Editions, a new gallery and shop devoted to the display and sale of arts and crafts by regional and local artisians, has opened at 1176 Walnut St., Newton Highlands.

As its name implies, Limited Editions features one-of-a-kind or small series arts and crafts. There are no 'production items' here and you won't see the same thing in Boston or Cambridge, says Jo-Ann Isaacson, owner. "We only want those arts and crafts which can be considered unique in some way, and bear the mark of a craftsman who has spent considerable time and energy learning and practicing his craft. "Even the Vegimals," small, animal-like vegetables, which could be considered production items, have their own individuality. Ms. Isaacson plans to keep Limited Editions devoted to the creative and unique.

Beginning October 5, Ms. Isaacson will have workshops in part of the gallery. The workshops will be eight to ten week sessions in stained glass, pottery, weaving, calligraphy and life drawing, and will be conducted by some of the local craftsmen on display in the shop.

Jo-Ann Isaacson, right, explains the many uses of "Peasantware" pottery to Elaine and David Gould of Waltham

Kirby Vacuum will clean both homes and businesses

If you want to keep that new rug looking new or if you run a business that has carpeting, a Kirby vacuum may be an asset in your maintenance program.

Located at 110 Madison Avenue, Newtonville, Kirby Associates provide the highest quality of home maintenance and vacuum cleaner systems.

It is a little-known fact that Kirby is the only industrial cleaner which has been made available for homeowners. It is kind to broadloom and orientals and all synthetic fibers, and is perhaps the only vacuum which is passed on from grandmother to granddaughter and still remains in mint condition.

Established in 1914 in Cleveland, Ohio, it is a division of Scott and Fetzer Co., and is locally managed by Joseph Kouyoumjian.

Mr. Kouyoumjian, the factory distributor for Kirby Co. started in 1971 in the Hyde Park and Dedham area.

Now Kouyoumjian is in charge of all Kirby sales and service for metropolitan Boston within Route 128.

Kouyoumjian's store has the largest service center in the area with factory trained sales and service personnel.

SILKEN WALLS

Do you have an extra-pretty scarf — one that's just too pretty to fold into a knot or tie in a triangle and wear? Don't stash it away for that "special occasion" which may never come. Give it a light pressing, frame it, and you'll have a great new look for a room!

The secure home

In these days of rising crime, one of the most valuable improvements an owner can make to his home is some type of security measure.

Fortunately, there are an increasing number of products designed to discourage burglaries. These range from the latest security locks to ultra-sonic systems. Many burglar alarm systems also include fire detection units. All these systems send out alarms to either frighten away intruders or attract attention to them.

Security locks have been greatly improved in recent years: some chain locks even feature alarm systems, and there are devices designed especially for sliding doors.

Experts recommend that all outside doors be equipped with a double-locking dead-bolt or dead latch, locked separately with a key from the outside. Although deadbolts are not burglar-proof, they cannot be forced open as easily as other locks. Saw-proof bolts are also available for added security. Some bolts are made extra long, to project farther onto the door frame.

It is also advisable to have chains on all outside doors. When you open the door to a stranger, leave the chain on.
